I have spoken before about diathermy, the method of getting heat into the inner part of the body without burning the skin.

It has been used by Dr. Crile of Cleveland in maintaining heat in the abdomen during an operation.

Dr. F. B. Granger, Boston, tells us that it is of value in pneumonia, as it lessens pain, improves temporarily the heart's action, and induces sleep.

By relieving the pain and increasing the amount of rest, the patient is in better shape to meet the crisis.

And now Dr. Dan McKenzie, Glasgow, Scotland, says that in favorable cases of chronic middle ear deafness, diathermy improves the hearing and diminishes the noises—humming-ringing, whirring and other noises—that accompany some forms of deafness.

The middle ear, as you know, is where the three little bones are located that carry sound from the drum of the ear to the brain.

He describes the method as follows: The electrodes used are of metal, of the same size, the superficial measurements being 1 inch by 1-½ inches. One is placed over the mastoid process (the bony lump behind the ear), and the other is laid upon the face just below the prominence of the cheek bone. A pad of lint soaked in 10 percent salt solution is placed between the electrode and the skin.

The current used varies from 0.7 to 1.4 amperes; it is gradually raised from zero to the point when the patient begins to feel the skin becoming too hot, and then reduced to the point where the patient can bear it comfortably, and kept there from 7 to 10 minutes.

The patient should remain lying down for a short time after the treatment. The treatments should be repeated every other day and improvement, if it is going to occur at all, should be noted at end of the second or third week. There may or may not be a reactionary dulling of the hearing for the first 18 to 36 hours.

In the presence of pus, or in cases where the little bones in the ear have grown together, diathermy should not be used.

I have quoted freely because you may be a sufferer from deafness, and your ear specialist will be able to tell you whether or not diathermy may be helpful in your particular type of deafness.

TOMATOES REQUIRED FOR BALANCED DIET

Verdict of Medical Science is That There Are Three Essential Vitamins Present.

The verdict of medical science is that there are three essential Vitamins, without which no daily diet is nutritious enough for good health, vitality and vigor. The problem of proper menu selection thus becomes one of choosing foods of maximum Vitamin content.

Tomatoes contain all three Vitamins, more of them than any other fruit or vegetable, and in the form which nature likes best and uses most. A properly balanced diet would seem, then, to require tomatoes, the great, Canadian Vitamin Vegetable, at all seasons.

This is both possible and inexpensive. Modern canning methods provide at all seasons of the year tomatoes that are actually richer in flavor and Vitamins than the tomatoes ordinarily sold in so-called "fresh" state. Unpacked tomatoes quickly lose their "freshness," whereas canned tomatoes bring this freshness right to the user's table. That is why medical science pronounces canned tomatoes more beneficial than those eaten uncanned.

The tomatoes are picked and packed at the height of their natural ripeness and freshness, while tomatoes intended for market sale are taken from the vine before maturity, and lost flavor and freshness from wilting and incipient decay. Commercial canning, unlike home cooking, preserves the Vitamins right to the table.

This, doubtless, explains why doctors and hospital authorities now prescribe tomato juice for children and adults whose constitutions are run down and why tomatoes are recommended as a part of the daily menu at all seasons.

OLD SONGS

THE GIPSY'S WARNING

(Contributed by Adastia.)

Gentle lady do not trust him,
Though his voice is low and sweet;
Think of him who kneels before you,
Gently pleading at your feet.
Now your life is in its morning,
Cloud not this your happy lot,
Listen to the Gipsy's warning
Gentle lady trust him not.

Do not turn so coldly from me,
I would only guard your youth,
From his stern and withering power.
I would only tell the truth,
I would shield you from all danger
Save you from the tempter's snare.
Do not trust that dark-eyed stranger
I have warned you, now beware!

Lady, once there lived a maiden
Pure and bright and oh, so fair,
Till he wooed her, then he won her,
Filled her gentle heart with care.
Then he heeded not her weeping,
Nor cared he, her life to save.
Soon she perished, now she's sleeping
In the cold and silent grave.

Keep your gold I do not want it,
Lady I have prayed for this,
For the hour when I might foil him,
Rob him of expected bliss.
Gentle lady do not wonder
At my words so cold and wild,
Lady in that green grave yonder,
Lies the Gypsy's only child.

IF THEY COULD ONLY MOVE OLD IRELAND

(Contributed by "Erin's Youth")

Sure my thoughts are now returning
To a land across the sea,
Where all the scenes of bygone years,
Come plainly back to me.
And it's often I am thinking
Of that little isle so grand,
I'd feel happy could they move it here
To dear old "Yankee Land."

1st Chorus.

Why! If Blarney castle stood in dear Chicago,
If Muskerry cabins stood along Broadway,
If Shandon bells rang out in Philadelphia,
If Killarney's lakes flowed into Frisco Bay;
If the river Shannon only flowed through Boston,
Oh! my native land, I'd never shed a tear,
Every fellow would be seen, with his charming sweet colleen,
If they could only move old Ireland over here.

Then we wouldn't need two green flags
On the railing of a train,
To let you know the engineer
Has got an Irish name,
Nor would Germans be elected—
Somebody would say:
"I would bet my life they would not, sir,
In good old U.S.A."

2nd Chorus.

If the Blarney stone would move to Harold Square;
If around Broadway you could pick Dublin daisies
Every Yankee band would play an Irish air.
Erin-go-bragh, you'd earn some silver dollars,
Oh! how prettily we would sing "Bedilia Dear."
Sure we all would feel at home when we'd cross the Atlantic foam

Lilac Time

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY

When Mary got off the night train at the quiet little town of Ellington she went directly to her home. Had her neighbors known that she planned to return, there would have been many invitations extended to the lonely girl who was coming back alone after her trip abroad with her invalid mother.

She had told no one of her coming for she had been too heart-sick to write. She had the instinct of a wounded animal to return to the places she knew; and as she drew in long breaths of the sweet country air, she knew she had done the right thing.

The Meddlicott home was at the very outskirts of the village and only near one house, the Smith house, which was next door, with large grounds and many trees about it. Therefore, when Mary set all her doors and windows wide open the next morning there was no one near enough to observe. "I suppose someone will see my smoke," thought the girl as she lighted the kindlings under the log in the grate.

She bustled about, hoping to set the place in spotless order before the advent of the neighbors she longed to see and it was nearly 10 o'clock before she heard footsteps.

"Why, Mary Meddlicott, why didn't you let us know you were coming home?" A pair of arms thrown warmly about the slim, blue-ginghamed waist aroused her.

"I just came last night," she said. "I knew how good you would be, but I just thought I'd creep in and get it over with alone."

Amanda patted her arm gently. "Well, you shan't sleep another night here, alone. I'll be over again to get you for dinner."

"I've been planning all morning and I can't bear to think of going away to teach; I want to be at home and I'm going to open a boarding-house. What do you think of the plan?"

"There are several people I know of now. The hotel has been closed all winter and the teacher from the village school is looking about now for a place to board next fall—and—" Mary wondered why her old friend suddenly halted with twinkling eyes and stood as though thinking: "And what?" asked the girl.

"Nothing," was the evasive reply. "Didn't you feel afraid so far away from the other houses last night?"

Mary shook her head.

"You know the Smiths' house has the name of being haunted. Did you hear any thing?"

"No. I wonder why they don't rent it? Seems a shame for such a fine estate to fall into decay," returned Mary, a delicate pink staining her smooth cheeks as she recalled the quarrel between the two families. The feud had grown out of a mere trifle. A ball thrown by Mary's little brother had broken a pane of glass in the greenhouse and touchy old Mrs. Smith had fussed and nagged until the families were on terms of bitter silence.

Amanda, watching the telltale expressions flit over the young face, knew that Mary was thinking of the brown-eyed Frank Smith, who had been a childhood sweetheart and whom Mary had not seen for years.

Mary, her mind a jumble of thoughts, hurried over her dusting. She wanted to get out into the old-fashioned garden and see the flowers that she had longed for on her trip home. The yellow roses, badly in need of pruning, swarmed up against the squat bush of flowering quince and trailed in long, thorny sprays along the thick grass that was dotted with blossoms of pink and white clover. To the east Mary's eyes wandered and fell on the thick row of lilacs that divided the Meddlicott grounds from the Smith's estate. "There, no one has touched those bushes for years," she thought, recalling the old happy times when Frank squeezed through the bushes that he persisted in calling lilac-trees. "Those branches are growing over and spoiling my hedge. I guess I'll just start right there with my trimming."

She worked steadily and there was a growing pile of branches as tribute to her industry when an abrupt sound on the other side of the hedge startled her. All her boasted disregard of the haunted house fled in an instant and she stood motionless—waiting.

"What do you mean by touching my lilac-trees?" The voice was masculine and touched with a crisp annoyance.

There was a crashing sound and a gray tweed arm made an opening in the tangle of blossoms and a pair of brown eyes peered through. "You sound mighty confidant, but as I happen to be the—why, Mary, Hello! I didn't know you were expected home," he ended with a glad note in his voice that brought a rush of rose to the face that had gone white.

"And I," returned Mary, "understood that your home was empty except for ghosts, so I thought I'd prune your lilacs for you. They are crowding my hedge," she added a bit tremulously as his dark eyes dwelt disconcertingly on her.

"There are ghosts in the house," he said seriously, "ghosts of old memories—ghosts of an old love that has never been forgotten. I was just about to close up the old house and offer it for sale as no one seemed to know where you were or when you would return. The folks seemed to think you would remain in France and I couldn't bear it here with your home close. Suppose, Mary," the dark eyes glowed and he took her hands in his, "suppose you come through the hedge and help me keep the ghosts away in the Smith house?"

"Perhaps I will," murmured the girl, her eyes starry with joy. "A ghost is an inducement and you certainly need help with your lilac-trees."

agrees with CAVALIERI of Paris on this 2-minute complexion treatment

"One thing I always recommend in addition to my own expert treatments, and that is foundation cleansing with the widely-known Palmolive Soap."

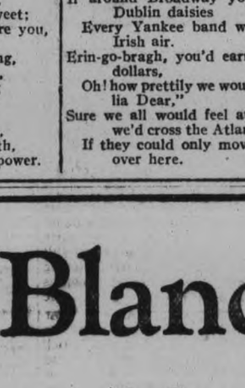
Salon de Coiffure, Chateau Frontenac

"In addition to my own beauty aids, I always recommend the soap blended of palm and olive oils. By cleansing the pores thoroughly it leaves the skin in a smooth, healthy condition."

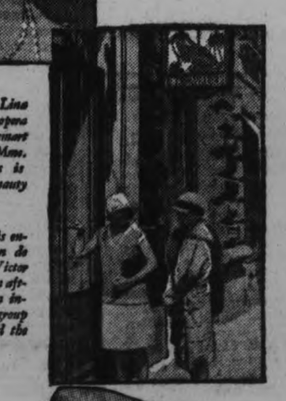
Lina Cavalieri

61, Avenue Victor Emmanuel III, Paris



Portrait, by Argnani, of Lina Cavalieri, the beautiful opera star, who now conducts a smart beauty shop in Paris. Mme. Cavalieri's own loveliness is proof of the wisdom of her beauty advice.

Unmistakably Parisian, this entrance to Cavalieri's Salon de Beauté, at 61, Avenue Victor Emmanuel III. Here, on an afternoon, one mingles with an interesting and attractive group of women from Canada and the continent.



A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

LINA CAVALIERI has stepped off the operatic stage to share her beauty knowledge with the world's smartest women.

Ensconced in her sumptuous salon, on the Avenue Victor Emmanuel III., Lina Cavalieri tells her patrons of a simple home beauty treatment with a soap blended of palm and olive oils.

"I am visited by some of the most famous beauties of two continents," she says. "In addition to my own beauty products, I always recommend them to use Palmolive Soap."

When dirt, dust, oil, powder and rouge get into the pores they are choked up. To these poisonous secretions Cavalieri attributes blackheads, pimples, enlarged pores, blemishes.

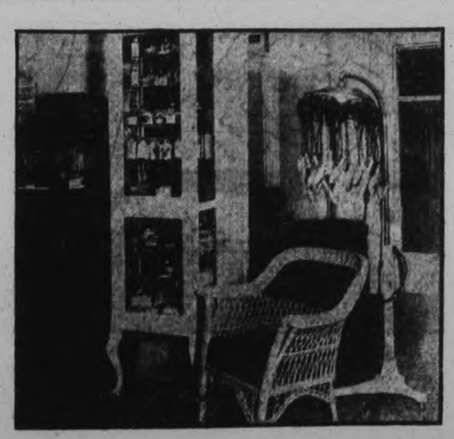
Mme. Cavalieri feels that the unique lather of Palmolive frees those hardening masses of dirt and make-up and leaves the complexion soft and glowing.

Discovered long ago by Canadian specialists

This opinion has long been held by beauty specialists of prominence throughout Canada. They, too, recommend this famous twice-a-day treatment which Cavalieri suggests to her discriminating clientele:

With both hands make a bland lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. For two minutes, massage this well into the skin. Then rinse, gradually cooling the water to icy temperature. For dry skin, a touch of cold cream. Oily skin is refreshed by an astringent lotion and day cream before make-up is applied.

Not only in Canada but in Vienna, Berlin, London, Rome—all over the world specialists agree on this 2-minute beauty treatment. France has made Palmolive one of its two largest selling soaps . . . think of it—France, the beauty dictator of two hemispheres. And in forty-eight other countries, of all soaps it is the choice, just as it is here in Canada.



The Salon de Coiffure of the Chateau Frontenac, a corner of which is shown above, is a rendezvous not alone for the smart women of Quebec but for travellers from all parts of Canada, the United States and Europe.

"The smartest women of Quebec and half the continent acknowledge my salon as the city's leading beauty establishment," says Blanche Hutchison. "To me they come for advice on how to protect the skin and restore its youthful appearance."

"One thing I always recommend in addition to my own expert treatments, and that is foundation cleansing with the widely-known Palmolive Soap."

"The emollient effects of the bland palm and olive oils contained in Palmolive Soap are greatly beneficial to the skin."

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Much can be done by the amateur gardener not only to improve the appearance of the patch of ground about the house but to improve the actual lines and tone of the outside of the house during warm weather. And a suburban house or little summer cottage that looks quite plain and characterless as it is may be made a sight to gladden the eye by means of a few simple devices of gardening.

Doorways may be made charming by means of lattices and archways on which vines are grown. There are quick-growing annual vines that may be chosefor this. Morning glory and various flowering beans give excellent results.

For windows that have a bare and unattractive appearance nothing makes such a charming effect as floral awnings. These are made in the form of lattice frames nailed over the top of the window Quick-growing annual vines are grown from the ground trained on strings and finally brought across the top of the awning frame to form a canopy that provides welcome shade at a too sunny window. Or there may be a window box in connection with the awning and the vines may be grown from this. Needless to say the window boxes should be regularly and well watered. If the painted frames used for these awnings are taken down at the end of the season that may be used year after year.

An upstairs balcony or ledge that looks ordinary enough as it is may be made a thing of beauty if flanked by window boxes filled with flowers or green plants.

Fences about the house that are an eyesore now may be made the support for lovely vines. For these you may use the quick-growing annuals or such hardy vines as honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, clematis or any of the rambler

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

In my reading the other day I came across a little poem by Dena Tempest, entitled "Commonplace Lane," that I think has a splendid lesson, besides being beautiful.

There's a path that we most of us tread,
It is Commonplace Lane, so they say,
For it's only the jog-along, plod-along pathway
Of ev'ryone's every day.
Oft in blossom and sunshine it lies,
And oft it is clouded in rain;
But so long as the skies are ashine with your eyes,
I am happy in Commonplace Lane.

There's a plain that is venturous, wide,
And it runs to the ends of the world;
There's a hill climbing high, nearly touching the sky,
Where the clouds of vain wishes lie curled.
There are many who dream of the hill,
And many who sigh for the plain;
And I dream and sigh, too, but my longing's for you
In life's beautiful Commonplace Lane.

I remember reading in some book on journalism that most reporters make the mistake of looking for sensations to record, when as a matter of fact the interesting things of life are the commonplace things, provided they are interestingly told.

After all, we are all greatly interested in what our neighbors are doing—and none of us cares very much about much more thrilling things that may be happening in Patagonia.

Commonplace Lane can be very interesting. It's the sunshine and shadow alternating on our own lives that make them interesting, and we like to watch them play over the lives of our neighbors, too.

And then, as the little poem says, Commonplace Lane is made happy by the presence of someone else—happier than the most thrilling adventure would be without that person.

It's a splendid answer to those who say marriage is drab and unexciting.

I know people who get the greatest thrill out of their daily work; I know others, alas, to whom every day is a "grind."

I know housewives who see nothing but the daily round of work; I know others who find a real thrill out of doing that same housework to make others happy.

Commonplace Lane is all in the matter of personal outlook. You know the story of the man who never saw anything but the dirt he was sweeping up, and the other who drew inspiration from the stars.

Let's get the outlook that, when we walk in Commonplace Lane with a loved one, finds delight in making that person happy.

If we do that, then Commonplace Lane will not any longer be common, and each of us will find, in thinking about that loved one:

". . . so long as the skies are ashine with your eyes,
I am happy in Commonplace Lane."

On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Heenan of 797 Water Street celebrated in splendid style the golden anniversary of their wedding day, which took place just half a century ago in St. Peter's Cathedral, where the day of remembrance on Monday opened at nine o'clock with the celebration of High Mass by the Rev. P. Costello, who also spoke briefly later, congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Heenan on the attainment of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. In the evening, at their home, their children, grandchildren and intimate friends, numbering about fifty guests, joined with them in the enjoyment of a sumptuous repast, most of which was prepared by Mrs. Heenan herself. Their five living children were present: Mrs. J. Angelsey of Detroit, Mrs. F. Kearney, Mrs. R. Donoghue and Miss Irene Heenan of Peterborough, and Mr. Vincent Heenan of Toronto, also their thirteen grandchildren and many other relatives and friends. Decorations were carried out with white and gold streamers and flowers, many bouquets being received by Mrs. Heenan during the day, among them one from Mayor Denne and another from Mr. R. E. Layfield of the Canadian General Electric Company, where Mr. Heenan is employed. A purse of gold was also presented by Mr. T. Byers from employees of the C.G.E., and the children of Mr. and Mrs. Heenan gave them a handsome percolator and a purse of gold, the presentation being made by Mr. Vincent Heenan of Toronto, while the presentation from the grandchildren of another purse and of one hundred golden daffodils was made by Frank Kearney. Mr. Gerald McFadden spoke briefly at the dinner table, in congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. Heenan. During the evening, euchre games were played until midnight, when a light lunch was served and the evening ended with two hours of dancing. Prizes for cards were won by Mr. and Mrs. M. Wells (first), Mrs. E. English and Mr. Harold Cadigan (second), and Mr. and Mrs. W. Devlin (consolation).

The Quaker Oats Company's Tennis Club held another delightful party at Austin's Dining Rooms last evening, in honor of the Ladies' Bowling team of the establishment, the players having made such a good showing in the City League games just concluded when they were winners in the first half of the schedule, and runners-up in the second half. After a dainty lunch was served, a varied program was given, consisting of readings by Mr. Jack Primeau, a cornet solo by Mr. Joseph Minicola and vocal numbers by Mr. E. Vernon Morphet. Mr. J. E. Sullivan presided. During the evening, the presentation of individual prizes was made to members of the Ladies' Bowling Team. General arrangements for the entertainment were in the hands of Mr. F. C. Ash, chairman of the club. Excellent music for dancing was provided by M. Yokum. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Morphet, the Misses A. Throop, E. Dodds, G. Ash, E. McIlmoyl, H. Only Two of Us

A Column for the Exchange of Ideas for Small Families

"Dear Marion: It does look as if 'Two of us' column has slammed out—perhaps neighbors thought it too personal to write about. But 'Two of us' are not always man and wife; there are 'Two of us' in so many spheres of life. Sometimes a sister and a brother, or a daughter left with her mother. With 'Two of us' there is much giving and taking, wishes and wants of both forsaking; how apt on the other fellow to put the blame, when we, perhaps, are doing the same. It appears as easy to do for four, as to try and cook for only one more. So often there's some left over to waste, when only a something is wanted, just for a taste. Some neighborly recipes from a good cook will be trusted more than those we get from a book. Let 'Two of us' stand together, and help the column to live, by some useful experience we can give. Place together 2 nicely browned, buttered pieces of toast, sprinkled with a little sugar. Pour over just enough hot milk to moisten, and some cream on top. Eat with a spoon. 'Two of us' like this at breakfast. META."

Thank you, "Meta" for nice thoughts, and inspiration and hints. You've revived the column for at least a day!

Sickly Boy, 7, Gains 15 Lbs—Father Happy

"My boy, 7, would not eat. I gave him Vinol and the way he eats and plays now makes me happy. He gained 15 pounds."—J. F. Andres.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep, and a BIG appetite. Tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, Druggists.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

AGAVE

It may be ten, or twenty, years,
Or seventy, before appears
Upon the tardy century plant
The lovely petalled visitant
We call a flow'r. Yes, men have seen
The spines grow sharp, the leaves grow green,
Have lived and died, and never known
The beauty of its flow'r full-blown.

But let us go on planting then
Beauty, for even other men;
And, if it is not given us
To see the thing we planted thus,
Finding our joyance in the grave
Not what we gained but what we gave,
Finding our comfort, while we sleep,
Things sowed for other hands to reap—

Yes, go on saving day by day
For little children, that they may Find life less difficult than ours,
Planting for other eyes the flow'rs
That our own eyes shall not behold.
Perhaps they yet, when we lie cold,
Shall understand, and bring one bloom
At last, and lay it on our tomb.

BUSINESS GIRLS COLUMN.

Dear Marion: I'm afraid you have become slightly angry with me. Now you misunderstood entirely what I intended the purport of my letter to be. I am not an admirer of the younger set of to-day. Oh, no, quite the opposite, I am disgusted with them. However if you would like to write a whatnot on what you know of them, I should be greatly interested.

To get back to the "Business Girl." You know our interests are relations with employer, fellow workers, rush times, conditions going to and from work, how to teach new girls without appearing domineering, how to keep fit for the office every day, etc., etc.

I'm afraid housekeeping isn't my greatest ambition Marion. It hurts me when I see girls with whom I went to school complete slaves to family-rearing and consequently ruining their young lives. It is not cute to rush into matrimony according to my way of thinking. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the poor dears do not better themselves.

With kind regards.

ODDITY.

I really believe there are enough lettrs coming in now to start the column you so much desire. But you'll have to keep it running, you know.

I'll try to write the odd article for it.

In addition to the yearly salary of $75,000, the President of the United States is appropriated $350,000 with which to meet his recognized official expenses.

"Mother wants Bon Ami Powder, too"

WOMEN everywhere are finding how convenient it is to keep Bon Ami Powder and Bon Ami Cake always on hand.

For 38 years the compact Bon Ami Cake has been unrivaled as a window and mirror cleaner. Used by millions of women daily, it is still unequaled.

And what a multitude of uses you'll find for Bon Ami Powder! It's so handy for cleaning kitchen utensils, bathtubs, basins, toilets and tiling; smooth painted walls and woodwork; nickel and brass fixtures; Congoleum and linoleum floor-coverings, etc.

Bon Ami Powder and Cake blot up dirt instead of scouring it off. And they will not redden or roughen your hands.

Keys Drive Doyle From Mound After Three Innings

LEAFS DROP FINAL GAME OF THE SERIES

Keys Rake Toronto Hurler For Seven Hits To Win 6-4 Victory.

ORIOLES TAKE SERIES.

Rochester Stages Two-Run Rally in Ninth to Beat Jersey City 5-4.

READING, Pa., April 24. (C.P.)—Blasting Jess Doyle from the mound in three innings, the Reading Keys put together enough runs to carry them to a 6 to 4 victory over the Leafs in the final game of the series here yesterday. The Keys raked Old Slow Motion for seven hits including a home run over the right field wall by Joe Kelly and three doubles, to push five runs over the plate in the three innings. The Keys' other run was scored at the expense of Clarry Fisher, making his first appearance of the season, and who did the flinging the next four innings. Rollie Naylor twirled the eighth.

ORIOLES SWEEP SERIES

BALTIMORE, April 24. (C.P.) — The Orioles made a clean sweep over the Montreal Royals in the two games of their series that survived the weather by taking the final contest yesterday, 5 to 4. A three run rally in the eighth brought the Baltimore victory.

BIRDS BEAT SKEETERS

JERSEY CITY, April 24. (C.P.) — Rochester Red Wings, champions of the International League last year, staged a two run rally in the ninth inning yesterday to beat out Jersey City, 5 to 4, and take the series from the Cats in two straight games.

BISONS WIN 20-6.

NEWARK, April 24. (C.P.) — Base hits rained all over the lot yesterday as the Buffalo Bisons massacred four Newark pitchers to gain a 20 to 6 verdict. The Herd collected a total of 23 safe blows, including home runs by George Fisher and Bill Kelly, while Slicker Parks and Howard Signor held the Bears safe throughout.

BLEWETT TEAM HEADS LEAGUE

Played Two and Won Two in Lakefield School Softball Schedule.

TEAMS PERSONNEL.

LAKEFIELD, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—A softball league has been organized by the boys of the public school and a schedule drawn up with Messrs. T. W. Chaplin and H. Wannamaker as official umpire. There are five teams entered with Joe Blewett, Charlie Tanner, Arthur Kingdon, Harry Jewell and Gray Kemp as captains. Games are being played after school on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. The standing of the league so far is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Played.
Blewett	2	0	2
Tanner	1	1	2
Kingdon	1	1	2
Jewell	0	1	1
Kemp	0	1	1

The personnel of the teams is as follows:

Team 1.—Joe Blewett, captain; George Charlton, George Chappell, Carson Webster, Robert Lennox, Pat Lawless, Ralph Mason, Teddy Hunter, Pat McFadden, S. Robinson.

Team 4.—Harry Jewell, captain; Herrick Brown, Ollie Pearson, Irwin Charlton, Allan Preston, Allan Marshall, Tom Junkin, John Brown, David Hill, Percy Payne, Cameron Moore.

Team 5.—Gray Kemp, captain; C. Hurl, Roy Matthews, Harold Trude, Bernard Pearson, James Reid, Donald Yale, J. Curve, Reg. Pearson, Donald Nevison.

The International League has a new leader, Charles H. Knapp, a Baltimore lawyer, who will temporarily fill the office of president until the annual meeting next December. The office of president has been shorn of many of its powers, even the appointment of umpires being delegated to another party, William B. Carpenter chief of the staff. The stage had already been set for the election of Sam Robertson as president, but a change of attitude on the part of his fellow-townsman, Frank Offerman, of the Buffalo Club, threw a monkey wrench into the proceedings and killed Robertson's chances.

MILES SETS NEW RECORD

Johnny Miles, running under the colors of the Olympic Athletic Club of Hamilton, was the winner of the Boston marathon for the second time, he having previously won this event in 1926, as an "unknown" from Sydney Mines, C.B. Not only did this sturdy, freckled-faced Canadian lad outstrip 187 other racers, including many veterans, but he covered the 26 miles 385 yards over hill and dale between Hopkinton and Boston in the remarkable time of two hours 33 minutes 84-5 seconds. This was three minutes 59 seconds faster than the course record established by the veteran, Clarence De Mar, last year. Miles was the winner of the 15-mile race in Toronto on Good Friday.

Indians Rally In Ninth To Defeat Chicago 5-4

CLEVELAND, April 24 (Canadian Press). — A ninth inning rally gave Cleveland a 5 to 4 victory over the Chicago White Sox, and enabled the Indians to get an even break in the abbreviated two-game series which ended yesterday.

Cavan

CAVAN, April 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — Work on the land was general on Monday morning. Only those whose land is very low were unable to commence work.

Road Improved.

The Eighth Line, Cavan, has been much improved this spring by the cutting down of numerous trees that grew along the sides of the road. This allows the sun to dry the road up much faster, whereas before, it was shaded and stayed wet longer after rains; also snow banks remained a long time in the spring. The roads are improving, and are quite dry, although rough in places.

Board Meets.

There was a meeting of the Quarterly Board in Cavan Church on Monday evening.

Personals.

Mrs. William Gray, Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. A. Tinney over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Moncrief, Frazerville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. William Pritchard on Sunday.

ROBINS WIN HOME GAME

WON IN ELEVENTH.

BROOKLYN, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The Robins celebrated the opening of their home season yesterday by shading the Boston Braves by 3 to 2 in 11 innings for their first 1929 victory. Dazzy Vance pitched great ball for the home team, but received indifferent support. The game was won with one out in the eleventh on a pass to Flowers, his steal, and Bancroft's single to left.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 24 (Canadian Press).—A home run by Frank O'Doul, an ex-Giant, in the first and Barney Friberg's triple with two on in the eleventh combined to spoil the home opening of John McGraw's club yesterday, and to send Larry Benton to defeat by 3 to 1. Claude Willoughby was tight in the pinches. Although he passed ten men, he gave only seven hits, and left no fewer than 20 Giants stranded, 17 of them in nine innings.

Browns Square Series By Beating Tigers 11-5

ST. LOUIS, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Overcoming a five-run lead, the St. Louis Browns bunched hits in the later innings to chase two Detroit pitchers and win the final game of the series yesterday, 11 to 5. Blue, Brownie first baseman, starred at bat, getting two home runs, and accounting for three runs. Gehringer and McManus hit for the circuit for Detroit. Crowder, starting against the Tigers for the second time during the series, was batted out of the box. Yesterday's win squared the series.

Athletics Win First Home Game By 4-3 Score

PHILADELPHIA, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The Philadelphia Athletics opened their home season yesterday before a crowd of 30,000, and lost a thrilling 11-inning contest to the Washington Senators 4 to 3.

Goose Goslin's home run off Walberg with one on base in the first inning gave the Senators a lead that held good until Haas tied the score in the sixth with a homer, that came with none on base off Bump Hadley.

World Champion Yanks Drop 4-2 Tilt To Sox

BOSTON, April 24. — (Canadian Press).—The world champion Yankees opened Boston's portion of the American League season at Fenway Park yesterday by bowing before Big Ed. Morris, who held them to six singles and tumbled them to a .500 standing. The Red Sox won by 4 to 2.

BANNER YEAR IS EXPECTED THIS SEASON

Over 225 Players Have Signified Their Intention of Playing Softball.

CHANGE IN RULES.

Games Will Be Played in King Edward Park—No Overtime Innings.

Softball again, as in former years, is coming to the fore as a summer pastime among the employes of the C.G.E., and the large entry list already received for an inter-department league points to a banner season in this branch of sport. To date 225 players have signified their intention of playing this season, while the entries of sixteen teams are in the hands of the secretary, and several more are expected before the closing date, which is April 25.

This year, as far as possible, the department entering a team must confine the selection of players to their own particular department, but provision is being made to accommodate all players who are anxious to play but are unable to do so because the department in which they work is unable to enter a team owing to lack of players.

Grounds Problem

A thorough investigation on grounds problem by Messrs Munro and Cameron disclosed the fact that the softball executive had no alternative but to play the games at King Edward Park, as this is the only ground available which is suitable for playing purposes.

A few slight changes in last year's set of rules which were suggested by President Roy Pilling were favorably received by all the team captains, and adopted. The first change which will do away with overtime innings in all games was the introduction of the point system, in scoring two points for a win and one point for a tie, while a game is to consist of seven innings. The second ruling adopted says that all protests must be in the hands of the secretary on the day following a game unless the game is played before a holiday or an Saturdays. The date set for the final list of players is June 1 this year, which is considerably earlier than last season, but will amount to about the same thing as the league should get underway earlier this season than last, and no transfers will be ratified after this date.

The following departments have entered teams and should have a representative at the next meeting, which will be held Thursday night in the employment building: Office No. 1 and No. 2; Industrial Control, No. 1 and No. 2; Drafting Room; Wire; Fractional Motors; Test; Production; Tool Room; Brass; Machine Shop; Engineers, and Meter Department.

ONE OF THE FAVORITES

Tormentor II., five year old by Spey Pearl-Cast Steel, by Pontiac, is one of the three five year olds entered in the King's Plate. The brown son of Spey Pearl has never been to the races and of course is more or less an unknown quantity. His sire was once owned by His Majesty King George V., and his dam, Cast Steel, ran in the colors of Charles Boyle, the father of David Boyle, the present official timer on all C.R.A. tracks.

Tormentor II. was bred at Guelph by one of that town's most prominent sportsmen, Mr. E. B. Clancy,. W. McKay, who owns this candicate, has also nominated two others in White Dove and Pander. All are quartered at the Woodbine and are being made ready for the coming season by A. C. Donaldson.

English Footballers Will Tour Dominion

HEREFORD, Wales, April 24. — (Canadian Press Cable). — The Football Association has selected the following players for a tour of Canada this summer: Gray, Manchester City; Russell, Plymouth Argale; Jennings, Bolton Wanderers; Bennion, Manchester United; Keenor, Cardiff City; Rousher, Burnley; R. Williams, Manchester United; Neale, Wrexham, Len Davies, Cardiff City; Wizard, Bolton Wanderers, C. Jones, Arsenal; Wardell, Newport; R. Cook, Portsmouth; Warren, Cardiff City. Four more players will be appointed before the best available men at the end of the season can be chosen.

FAMOUS CRICKETER ENTERS MATRIMONY

Walter Hammond Married at Bindley Church To Miss Dorothy Lister.

BRADFORD, Yorkshire, England, April 24.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Walter Hammond, popular English cricketer, was married at the Parish Church at Bindley, near here, to-day to Miss Dorothq Lister. One of the groomsmen was Herbert Sutcliffe the Yorkshire and England batsman. The Masonic Hall here, where the reception was held, was laid out with a cricket pitch complete with stumps, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond will reside at Bristol in Gloucestershire, for which county Hammond plays. The greatest interest has been displayed throughout England in Hammond's marriage in view of the remarkable performances he gave during the recent English tour in Australia. Funds to buy Mr. and Mrs. Hammond presents have been started in several parts of England. A wedding cake weighing one hundred pounds and covered with cricket equipment made in sugar was given them by a friend.

FARRELL PICKED TO WIN BRITISH OPEN GOLF TITLE

HAS 300 TRAPS.

Andy Brown Also Says Scottish Course Should Suit U. S. Invaders.

Muirfield, whose sandy wastes embrace the North Sea twenty-five miles southeast of Edinburgh, where during the second week of May the British open championship is to have its locale, is not the monstrous thing of evil that seems to be legendary with some British writers.

So asserts Andy Brown, who keeps the greens and fairways at Lido magically keen twelve months of the yeor and whose study of golf enables you at once to place faith in his observations and criticisms. Andy but recently came back from extended perigrinations over the bunkered face of England and Scatland, where he tried out his game that had become somewhat rusty from disuse, on many of the famous courses.

He played over all three sets of links at St. Andrews and had a round at Musselburgh, whose sacred sod first felt the tread of warring hosts in open conflict back in 1874. It was at Muirfield, however, where Andy's interest centered and he found that interest taking a surprising turn when he discovered by actual experience that Muirfield is not the tough spot it was supposed to be.

An "Inland Course"

"Muirfield," declared Andy, "is just an inland course planted by the seaside. It has none of the shaggy, rugged characteristics usually associated with coastwise courses. It is ugly, and if I'm any judge, not much in the way of a golf test.

"The thing that struck me at once was its utter lack of distinction. There is hardly a hole that fastens onto your memory. It has none of the nomenclature that is traditonal with other Scottish layouts. There is such a sameness about the holes that nobody, apparently, has ever succeeded in labelling anything but their numbers.

"The course is not especially long. I think it has been etended slightly beyond 6,500 yards for the open tournament. The claim has been made that Muirfield has 300 traps of assorted sizes, but a large majority of these indent the fairways on either side and bring no more grief than a shot hit into the rough.

"The fairways, I think, are the widest I have ever seen and the greens, while no larger than our average standard over here, look to be larger because they are surprisingly shy of hazards around them. They present wide, open targets, easy to hit.

"Compared to Muirfield" Andy continued, "Lido is by far the harder course. There is really no comparison. The elements can be a big factor at Muirfield, but tempestuousdays over there are hardly more common than here at Long Beach. I think the Americans will do very well over there. In fact, I can't see how they can miss."

It was at Muirfield in 1926 that Jess Sweetser became the first American home-bred to win the British amateur championship. Jess has picked Johnny Farrell as the man most likely to win at Muirfield.

"There are eight holes at Muirfield," Jess said, "where the length runs over 450 yards and in addition to these the eighteenth, which measures about 425, plays much longer because of an elbow. The greens are large and roomy and beautifully cultured. They are a joy to putt on. So fine a spoon player and putter as Johnny Farrell ought to be right at home there. In fact, I think this course was laid out according to Johnny's specifications.

CAPITOL THEATRE TO HAVE "TALKIES"

Management Announces Installation Will Take Place in Near Future.

Something of interest to the theatre fans of the city will be the announcement of the installation, in the very near future, of the "Talkie" or "Movietones," as they are called, in the Capitol Theatre here, at an approximate cost of $20,000.

Charles Dentelbeck of Toronto was in the city this week, making final arrangements for the innovation, which requires a great deal of work. One item alone is the taking out of every seat in the theatre, to obviate any danger of the slightest squake interfering with the reception of the words. The alterations to the projection booth alone run into thousands of dollars.

Two separate equipments will be installed. One is the non-synchronizing machinery to be used for the ordinary short picture which is not of the "talkie" type. This will be installed in a small room on the ground floor. The other is the synchronizing equipment which will be located in the operating room.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

JOHNNY SALO IN SECOND PLACE

Blister Brigade Has Now Completed 1,036 Miles of Transcontinental Jaunt.

FLYING COP CUTS LEAD.

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., April 24. — (C.P.) — With 1036 miles of their 3400 mile journey completed, the 28 survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby moved into another state to-day. They were headed for Maplewood, Mo. —a jump of 30 miles. The starting time was nine o'clock, two hours later than usual.

Pete Gavuzzi, the beared Italian of Southampton, England, was protecting a three hour lead over Jimmy Salo, the Flying Cop of Passaic, N.J., when the Blister Brigade moved out of Collinsville this morning. Salo's victory yesterday in the 59 mile grind from Vandalia firmly entrenched him in second place and drew him closer to Gavuzzi.

AT THE CAPITOL

CAN YOU SOLVE THE MYSTERY "WHO KILLED THE CANARY"? THE MOST MYSTERIOUS PLAY TO BE SEEN ON A LOCAL SCREEN. IT OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TO-MORROW.

"Who killed the Canary?"

With the opening of "The Canary Murder Case," the new Paramount detective drama from the story by S. S. Van Dine, at the Capitol tomorrow already announced, an exciting mystery is placed before the people in this city.

"The Canary," beautiful chorus girl, played by Louise Brooks, is found murdered in her apartment. Six men and one woman have motives for wishing her dead and each of the seven persons performs suspicious action about the time of the crime.

Dr. Ambrose Lindquist, played by Gustav von Seyffertitz, is a half-crazed nerve specialist madly in love with "The Canary" and jealous of her attentions to other men. On the night of the murder he is seen around her apartment.

Jimmy Spotswoode, gay young offspring of a millionaire father, has gotten into the power of "The Canary" and she threatens to marry him. This part is played by James Hall.

Charles Spotswoode, played by Charles Lane, a wealthy broker, father of Jimmy, offers "The Canary" money to release Jimmy and is scornfully snubbed. Just as he leaves the apartment of "The Canary" on the night of the murder, a scream is heard from the apartment, but when he, with the night elevator man, knocks on the door of the chorus queen's apartment, "The Canary's" voice assures him everything is all right.

Alys LaFosse, played by Jean Arthur, chorus girl friends of "The Canary" who lives next door is shown to possess a key to "The Canary's" apartment. She has quarrelled with "The Canary" over Jimmy Spotswoode's affections.

Charles Cleaver, played by Lawrence Grant, is another wealthy admirer of "The Canary" whom she holds in her power. She threatens him with exposure unless he buys her silences with a good-sized check. After the murder, he is questioned and tells a story which is disproved.

Louis Mannix, played by Lois John Bartels, a fat and disagreeable person whom "The Canary" has been using for the money he supplies her, is also brought into the case. It is revealed that "The Canary" threatened him with exposure also unless he gave her a large sum of money. He admits he was desperate at "The Canary's" repeated demands.

Tony Skeel is a criminal, recently released from prison. He holds "The Canary" in his power and forces her to pay him money. He is infuriated when, on the night of the murder, "The Canary" tries to hold some money out on him. He leaves her apartment early but promises to return later. This part is played by Ned Sparks.

There are the suspects. There is the evidence. Now "Who Killed the Canary?" and why?

21 MILLIONS WERE SPENT ON ROADS

Total Revenue Received By Department Last Year Was $11,077,031.54.

A total revenue of $11,077,031.54 was received by the Provincial Government from all sources pertaining to roads, including gasoline tax and permit fees, during the fiscal year ending October 31, 1928, and a total expenditure in similar channels amounted to $21,093,318.36, according to the statement of W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Motor League, made in a personal letter to the secretary of the Peterborough Automobile Club, recently. Contributors to the total expenditure were detailed by Mr. Robertson as follows:

Provincial roads	$11,650,000.00
County roads	3,740,443.99
Township roads	1,602,547.95
Connecting links	1,022.20
Indian Reserve roads	13,459.92
Colonization roads	4,085,844.30
	$21,093,318.36

Mr. Robertson further pointed out: "Since the greater part of the year's revenue from motor vehicle permits was collected before the change in the gasoline tax went into effect, the possibility of any compensating revision of permit fees during 1929 was thereby precluded.

"The Government has promised consideration of the League's request for a reduction in the motor vehicle permit fees in 1930, and it has been intimated by the Prime Minister and the Minister of Highways that action will probably be taken in this direction."

The Ontario Motor League and affiliated clubs, such as the Peterborough Club, have been wide awake at all times in looking after the interests of the motorists generally, and it is expected that the annual banquet and meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Club to be held on Tuesday next in the Empress Hotel, commencing at 7 p.m., to which the public is invited, will provide the occasion for the public to learn something of what has been done in the past in the Province by the Ontario Motor League to bring about improvements in road principal and mileage, etc., as well as the important work of studying from the motorists' standpoint all legislation submitted to, the Government.

COLLAPSED ON FIRST BED

Kidneys were terrible, Hamilton woman declares.

Blesses Gin Pills

To Mrs. Louisa Pike life was unbearable. She admits frankly, "I had backache almost continually—could not carry a pail of water without getting dizzy or giddy."

What a plight to be in! But this wasn't all. Mrs. Pike's letter states further, "I couldn't sweep the floor without sitting down frequently, or walk upstairs without collapsing on the first bed. I decided to try Gin Pills," she goes on, "and now I feel the best I have ever felt in my life."

Attention to your kidneys now may save you pain and money later. Take Gin Pills the very first time you notice symptoms of trouble—backache, dizzy spells, spots before your eyes, headaches, swollen joints, brick dust in urine, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. Soothe and strengthen your kidneys. Stay healthy. 50c. a box at your drug store. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, Canada.

GRAIN EXPORT INCREASES

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 24.—(Canadian Press).— Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 1,250,000 bushels compared with 689,000 for the previous week, showing a gain of 552,000. Canadian grain cleared through United States Atlantic ports totalled 2,077,000 compared with 2,588,000 the previous week.

DODGE BROTHERS TRUCKS

CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

For Lower Costs . . Higher Earnings

TRANSPORTATION'S importance to all business is constantly growing . . . . . So buyers are looking closely into costs.

Dodge Trucks take the spotlight because Dodge costs are so consistently low . . . . . low first cost, low operating cost, low maintenance cost, low depreciation cost.

To this asset add the power, speed, stamina, comfort and fine appearance of each type in the complete line . . . . . It is quickly apparent why more than a million dollars' worth of Dodge Trucks are sold every week.

In your business, too, lower truck costs would mean greater earnings. Inspect the Dodge line.

KING GEORGE IS NOW CONVALESCENT

Message To Empire Is Regarded As Marking End of Long Illness.

BOGNOR, Sussex, April 24 (Canadian Press Cable). — King George's message to the Empire on Monday night is regarded as marking the definite end of his long illness, it was learned last night. His Majesty is now convalescent, and there is no reason to suppose there is anything to interfere with his continued recovery. There will be no daily official statements concerning the King's condition issued from Craigwell House, though at least one more bulletin will likely be issued, probably just before the King leaves Bognor. It may take the form of a summing up of the whole situation.

AUGER APPEAL

cated that she was perfectly satisfied with her interview with Auger, and the aunt got the impression that Auger was a nice man from the way the girl talked of him on the Friday."

"The girl's story as to what happened on her first visit is important," said Mr. Slaght, "yet that was not put to the jury. And I desire to read the evidence of what took place on that day. The girl admitted that she kissed Auger. She said she kissed him because he was holding her. So that for some reason about her being held, the girl's own story is that she kissed him."

Mr. Slaght said the Grand Jury brought in true bills on the two counts with which Auger was charged, but Justice Wright directed the trial to proceed on only one count, the more serious of the two.

EVIDENCE OF PLAINTIFF IS COMPLETED

Thomas Brooks, day watchman of the Ackerman plant, had noticed debris above the bridge, striking the fender beam at about four o'clock while going up Dalhousie street. He could hear the ice and other debris striking the bottom of the bridge as it passed through. He had gone home to supper and returning about ten o'clock in the evening, had found the water running over the bridge. It was raining, two workmen were busy keeping the creek clear. The next morning at six o'clock the water was still running over the sidewalk, while there was a pile of debris on the west bank, as if it had been pulled out by the workmen. The men were still there. He had worked that day with a pike pole, pushing the ice and debris under the beam and bridge. It had come more frequently in the afternoon. Cross-examined, witness said there was not much ice in 1928 at the time of the flood as on other occasions. The water over the bridge at ten o'clock was about ankle deep. He had never before seen the water so high as to come over the back of the Ackerman property.

Engineer Gives Details

Perhaps no more relavent, and therefore valuable information was given the court all day than was that of Edward M. Proctor, Consulting Engineer of Toronto, though it was chiefly of a technical nature. Mr. Proctor had prepared plans of the Creek and the lands along its course, right up to Jackson's Park, and his testimony was chiefly dealing with levels of the land and of the creek at various times during flood and normal conditions. Mr. Proctor, during examination and cross examination, gave details of the Dalhousie street bridge, showing that there was a 4 foot one inch clearance for the water to pass beneath the bridge, while as near as he could figure, a flow of water of 5 feet three inches had come down during the 1928 flood. Had the sewer pipe and its protecting timber been removed, this balance would have been taken care of without flooding, he said.

Afternoon Session

Continuing his testimony in the afternoon, Mr. Proctor gave details of the Dalhousie street bridge, and when questioned by Mr. Grant said that he would not be surprised if the C.P.R. bridge, though of higher clearance had been flooded at the same time, because the railroad bridge was further downstream, and ten inches lower than the Dalhousie street bridge.

There was a break in the evidence as Mr. Robertson, counsel for the plaintiffs, read extracts from the Council minutes of 1899 while later, he called Charles Curtis, Assistant city clerk to vouch for the validity of the further minutes which he read with a view to showing that the City had at one time or another, recognized its responsibility regarding the creek and the Dalhousie street bridge.

Drew Up Plans

F. W. Wilkins, of Norwood, surveyor, was called during the afternoon to give evidence relative to the street lines on Dalhousie street which he had surveyed. He had prepared plans of the vicinity of the Dalhousie street bridge, and while in the witness box, answered numerous questions regarding technical details of those plans. Cross-examined, he admitted that there might have been some doubt regarding the north boundary of the street, since he had had to resort to fence lines which residents had told him, were in their original portions. Mr. Wilkins said that he had not seen any evidence of a flooring over the sewer pipe as had been suggested. He could not state whether or not the creek now carries more water, due to city drains into it, than it did in its natural state.

R. C. Flitton's Testimony

Toward the close of the afternoon R. C. Flitton, a civil and Hydraulic Engineer from the William Hamilton Company, was called. He told of the experiences of his company with regard to the Jackson's Park creek which runs underneath one part of the Hamilton plant. Each spring there had been considerable trouble, usually due to ice jams, and this year, the blacksmith shop and part of the machine shop had been flooded. he had calculated that the flow of the stream at high water, would be about 315 cubic feet a second. He did not particularly recall the flooding in 1928 though he believed it attributable to a combination of ice and high water.

Then followed Charles Curtis' testimony regarding the minutes which Mr. Robertson called to his attention, going back as far as 1855.

SPRING ushers in a Commercial New Year in Canada. More land is ready for crop planting . . . newly discovered ore-bodies provide for mining on a record scale . . . wood from Canada's vast forests is required in greater quantity than ever before . . . gear is being overhauled for extensive fishing operations . . . building may surpass that of any previous year . . . manufacturing and transportation facilities are being greatly enlarged.

Two other forces are required to make this Canada's most productive year—favourable weather and ample money in the form of bank credit. Weather must be left to nature, but you and your fellow citizens can increase the supply of credit by depositing money in the banks.

If you are now a savings depositor add as much as possible to your account. If you are not a depositor, open an account at any branch of The Canadian Bank of Commerce. LEGION PLANS BIG CARNIVAL others will swing into line before the end of the week.

Ladies Will Help.

Already, many offers of assistance have come in from ladies, and plans are being made to give them special work impossible to the members. A contest is being arranged between the married ladies and those still unmarried, with good prizes. Details will be announced in personal letters.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Legion has been invited to take over a rest parlor, serving tea and cake and soft drinks. There will be a meeting shortly to consider the suggestion.

An invitation has been extended to a prominent Toronto man to open the carnival, and the Peterborough Branch has the assurance of support from many neighboring branches of the Legion.

Well Organized.

In order to interest all members of the local branch, no member of the Board of Directors has been appointed a committee chairman, but all will serve on a committee. In addition, a very strong carnival executive has been appointed, consisting of the following: J. F. Strickland, J. A. McNabb, I. P. McNabb, J. F. H. Wallace, F. C. Hart, Dr. H. M. Yelland, H. J. Boyle, R. M. Glover, R. Haddow, C. E. Jamieson, G. R. Melton, M. H. Park, C. H. Rogers, W. R. Turner, J. E. R. Munro, R. H. Turner, and G. G. Winterbottom. The president was appointed by the general meeting to manage the carnival, and the first vice-president, Dr. N. H. Sutton, is an efficient second-in-command.

This is probably the Legion's biggest effort. Claims for pensions and for pension readjustments are coming in faster than ever before, as members feel passing years adding to their war injuries, and the Legion must have funds to carry on its work. Given the support of the public at this time, the local branch should be able to carry on its work for the people of Peterborough for the rest of the year.

It was decided, on suggestion of the president, to publish a complete statement of the carnival immediately after its close, and particulars will be given through the press of the disposal of the money raised.

The first substantial cement factory in the Netherlands was put into operation during 1928. It has a capacity of 300,000 tons a year.

WEDDING BELLS

McLARNEN—GRANEY.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday when Kathleen Mary Graney, of Kinmount, Ont., became the bride of Harold J. McLarnen, Peterborough. Rev. Father Corkery officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, was becomingly attired in a gown of monte blue Canton crepe, with picture hat and shoes and stockings to match. She carried a bridal bouquet of butterfly roses and fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mamie Pearson, of Kinmount, looked charming in a dress of rose Canton crepe with beige hat and carried a bouquet of carnations and fern.

The groom was ably supported by Laurence O'Toole of Peterborough.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Michael Curtin, Monaghan Road, to the immediate relatives and friends.

The young couple received many useful and beautiful presents, showing the high esteem in which they were held. The happy couple left by motor for an extensive trip to New York.

OBITUARY

ELIZABETH JANE CURRY.

There passed away this morning after a lingering illness an aged resident of this city in the person of Elizabeth Jane Curry, wife of the late William Stuart Curry, who predeceased her some years. Mrs. Curry of late years had resided with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Morgan, 61 Robinson street.

She leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Morgan and Mrs. C. H. Williamson, also one son, William E. Curry, all of whom reside in this city. Also two brothers, James Rumberger of Johnstown, Pa., and E. E. Roller of Unionville, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. A. E. Wilbert, Philadelphia, Pa.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. from her late residence, 61 Robinson street, with interment in Rae cemetery, Lakefield. Rev William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, will officiate.

OWEN FORTUNE

The funeral of the late Owen Fortune took place in Trenton on Tuesday morning and was one of the largest ever seen in that vicinity. It was conducted by the Rotary Club and the Knights of Columbus, the deceased having been a fourth degree Knight. Knights from Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal and Belleville attended the funeral. After the solemn Requiem Mass, Father Kingsley of Westport preached a very eloquent sermon and spoke of the sterling qualities of the deceased.

Mr. Fortune have been connected with the lumber business nearly all his life, and was an ex-mayor of Trenton.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing widow. Among those from Peterborough who attended Mr. Fortune's funeral were Mr. and Mrs. John Coughlin, J. J. Duffus, and Messrs. McCabe and Kirby.

WILLIAM J. O'BRIEN.

After an illness of nineteen months, the death occurred at his home at 5 Edgar Street, Toronto, yesterday morning, of William John O'Brien, formerly of Peterborough, in his forty-ninth year. The deceased was prominent in the Commercial Travellers' Association, and represented a large number of manufacturers throughout the city. He was a member of the Mississauga Golf Club and a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus.

He leaves his widow (formerly Miss Margaret Shevlin, of this city) and three children, William Morgan, Gordon, and Margaret Mary, besides his mother, Mrs. John O'Brien, of Cadillac, Mich.

Requiem Mass for the deceased will be solemnized at seven o'clock tomorrow (Thursday) morning, at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Toronto, and the body will be brought to Peterborough, arriving here on the noon C.P.R. train, with interment immediately in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Around the City

The speaker at Kiwanis Club on Friday will be Dr. Currey, of St. Catharines, President of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council.

Mr. F. S. Harstone, of Winnipeg, is in the city for a few days, the guest of his brother, Mr. Robert Harstone, of Water street. Mr. Harstone says that business conditions in the west are good, and that last year's crop was one of the best crops ever produced in the west, with a better yield of first-class grain than was generally supposed. Prospects for the coming year are fine and a general wave of optimism can be felt all through the west.

DIED

QUINLAN.—The death occurred in Edmonton, on Monday, April the 22nd, of Mr. James Quinlan, formerly of Norwood.

The new McCormick-Deering Manure Spreader will easily turn so short as to pivot on the rear wheels. The seat folds forward out of the way when loading.

When your engine knocks it may be firing too soon. When your employee knocks, he hasn't been fired soon enough.

It has always been our policy to keep ahead of the time by offering the farmers of this locality the best in modern farm equipment. For example: the McCormick-Deering Manure Spreader.

Selling an old lady a gallon of gasoline with which to start the kitchen fire nearly always results in the sale of a new kitchen range.

Benjamin Franklin said the way to be successful is to "plow deep while sluggards sleep." And we add, with all due reverance to Benny, "Use a McCormick - Deering Tractor Plow for the job."

Baseball is a game in which any young man who strikes out bravely for himself receives no praise for it.

High-grade material, skilled labor, and modern methods combine to give you real value in International Harvester steel and wood-wheel farm trucks. That's why they haul their loads so well and last so long.

So Long, See You Next Week.

High Blood Pressure

On a group of 525 applicants accepted, who showed an average blood pressure of 152, a well-known insurance company suffered an excess mortality exceeding the general average of that company by 30 per cent. On another group, having an average blood pressure of 161, and this the only discoverable blemish, there was a mortality two and one-half times that to be expected. Certainly there could be no better evidence of the importance in keeping the blood pressure within the safety zone.

Especially as one advances in years, the importance of looking after the health is more and more desirable. It is in the later years of life that the blood pressure is apt to increase, and yet many who have high blood pressure are not aware of it. Ofttimes they feel as well as usual, or even better, and they little realize the danger which lies dormant within. Such people often look well and it is not unusual for them to be exceptionally active during this period. Then, suddenly one hears of a stroke of apoplexy or sudden heart failure, with fatal results or even worse, a lingering illness. Very much of this might be avoided.

It is evident that if the pressure of the blood in the arteries is excessive, an undue strain is put upon the vessel walls. They are capable of withstanding pressure only up to a given point. When the pressure gets beyond that point, there is always danger of the vessels breaking and permitting hemorrhage into vital organs. It is for this reason that sudden death occurs among this class of people when they are placed under extreme physical exertion or mental stress. How often do we pick up the paper and read of an individual, apparently healthy, dropping dead under emotional excitement. That person as a rule has been considered in good health, yet his blood pressure was beyond the limits of safety.

Chiropractic affords excellent relief for such conditions. The blood pressure can be reduced sufficiently to bring it within the safety zone, and this is done without the employment of drugs of any kind. Undoubtedly many thousands of people have had their lives prolonged by many years through the precaution of taking adjustments to keep their blood pressure within normal bounds. Everyone beyond the age of forty should recognize the importance of this precaution and should visit their Chiropractor periodically to see that the pressure does not become a menace to their life and health.

MONTREAL, Que., April 25 — (Canadian Press).—At a meeting yesterday of the directors of the Lake Superior Corporation, Robert Dodd resigned the presidency. Mr. Dodd will retain his directorships in the Lake Superior Corporation and in the Algoma Steel Corporation it is understood that in resigning his post Mr. Dodd is acting upon the advice of his physician. No announcement was made as to Mr. Dodd's successor.

PREMIER RESIGNS.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 25. —(C.P.)— Premier Madsen Mygdal tendered the resignation of his cabinet to King Christian X to-day in compliance with yesterday's election results, which failed to give his party, the Liberals, a majority in Parliament. He was asked to continue in office until a new cabinet could be formed.

STRUCK BY MOTOR CAR.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25.—(C.P.) —Struck by a motor car on the Lakeshore road while running to board a street car, Stanley Bedwell, Toronto, was fatally injured late last night. Harry Rule, driver of the auto, was taken into custody and released on bail of $2,000.

COMPULSORY INNOCULATION.

PARIS, April 25.—(C.P.)— A bill to make anti-diphtheria innoculation compulsory throughout France was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day by Deputy Henri Guernut.

PLANS ATLANTIC FLIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., April 25. (C.P.) — Having regained the women's endurance flight record, Elinor Smith, 17 year old girl pilot, today was planning to challenge the Atlantic Ocean in a flight to Rome.

U.S. CRUISER LAUNCHED

NEW YORK, April 25. (C.P.) — The United States' newest cruiser, the Pensacola, was launcred at the Brooklyn navy yard to-day. The ship to be launched at the navy yard since the war. Her ultimate cost will be $11,000,000.

PASSENGERS INJURED.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., April 25.—(Canadian Press). — An unknown number of persons were injured early to-day when a train crashed into a passenger bus at a grade crossing at Tennessee and Eleventh Streets here. Some of the injured were taken to St. Anthony's Hospital. First reports said there were 36 passengers on the bus.

MUSIC COMPOSER DEAD.

SPOKANE, Wash., April 25 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Clara Phillips Durt, 68, nationally known music composer, died of influenza here yesterday.

VOLCANO IN ERUPTION.

CORDOVA, Alaska, April 25 (Canadian Press).—With lava dust settling in noticeable amounts on every roof here, it is believed that one of the great volcanoes of the Aleutian Islands group, is in eruption again.

INCREASE IN DISCOUNT RATE

PARIS, April 25. — (Canadian Press).—Severe French criticisms of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, for his failure to take steps to prevent depletion of the bank's gold reserve led today, it was learned in responsible financial circles, to a raise of from 6½ to 7½ per cent. in its discount rate.

DAY IN PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press).—To-day in Parliament, estimates of the Post Office Department will be under consideration in the House of Commons, and possibly some Government legislation.

Yesterday in Parliament, estimates of the Public Works Department were considered in the House of Commons.

Imposter Gets Nine Months

London Masquerader Pleads Guilty To Charge of Perjury.

GIVEN NINE MONTHS.

Recorder Described Her As a Most Unscrupulous Adventuress.

LONDON, April 25, (C.P.) — Mrs. Irma Valerie Arkell-Smith, London's woman masquerader, who for many months passed as a "man about town," under the name "Colonel Barker," was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment at Old Bailey to-day on a charge of perjury in causing a false statement to be entered on the register of her marriage with another woman.

The woman had pleaded guilty to this charge yesterday, but not guilty to a second charge of perjury in falsely representing herself as a retired colonel in the British army.

In sentencing the woman masquerader, the recorder described her as "an unprincipled, mendacious and unscrupulous adventuress."

Outraged all Decencies.

She had in this case, he said, "profaned the House of God, outraged the decencies of nature and broken the law of man."

He declared that so grave a defiance of law carried a maximum of seven years penal servitude, but in view of all the circumstances of the case he imposed a sentence of nine months' imprisonment without hard labor.

The prisoner took the court's castigation quietly and at its conclusion was immediately led away.

"Colonel Barker" was well known in London restaurant circles. She had started a restaurant of her own, and it was in connection with a bankruptcy suit that she was originally arrested and her masquerade exposed.

In 1926, "Colonel Barker" went through the form of marriage with another woman, Alfreda Howard, who testified yesterday that she had not known of the deception.

WOMAN SHOT IN FOREHEAD.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25. — A love triangle ended in a tragedy early to-day when Mrs. Mabel Fletcher, 34, was shot in the forehead, and probably fatally injured. The police arrested George Nicholls, 39, a boarder. They charge that the latter became enraged at the announcement by the woman that she had become reconciled with her husband.

HEARING OF DAMAGE ACTION CLOSES UNTIL CLERK IS ABLE TO GIVE EVIDENCE IN TORONTO

Mussolini Demands Naval Parity With France

GENEVA, April 25—(Canadian Press).—The problem of naval parity between France and Italy last night loomed out as a reef which might imperil the success of any five-power naval conference to reduce armaments.

Premier Mussolini is represented here, as firm as a rock in demanding parity for Italy with France both on land and sea, while France apparently fails to see the justice of such demands.

Witnesses For City Give Evidence in Yesterday's Supreme Court Case.

ADJOURNED UNTIL MAY.

City Engineer Parsons and Other Employees Tell of Work Done During Flood.

At 1.10 on Monday afternoon, with the opening of the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice McEvoy of Toronto, William C. Ackerman stepped into the witness box as the first man to testify in the B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company's action against the City of Peterborough for recovery of $15,000 damages, alleged to have been incurred when the Jackson's Park Creek overran its banks in the spring of 1928. Tuesday afternoon had passed before his evidence, together with that of more than a dozen others, had been completed, constituting the plaintiffs' case as conducted by S. T. Medd, K.C. of Peterborough, and R. S. Robertson, K.C., of Toronto.

At 9.30 on Wednesday morning, the city's defence began, and continued with the calling of an equally large number of witnesses throughout the morning and afternoon sessions of the court, and at 5.30 p.m. Joseph J. Wearing, city solicitor, and Gideon Grant, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for the defence, announced completion of their case, save for the hearing of City Clerk S. R. Armstrong's evidence which will be heard at a later date, to be set by both parties, owing to his present inability to attend court through illness. Thus the action closed, so far as the court was concerned, until some time in the month of May, without any definite decision being reached; it was unusual in that W. C. Ackerman, first witness to testify in the whole case was recalled to answer two questions at the conclusion.

At Creek All Night.

As the first witness called by the defence, John Thirnbeck told of going to the creek in the evening of March 26, 1928, along with the City Engineer and others. He had worked during the night, keeping the creek clear above the bridge, and the debris which came down was pulled out within a few minutes of its arrival. At seven o'clock in the evening, and until 10 or 11 o'clock, the water continued to run under the beam.

Witness had seen W. C. Ackerman and the Fire Chief together on the bridge at between eight and nine o'clock. Witness had seen water in the Ackerman basement early in the evening. There were occasional chunks of ice coming down and going beneath the bridge. Before morning it was going over the bridge and the water was coming down so strong as to make walking difficult on the sidewalk. There was no accumulation of debris to make a dam during the night.

Cross-examined, witness admitted having been called in last night to tell what he remembered about the flood though he had talked about it several times, as the worst flood in years.

Witness first knew that the cellar was flooded about nine o'clock or 9.30 p.m. on March 26, 1928. He had been about the bridge from between six and seven o'clock to midnight. Until six o'clock, he had not known of the trouble. When he came down, he saw water in the Ackerman cellar, through the windows. There were some men working in the basement at that time. There was plenty of water in the basement when the firemen came. Though the water was in the basement, the creek was still running beneath the fender girder. It was possible for the basement to flood because the land back of the Ackerman plant was lower.

At eleven o'clock, witness had been told to stay all night. Pike poles were already down there at seven o'clock when he arrived.

The stream has caused some trouble at Hunter Street in other years. The creek was clear of ice at Hunter Street this night, and no one was stationed there. The ice had come down a couple of days before. There was too much water for it to get away at Dalhousie Street. He had never had to work at that bridge before during his employment with the city in thirty years.

"We have always had to look after the creek in the spring," he testified. "The heavy rain that night helped make the flooding worse."

Witness denied predicting at the time of the building of the bridge that it would give trouble. He continued saying that the City Engineer was out until four o'clock the next morning, being away about ten minutes at a time to look at other bridges. Some of the debris went under and got away.

Re-examined by Mr. Grant, witness

AIMEE TAKES WITNESS BOX

KIDNAPPING EXPLOIT.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., April 25 (C.P.).—Taking of testimony in the trial of Superior Court Judge Carlos S. Hardy was brought to a close here last night in a swiftly-moving session which embraced the appearance on the witness stand of Aimee Semple McPherson whose $2,500 "love gift" to the jurist led to his impeachment.

Mrs. McPherson's answer to prosecution counsel's questions frequently were "I do not remember," and "I do not recall." She admitted, however, that she ha dtestified before a legislative committee that Judge Hardy had told her during the time her kidnapping story was under fire in 1926 that he would see Wallace Moore, Santa Barbara newspaperman, who tentatively identified Mrs. McPherson as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, her radio operator, while Ormiston was travelling in the vicinity of Santa Barbara. This was during the time the evangelist was missing. Later she alleged she had been in the hands of kidnappers in Mexico.

The defense closed its case after prosecution attorneys had held Judge Hardy on the stand for five hours of cross examination. Judge Hardy insisted that he had refused to believe the various stories contradicting Mrs McPherson's kidnapping narrative. A protest from several Senators that Hardy had been questioned enough caused the prosecution to end the grilling.

DEFENSE LAWYER MAINTAINS JUDGE FAILED TO WARN JURY

Three Cars Believed At Bottom Of Lake

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 25.—(C. P.)—It was ascertained beyond question yesterday that the mystery car lying at the bottom of the lake at the end of Port Weller pier is a car stolen from B. N. Trapnell, of this city, Feb. 6 last. Nelson Wilmot, a diver, went down yesterday and succeeded in wrenching the license number from the submerged machine.

On his submarine visit yesterday, Wilmot discovered another car and what he beelieves to be a third. He also saw what appeared to be a hat. Whether or not there may be some bodies buried in the sand around the cars will be revealed probably when the services of a derrick are procured.

A. G. Slaght Continues His Argument in Auger Appeal.

NO CORROBORATION.

Justice Middleton Expresses Opinion That Judge Went Too Far in Charge.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Continuing his argument before the First Divisional Court to-day in the further hearing of the appeal of Louis M. Auger, former M.P. for Prescott, convicted at Ottawa of a serious offence against a young girl and sentenced to nine years' imprisonment, A. G. Slaght, K.C., emphasized that at the trial Justice Wright did not warn the jury there was no corroboration of the story told by the seventeen-year-old girl.

Mr. Slaght argued that the authorities held it was vital that the judge should warn the jury there was no corroboration. He did not contend that the jury could not convict although there was no corroboration.

Easiest One to Make.

Defence counsel agreed with Justice Magee that the charge was the easiest one to make, the most difficult to establish, and the most difficult for the defendant to clear himself.

Justice Middleton expressed the opinion during the course of this morning's hearing that the trial judge went too far in saying that "she and she alone could say whether or not there was consent." For it was obvious there was another one who could have testified as to that.

"You are making a vital issue of that now," said Justice Middleton, "but at the trial you made it a vital issue that the girl's whole story should be disbelieved."

Two Young Bandits Attempt To Rob Toronto Bank But Lose Their Nerve

TORONTO, Ont., April 25.—(Canadian Press).—Two young bandits who attempted to rob the Dominion Bank at New Toronto to-day lost their nerve and bolted from the building when the girl teller, who was in the basement, walked up the stairs.

Herbert Horton, 17, the junior clerk, was alone in the office at the time. When the two men entered one said he wished to make a deposit. The young clerk stepped over toward the stairs to call the girl. At this the man quickly said: "Don't move." The second of the pair crossed over and attempted to open the teller's cage, but they both turned and ran out of the bank as the girl came up the stairs.

Horton immediately grabbed a gun on the counter and fired three shots at the men but they escaped.

Police Officers Are Injured In Battle With Young Negro In Toronto Streets

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Two police officers were injured, several shots were fired, and the verandah of a house was demolished before Clifford Hynes, 27-year-old negro, was arrested to-day on charges of attempted burglary and aggravated assault. The officers, Patrol Sergt. Mitchell and Constable Louis Sproule, were knocked off the running board of Hynes' automobile, alleged to have been stolen. They were answering a burglar alarm.

Hynes struck the officers a blow and knocked them from the car which they boarded on suspicion as it came down a side street. Sproule fell to the ground and Hynes ron over him breaking his leg.

Another police car, after picking up the injured officers, took up the pursuit of Hynes, whose car crashed into the verandah of a house in making a sharp curve at high speed. After a short chase afoot Hynes surrendered.

MINISTER OF RAILWAY FAVORS REORGANIZATION OF FINANCES CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Declares To House Committee That It Would Be Good Business.

HAMPERED BY OLD DEBTS.

Would Give Officers of Company An Incentive To Make Road a Success.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 25 (C.P.).—The government is convinced that a reorganization of the financial structure of the Canadian National Railways is necessary and that such a thing would also be good business.

This was the declaration of Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, to the parliamentary committee on Railway and Shipping Estimates today. Mr. Dunning's statement followed one made along similar lines by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways. It was the government's desire to get the capital structure of the railway in good shape to show its real relation to the company's assets at the earliest possible moment, said Mr. Dunning. This, the Government felt, was necessary in order to ensure that the officers of the company might have an incentive to go ahead and make the railway a success without being hampered by the deadweight of old debts.

The net loss on the Atlantic region of the Canadian National Railways from 1923 to 1928 inclusive amounted to 19,904,914, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, told the committee on Railway and Shipping estimates today. A lengthy analysis would be required to arrive at the additional sum required to pay the deficit on the Eastern lines, if the 20 per cent. reduction under the Maritime freight Rates Act was extended to the lines from Levis and Diamond Junction to Montreal.

The committee took up a large number of questions dealing with the estimates which for the current fiscal year total $63,300,645.

CREW RESCUED BY YACHT AMIDA

Members Floated For Nine Days in Open Boat On Atlantic.

WIRELESS MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 25 (Canadian Press).—After floating nine days in a lifeboat, ten members of the four-masted schooner James E. Coburn, which foundered April 17, 250 miles north of Bermuda, were picked up this morning by the yacht Amida, 650 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

The Amida also picked up the body of the cook of the schooner, who died last night. News of the rescue was received in a wireless message by the Radio Corporation of America.

The message reads:

"Schooner James E. Coburn, owner J. Foneca, New Bedford, foundered 250 miles north of Bermuda, April 17. Crew picked up 10 Greenwich meridian time, latitude 34.25 north, longitude 64.35 west. Cook W. Sargent died from exposure last night. Crew in lifeboat nine days.—(Signed) Master Yacht Amida, McLoughlin."

KILLED IN MINE

GLACE BAY, N.S., April 25. — (Canadian Press).—David Turner, 65, a shift man at number 11 colliery, was killed last night when crushed between a box of coal and mine rib.

More than 90,000,000 incandescent lamps were made in Germany in the past 12 months.

President Hoover Favors International Commission

ASHINGTON, D.C., April 25. —(C.P.)—President Hoover proposes to rejuvenate the International Joint Commission and to refer to it for study some of the questions now in controversy between the United States and Canada.

It was learned yesterday that the President views with concern recent developments of friction between the two countries and believes the agency is at hand for a careful study of differences.

REBEL FORCES CLAIM VICTORY

"BLOODY" FIGHTING.

MEXICO CITY, April 25 (C.P.).—"Bloody" fighting between 1,000 so-called religious rebels and the Federal army of General Saturnino Cedillo at Tepatitlan, Jalisco, was believed still in progress to-day after three days sanguinary conflict.

Shouting their battle cry, "Vive Cristo Rey" ("Long Live Christ King") the beleaguered rebel force was said not only to have repulsed Federal attacks with hand-to-hand and bayonet fighting, but to have inflicted reverses on the government troops.

General Cedillo, charged by General Calles with "extermination" of the "Cristeros"—as the government terms the rebels—was quoted as expressing confidence his superior numbers and better equipment would prevail in the end and that he would invest the town. He had 5,000 soldiers at his command.

FORCES REPULSED.

NOGALES, Sonora, April 25 (Canadian Press). — Feverish activity marked the rebel camp at Agua Prieta to-day as reports reached the border that General Juan Andreu Almazan had surprised the rebels by moving part of his federal troops from Chihuahua into Sonora through Carretas Pass, north of Pulpito Pass which the rebels were guarding and was massing his forces at Fronteras, 35 miles south of Agua Prieta.

Rebels reported that they had met and turned back federals at Pulpito Pass yesterday, and they also claimed a victory by the rebel general, Fausto Topete, over federal cavalry near Masiaca, Southern Sonora, but details of both battles were lacking.

Federals at San Luis and Sonoyta, Western Sonora, announced they expected an attack by rebels to-day.

LABOR WINS IN DENMARK

No Communists Are Elected in Danish Parliamentary Elections.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 25 (Canadian Press).—Incomplete returns to-day indicated a considerable Labor victory in the Parliamentary elections yesterday, with consequent reformation of the present Liberal Cabinet.

The newspaper Politiken estimated the new Legislature would be made up to 61 Laborites, 43 Liberals, 25 Conservatives, 4 Independents and 16 Radicals. Labor gained 22 per cent. in votes, Liberals 6 per cent., while the Conservatives lost 13 per cent. over the last election. No Communists were elected.

Hamilton Woman Relieved Of Fine And Jail Sentence

Mrs. Annie Minnigan, Mother, Who Gave Birth to Twins in Hamilton Jail Last Week, Receives Executive Clemency From Attorney-General Price.

ENTIRELY APART FROM MERITS OF CASE OR INVESTIGATION BEING CARRIED MINISTER SAYS

Interesting Question Arises in Question With Reported Suspension of Jail Physician By Dr. Leeming Carr, Sheriff of Wentworth County.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25.—(Canadian Press).—Executive clemency on the part of Hon. W. H. Price Attorney-General and the Ontario government, is to be given to Mrs. Annie Minnigan, of Hamilton, who recently gave birth to twins, one of which died, while in jail there. Mrs. Minnigan is to be relieved of the $200 fine, so that she will not be called upon to serve the alternative of one month in jail, and will be free to leave hospital as soon as convalescent, the Attorney-General announced

"Under all circumstances and following representations from Hamilton, I have decided to relieve Mrs. Minnigan of the fine and exercise clemency" said the Attorney-General. "This is entirely apart from the merits of the case, or the investigation that is being carried on. The inquest into the death of one of the twins resumes on Tuesday, and I want all the facts produced then."

On the 17th Mrs. Minnigan was sentenced in police court in Hamilton to a fine of $200 or one month in jail. Pleading guilty to a charge of having liquor in her nome that was not purchased on a government permit. Being unable to pay the fine she took the jail term, and the birth of the twins followed.

An interesting question has arisen in connection with the reported suspension of Dr. James Roberts, Health Officer of Hamilton, and Hamilton jail physician, by Dr. Leeming Carr, Sheriff of Wentworth County. Dr. Roberts is appointed and paid by the city, while Sheriff Carr was appointed by the Ontario Government and while it is reported Sheriff Carr has recommended Dr. Roberts' dismissal, it is not known at parliament building whether he has the authority so recommend.

TAYLOR MAY SAVE $30,000

Toronto Man Has Chance of Not Losing Bail He Put Up For Friend.

EXPECTED BACK.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25.—(By Canadian Press)—David Tulloch, Toronto tailor, still has a chance to save the $30,000 bail he pledged to secure the freedom of Frank McLean Smith, who was to have stood trial Monday on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. It was stated by R. H. Greer, K.C., who was to have defended Smith that his client telephoned him Monday, of his intentions to leave New York city in connection with some business transaction.

"Technically, this bail is forfeited," Crown Attorney Eric Armour, K.C., said Saturday, "however, neither the Crown nor the police intend to be hard on Tulloch and if Smith comes forward within a reasonable time we will cancel the order." If he does not we will go out and get him." Under common law, Tulloch may go and arrest Smith, himself, V. Armour said, but if he didn't the police would go after him at Tulloch's expense.

Mr. Armour said Smith could not be extradited on a conspiracy charge but the charge could be "easily altered."

SHOP BRIGADE FIGHTS FIRE

Small Fire Breaks Out in Meter Department of Canadian General.

The shop fire brigade of the C. G.E. had their first opportunity to go into action when fire broke out in the metre register department of the big plant at 9.30 this morning. A call was rushed to the city fire brigade, but during the time elapsing for its arrival, the shop brigade did valuable service on the fire with chemicals and water carried in buckets.

The fire was confined to front corner of the metre department and was between a large cupboard and the partition. The flames were high for a few minutes, clouds of smoke filled the whole floor and some excitement was felt among the employees.

The fire is thought to have started from a spark flying from an oxy-acetylere welding machine, that was being operated near the cupboard.

BUILDING PLAN IS ABANDONI

Richard Hall Ltd. To Remain the Old Stand on George Street.

ENLARGE STORE.

The firm of Richard Hall, Ltd., has definitely decided to abandon its original plans as announced late last autumn to erect new store quarters on Charlotte Street, and will remain in the old stand on George Street, adjacent to the new Kresge Store property, corner of George and Simcoe Streets. To regain space lost to the Hall firm by the Kresge purchase, it is understood the store quarters immediately south will be taken over, although nothing official has been given out in this latter regard. W. R. Harris, druggist, now occupying the store immediately south, to-day told The Examiner that so far as he knew, no such arrangement had been made.

At the present time, the Hall firm is carrying on in its cramped quarters, preferring to endure the temporary confusion with the possibility of relief in sight, to the erection of a new store on a different street. The decision to abandon the new building project was reached early this week.

Nicholls Hospital Bulletin

No. 3 — April 25, 1929

COUNTY AID TO HOSPITALS.

THE QUESTION has been raised, why, if the Peterborough Hospitals are open to the County, should not the County contribute to the Capital expense (meaning Buildings, Extensions, etc.)

There is no provision in the Provincial Hospital Act by which the County can be called upon to meet any of the Capital expense of our Hospitals, unless they agree voluntarily to do so.

The Act provides that, in the case of an Indigent Patient entering the Hospital, and being unable to pay, the Township from which he or she comes is liable for $1.75 per day, which is supplemented by 60 cents a day from the Government.

A Public Ward Patient, able to pay, pays $2.00 per day, while Semi- and Private Ward Patients pay the full rates.

SUPPLIED BY THE BOARD.

Gruesome Discovery Is Made on Kent Farm

Woman Is Feared Dead

BLOOD-STAINED AXE.

Woman Is Missing and Police Are Searching For Husband.

DRESDEN, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Police here believe Mrs. Robert McCorkle, of Detroit, was the victim of a brutal axe murder engineered in the home of her father, Joseph Snell, on the edge of this village, following finds made yesterday, and disclosures of mysterious happenings said to have occurred on Sunday. County and local police, investigating the mystery, seek the husband of the woman, who is also said to have disappeared. The woman's body has not yet been found.

Walls Smeared with Blood.

It is believed the murder occurred late on Sunday night or early on Sunday, by police at work on the case. Snell, the owner of the house, was away, and the alleged tragedy was not unearthed until Dorothy Snell, another daughter of Snell's, came home from a visit on Tuesday. She found a bedroom in disorder, bed, clothing blood-soaked, the walls of the room blood-spattered, and articles of clothing, which she identified as belonging to her sister, Mrs. Robert McCorkle.

Police in a search of the house, found further women's clothing blood-soaked, some partly burned, as if an attempt to destroy evidence of the crime, and an axe, with which it is believed the crime was committed. Bloodstains were found on the axe. The instrument is now in the possession of the police.

Arrived on Saturday Night.

Mrs. McCorkle came here with her husband last Saturday, neighbors say, and went to the home occupied by her father, Joseph Snell. Mr. Snell, according to a nearby neighbor, Mrs. Lucas, had taken work in another place, and was not at home. Mrs. Lucas claims Snell left her in charge of his place. She, however, had not known of the arrival of the McCorkles.

On Sunday morning, seeing smoke issuing from the chimney of the Snell house, Mrs. Lucas became interested. As far as she was aware the house should be unoccupied, and she notified Chief of Police Babcock. Investigating, he was forced to batter down a door, and claims a man ran out another door.

Well Is Drained.

Yesterday a well on the property was drained. In it was found a woman's purse and a handkerchief, nothing more. No trace of the woman's body has yet been found.

The Snell home is on the edge of the village, about 20 rods from the river. To-day police are searching the river in hopes of finding the remains of the woman. It is the firm belief of the authorities that the woman met with foul play. Detroit police were asked last night to locate Robert McCorkle.

SHERIFF SEEKS SUSPENSION OF JAIL DOCTOR

Dr. Roberts' Alleged Remark Angers Dr. Leeming Carr.

MINNIGAN CASE

Two Rooms Will Be Equipped For Hospital Purposes in Hamilton Jail.

HAMILTON, April 25.—(Canadian Press)—Sheriff Dr. Leeming Carr, former Minister without portfolio, in the Ferguson Government, declared with some heat at a meeting of the Fire and Jail Committee last night that he had written to Queen's Park and recommended that Dr. James Roberts, Medical Officer of Health, here, be suspended as jail physician.

Sheriff Carr's reason for this action he said, was: "When Dr. Roberts makes statements that I am a liar he should be suspended. He might say that certain Aldermen are liars, as I have learned he did say, but he can't get away with that sort of thing on me" I won't stand for it."

It is understood that Dr. Carr's wrath was roused by his learning of remarks credited to Dr. Roberts. These remarks were not complimentary to Dr. Carr, it is stated, and had to do with the appointment of a new physician at the city jail, which Dr. Carr urged early this year.

Sends Substitute

Members of the committee then asked if Dr Roberts was still acting as jail physician, and they were informed that he was, perhaps, the nominal physician there, but whenever called to attend an inmate there sent a substitute. Dr. L. A. Richmond, it was stated, was acting as jail physician, but the committee could not learn who had authorized his appointment as such or who remunerated him for his services. Dr. Richmond was called when Mrs. Nick Minnigan gave birth to twins at the jail on the evening of April 17.

Dr. Carr said he favored the appointment of a new physician at the city jail who would not be under control of Dr. Roberts, as city Medical Officer of Health, but under the direction of Dr. Walter Langrill, Medical Superintendent of the General Hospital.

The Minnigan case was referred to indirectly when Sheriff Carr and Ald. Atohisan were authorized to confer with the City Purchasing Agent regarding the purchase of medical equipment for two rooms which will be set aside at the city jail for hospital purposes. Dr. Carr said Hamilton soely needed a new jail, as the present institution was obsolete.

RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press).—E. Barry Hayes, Toronto, was re-elected president of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada at the annual meeting here yesterday. Mr. Hayes has been president of the institution since is establishment in 1919.

BETTER HOG COMPETITION IS LAUNCHED

Twenty Boys From the Five Counties Receive Pair of Hogs Each.

FIRST IN PROVINCE.

Canadian Packing Company Purchased Forty of Best Female Pigs in Province.

If the scheme launched yesterday afternoon in the yards of the Canadian Packing Company brings the results that those hope for who earnestly planned and managed it, then Peterborough will be the centre of one of the finest hog raising districts in the province. Forty pure-bred, female pigs, six weeks old, were distributed in pairs among twenty boys, five from each of the four counties —Victoria, Northumberland, Durham and Peterborough.

Next year, taking the average of seven hogs in the litter for each of these sows, this district will have 320 pure bred hogs, and so it will continue year after year, enriching the quality of the bacon hogs produced.

First in Province

Thus was Inter-County Bacon Hog competition for boys, the first of its kind in the province and unique in every detail, successfully commenced.

The idea was first born in the mind of D. A. McKinnon, Dominion hog grader of the C.P.C., and the company fell in line with the plan; G. S. Matthews, the manager of the local plant, giving it every support. The plan was first announced at the company's annual farmers' field day, held in the city last December.

The scheme is this: The Canadian Packing Company bought these forty female pigs from the best breeders in the province, and sold them at cost, $8.25 apiece, yesterday to the twenty boys, selected as the most trustworthy for the care of them. The boys will bring their pair of pigs to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next fall, where they will be judged, and good prizes totaling $150 will be distributed.

From Fine Stock

The pigs were selected by L. W. Pearsall, director of Ontario hog graders throughout the province, and much of the credit for the quality of the pigs is due Mr. Pearsall. Fourteen of the pigs came from Whitner of Kitchener of Hipell stock, which won at the Royal this year; one litter from Tracy of Allistown of the Drennan stock; five from West of Newmarket of Drennan stock; a litter from Ferris of Newmarket, Drennan stock; five from Joe Brethren of Brethren stock, and three from Haviland of Brethren stock. The pigs were six to eight weeks old.

The Exhibition board are co-operating with the scheme augmenting the prize money offered by the C.P.C. to $150, making special arrangements for the showing of the pigs at the show and in other ways insuring its success. William Knox, managing director of the show, was always active in the interests of the club.

The pigs were marked yesterday by Lionel Stevenson, provincial zoologist, who also administered to each a Nemo capsule for worms. He explained some of the losses among pigs caused by worms and told how these can be lessened.

Each of the agriculture representatives—M. Winter, J. B. Nelson, Walter Smith and J. A. Kellough—aided in the selection of the boys for the club in their county.

The object of the competition is to promote better breeding stock, to stimulate more interest among the young boys in the feeding and management of swine, and particularly to give the boy on the farm a chance of doing something for himself.

Not only will the condition of the hogs be considered at the show in the fall, but each boy, in order to qualify, must write an essay of not less than 400 words, stating his experience in the feeding of bacon hogs for market with the use of digester tankage. A bag of digester tankage was given free to each of the boys by the C.P.C. yesterday.

NEAR CRISIS IN CLOSING HOURS

SPLIT AVERTED.

LONDON, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press).—In the closing hours yesterday afternoon of a two-day convention of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association held here, a crisis and a split within the ranks was narrowly averted. The incident was the only outstanding one of the sessions.

Madame Aurilien Belanger, wife of the M.L.A. for Russell, Ont., rose to thank the Liberal ladies of London for their hospitality, and to give the convention some ideas she had been collecting during her stay. In the first place, the name "Ontario Women's Liberal Association" was wrong, she pointed out. It should be Ontario English-Speaking Liberal Women's Association, because the ladies had ignored their French-Canadian sisters.

"You do not care anything about them at all," she charged.

"Oh yes we do," said Mrs. Peter Heenan.

Knows of French Vote.

"Premier Ferguson may not know your association exists, but he knows of the French-Canadian vote in Northern Ontario, and he is going after it."

Madame Belanger pointed out that there was no representation at the convention from the French-Canadian sections in the south-western parts of the province. She was the only person there representing this Liberal vote, and she was afraid that if she had not come, there would not have been a French name appear in the reports of the convention.

Mrs. William Fox, London, saved the situation. She offered to resign of Madame Belanger.

It was put to a vote, and Madame Belanger was installed as fourth vice-president. A standing vote was called and about 25 stood in the affirmative. Negatives were called and no one stood. At least 100 delegates did not vote.

Make Overtures to U.F.O.

A number of speeches consumed most of the time at the final session yesterday. One of the features was the appointment of a special committee to meet with the Liberal men, in a joint committee, to make overtures to the United Farmers of Ontario, to eliminate three-cornered contests in Ontario ridings. The proposal was pushed through by Mrs. Grant Needham, Toronto, who brought the matter up, and got it through without evoking a word from the delegates, one way or the other.

The following were elected to the special committee: Mrs. Needham, Toronto; Miss G. Ranking, Stratford, Ont.; Miss Mackenzie, Sarnia, Ont.; Mrs. Telfer, Owen Sound, Ont.; Miss Tremblay, North Bay, Ont.; Mrs. Brown, Nipigon, Ont.; Madame Belanger, Ottawa, and Mrs. McNeely, Peterborough, Ont.

F. G. Sanderson, M.P., South Perth, Chief Liberal Whip in the Commons, said an organization was being built up in Ontario now which would be functioning soon. This organization would at the next election gain for the Liberals ten to twelve seats in Ontario, Mr. Sanderson said.

CAPTAIN RANDELL VISITS TORONTO

Master of Ill-fated I'm Alone Says He Is Satisfied With Case.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.)—Captain John Thomas Randell, master of the Canadian schooner "I'm Aone," sunk on the high seas by United States coastguard cutters recently, paid a flying visit to Toronto yesterday.

He left for Ottawa last night where he will consult with his attorneys on the new aspect of his case expected to be brought forward by the correspondence between the Canadian government and the United States authorities. He will then return to his home in Nova Scotia for the first time since October last.

"The case is out of my hands now," Captain Randell said, "but I can say I am entirely satisfied with the way it is being conducted. I have met sevbers of Parliament, and private citibers of Parliament, an dprivate citizens of note, and everybody I met seemed to be behind me—they all believed my story" he said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

BOYS BLAMED FOR DEATH

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.).—A coroner's jury here last night decided that injuries which resulted in the death of Lincoln Forrester, 16, Toronto, were inflicted by Raymond Woods, Toronto, and Albert Frohman, also of Toronto. Forrester died following injuries received in a fracas outside a local auction room. Woods and Frohman were arrested on April 19 when Forrested died, and charged with manslaughter. They are at present on bail of $5,000 each and will appear in court on Friday.

LARGE FAMILY IS WELCOMED.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., April 25. — (Canadian Press).—The population of Woodstock was increased by 12 today upon the arrival of the largest family of British immigrants to this district that has been brought out by the Dominion Colonization Department. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Monteith and family from County Tyrone, Ireland, are settling just outside Eastwood, Ont. They were royally welcomed by the residents of the district, who served a supper for them on the lawn of their new home.

ON BOARD DUCHESS OF ATHOLL.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 25.—(C.P.)— Miss Wilhelmina Comstock, Brockville, was one of the passengers on board the S. S. Duchess of Athol, upon which six deaths are reported to have occurred in the course of its African cruise, who contracted malaria in the Red Sea area and who was seriously ill. The last word received here by members of the family from her mother, Mrs. W. H. Comstock, who accompanied her on the cruise, was that her condition was improving.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 25.—(C.P.) —The convict train bearing 170 prisoners from Kingston, Ont., to western penitentaries, reached here yesterday. Seventy prisoners were immediately transferred to Stoney Mountain penitentiary, a few miles north of Winnipeg, while the remaining hundred continued the westward journey to Prince Albert penitentiary.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 25—Prices ruled generally steady on the butter market. Trading was only of a moderate nature, and the undertone was easy, due to the limited inquiry and heavier arrivals. Receipts were 1,515 boxes, of which 1,252 were from New Zealand.

There was an easier tone to the cheese market, although no price changes were announced. Receipts were 58 boxes.

The egg market continued active and steady, with prices to the retail trade unchanged. Arrivals were 5,270 cases.

Potato prices were advanced. New Brunswick Green Mountains sold at 60 cents per 90 lbs. in bulk on track here. Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were unchanged at 70 cents per 90 lbs. in bags.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 25. — Wheat prices were boosted up yesterday as the result of good buying by shipping interests. In the early trading the values were 1 c to 2c higher, until weakness at Chicago had its effect here. Prices, however, contested declines, and the market closed 1¾c to 1¾c higher.

Weather in Western Canada, especially in Alberta, is quite cold, with heavy frosts at night, but reports from the Department of Agriculture in Manitoba state that seeding in Manitoba will be general this week.

Cash wheat held unchanged to ¾c better. Demand for the low grades was excellent. Exporters were reported buying heavily yesterday Oats and barley continued in good demand with prices in both commodities holding firm. Rye started a forward movement as the result of heavy export trade, but flax was dull and unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 25.—North American wheat export business, estimated as high as 4,500,000 bushels in the last 48 hours, gave grain values a decided new upturn yesterday. Purchasing of wheat for Spain alone was said to equal four months' requirements.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at ¾c to 2¼c net advance; corn finished 1c to 1½c higher; oats, ¾c to ⅞c up, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 12c.

With export dealings on a mammoth scale, and with Liverpool wheat quotations yesterday much higher than due, the wheat market in Chicago displayed pronounced strength. Liquidating sales here on the part of holders of May contracts, who preferred to avoid acceptance of approaching deliveries, did a good deal at times to bring about reactions from the day's top prices, but the effect of such selling failed to hinder subsequent rallies. Meanwhile, future deliveries demanded as a whole were of broad general character, and in keeping with expansion of trans-Atlantic call for shipments both from Canada and the United States, considerable amounts of No. 2 domestic hard winter and of durum wheat being included.

Delayed Seeding Operations

Advices telling of delayed seeding of spring wheat northwest, especially in North Dakota and Montana, counted as a further stimulus yesterday to friends of higher prices. Seeding of North Dakota wheat in particular was stated officially to be well under the total of a year ago. There were also advices that winter-killing of wheat in Rumania amounted to as much as 20 per cent, and that European crop prospects elsewhere were not altogether promising. Removal of import duties by Spain was noted as a reason for the extra large buying abroad for that country.

Corn, oats and rye sympathized with the advance of wheat. Besides, Tuesday's unusual selling pressure on corn had subsided, and rains were threatening yesterday to hamper plowing and planting, already late in some sections of the corn belt, notably Iowa. Talk was current that oats acreage would be curtailed as a result of delays to seeding.

Provisions averaged higher. Packers' buying more than counterbalanced lower quotations on hogs.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 25. — Trading was again quiet on the wholesale butter market yesterday and prices were unchanged at from 41c to 42c per pound for No. 1 finest creamery butter. Supplies from New Zealand which arrived on the S. S. Megantic, are being unloaded on track here today. Definite word was also received that the large shipment of 25,000 cases will arrive in Halifax to-day.

The mild weather has aided domestic production considerably, and this factor, together with the increase in imported shipments, has given the market an easier undertone and dealers report that prices are barely steady at present levels. et Quotations to the retail trade held steady at 45c per pound for No. 1 creamery.

Egg Prices Firm.

Egg receipts continue to be heavy, and large dealers report that there are more eggs in storage now than there were one year ago at this time. The demand for storage supplies is also increasing in some quarters and prices appear firm at the range of from 26 to 27c per dozen for fresh extras, 24 to 25c for firsts and 21 to 22c for seconds. These quotations are for ungraded eggs, delivered and cases returned.

Fresh supplies of cheese are reaching the wholesale market daily and consequently prices were reduced one cent per pound. No. 1 large colored, paraffined and government graded was quoted at from 20 1-2 to 20 3-4c per pound.

DAMAGE ACTION HEARING IS OVER

said that though it had rained steadily until ten o'clock, it had rained very heavily about 11 p.m.

R. H. Parsons

City Engineer R. H. Parsons said he had been in the city's employ for a little over sixteen years, succeeding T. A. S. Hay. Regarding the Dalhousie street bridge, he said that there had never been trouble at that bridge until the spring of 1928.

"My Hay was a very good engineer, and had been engineer of the city for about twenty years before I came in 1913," said he, in answer to Mr. Grant's query.

Witness had seen a plan, signed by Mr. Evans, contractor. This plan had been for the erection of the abutments.

"I have examined the bridge carefully. I consider the bridge sufficient to take care of the water to be expected to come down that creek, though I have never studied its source. I base my opinion on the flow that has come down during the past fifteen years," he continued.

"There had been a considerable snowfall that winter; there had been several mild days before March 26, and on the 24th we had had trouble with ice forming jams. I was very anxious about the creek and I patrolled it. We had no trouble until about 6 p.m. Saturday evening (March 24) when Mr. Thirnbeck, living on McDonnel street, notified me that the ice was coming down. The jam passed through all the bridges until it reached the last bridge, on George street. There it jammed but cleared before we used dynamite. That had practically cleared the creek of ice. I would not say that a jam up above would relieve conditions at the Dalhousie street bridge, except temporarily.

Inspected Creek

"On Monday, March 26, after Sunday had been mild, I had inspected the creek early in the afternoon, though not going as far up as Jackson's Park. The water was running high, but there was no ice in the main channel.

"About four o'clock I started on a second inspection. The water was a little higher. I finished about 5.30 and went directly to my home. Mr. Ackerman had phoned; I started out after phoning Mr. Thirnbeck and another man to meet me at the Dalhousie street bridge with pike poles. The creek is one of my worries every spring. Messrs. Thirnbeck, Cox and Evans had arrived. At that time, about 6.30, the water was not going over the sidewalk or over the fender girder. I was watching the creek during the evening, but was not in the Ackerman plant. The water back of the Ackerman plant was coming from the creek back of the two brick houses north along the creek. About 8.30 I was on the bridge. Mr. Ackerman, the fire chief, Mr. Evans, and I were there as well as the two men, Messrs. Cox and Thirnbeck. There was no discussion particularly. Everybody was talking about the flooding. At that time the water was slightly under the lower edge of the fender beam. I was probably at Dalhousie street half the time until about four o'clock in the morning. Occasionally a block of ice would come down as well as debris and was either shoved under so that the current would take it down, or pulled out on the bank. This was continued until the water got too high and they had to move back to higher ground. The water was right up on the C.P.R. bridge at that time and it was impossible to approach that bridge from the north. The water was just over the ties. The height of the C.P.R. bridge was approximately the same while the span was less than that of the Dalhousie street bridge. Witness described the stream's course below the Dalhousie street bridge.

Running north on the east side from the Dalhousie street bridge, there is a stone retaining wall about 25 feet and at the present time, above that, the bank is low, showing evidence of an old retaining crib. Above that, north of the property line, there is no cribbing. There are two or three clumps of willow trees north of the end of the stone walls and west of the old retaining crib, apparently growing out of the bed of the stream. The width of the creek is therefore only two-thirds as wide as the span at the bridge. This would have a retarding effect in time of high water.

"In my opinion, there was more water coming down than could pass at that point; that was why it flooded onto the Ackerman property."

"The city did not give authority for the placing of the gas pipe which runs beneath the bridge and which was put there since witness came to Peterborough. The pipe would have a certain retarding effect on the flow of the stream."

Details followed regarding the protecting beam which lies immediately north of the sewer pipe on the floor of the creek, and witness continued:

"We have never had a flood equal to this one since I became city engineer. The property just south of Hunter street was also under water about two feet deep, and the water was passing under the Hunter street bridge. At Bethune street, the ice coming down two days before had displaced a timber, and I was afraid that the bridge might be carried away, as the water ran over that structure for a short time. It was not carried away."

The first phase of the cross-examination consisted chiefly of a discussion of bridge plans. Witness said he had not taken measurements but had faith in the plans as prepared by Mr. Proctor, consulting engineer from Toronto, whose evidence was taken on Tuesday.

"The effect of the sewer pipe and its protecting beam upon the flow of the creek was the subject of several questions, the answers being a matter of hydraulics. Their presence would have the same effect upon the flow of the water, but the gas pipe would not have the full effect of its dimension in retardinging the flow.

"The city has directed storm drains into the creek which would have the effect of discharging a considerable amount of water into the creek faster than before. However, the storm sewer system also carries water off in other directions and there do not exist any computations to show what saving there is," the engineer answered, in reply to Mr. Robertson's queries.

"There is a strip of territory three-quarters of a mile wide and two miles long which would naturally discharge into the creek, and you have been making storm sewers leading both from east and west?" asked His Lordship.

"Yes," answered Mr. Parsons.

"The unprecedented natural conditions which brought about the 1928 flood were the several warm days combined with the amount of snow and rain storms from the west which came to Peterborough that evening," continued the witness.

"I went to the Dalhousie street bridge owing to a call from Mr. Ackerman, and stationed workmen to watch the stuff coming down the creek. That was the bad place in the district. The flow was getting through the bridge and through the C.P.R. bridge below. The grade of the creek bed from the Dalhousie bridge down to the C.P.R. bridge is a little steeper than it is further north. Both bridges have about the same span not taking into account the beams and pipes below the Dalhousie street bridge."

Stream Not Taxed.

Re-examined by Mr. Grant, witness said that there has been diverted by the storm drains to the Otonabee, the drainage from Argyle Street, Water Street from London Street, and south to King Street. Probably 15 or 25 per cent. of a diversion has been made by the sewer system, while the drainage area on the west side had not been particularly altered. There has not been any water brought in that did not come before the drains were laid, though what now comes may arrive faster.

Cellar Was Flooded.

Thomas Hooper, residing on Dalhousie Street, immediately west of the creek on the south side, said that his cellar had flooded at the time of the 1928 flood. This had never occurred before in 33 years' residence. On March 26, 1928, witness had seen the water rippling over the top of the C.P.R. bridge about 10.30. He had been talking to Mr. Ackerman about six o'clock.

Cross-examined, witness said his lot was on the west side of the creek. There was a cement abutment or wall on that west side running the length of his lot. His cellar was flooded during the afternoon and evening. The water was coming over the Dalhousie Street bridge at 10.30 p.m. He recalled the old wooden bridge. He had thought the new bridge was too low at the time it was being built, and he and neighbors had presented a petition to the Council to have the bridge raised. It was raised, but not to the extent that the petitioners had desired. There was a plank walk, and at one time the sidewalk was inside the Ackerman property line and practically in line with this plank walk.

Re-examined, witness said that the objection taken was not that the bridge would have been too low for the water to go through, but that the floor was too low.

As the contractor who had placed the sewer line beneath the bridge, John Gibson explained its being run through a concrete-packed box on the bed of the stream. A number of photographs were exhibited showing trees and other features of the creek shore line above the bridge.

Assistant City Clerk Charles Curtis certified regarding specifications and contracts for the erection of the new Dalhousie Street bridge, and the next witness was called in the person of A. L. Killaly.

Expect Creek Flooding.

As the Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, Mr. Killaly recalled the flooding of the Jackson Park creek in 1928, since it was the practice of his department to watch the creek as an indication of abnormal conditions likely to materialize in the Trent system in this district. He submitted records of high water levels for each spring, and stated that to his knowledge the Dalhousie Street bridge had never been overflowed before. Cross-examined, witness gave further details of the manner in which records were kept dealing with the Trent levels, and stated that since the Otonabee had experienced a particularly heavy flow in 1928, it was quite to be expected that the Jackson Park creek, with no reservoir lakes at its source, would be more than likely to develop abnormal flood conditions.

Mr. Killaly told of receiving a request from W. C. Ackerman for assistance at the time of the flood in 1928, and of his own visit to the scene. In answer to a query, he stated that even had an engineer been cognizant of records for the past twenty-five years, and had accordingly designed the bridge in 1922 with a 25 per cent. allowance for higher flooding, the 1928 flood would still have been in excess of his calculations.

Street Commissioner Testifies.

Having lived in the city of Peterborough since he was a lad of five years, and having been street commissioner for the past five or six years, Harry Evans, the next witness called, was able to give interesting information regarding many phases of the flooding. He remembered the old wooden bridge on Dalhousie Street, and his men had torn it down when he as a contractor, had taken the contract for erecting the new bridge. He believed that the floor of the new bridge was higher than that of the old structure and that the passage underneath each was about equal. Witness had been in the city's employ for 26 years, and in his opinion the Dalhousie Street crossing was a dangerous one from a flood standpoint. Several times he believed a flooding of the Ackerman property would have taken place had not city men arrived on the scene in time. He had seen ice jam there before, but had never seen the water go over the bridge before the 1928 flood.

Witness told of coming to the scene after supper on March 26, and of seeing water in the Ackerman cellar a few minutes after seven o'clock. He had seen the men at work keeping the stream clear of the debris, and had stayed around until eleven o'clock. The firemen had come, but couldn't do anything. Here Mr. Evans and the court had some difficulty in arriving at a common understanding regarding their conceptions of what constituted anchor ice, and the tension did not decrease when, during cross-examination, Mr. Robertson suggested that some debris now to be seen at the bridge might have been there for some time. Witness had not expected that the flood would reach such proportions. He told of the rain which fell during the evening, and said that the pieces of ice and debris had either been pulled out on the banks or shoved beneath the fender beam, to be carried under the bridge by the current.

"How do you know it went under the bridge?" asked Mr. Robertson.

"Because you could hear it go bump, bump, and then get away. Isn't that proof enough?" came back the street commissioner.

Mild Before Flood.

Perhaps the most conclusive evidence that there had been unusually mild weather for a number of days before the 1928 flood was found in the evidence of Walter Peters, Government observer, who, by reference to his records, was able to tell of a higher temperature existing from March 21 to the morning of March 27, causing considerable thawing of snow so that sleighing was completely gone. He told of the heavy rain which fell on the night of March 26, but, on cross-examination, stated that while fully a third of the month's precipitation had occurred after nine o'clock on the 26th, as shown in his records, this was not a particularly unusual occurrence.

Water Over Bridge.

Harry Beatty, superintendent of the electric light department of the Utilities Commission, and a resident of Peterborough for fourteen years, told of being called to the Dalhousie Street bridge on the night of March 26, 1928. He stated that at nine o'clock the water was flowing over the bridge to a depth of 15 or 18 inches. This was the first time he had ever seen the water go over the bridge.

Fire Department Responded.

Fire Chief George Gimblett, in his evidence, told of reaching the scene of the flooding at about 8.30 on March 26, 1928, having ordered some of his department's equipment to proceed there also, on authority from the Mayor. He had gone into the Ackerman basement and had seen from four to six inches of water in the east part. He had been in conversation with W. C. Ackerman, proposed that we get what we could out of the cellar. I told him I had four men with me," said witness. "I didn't tell me what to do about it." Chief Gimblett went on to tell how the water got deeper with the falling of the heavy rain about two o'clock. However, reverting back to the time of his conversation with Mr. Ackerman, witness told of going to the west part of the basement and of seeing water three or four feet deep in the north yard. It was flowing freely under the bridge at this time (about 8.30). At the bridge, witness had talked with City Engineer Parsons and the steam pumper was put to work, the water in the basement later getting up to one and a half feet from the window sills. Headway in the pumping was made until the heavier rain fell about ten o'clock. "Then everything went fluey," said the chief.

The cross-examination proved a confusion of misunderstandings between the Chief and Mr. Robertson, especially regarding the location of the fender beam to the north of the bridge. The Chief stated that the water was not flowing over the bridge at nine o'clock as a previous witness had testified, but that it was flowing beneath the fender beam. The confusion arose regarding the exact height of the bridge proper. Witness repeated that he had offered the services of his four men to Mr. Ackerman with a view to salvaging some of the stock from the basement.

Arthur Rose.

As a member of the Fire Brigade Arthur Rose had been one of those who manned a combination pumper which had been ordered to the flood scene previous to the sending of the steam pumper. He had arrived about 8.30 and had seen the Chief and employees of the Ackerman Company in the basement. The water was then about twelve or fifteen inches deep in the south-east part of the basement, and witness had heard the Chief ask Mr. Ackerman if there was anything that he and his four men could do. There was no water flowing over the bridge when witness arrived at 8.30.

Replaced Gas Pipe.

The matter of how a city gas main had chanced to be run beneath the bridge was cleared up in the evidence of H. L. Beall, local manager of the Peterborough Gas Works, employed by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. He stated that the present pipe had been placed in position in 1922, to replace a defective one. The change had been made without permission from the city because it is only when a new line is to be laid where none has been before that the city is consulted. The pipe is four inches in size, inside measurement, and is possibly four and three-quarter inches in diameter, outside measurement.

Mayor Roland Denne told of an inspection of the bridges over the creek about the time of the flood. He could not recall a request from Mr. Ackerman to have debris cleared away from the bridge.

An emyloyee of the city, A. Cox, told of working all night from 7.30 on March 26, and of the manner in which the ice and debris had been kept from creating a jam at the Dalhousie Street bridge.

Repeated Statement.

Recalled to the witness stand, William C. Ackerman again stated that he did not remember the Fire Chief offering to salvage some of the stock from the basement. He further stated, contrary to a statement of the Chief's, that the door leading from the garage into the basement at the north-west corner, had been closed on the night of the flood. It had not been closed or blocked until the next day when two divers nailed up the door and windows.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

SPORT ROYALLY RECOGNIZED.

Somebody has said that it wouldn't be possible to bring about a revolution in England because it could not be fitted in among the sporting events that so closely engage the attention of Britishers.

The remark is recalled in the light of the fact that the manager of the English cricket team, which defeated Australia in the recent test matches, has been knighted.

The title is a recognition of the place that sport occupies in the hearts of the British people, and will be regarded not so much as an individual honor as a tribute to the whole personnel of the victorious English team.

The knighthood, following upon that conferred upon Major Segrave for his prowess in breaking the world's automobile speed record, will be popular everywhere in the British Empire, putting as it does the stamp of royal approval upon sport as a factor of great importance in the life of the British people.

Incidentally, titles have been conferred for far less meritorious performances than those for which these latest knighthoods have been awarded.

EDUCATING NEW ELECTORS.

The fact that the Liberal women of Ontario have just held a most successful convention in London is of importance and interest, not only to the party whose cause they support, but generally.

All movements, no matter by what organizations they may be launched, that tend to give Canadian women a closer knowledge of public issues ,problems and policies cannot fail to prove of valuable public service.

Whether the majority of women want the franchise or not, they have it, and it is of vital importance that they should learn to use it in the light of a working knowledge of public questions.

It would be a splendid thing were the membership of all the women's political organizations materially increased and more frequent opportunities given to women voters to hear political problems discussed by those able to speak authoritatively on such subjects.

At present it is safe to say that these organizations represent only a fraction of the women electors.

Similarly there is a great work to be done by those societies which aim to educate young voters.

The average young man when he comes of voting age knows nothing of political questions and cares less, and these young people's political clubs have a large field of useful service before them in this respect.

SEE THAT IT IS CARRIED.

The proposal to provide adequate bathing facilities at Inverlea Park, which will be submitted for the approval of the ratepayers a week from to-morrow, has not as yet developed any opposition.

This fact should not, however, prevent those who realize how much the carrying out of this program means to the community from workking energetically to secure the passing of this by-law.

There is always an element among ratepayers who oppose all money by-laws as a matter of principle, and as a general rule voters of this type make it a point to see that their ballots are used to good purpose.

This opposition has to be taken into consideration and offset by the citizens who are alive to the need of better conditions at Inverlea Park, and who believe that the people of Peterborough should capitalize the advantages given them by the possession of such an asset as the splendid Otonabee.

We should have a beach where our people can bathe in safety and comfort; we should have dressing-rooms that are clean and commodious and well ventilated; we should have a park beside the river containing modern sanitary conveniences.

All these things will be provided by the by-law to be voted on next week, and The Examiner urges citizens, in their own interests, to see that the measure is carried.

SPEED LIMITS.

A recent publication advertising Canada as a tourist paradise gives a summary of the traffic rules in the various Canadian Provinces, and a glance through these regulations suggests that an adoption of uniform traffic laws is a reform that is long overdue in this country.

A motorist who made a tour throughout Canada at the present time would find himself up against the problem of a different speed limit every time he crossed a provincial line.

Down in Prince Edward Island he would have to keep down to 25 miles an hour to stay within the law, while New Brunswick, on the other hand, would permit him to travel at the rate of 40 miles an hour on the open road.

Going into Quebec he'd have to drop back to a 30-mile limit, and then coming on into our own Province he could accelerate his car five miles an hour faster without becoming a law-breaker.

In the three Prairie Provinces the theory is, "Let your conscience be your guide," for there is no speed limit, the motorist being expected to regulate his speed according to traffic and road conditions.

And then on the Pacific Coast the speed limit comes back with the British Columbia legal rate set at 30 miles an hour, the same as in Quebec.

So far as rules go there is no uniformity, although perhaps in actual practice the thing works out about the same everywhere, inasmuch as the speed limit, whatever it may be, means nothing to the average driver with a good road in front of him.

ONLY MISERY AT THE END.

"After he had been dragged, struggling, from an automobile, and handcuffed, he gave up the fight." Thus ends the journeying of another young man accused of defying the law. This inglorious finish came at Moose Jaw, Sask., to John Parks, Peterborough jail-breaker, and wanted in Ontario on various charges. Parks had quite a long joy-ride while his money lasted. It admitted, police say, having stolen a car in Windsor, in which he wandered to Chicago, finally crossing to Moose Jaw. Parks' escape from Peterborough jail was, of course, "sensational"—they all are. There was skilful work with the saw; then the scaling of the walls, and away in an auto. This young man showed a sense of humor in his choice of a car, as the first part of his journey was made in one belonging to the sheriff. He will have free passage back in a train, with constant and attentive company. He will be officially received in Peterborough, St. Thomas and perhaps other points, and confronted with many old charges. While Parks was in the "eluding" business he was no doubt quite a hero with those of his kind. But, after all, he "was dragged, struggling, from an automobile, and handcuffed."

"After a chase of several blocks along alleys and over back fences," Hamilton police have arrested a man believed to be implicated in a series of recent hold-ups. The methods used were so similar that the robberies were evidently the work of the same gang. "Back alleys and fences" for the fugitive in this case.

From Smith's Falls comes a story of a man being badly beaten, robbed, and left on the roadside. It is claimed that there was a "bootleg" angle to this outrage. Three young men were arrested shortly afterward "at their homes."

So that, in the long run, there is nothing in it all but misery.—The Globe.

BRITAIN AND SANCTITY OF CONTRACT.

The political sensation of the day in Britain has been provided by Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, former Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Ramsay MacDonald Government. In a speech in the British House of Commons Mr. Snowden intimated that, if the Labor party secured the reins of office after the forthcoming general election, it would not be bound by the famous Balfour note which has been the foundation of British policy in respect to the settlement of national war debts.

Mr. Snowden's speech has been fastened on by Conservative leaders and by the Liberal party under Mr. Lloyd George, as indicating possible repudiation of former debt settlements. And this has been taken as a dramatic departure from traditional British policy, which is that, whatever government succeeds to power, contractual obligations engaged in by their predecessors will be respected and observed whatever might be the views of political opponents with regard to them.

Apart from any questions of monetary consideration, for many years now it has been an established principle of foreign policy that no government in Britain shall repudiate the obligations of their predecessors. Lord Rosebery made his brief term as Prime Minister historic for that one thing. Britain's foreign policy was to be continuous, he declared.

It is not very surprising, therefore, that Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign affairs in the Baldwin Government, should take a serious view of the statement of Mr. Snowden. Sir Austen went so far as to declare "deliberately as foreign secretary," that "no worse day's work has been done in any parliament, and no greater damage done to the cause of progress, than the rash words of the ex-chancellor."

Sir Austen appealed to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the leader of the Labor party, "to speak words of reassurance to the world and to say that whatever party is in office, England will keep her word."

Rightly, or wrongly, Britain has long been given credit for that. "The Government strictly performs its engagements," wrote Emerson, one-hundred-per-cent.-American as he was in his day, in one of his essays on "English Traits," after two visits to the Old Country nearly a century ago.

"The subjects do not understand trifling on its part," he said. "When any breach of promise occurred, in the old days of prerogative, it was resented by the people as an intolerable grievance." And, in modern times, any slipperiness in the Government in political faith, or any repudiation or crookedness in matters of finance, would bring the whole nation to a committee of enquiry and reform. "Private men keep their promises, never so trivial. Down goes the flying word on the tablets, and is as indelible as Doomsday Book."

There may be exaggeration in all this, for Britain, like all other countries, has produced notable exceptions to all general rules, as her law courts, even in modern times, have revealed.

But regard for the "sanctity of contracts" is a national characteristic and largely upon that basis has Britain made her great contribution to modern civilization.

There are cynics who deny that it was the "ritual baseness," as E. T. Raymond characterized it, of Germany's violation of her pledge to respect the neutrality of Belgium which took Britain into the Great War. There may have been other factors, as volumes like Viscount Grey's "Twenty-five Years" indicate, but the fact is that a hitherto divided nation on the issue of war with Germany was made practically one by the determination to maintain respect for the pledged word.

Nothing so shocked the nation as a whole as the attempt to dismiss such an obligation as a mere "scrap of paper."

And perhaps nothing has placed our friends below the line in so invidious a position in modern times as their national repudiation of obligations which their chief executive entered into at the Paris Peace Conference, even though allowances be made to some extent for the differences in political systems.

More recent attempts on the part of some American politicians to obtain review, and possibly revision, of findings of such a body as the International Joint Commission, and which have been supposed to be final, seem to indicate, at least, that the principle of sanctity of contracts has not been entirely accepted in some quarters.

That Britain will depart from her traditional policy is very unlikely. So far it does not appear that an unequivocal declaration on the part of Labor leaders that they would not attempt this has yet been made. Until it is, despite Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's sneers at "electioneering and tub-thumping" it is pretty certain the harm will be to the Labor party itself, rather than to Britain as a whole.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Native Sons of Canada advocate everything Canadian except a Canadian navy to protect the Canadian flag they ask for. Presumably they are content to depend upon the British fleet for that.

Alberta has joined the provincial line-up in offering to co-operate in the organization of radio broadcasting in Canada on the basis of public service. Such an organization is sorely needed.

In Tom Dutton the Peterborough Rotary Club has a young and energetic president under whose direction the organization should have a most successful year.

Mr. Veniot has won the first round, although apparently he has not received the newspaper decision.

A Thought

INTEGRITY OF PURPOSE

When a man is loyal to himself, he is bound to be loyal to his co-workers and absolutely loyal to the company that pays him.

Loyalty to self is integrity of purpose. The man who is fair and honorable to himself, can not be disloyal to others.

Any act that injures the institution that employs you, will eventually cost you more than it will cost the company.

Any personal plan or practice that discounts your ambition or ability is retroactive. It harms others, but will harm you most.

Disloyalty can not reside in a clean heart. A heart that is not loyal to its owner, is as dangerous as cancer.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE USE ALIBIS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

The alleged criminal establishes an alibi when he proves to he satisfaction of the court that on such and such an occasion when the crime in question was committed he was somewhere else. The supposition is that a man can't be in two places at the same time.

Mr. Osborne, the former warden of Sing Sing, tells an interesting incident of the young fellow in prison who told him he was innocent of the crime for which he was doing time. "Why didn't you establish an alibi?" asked Mr. Osborne. "I couldn't replied the convict, "for at the very moment this crime was committed I was doing a similar job three blocks away."

We have come to use the word alibi as indicating any attempt to get out of a bad situation, to place the blame on someone else, to pass the buck.

Making excuses is the most common form of the alibi. The motive of the alibi is to avoid embarrassment or loss or punishment in whatever form the offense in question calls for.

The alibi also serves to prevent the loss of prestige. We can't afford to be caught napping too often. Our reputation can't stand too many lapses and mistakes. Of course we take it for granted that it is human to make mistakes. Nevertheless the man who makes too many mistakes does not get our vote on our money. To avoid being set down as a stupid or foolish person we try to justify the act even when we know it is wrong.

One form of the alibi is denying that you did the thing you are accused of. The other is to try to justify the act by showing that you did not have the facts necessary upon which to base your judgment. You try to show that under the circumstances any one would have done the same thing.

If we can't defend the wisdom of the act we try at least to defend our character and intentions. We say, "I didn't mean any harm. I thought I was doing the right thing." To assail a man's motive is to assail his character. That is why we are ready to fight when a man calls us a liar, but take his criticism of our mentality more calmly. It seems to be regarded as a much graver offense to show a defect of character than a defect of mind and good judgment.

We make alibis to save our hide and our pride.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1929

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Rather unfavorable planetary influences rule today, according to astrology. It is a time to exercise caution and good judgment in small as well as large affairs.

The early morning should be fairly beneficial for workers, making them industrious if not really enthusiastic regarding toil.

Old ideals should gain respect at this time when there will be strong interest in reform legislative measures.

There is a sign rather threatening for farmers who may suffer losses through bad weather conditions.

Danger of disease among cattle will menace certain parts of the country, it is foretold.

Under this direction of the stars whatever is purely mental is well governed and for this reason inventors should benefit.

Tremendous development in airplanes and successful safeguards for aviators again is prophesied.

Travel by aerial navigation is to become an everyday concern among persons of Europe and America before the end of the year, if astrologers are correct in their prophecies.

New problems in interstate transportation are to be met by the people as the year draws to a close, it is forecast.

While this rule prevails it is important to remember that a soft answer turneth away wrath, for there will be a strong tendency toward irritability among sensitive and highstrung persons.

In the reform wave that is to sweep the country there will be missionaries who advocate revolutionary and sensational policies, it is prognosticated.

Leaders who can be trusted will arise in the great cities and among them will be at least one super-woman.

The young are warned that the evening of this day is not an auspicious time for courtship or flirtation.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of good news from unexpected sources. They should be careful where romance is involved.

Children born on this day probably will be more magnetic and charming than practical and successful. These subjects of this sign of Taurus are usually restless and a bit fickle, but when rightly guided become wonderfully happy and prosperous.

John Clark Ridpath, historian, was born on this date 1840. James Putnam Kimball, 1836, famous geologist also claimed this as his birthday.

The average life of the presidents of the United States has been 69.9 years. The average hereditary monarch of Europe has lived for 53.6 years.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXIII

Anthony Hambledon's letter was short. "Unless you hear from me to the contrary," he wrote, ". shall be in London on Monday." He gave the address of the hotel at which he would stay. "Come to me there, Ana. I saw Mahon's wife when I got back here—or rather she came to see me. I will tell you about it when we meet. You can say good-bye to Wimbledon, my dear—I am not going to part from you again. I have come to the conclusion that 'honour' is an empty word invented by somebody without human impulse. I feel like a man who has unexpectedly been let out of prison into sunshine which only exists because of you. I give you my word that you shall never regret the step we are to take together. I am living only for the moment when I shall see you. A man's life is his own affair, after all. If you have any fear for the future I will make you forget it when we are together."

"He is mad," Ana told herself breathlessly. She raised his letter to her lips. "But I love his madness."

Monday! and to-day was Friday.

Anthony made no mention of Mollie, nor of the General; he took it for granted that Ana would ask no questions, raise no objections. She sat down at the foot of the stairs with sudden overwhelming weakness.

Life had been so uneventful until lately, and now all at once she was whirled into the midst of things which she had never thought could touch her life.

She was conscious of a great fear through all her happiness. What would the world say? What would Miss Sawyer say?

She shut her eyes and tried to realize the gossip there would be—the horror among her aunt's few cronies; the nine days' scandal—Ana had been brought up with a wholesome idea of scandal. It had always seemed so terrible to her to hear people talked about in lowered voices as if they were unclean; whispered about with a sort of ghoulish glee.

It would be terrible for Miss Sawyer, too; she so prided herself upon her unimpeachable respectability.

Ana clasped her hands to steady their trembling. Once before she had heard those two excellent, but exceedingly narrow-minded women sitting in judgment upon a girl who, like herself, had thrown everything to the winds, and followed the call of love.

She had even listened and approved of their condemnation.

"He cannot possibly marry her"—so they had declared. "He is a married man, and his wife will never divorce him."

And they had been right—the man never had married her, and she had died. Anthony was a married man, too! Supposing Mollie would not divorce him? And yet—if it was true about Ralp Mahon—— Her head felt whirling. Anthony meant to divorce Mollie, she was sure; and yet—supposing it was all untrue? Phillis Mahon was a sick and jealous woman; she might have exaggerated things.

"She's only foolish. I'm sure she's not really wicked," Ana told herself fiercely, and then wondered why she always felt driven to defend Mollie. Surely it was to her own disadvantage.

Then there was the General! He loved his father; supposing—Ana knew that sometimes the law stepped in and did all sorts of queer things to people who thought they could run their lives on lines other than those laid down by convention.

Supposing they would not allow Anthony to have the General?

She hid her burning face in her hands. Somehow she had not thought it would be like this; she had imagined it would be like this; she had imagined it would be so easy and that her only emotion would be one of passionate gladness, but instead she was torn by a thousand conflicting fears. And she had only two days in which to make up her mind what she meant to do with the rest of her life.

In some ways Fate seemed to be playing into her hands.

Miss Sawyer was away—it would be so easy to carry out Anthony's wishes, nobody would be there to stop her, or to argue that she was doing a wrong and foolish thing.

But was it wrong or foolish? Anthony did not think so—he was prepared to face anything rather than lose her.

She read his letter through again. It did not sound like him—there was an unrestraint about it that was foreign to his nature.

In some ways Ana was remarkably clear headed. She realized that he had written under great stress of some sort, and back came the old haunting fear that perhaps it was anger and jealousy that drove him. Supposing he still loved his wife?

"But he doesn't, he loves me." Ana found that she had spoken the words aloud, but they sounded strangely unconvincing, and with a little shudder she got up, turned out the light, and ran upstairs.

The house felt so lonely, and yet it seemed to be filled with mocking, jeering voices that whispered all around her:

"A married man! Your friend's husband. You can't do it! No decent woman would."

"She hasn't been true to him, or even fair," Ana retorted in her heart, and then found that she was crying.

It was cruel that life should give a thing with one hand and then try to snatch it away with the other. Real love was so rarely found, and she knew that hers for Anthony was real enough—the only real thing she had ever known.

"I've got two days in which to make up my mind," she told herself wildly, and two days was a long time. Ana was not naturally impulsive, but in the morning as soon as she had finished her pretence of a breakfast she put on her hat and coat and went to see Mollie.

She felt that she must see her again before she left for Lyme Regis, though why she did not know.

It was early when she reached Mollie's hotel.

"Mrs. Hambledon is not up yet," she was told.

"I will go to her room," Ana said.

She did not know why she had come; did not know what she meant to say, and when she found herself outside Mollie's door she was seized with sudden fright.

Was this visit going to make things worse? Was she foolish to believe she could make them better?

"Come in," said Mollie's sleepy voice and Ana walked blindly into the room.

The blinds were all drawn and the room was very dark.

"It's me—Ana!" Ana said, and she heard the little smothered exclamation of amazement from the bed.

"You! Good heavens! is anything the matter?" Mollie groped for a light and switched it on. She sat up, blinking and frowning.

"Why, what on earth——?"

"I wanted to see you before you left," Ana explained incoherently. "I thought you might be going early."

"Early! Why, what time is it?"

"It's nearly eleven."

Mollie laughed rather ashamedly.

"How disgraceful! but I was ever so late last night. It was about three before I came in——" Then she stopped and looked as if she wished she had not said it.

"Anyway, it's kind of you to come," she added rather shortly.

Ana shut the door and came forward.

"I want to talk to you," she said agitatedly.

"Oh, lord!" Mollie stifled a yawn. "What's it about? I'm not fit to listen to anythin; yet. Wait till I've had a bath and go dressed. I haven't had any breakfast."

"I can't wait, Mollie," and broke off in distress. "Oh, please listen to me," she begged.

There was a little silence, then Mollie said very quietly: "Well, go on!"

She looked wide enough awake now, and a little shadow of fear kept snapping to and fro in her pretty eyes. She clasped her hands round her knees, resting her chin on them; suddenly she gave a stifled cry.

"It's the General! he's ill?"

"No, no—he's quite well," Ana said hurriedly, but she felt as if someone had stabbed her. Mollie must love the General very much after all to look so frightened. "It's nothing to do with him," Ana repeated.

"Oh!" Mollie drew a swift breath of relief. "Well, then, nothing else matters. Go on—let's hear what it is."

Ana sat down on the bed.

"We've always been friends," she began in her direct way, "and I've always been fond of you, that's why I'm here. Mollie—it's about Mr. Mahon. Were you out with him last night?"

Mollie coloured to the roots of her hair, and her lips moved in quick denial, but she checked the words to say instead:

"Supposing I was? Why do you ask?"

"Because someone has been telling things to—to Anthony," Ana said.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To Editor of The Examiner:—

While it is conceived that crushed stone makes the best of road material it never was intended to use automobiles in place of steam rollers. Nothing is more harmful to a new tire then a good sharp stone properly placed on the highway.

In the winter of 1927 the county of Otonabee put down three-quarters of a mile of crushed field stone about the size of an egg on the Peterborough, and during the summer of 1928 motorists had the pleasure of using their cars as rock crushers.

Main Highway, between Keene and

During the fall of 1928 they put down about three-quarter mile, more of these tire devils, and it is now up to the motorists to start the season's work of rolling stone.

It would be very interesting to know just how many tires were cut and ruined by leaving this stone uncovered.

This stone should either be rolled by a regular steam roller or should be covered with gravel before the car owners are put to any more tire expense.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE LITTLE TROUBLES

Great griefs are not so hard to bear,
But oh, the accumulated care
Of little things! I seem to master
The fire, the flood, the large disaster,
The loss of wealth, the crumbling wall
Of airy castles when they fall—
Misfortune never greatly frets me,
But how a broken dish upsets me!

I hew my way through oak and pine,
Then stumble on some little vine,
Forgive the friend who turns and hates me,
And then some stranger irritates me.
Today I find the dentist out,
And that is what I grieve about.
I bear quite calmly larger matters,
But not the papers someone scatters.

Oh, you who come and sympathize
With greater griefs with tear-wet eyes,
You very heavens bending o'er me,
Please bear my little troubles for me!
If someone will take care of things
Like ink-spots and mosquito stings,
Lost tickets and lost glasses, brothers,
Then I can manage with the others.

Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PUDDLE JUMPER

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

You know that in April it rains a great deal. That is in the Orange Ice Mountains of Woodland where Uncle Wiggily lived. In other rabbit countries it may not rain so much in April.

"But I don't mind it," said the rabbit gentleman as he came home to his hollow stump bungalow one afternoon and took off his rubber boots, which he had bought to keep his paws dry when looking for adventures in rainy April. "I rather like the rain but I don't like the puddles."

"What are puddles, Pa?" asked Jingle, one of the forty-sixteen little children of Uncle Wiggily.

"Why, you know what puddles are, Jingle," answered Mr. Longears. "When the rain fills a hole in the ground with

"She ought to know!" giggled Jingle, who was Jingle's sister. "She fell in a puddle coming from school."

"I did not fall, you pushed me!" cried Jingle.

"Oh, I did not! You fell!"

"You did so push me and—"

"There, there, now! That will do if you please!" said Uncle Wiggily twinkling his pink nose at the two sisters. "You might have slipped on the mud at the edge of the puddle, Jingle."

"Yes, I guess maybe I did," admitted Jingle. And Jangle asked:

"Why don't you like rain puddles, Pa?"

"Because it's such hard work to jump over so many," answered the rabbit gentleman. "A few puddles are all right, but when you have to jump over twenty eleven, as I did today, that's too much."

"Why don't you make a puddle jumper, Unkie Wig?" asked Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit who was always welcome to come and live in the hollow stump bungalow as much as she liked. "A puddle jumper would be nice for you."

"What's a puddle jumper?" asked Mr. Longears.

"It's something to help you jump over puddles," said Bunty, "and then you won't get so tired in your legs."

"I never heard of a puddle jumper!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, "and I don't believe you did, either, Baby Bunty."

"Oh, yes I did!" said the little orphan rabbit. "Come on in here and I'll show you what I mean."

Taking hold of Uncle Wiggily's paw, Baby Bunty led him to the sitting room where there was an old, big couch on which the rabbit children were allowed to play. Bunty climbed up on one end of the old couch and began to teeter up and down. Then, all of a sudden, she gave a jump and landed on the rug quite far away from the end of the couch.

"There, Unkie Wig! See!" cried Bunty. "If there had been a puddle on the floor I could easily have jumped over it from the couch 'cause it boosted me up in the air."

"Oh, I see what you mean!" laughed Mr. Longears. "There are springs in the couch and you teetered on the springs and they helped push you up in the air so you could jump more easily."

"I guess so," said Baby Bunty. "Anyhow, if you had a puddle jumper like this old couch you could easy jump over puddles."

"Yes," admitted Mr. Longears. "But I couldn't carry that old couch around with me when I go adventuring."

"I guess what Bunty means," said Jingle, "is that you could take out a few of the coiled, wire springs and make a puddle jumper of them."

"And so I could!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I'll make a puddle jumper."

It did not take him long to pull some of the springs out of the old couch. He tied them together with a string and when he stood on them and teetered up and down and then jumped, away he went sailing through the air like a man in the circus jumping over the elephants.

"Hurray for the puddle jumper!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I'll take it with me tomorrow." The puddle jumper was about as big as three loaves of bread and next morning Uncle Wiggily hopped from his bungalow with his new jumper under his paw. "Now for some puddle jumping!" he cried joyfully. "I hope I shall have a wonderful adventure."

RINK IS CHANGED TO SHOW ROOM

C. L. Brewer Will Use Brock Street Rink As Used Car Show Room.

FIFTY ALREADY IN PLACE.

C. L. Brewer ,well-known distributor of the Hudson-Essex cars for Central Ontario, has taken over the Brock Street Rink as a used car show room. For the past few days carpenters have been busily engaged with saw and hammer, making the necessary changes and brightening the rink for its use as a large and convenient show-room.

Already there are nearly fifty cars neatly arranged in this new showroom' Mr. Brewer believes that the added convenience to prospective buyers of being able to look over this large assortment of quality cars, easily and readily will be appreciated.

The increasing sales of the Brewer Motor Sales made it absolutely necessary that larger quarters be found to display their cars to their ever increasing clienteles, and the Brock Street ink was secured, in a happy moment of inspiration, as answering every requirement in spaciousness and convenience.

Business Expanding

The Brewer Motor Sales business is expanding throughout the whole territory. Peterborough East is represented by J. R. Kelly, who has long been connected with the automobile business. Mr. Kelly is enjoying a large increase in sales. Dr. J. P. Pulkinghorn, local dealer, is doing a remarkable Spring business. Lindsay Motors Ltd., of Lindsay, who have been dealers for Brewer Motor Sales for a number of years, and are also expanding.

The local staff of the Brewer Motor Sales is composed entirely of men with long experience in the car business. Mr. Brewer stands out in the car business as a man who keeps his word and gives a square deal to every customer. E. J. Collins, his manager, has received valuable training in re-servicing used cars and all repairs. W. J. Cox has been with Mr. Brewer for a number of years and his sales to date are a large increase over last year's. Clayton Chowen, well-known to Peterborough and district, and connected with the automobile business for a number of years, is doing remarkably well in the sale of Hudson-Essex cars. The office staff is efficiently trained to handle the ever-increasing volume of business.

Due to the vast range of models and colours of the new Hudson and Essex cars, the factory at times falls behind in filling the increasing orders of the Brewer Motor Sales.

"Satisfield customers and a square deal to every new and used car buyer" is the operating slogan of the Brewer Motor Sales, that has brought up their vast volume of business and made it necessary the securing of the Brock Street Rink as a show-room to handle their large stock.

FEW SLAYERS ARE ARRESTED

President Hoover Makes Plea For Law Enforcement and Obedience.

ADDRESSES NEWSPAPERMEN

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Enforcement and obedience to the laws of the United States, both Federal and State, is the dominant issue before the American people, President Hoover told newspapermen at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

The President said that a surprising number of people have drifted "into the extraordinary notion that laws are made for those who choose to obey them"; that the law-enforcement machinery of the country was suffering from infirmities and that the harvest was being reaped.

9,000 Lawlessly Killed.

"More than nine thousand human beings are lawlessly killed every year in the United States," he said. "Little more than half as many arrests follow. Less than one-sixth of these slayers are convicted, and but a scandalously small percentage are adequately punished. Twenty times as many people in proportion to population are lawlessly killed in the United States as in Great Britain. In any of our great cities murder can apparently be committed with impunity. At least fifty times as many robberies in proportion to population are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries.

"Even in such premeditated crimes as embezzlement and forgery our record stands no comparison with stable nations. No part of the country, rural or urban, is immune. Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world."

Only Part of Big Problem.

"While violations of the law have been increased by inclusion of crimes under the eighteenth amendment (the prohibition law)," the President said, "yet this is but one segment of our problem. In fact, of the total number of convictions for felony last year, less than eight per cent. came from that source."

"What we are facing to-day," he continued, "is something far larger and more fundamental—the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people."

The President emphasized the duty of enforcement of the law resting on the public official and the duty of observing the law resting on the citizenry.

Marmora

MARMORA, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. M. Hogan, of Millbridge, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E D. O'Connor. On Monday the former, who as a girl of fifteen came to Canada from Ireland, celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday. She is very well preserved in every way for one of her years and still leads an active life.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Lummiss and family, of Belleville, spent Sunday with relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Doupe and son, Jack, of Detroit, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Doupe.

To People Living In the Country

This notice is published especially for your benefit. We have set the opening date for the sale of W. S. Merrell's stock of men's and boys' wear for Saturday, April 27th. We intend to sell thousands and thousands of dollars worth of it at sensational prices and we are particularly anxious to have you share in the spoils. Of course those who get here in the morning will have the pick of the complete stock, but nevertheless there will be hundreds of real bargains on things you need now. All day Saturday and for the next two weeks. Get here Saturday if possible. If not, arrange to come through the week. A splendid idea would be to make up a car party and come together. Sale starts Saturday. 1d-98-6474

FRANCE LAUNCHES NEW WARSHIP 'FOCH'

Latest War Vessel of French Republic Has 90,000 Horse Power.

BREST, France, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—France's newest warship "Foch" was launched yesterday.

She is a 90,000-horsepower 10,000-ton cruiser, 615 feet long with a 64-foot beam and a speed of 33 knots.

The vessel will carry two seaplanes with a catapult and have armanent consisting of eight 203-millimetre guns in four revolving turrets, sixteen anti-aricraft guns and six torpedo tubes.

NEW FORD PLANT RUMOR UNFOUNDED

Canadian Is Not Erecting New Factory at Winnipeg.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press). — "The rumor is absolutely without ground that Ford of Canada is to build an eight million dollar or any plant at Winnipeg in order to be close to Churchill, the port at the terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway," stated Wallace R. Campbell, president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, to-day.

The story had circulated during the last few days. The reason given for the Winnipeg factory was that by producing cars there, they could be sent to Churchill and advantage taken of the cheaper freight rate to Great Britain through the bay route. Winnipeg despatches stated that all Ford cars for the market in the British Isles would be manufactured in Winnipeg.

Mr. Campbell pointed out to-day that the Ford Company of Canada does not supply the market in Great Britain. Ford of Michigan has the direct control of that territory, and a large Ford plant is being built near London at the present time in order to turn out cars for the market right in the Old Country.

Collingwood Terminals Stock Offered To Public

Willison, Neely Corporation, Ltd., are making a public offering of $200,000 7% cumulative preference stock, par value $100, of Collingwood Terminals Ltd., at $100 per share, and accrued dividends, with a bonus of one share of common stock with each share of preferred stock. The stock is callable at $10.

Directors of the company include Hon. E. C. Drury, president; Harry I. Price, vice-president; A. E. Warren, A. F. Basset, C. C. Begg, John Shipley, Dr. Donald McKay, T. W. Foran and E. L. Hamlen.

As a result of location and water transportation Georgian Bay ports are naturally favored with respect to handling grain moving east from western Canada. In the fall it is vital to get as much grain down the lower lakes as possible before navigation closes. Following the opening of navigation each year activities at the elevators at these ports are resumed. A substantial increase in elevator capacity at Georgian Bay ports is imperative, due to the continued growth in grain production. Collingwood, with its excellent harbor and easy railway grades is the shortest water route from the head of the lakes. After a thorough investigation it was decided to build a 2,000,000 bushel elevator at this port and Collingwood Terminals, Ltd. has been organized to look after the building and operate the elevator when completed. Construction is now well under way and the elevator will be in complete operation in time for the 1929 movement of grain.

The Town of Collingwood has authorized the sum of $800,000 in the form of 5% debentures for the purpose of building this elevator and has agreed to sell it to Collingwood Terminals Ltd. when completed, at cost, the company agreeing to pay $100,000 cash, with interest at 5% on the balance, and to assume the amortization payments over their term of 21 years. Government figures show that for each bushel elevator capacity at Georgian Bay ports 6½ bushels are handled per annum. On this basis, Collingwood Terminals Ltd. would handle 13,000,000 bushels per annum, which would indicate a gross revenue from all factors of $195,000. Estimated operating costs are placed at $74,500 and interest and taxes $42,500, leaving $78,500 available for dividends and reserves. Preferred dividends on the $200,000 stock presently to be outstanding require $14,000 and sinking fund to retire the whole issue at maturity $14,700, which indicates a balance available for 25,000 shares to be outstanding of $49,300. Thus, estimated earnings are equal to 5.5 times preferred dividend requirements, leaving a balance of nearly $2.00 for the common stock. In view of earnings records of like situated elevator companies, the above is regarded as a conservative estimate.

CANADA RICH IN OIL PROPERTY

Development in Canada Has Not Yet Reached Public Interest Stage.

TURNER VALLEY.

While oil development of Canada has not reached a stage in any way commensurate with the tremendous wave of public interest which has followed tapping of some of the world's greatest fields in the United States, Canada is at this time considerable more oil-conscious than was the United States at the same stage of development, or for many years later. It is now a nation-wide belief that development of domestic supplies would constitute the greatest of industrial booms, leading to tremendous activity in an area depending upon seasonal wheat growing as practically its only income-bearing asset, and exerting a continent-wide effect upon the entire commercial fabric of the nation.

An official of Nordon Corporation, Limited, who has been in Toronto in consultation with the directorate of that company, which is inaugurating a very comprehensive geological campaign in the fields of Western Canada, preliminary to selection of likely areas, in discussing the Canadian situation, expressed the belief that developments within nearby months would impress upon the people the importance of present developments. He said that while Turner Valley was a wonderful field, producing the highest-gravity product known, with average of about 10 degrees Beaume above gasoline, it was by no means the only favorable locality in the vicinity.

The development of crude oil is necessarily of the utmost importance, to provide fuel for railroad and other great consumers at economical rates, and also to mix with the naptha products of Turner Valley to bring it down to consumable form. It was obvious, he said, that the market for gasoline would be limited, owing to cheap transportation in east and west coastal regions, but that, if adequate supplies were developed in Alberta and Saskatchewan, it would be a comparatively easy undertaking, as present financing conditions go, to run the product through pipelines to the Great Lakes and thus open up the greatest market on the continent at rates to compete with any that could be inaugurated by United States producers.

TORONTO, April 25 (C.P.).—Cattle receipts, 25. Cattle trade on the Dominion Livestock Exchange closed steady at the week's advance of 75 cents per cwt.

There were no calves offered.

Hog receipts, 100. Hogs were 75 cents higher for the week at $12.75 f.o.b. for selects or $13.75 off car.

CALL MONEY ADVANCES IN WALL STREET

TIME MONEY FIRMER.

Widespread Rumors That Federal Reserve Banks Will Increase Rediscount Rate.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, April 25. (C.P.)—The ghost of higher rediscount rates stalked across the financial horizon to-day and stock prices turned reactionary despite the sporadic efforts of pools to revive the "bull" movement. A sprinkling of industrials, rails and specialties were lifted to new high ground in the early buying movement, but the general list was under steady pressure. Declines in the active issues ranged from 1 to 5 points, with a few nigh priced specialties recording much larger losses.

Widespread rumors that the New York Federal Reserve Bank would increase its rediscount rate after the close of the market, and that brokers' loans would show a large increase, were behind the selling movement. The German Reichsbank increased its rate from 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 per cent. to-day, but the Bank of England made no change in its 5 1-2 per cent rate. The view has been held in many quarters that any change in the rate here would be preceded by a change in the British rate. Call money renewed at 8 per cent., but advanced to 9 in response to the heavy demand for funds for month-end payments, and new stock and bond financing. The time money market showed a firmer undertone although there was no quotable change in rates. The commercial paper market was quiet.

Wheat Values Affected By Beneficial Moisture

CHICAGO, Il., April 25. —(C.P.)—Widespread beneficial moisture over the domestic wheat territory, together with Liverpool quotations lower than due, had an early bearish effect to-day on wheat values here. Sharp falling off in wheat shipments from Argentina failed to act as a counter balance. Opening 3-8 to 1c lower, Chicago wheat afterward held near to the initial range. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, with corn starting unchanged to 1-2 off, and subsequently showing a sag all around.

Wheat opened, May 113 3-4; July, 118 1-8; corn, May 88 7-8; July 92 5-8; oats, May 47 1-8; July 45 3-8.

AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Man., April 25. (Opening prices.) — Wheat, May 3-4c to 1-8c lower at 121 to 129 5-8; July 5-8c to 1c lower at 123 1-4 to 122 7-8; October 12c to 1c lower at 123 1-4 to 122 3-4.

Oats: May 1-2 to 7-8 lower at 49 12 to 49 1-8; July 1-2c lower at 50 78; October 3-8 to 1-2c lower at 49 5-8 to 49 1-2.

Mining Stocks Unsteady And Prices Are Ragged

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.). —Unsteadiness which became evident shortly after the opening, was prevalent on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, leaving the noon-hour prices in a ragged state. The lower priced stocks were more disposed to an easier movement, with Abana slumping 16 cents to 2.10, Big Missouri 11 to 1.43, Premier 10 to 1.65, and Arno 5 to 28. Ajax Oil was off 2 at 90.

Noranda eased 1.00 to 51.50, while Sudbury Basin was 15 cents lower at 8.75, Treadwell-Yukon 50 at 13.00 and Hudson Bay 25 at 18.50. Ventures and Pend Oreille were all off 25 cents at 9.75 and 7.00 respectively.

Mayland Oil moved undisturbed by the general swing, advancing a further 90 cents to 14.90. Baltac rose 20 to 3.20, and Hollinger 25 to 7.35.

Stock Trading Listless With Small Change Seen

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.). —With interest in Hiram Walkers on the wane, trading became listless on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The list was quite narrow while little change was shown in prices. The list was brightened somewhat by the appearance of Ford Motor, which, in early active trading sold between 51 and 53⅜. International Nickel was again inactive, slackening fractionally to 49⅛. Walkers (Old) was a little stronger at 80¼, but the New and Rights both eased ½ point to 24½ and 9.00 respectively.

DeForest made a sudden spurt of 1½ points to 63½. The oils were steady, though McCill-Frontenac was the only one to improve its position, strengthening ½ to 35½.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 25 (C.P.). —Foreign Exchange steady; demand rates (in cents) Great Britain 484⅞; Canadian dollars at 25-32 of one per cent discount.

MERCY OF GOD IS THE SUBJECT OF FINE SERMON

Rev. J. Keogh Preaches To Large Congregation of Women at St. Peter's Mission.

HEART WORKING IN US.

"God's Mercy Is Above All His Works," Declares Speaker.

"The Mercy of God" was the subject of the sermon preached last evening by Rev. J. Keogh, C.S.S.R., in connection with the renewal of the mission that is being conducted for the women of the Cathedral parish.

"God's mercy is above all His works," said Father Keogh. "This is a tremendous statement, yet we cannot question its truth. For what is the mercy of God? It is the loving heart of God, our Father, reaching out to us—sympathizing with us in sorrow and grief, relieving us in our misery, watching over us in danger, protecting us from evil, pardoning us our sins.

"To fully comprehend or understand the mercy of God would be to follow the Infinite to comprehend the incomprehensible. Trace the history of God's dealings with men from the creation of the first man down through the centuries to the very day, and what will it teach you? What will you behold? You will behold in man the weakness and the waywardness of an erring child, and on the part of God always the tenderness of a mother's love and of a father's changeless loyalty.

"God created man—that was goodness infinite. But that was not enough for God—He would do more—He did more—He clothed man in sanctifying grace. What right did man have to this superfluous bounty? Positively none. Clothed in grace, what happened then? Man flung God's grace to the winds by sin, yet God did not cast him off as He might well have done. After the first sin of man, out of the depths of God's mercy there sprang the stupendous plan of man's redemption. From out the darkness and despair of sin there shone a ray of hope, the Redeemer. And the Redeemer whom God shall send, who shall this be? Who shall take upon himself the iniquities of us all? The answer is: God's only Son. He shall be bruised for our offences.

Mercy for the Sick and Sorrowful

"It is in the mystery of the Incarnation that we find the very personification of God's mercy. In the person of Jesus Christ we have the infinite mercy of God incarnate. The babe in the cave of Bethlehem is the Alpha and the Omega—the beginning and the end—the last word in the mercy of God. What, after all, is the entire life of Christ but one long and continued succession of words and deeds of mercy?"

"Look through the pages of sacred Scripture—follow your Saviour in all His dealings with men,—not one instance will you find where those dealings were not seasoned with compassion and tempered with mercy. There was mercy for the sick and infirm, the weak and helpless. There was mercy, too, for the sad and sorrowful (Martha and Mary were mourning the death of their brother Lazarus, when Jesus called at their home). The sight of Lazarus' grave was too much for Jesus—He began to weep. Oh, if we but knew the tenderness of Jesus' heart—if we but knew how He shares our sorrows, surely there must be joy in tears and happiness in sorrow, when Jesus gathers up our teams and mingles them with His own. Nor was the sympathy of the Master a barren sympathy—Jesus cried out with a loud voice: 'Lazarus, come forth!", and Lazarus opened his eyes to gaze once more upon the gentle and merciful Master. Indeed there was mercy for the sorrowful."

Mercy For Sinners.

"There was mercy too, for the sinner. The name of Mary Magdalen has come down the ages to this present day as the greatest triumph, the outstanding proof of the unquestionable mercy of God towards those who offend Him by sin. "Oh Jesus what mercy—a bended knee, a contrite heart, a tear, and sins are forgiven forever."

"But the typical illustration of God's mercy in the forgiveness of sin is given by Christ Himself in the parable of the Prodigal Son. Only God could draw such a picture—Christ's picture of the mercy of God towards the sinner.

"Can you not see in the wayward son, a faithful picture of the sinner as he turns his back upon God—his Father? In the broken heart of the father, do you not recognize the grief of God when you leave Him in sin? In the wretched condition of the boy, do's God not picture well the miserable state of the sinner deprived of God's grace, feeding his heart on the foul pleasures of impurity and vice, till sickened and tired of sin he resolves to return to his Father's house—to come back to God. In the warm reception that the father gives him on his return, do you not behold a faithful picture of your merciful God?"

"It is useless to try to improve on this picture of Jesus Christ, wherein He depicts the infinite mercy of His heavenly Father. Let me remind you to keep its remembrance ever before you, when sin and guilt bear down upon your heart, when tempted to think that even God cannot have pity—think of God's own picture of His mercy. Remember that it was God that said—"Even though your sins be as scarlet, I shall make them whiter than snow."

DIRECTORS PLAN FINANCIAL CANVASS

E. D. Otter of Y.M.C.A. National Council Staff Is Assisting in Drive.

The Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. met last evening at the Association Building at the supper hour and had as their guests those who had been selected as captains of teams in the annual financial canvass to be conducted during the week of May 13.

The meeting was presided over by President Richardson, who introduced to the captains, Chairman J. F. H. Wallace, who is directing the effort. Mr. Wallace outlined very completely the plans for the canvass, and stated that the aim of the executive was to secure 100 workers, 10 per team, and urged the captains to secure the consent of those suggested as workers during the week in order to report 100 per cent. working force secured at the meeting next Monday evening April 29.

E. D. Otter of the Y.M.C.A. National Council staff of Toronto is assisting and will be present at the meeting next week.

A spirit of confidence pervaded last night's meeting, and the fine attendance of both directors and captains showed a determination that this effort is to be a complete success.

TWO MEN INJURED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Moth Plane of Calgary Flying Club Is In Accident—Pilot Unconscious.

CALGARY, Alta., April 25. (C.P.) —When a Moth airplane crashed to the ground from a height of 150 feet, H. E. Edwards, pilot, and Stephen Soltice, passenger, both members of the Calgary Flying Club, were injured yesterday. Edwards' injuries were described as serious and he is still unconscious in hospital. Soltice received only minor injuries and after treatment in a hospital, was able to proceed to his home.

The crash occurred near the Banff Coach Road Aerodrome. The cause of the accident has not been ascertained.

A fine of $100 and $16.50 costs was imposed on George Gauthier when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning on a remand, charged with supplying liquor to a man not the holder of a permit.

ANNUAL BALE IS PACKED FOR WEST

Favorable Comments Are Expressed On Completeness of Outfit.

The annual bale of goods for the Far West was displayed by the St. John's W. A. in the parish hall on Wednesday afternoon, prior to despatching it to the west. A large number of women were in attendance at the event and many favorable comments were expressed on the completeness of the outfit. The costumes for two girls were most complete in every detail, showing some of the accomplishments of the careful work of the willing band of Dorcas Workers, under the cabable leadership of Mrs. J. J. Howden.

A table of home made cooking was presided over by Mrs. H. Morrow and Mrs. Bridge. This proved very successful and the proceeds will go to aid the work of the Dorcas.

The guests were received by the president, Mrs. R. W. Turner and Mrs. H. Lemmings and their committee.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MEMBERS OF CHOIR ARE WORKING HARD

Interested Citizens Canvassing To Raise $1,800 To Send Choir to New York.

The campaign now going on to send the Peterborough Male Voice Choir to New York where they are entered in a contest with three other Canadian and seventy six American choirs is a form a community service that should appeal to citizens generally. The members of the choir are more than doing their part in the time they give to the practices, the money already contributed by them, the time they will lose on the trip and the fact that there is not a moment's pleasure outside of their appearance in the contest from the time they leave until they get back home.

A number of citizens interested in the event from a civic standpoint are now making a canvass to take up the balance of $1,800.00 required for expenses and trust that our citizens will look at the matter from the angle of community enterprise, progressivness and good business to have the choir appear in New York and contribute as liberally as they can to the fund.

Georgian Bay ports lie on the shortest water and rail line between the head of the lakes and Montreal. There are no small canal locks nor narrow channels on the course to limit the size of grain carriers or restrict the speed of navigation. For these reasons many millions of bushels of western Canadian and American export grains are shipped through Georgian Bay ports every year.

Georgian Bay elevators are busiest in the spring and fall when Lake Superior ports are overflowing with grain and rapidity of movement is the determining factor in the routing of cargoes. In the fall it is necessary to get the new crop out of the way as quickly as possible before the closing of navigation, and the Georgian Bay elevators, being the nearest, are soon filled to capacity. During the winter months the elevators at the head of the lakes are filled with grain and when navigation opens in the spring there is another rush to the Georgian Bay ports.

Additional areas in Western Canada are constantly coming under cultivation both in older districts, where the increase of population forces more intensive cultivation, and in the newer districts which have become available for wheat cultivation due to the development of new varieties of wheat that take less time to mature.

Of the various Georgian Bay ports, Collingwood is the logical location for a grain elevator; it is ideally situated, the route from the head of the lakes is of the shortest, the railway grades are of the easiest, the harbour is of the best and navigation conditions are most favourable.

After a thorough investigation it was decided to build a two million bushel elevator at this port and Collingwood Terminals Limited has been organized to look after the building and to operate the elevator when completed. Messrs. C. D. Howe and Company of Port Arthur, who have a wide reputation as successful designers of grain elevators, have been retained to design the elevator and to supervise its construction, which is now well under way and will be in complete operation in time for the 1929 movement of grain.

The Town of Collingwood has authorized the sum of $800,000 in the form of 5% Debentures for the purpose of building this two million bushel elevator and has agreed to sell it to this Company, when completed, at cost of construction, the Company agreeing to pay $100,000 cash, with interest at 5% on the balance, and to assume the amortization payments over their term of twenty-five years.

An analysis of the statements of the grain trade supplied by the Dominion Government will show that on the average, for each bushel of elevator capacity at Georgian Bay ports, 6½ bushels of grain are handled per annum.

It is axiomatic that new facilities attract most business, but assuming that the Collingwood Terminals elevator does not secure more than the average share of trade in spite of its modern and efficient facilities, and that it secures only the Georgian Bay ports average of 6½ bushels for each bushel elevator capacity, then the total amount of grain handled by the elevator per annum would be thirteen million bushels.

On the handling of thirteen million bushels of grain the annual earnings, based on the results obtained by similar units in operation are estimated by Messrs. C. D. Howe & Co. of Port Arthur, as follows:—

GROSS REVENUE—
Gross Elevation—¾ cents on 12,000,000 Bushels Export		$90,000
Gross Elevation—1 cent on 1,000,000 Bushels Local		10,000
Shovelling Charges—$4 per 1,000 bushels		52,000
Storage Charges (4 months full) ½ cent per month		40,000
Miscellaneous Revenue, Sacking, etc.		3,000
		$195,000
OPERATING COSTS—
Power	$ 7,000
Taxes	4,000
Wages	35,000
Insurance	4,500
Repairs, Renewals and Depreciation	24,000
		74,500
Gross Profit from operation		$120,500
Provision for interest on balance of Collingwood Debentures ($750,000 at 5%)	$37,500
Reserve for Dominion Income Tax	5,000
		42,500
Balance available for dividends on capital stock, and reserves		$ 78,000
Preferred Stock dividend ($200,000 at 7%)	$14,000
Sinking Fund, sufficient to retire whole debenture issue by maturity	14,700
		28,700
Balance available for Common Stock and reserves		$ 49,300

On this conservative basis the estimated earnings show over 5.5 times the Preferred Stock dividends, and show a substantial balance amounting to nearly $2.00 per share on the Common Stock.

As it is anticipated that the grain handled will very soon rise to a normal volume of more than 6½ bushels, per bushel of elevator capacity, the earnings are expected to show a marked increase over the above figures. A recent report on a Lake Huron Elevator shows an average net profit of 7.2 cents per bushel of capacity for the past six years, and on this basis the average net profit of the Collingwood Elevator would be 20% higher than the above figures.

These shares are offered when, as, and if issued, and subject to the approval of all proceedings by our Solicitors, Messrs. Hearst, Mills and Hearst, Toronto

We recommend the purchase of the Preferred Shares as a first-class investment.

THE IMMIGRATION OF 1825

Immediately on arriving here with their slender store of worldly goods, the immigrants set about constructing rude huts or wigwams, composed of slabs, bark, or the branches of trees, and sods, to shelter them from the weather during the interval which must elapse before they could be located upon their lands in the neighboring Townships. As one boat load after another was discharged upon the landing, the crowd of immigrants increased, the "plains" began to present a lively and animated appearance. The temporary huts were dotted here and there in groups, or singly, as the attraction of acquaintance or the facilities of shelter offered, while the bustle consequent upon landing and the details of perfecting the arrangements, and above all, the novelty of the present, and the uncertainty of the future, must have deeply impressed the minds of the more thoughtful and observing as they gazed upon the scene.

The buildings erected by Mr. Robinson on his arrival, to serve as a residence for himself, his clerks and servants, as well as those used as storehouses and offices, will be referred to hereafter, and described, both as to their appearance and location, in the chapter treating more especially of the early settlement of the Town of Peterborough.

Among those who assisted Mr. Robinson in dispensing the Government rations were Wesley Ritchie and Captain John Armstrong, who subsequently settled in Douro. These rations consisted of one pound of pork and one pound of flour for each person over 14 years of age, half a pound of these to children between five and 11 years. A pound of meat and flour was also allowed to every four children under five years of age,—a description of food to which they were unaccustomed, which more than supplied their wants, and the surplus of which was not unfrequently exchanged for whiskey or other less injurious commodities. These rations were continued for a period of 18 months, the chief portion of the provisions having to be brought in from Cobourg and elsewhere along the frontier.

The task of locating the emigrants, Mr. Robinson speaks of as "by far the most troublesome and laborious part of the service." In this he was ably assisted by Mr. Alexander McDonnell, (subsequently Colonel of Militia) Mr. John Smith, and by Captain Rubidge, R.N., who in 1819 had settled in Otonabee, nine miles south of Peterborough. The latter gave his services gratuitously, and rendered efficient aid in locating the immigrants in Otonabee, and subsequently conducted two later immigrations on a smaller scale, to which reference will be made hereafter.

The plan adopted was to send out the immigrants in groups, accompanied by one or more guides, to examine the land and choose their locations. One hundred acres of land was allotted to each family of five persons, and a lot having been chosen was set down in the name of the head of the family. In some instances, even the sons, if they were grown up and of certain age, received 100 acres of land also. Contracts were then let by Mr. Robinson, to former settlers and others to erect a shanty upon each lot, at an average cost of $10 each; roads were hastily cut through the forest, and a few oxen and horse teams purchased by Mr. Robinson to transport the immigrants and their luggage to their new homes. The greater number of oxen and horse teams engaged in this work, however, belonged to old settlers south of Rice Lake, hired for this purpose, and brought up through the bush in the best way they could. A great deal of expense and inconvenience might have been spared, as Capt. Rubidge pointed out in his evidence before the select committee of the British Parliament in 1847, had roads been previously cut, and houses of accommodation provided at several points. But all these requirements had to be provided simultaneously, and at a time when provisions were unusually dear.

You Can't Afford to Miss It!

TIME is a precious thing, at the best of times. If a man spent his time wisely he would have no regrets when the end of time came.

It is never so precious, however, as when it is short—and time for preparation for the Old Home Week is now VERY short.

When one thinks of all that is to be done, the truth of the statement is evident.

There is still organization work to be done; those committees that HAVE organized must still make their plans; the committees that HAVE made their plans must co-ordinate them and carry them into effect.

If YOU are on a committee, get in on to-night's meeting and learn about the others; if you are not on a committee, come and give the benefit of your advice.

The City Hall calls you at eight to-night!

GEORGE ST. AS IT WAS

"The Sign of the Golden Lion" and "The Sign of the Golden Horse Shoe"—Robert Fair store and the store of H. Le Brun and Co. respectively. The wording on the horse shoe is "City Clothing Store." Note the board sidewalks and the hitching posts.

Formerly of Bailieboro

C. J. Byers, 8609 17th avenue south, Seattle, Wn., owned Bailieboro as his old home, and left this district in 1889. He is now a traffic officer in the police department.

Mrs. A. Moir, 196 Brock street, is a sister.

From Saskatchewan

J. Warnes, Forgan, Sask., lived at Lakehurst, and made his home in Peterborough for ten years before going to the west in 1907. His wife was Edna Douke.

Formerly on The Examiner staff, Robert A. Baker is now a printer in Ann Arbor, Mich., residing at 923 N. Main street. His family still resides at 182½ Hunter street.

P E P ! That's what is needed. Inject a little by providing an idea on which the organization can work.

Keep May second open for the public meeting at which J. C. Miller, the organizer and manager of Orillia's Old Home Week, will speak.

Make it a point to attend every committee meeting. When you are absent YOU miss something, and THE COMMITTEE misses the benefit of your advice and judgment.

Windsor Is Enthusiastic

Windsor is enthusiastic about Peterborough's Old Home Week. So much is evident from a reading of a Windsor letter, in which the writer says: "Feeling in Windsor is running high with enthusiasm for Peterborough old boys' reunion, and I can say personally that there will be a large representation from here. I have approached dozens and all say 'On to our Old Home Town.'

This is only typical of the interest shown in other sections of the country. Old boys' organizations are springing up in every part, to come back in a body. Interested old boys are taking the leadership in organizing parties to visit Peterborough in July. They are asking for advertising matter to broadcast the news still farther.

With all this enthusiasm on the OUTSIDE, Peterborough is waking up to the fact of the importance of this event. It's the biggest thing in Peterborough's history. It involves great preparations and a lot of work. BUT, with the old boys and girls looking forward to having an outstandingly successful reunion, what citizen could withhold his services?

Peterborough is on the map, and the success of Old Home Week will go a long way toward marking it in red. Make it unanimous by getting into the game!

HELP OFFERED.

The Decoration Committee is receiving replies to its request for assistance in getting ready the decorations for Old Home Week. A note comes from Miss Reta Head, Secretary for Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, that the Lodge is in line to render assistance.

OLD TIMES BAND.

Friendly suggestions have been made from time to time that an effort be made to get up an Old Times Band, from among those yet in the city who were implicated in such a sport in the years past.

D. Loomis at the Y.M.C.A. seeing that no one else would tackle the chore, has taken it up and is ready to receive nominations. If you haven't a horn, one will be provided, assuming you have the lungs in order to blow it.

A date will be arranged for practice night, and all who gather can manipulate the old time melodies, such as Garryowen, The Girl I Left Behind Me, Afton Water, and John Brown's Body, all of which are now out of print and decidedly out of use. Possibly an old time quickstep might be resurrected and brought out on the street to show what old time music sprang from.

Joe Begley of Lindsay writes to assist in the prosecution of the idea and mentions Finch Miller, Fred Miller, Joe Crowe, Jack Harper, to which may be added George Stanton, Frank Dobbin, Jack Ames, all of whom may yet recover dexterity in manipulating the keys of the horn. Some one suggested adding William Buller (ex-Mayor), seeing that his parent was a star performer on the old baritone horn, and tore off chunks of melody to fly over into the next township.

Go to it, Loomis, and see what you can do.

NERVES BAD THESE DAYS?

Fruit-a-tives the Sure Way to Tone You Up.

Have you "Spring Fever"?....that tired listless feeling? Most people experience it, because the weather is changing and the blood which thickened to withstand the cold climate of winter must thin down to suit Spring and Summer's warmer days.

While the change is going on there is nothing better for you than "Fruit-a-tives".

Read What These Peop'e Say:

"Fruitatives has benefited me in every way."—Mr. E. O. Campbell, Victoria, B.C.

"Now I am feeling first-rate and most sincerely recommend Fruitatives to everyone."—Mr. A. McNair, New Mills, N.B.

"Thanks to Fruitatives, I have never felt better than I do now."—Mr. Thomas Graham, Oshawa, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" is unique since it acts on all three great cleansing organs of the body, the liver, the kidneys and the skin. It is a really wonderful blood purifier. Try it this Spring. Sold everywhere—25c and 50c.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Has Two Old Issues of Newspaper.

QUEBEC GAZETTE OF 1764.

James McCarrol Was Then Editor of Peterborough's Paper.

Two relics of the past, whose yellowed pages must be treated with all the respect due to extreme age, if they are to be preserved for generations to come, are a couple of papers in the possession of W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. They are a copy of The Peterborough Chronicle of 1845 and the first issue of The Quebec Gazette, under date of June 21st, 1764. The latter, of course, is a distinct curiosity, with its small pages and its script printed in both English and French, with the old-time rendering of the 's' as 'f', and its extreme age makes it a very valuable and interesting thing.

The Peterborough Chronicle has a local significance in its time-worn pages. James McCarrol was the editor and G. Haslehurst the printer, and the office was described as being on "Brock street, opposite the Court House." The pages are taken up to a great extent with advertisements in dignified old type, setting forth the excellences of various products in foods and clothing, without many prices. The advertisers of those days were content, evidently, with letting the public know that they had certain articles in their stores. A very wonderful pain extractor has a large place in the advertising columns.

Foreign News Brief.

The foreign news comes under little headings which are like our sub-headings of to-day. "Ireland" and "France" are the captions. A large space in two columns is taken up with a letter, signed by "G," having to do with Cicero and his works.

There is an advance notice of a musical concert," to be presided over by Baron de Fleur." The city boasted a title in those days, apparently.

The first issue of The Quebec Gazette sets forth, in grandiloquent style, the aims of the publishers in giving their readers something calculated to edify and instruct them. The foreign news sounds more like gossip and hearsay. From France comes the story of the entry of the German Emperor and "the King of the Romans" into Frankfort, where, so the gossipy report stated, the latter wore a diamond button in his turban, valued at half a million pounds sterling.

From Virginia came the story of fear of an invasion by warring Indian tribes. France sent the news of the expulsion of the Jesuits from the land and there is a hint of labour troubles in those early days in the report of the meeting in England of several thousand journeymen silk weavers, to protest to the government against the injustice done them by the importation of French silks.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Operations of National Sewer Pipe Co. for First Quarter Staisfactory

Operations for the first quarter of this year of the National Sewer Pipe Company have proceeded very satisfactorily and while no figures are available it is understood that sales in the first three months were in excess of any previous quarter. National Sewer Pipe Company, which is the result of the amalgamation of Ontario Sewer Pipe and Clay Products Limited, Dominion Sewer Pipe and Clay Industries Limited, Clay Products Agency Limited, and of the Hamilton and Toronto Sewer Pipe Company Limited, was incorporated early last year and is probably the largest vitrified clay producer in the Dominion. It operates plants in Hamilton, Mimico, Swansea, and Aldershot, and has clay deposits that constitute the only known natural supply in Ontario suitable for the manufacture of its products.

Keen Competition for Campbell River Water Power Rights

With a fourth applicant in the field, the Campbell River water powers on Vancouver Island have become the prize of the biggest business battle ever waged in this province for the control of hydro-electric resources.

The Strathcona Power and Pulp Company, incorporated this week-end reported to be backed by British capital, is the latest and probably the largest applicant for the power. The other applications are from the B. C. Power Corporation, the Campbell River Power Company and the Canadian Crown Williamette Company, and all will go before the Provincial Water Board on May 15.

FINANCING OF BEAUHARNOIS POWER PROJECT PLANNED FOR NEXT SUMMER.

It is understood that Newman, Sweezey & Company and the Dominion Securities Corporation will head the syndicate to finance construction of the big power project of the Beauharnois Light Heat and Power Company. A block of the securities will, it is anticipated, be sold in England. According to plan, the securities will be placed on the market during the coming summer.

Contrary to a statement which was published some weeks ago that the financing would take the form of two issues, bonds and debentures, it can be stated up to the present no particular form of financing the project has been decided on, as to the capital set-up of the company. There are variable factors to be considered, not the least of them being the market situation at the time offering will be made. It may well be that conditions will dictate that the issue be made in one form of debentures, carrying with them some form of valuable rights. For these reasons, in the meantime, the definite capital structure of the company has not been determined.

In a development of the magnitude of the Beauharnois project the annual fixed charges during construction will obviously be heavy, seeing that four summers will elapse before the undertaking will be finally completed That is one reason why it is not planned to arrange heavy capital expenditure this year. The material and construction equipment will be assembled on the ground in full preparation for operations next spring. Camps and accommodation will be made ready so that no time will be lost once the spring opens in 1930.

It is planned that preliminary construction work will be in progress by July 1 of this year. Work on the main canal will be started early in 1930. Dredges of the "sand sucker" type will be used. The construction of the main powerhouse and remedial work to control the flow and ensure a steady flow of water within the speed of 2.25 feet per second, specified in section five of the Order-in-Council, will not be completed until the summer of 1932. By November of that year it is planned to have four units of 50,000 horse-power in operation. The power will be sold under contracts at a price of $15.00 per horse-power a year.

Substantial improvement in net profits as well as in the company's liquid position is revealed in the annual report of Eastern Steel Products for the year ending November 30, 1928. The report now going forward to shareholders indicates that net working capital stands close to the $1,000,000 mark. There are no bank loans, and on the other hand there is a substantial sum out on call. The report also covers operations of the A. B. Ormsby Company, Limited.

A. K. Cameron, vice-president of the company, draws the attention of the shareholders to the fact that sales during the year increased between 30 and 40 per cent. over 1927. This increase in business covers practically all the products manufactured or sold by the company and was uniform over the whole country. Competitors in 1928 increased in numbers, and the fight for business was keen accordingly. Business done in many lines was handled on a narrower margin than in the previous year. The outlook for 1929 indicates competitive conditions of increasing severity, says Mr. Cameron.

The surplus earnings of the company stand at slightly under $338,000, of which $275,000 is on call loan and cash in bank. The fixed assets stand at approximately two-thirds of the next liquid assets, and the net liquid assets, are more than 5 to 1 of current liabilities. The physical condition of plants and buildings is first-class, and ample allowance has been made for depreciation, bad debts and any other contingent liabilities that might develop. Redemption of the usual quota of first preferred stock was provided for, and to date 230 shares have been redeemed. About $13,000 will be required for stock to be redeemed during 1929.

Gross earnings for the year amounted to $355,824, compared with $194,543 in 1927. Deduction for depreciation in 1928 amounted to $43,257 and $10,214 for deferred charges written off, leaving $302,352, from which is deducted $24,000 provision for Federal income tax. Net profits resulting are shown at $278,352 as compared with $153,993 in 1927. Dividend payments on the prior preference stock amounted to $39,497 and $15,750 on the second preference reduced the figure to $223,853, which added to the surplus of $114,083 at the end of 1927, brought total surplus to $337,936 at November 30, 1928.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)—Mr. and Mrs. John Gay were visitors in Belleville yesterday.

The Reverend N. Clarke Wallace and a number of the laymen of Christ church, Campbellford, attended the Anglican Laymen's Banquet in Cobourg yesterday.

One of the local improvements which is meeting with much approval, is the work being done on the grounds surrounding the building on Tice street which the town in general recognizes as the "Amouries."

The junior oratorical contest for the High school is scheduled for this Friday evening at eight-fifteen in the auditorium of the school. Following the usual procedure, the subjects are all dealing with Canada in some respect or other. There will be no admission fee, and the staff and students are expecting a full house. The art of oratory is being improved upon in the several forms of the school as evidenced by the results of the district oratorical held in Cobourg recently when the local orator won third place as compared with fourth place which the Campbellford High school gained the previous year. The junior contest is purely local and the speaker gaining the highest number of points will be presented with the J. C. Fowlds trophy. The speakers for Friday night will be five in number. They are Grant Meiklejohn, Frank O'Sullivan, Wilhelmina Rusaw, Bernard Crosson and Harry Fowlds. The four subjects which the speakers have selected are: Canada's Present Day Needs; Canada and the Tourist; Canada Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow; and Canada Since Confederation.

It is estimated that London will gain $2,300,000 yearly for the first five years from the new re-rating bill.

NORDON CORPORATION LIMITED is a Canadian company, acquiring the property of Nordon Corporation and other valuable oil leases and royalties, deriving substantial present income from existing oil fields of the United States, directed by technical and practical talent of the highest order, which will largely devote its efforts to development of oil in the fields of Western Canada. Nordon Corporation had its inception early in 1928, to acquire exceptional opportunities in various oil districts of Canada and the United States, under the guidance of Mr. C. G. Willis and associates.

PROPERTY HOLDINGS:—Leases on 24,000 acres and royalty under 76,800 acres on seventeen distinct oil areas of the United States, and 10,000 acres in prospective valuable areas in Western Canada. United States royalty interests include portion of landowner's royalty in one of the finest leases in the Santa Fe Springs field of California. Five wells have here been completed to recently discovered deep and very prolific sands, and thirteen more wells are drilling on the company's royalty acreage. In New Mexico, company owns royalty under 70,000 acres, in the latest producing oil area in the United States. In Texas, the latest major producing field in the United States, company owns leases on 7,500 acres in Midland county, part of which is now being drilled on acreage-division basis by some of the larger operating companies of the industry; leases on 2,500 acres in Crockett county, where 2,500 checkerboarded acres, transferred on acreage-division basis, is being drilled by Marland Oil Co. and W. A. Moncrieff, and where within the past few days one well reached the sands and was bailing at the rate of 288 barrels daily, with prospects that a big producer would be brought in; leases on 960 acres in Pecos county, on the Fort Stockton "high"; and leases on 1,000 acres in Ward county on the Soda Lake structure. In Oklahoma, one-half of royalty under 160 acres on top of a large core-drill structure in the Wilcox sand area, where Marland Oil Co. owns the leases on Nordon royalty acreage. In Kansas, acreage in the vicinity of the recent discovery just north of Wichita, Central Kansas. In Ohio leases on 80 acres in eastern part of state, where a well within one mile has just come in with yield of 100 barrels of high-gravity Pennsylvania crude. Other royalties and leases are under option or negotiation in Santa Fe Springs field and in other fields in Texas and New Mexico.

PRESENT REVENUES:—Royalty revenue from five wells in Santa Fe Springs field will presently be at rate of $300,000 per annum, and rate is expected to reach $500,000 per annum before the end of this year, as thirteen more wells are being drilled on royalty leases. Further revenues are expected from Texas and New Mexico fields from wells now drilling.

FINANCES:—Upon completion of this present financing the company will have in excess of $1,100,000 in its treasury.

INTENSIVE CANADIAN OPERATIONS:—The immediate objective of the Corporation is large expansion of its operations in the prospective fields of Western Canada, where its staff, in possession of valuable geological data, believes some of the most important structures on the continent may be developed.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS:—The principles which have been and will be followed by the Corporation in building up revenues necessary for execution of its policies, used with marked success by the great royalty companies of the United States, will be rigidly adhered to, thus eliminating, in largest measure, drilling operations—the most costly and most hazardous branch of the industry. Leases and royalties will be negotiated over a wide spread, thus minimizing hazard of loss and increasing the chances of big success.

The Corporation is not a drilling company and will confine its operations in that direction solely to offset drilling where such operations are imperatively demanded in protection of its holdings.

PERSONNEL:—The standing of the directors of Nordon Corporation is of the highest order. President and General Manager Glen M. Ruby is acknowledged to be the outstanding authority upon the prospective fields of Western Canada, with the widest experience in continental oil affairs. Managing Director C. G. Willis stands equally high in the Southwest and is generally accorded a portion of the credit for discovery of several of the important fields in the Los Angeles Basin. From time to time, announcements will be made regarding the personnel of a Board of Consultants, which will include oil experts of continental and international reputation.

Application will be made for listing on Eastern and Western Stock Exchanges.

Tanlac Stoped Terrible Indigestion

Mr. Aime Belisle, 1839 Chateaubriand St., a well-known business man of Montreal, says:

"I had indigestion so bad, I dreaded mealtime, for I could not eat without suffering for hours. At times, I could not keep down food at all, and my nerves were so bad that I w s awake nearly all night. TANLAC is more wonderful than any claim made for it, and thanks to it, I now eat what I want without fear of after-troubles."

Thousands and thousands of men and women are well and happy today because they tried TANLAC. Get a bottle at your druggist's today. It costs less than 2c a dose—and your money refunded if you are not perfectly satisfied.

DATE IS SET FOR FALL FAIR

Apsley Exhibition Will Be Held On September 11 and 12— May Hold School Fair.

DIRECTORS MEET.

APSLEY, April 25 — (Examiner Correspondence).—A meeting of the fair directors was held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening when the date of the fall fair was fixed for September 11 and 12. A committee of ladies was elected, consisting of Mrs. Spence, Mrs. W. Lean and Miss M. E. Taylor who will be asked to arrange the prize list for fancy work. In response to a letter from Mr. J. B. Nelson regarding a school fair, it was decided to arrange a meeting with him to discuss the matter, the Board being heartily in accord with the project. It was also decided to try and secure the Curve Lake Indian Band for the fair.

CAR DEMONSTRATION HELD AT MARMORA

MARMORA, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Marmora Town Hall was filled on Tuesday for the annual Chevrolet demonstration. Messrs. Moloney and Forestell, local agents having well advertised the event.

H. L. King, of Belleville, the local representative of the company made an ideal chairman and besides introducing Cyril Schofield, of Oshawa, the company's demonstrator, made many lucid remarks between the showing of movies on the facilities of the 1929 model. Mr. Schofield with the help of a series of excellent slides, proved an ideal lecturer in discoursing on the advantages and improvements as found in the 1929 models which is described as the outstanding car of Chevrolet history. The main idea conveyed to the audience was that a six cylinder car is now offered to the public at the cost of a four cylinder construction. The Charlie Chaplin comedy, "The Rink", and the three reel scenic film, "Across Canada with a Chevrolet" was entertaining and interesting in turn. The general opinion of the audience in leaving was that they had spent an educational evening.

A.Y.P.A. COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

Satisfactory Reports Read For Activities in Peterborough and District.

AT LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Peterborough and District Council of the A.Y.P.A. was held in St. John's Parish Hall, Lakefield, on Thursday evening. Owing to poor roads and a misunderstanding about the date, the attendance was small, only two outside branches being represented. Miss Gray, H. Jordan, secretary and president of the local council respectively, and Mr. Gray represented St. Thomas' Millbrook and Misses Aloha Horn, Florence Hutchison, the Misses Smithurst, Mr. and Mrs. D. Bachellor and Bert Graham represented St. John's, Peterborough.

The meeting was opened by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., of Lakefield, and the president, Howard Jordan, conducted the business.

The next meeting will be held on May 16 in Lindsay and a good attendance was urged.

Bert Graham presented the report of the dramatic committee which is making satisfactory progress, hampered in a measure by the distance between the members which makes meetings difficult.

T. Simpson of the local branch, urged greater co-operation between branches and a more definite program. Miss B. Graham, of Lakefield, was elected publicity secretary of the district to take the place of C. J. Beauclerc, who has moved to Owen Sound.

The Lakefield branch served refreshments.

VERNON BOOHER EXECUTED FOR SLAYING FOUR

Slayer of Mother, Brother and Two Hired Men Hanged at Fort Saskatchewan.

STOOD TWO TRIALS.

Mystery Said To Be Partly Solved By Means of Mental Telepathy.

FORT SATKATCHEWAN, Alta., April 25.—(Canadian Press).—Vern Booher, youthful slayer of his mother, brother, and two hired men, was executed here yesterday. Five minutes after the trap was sprung, Booher was pronounced dead. He walked up the gallows unaided.

The crime for which he was sentenced to die, was committed on the Booher homestead in Manville, Alta., on July 9, 1928.

Involving horrible callousness and mystery said to have been partly solved by means of mental telepathy, the Booher murder case is probably one of the most remarkable in Canadian criminal annals.

During the evening of July 9, 1928, Vernon Booher, aged 21, ran to the home of a neighboring farmer in the Manville, Alta., district, east of Edmonton. Breathlessly he announced that when he had returned from the pasture with the cows, he found his mother and 24-year-old brother Fred lying dead in the kitchen of their home. Vernon had gone to the neighbor to telephone to Manville for a dostor and the police. Henry Booher, Vernon's father, working on a quarter section of land four miles distant, was also summoned.

Shot From Behind.

Examination of the Booher farm disclosed Mrs. Booher had been shot from behind while sitting at the living room table. Fred Booher had been shot through the head apparently as he rushed into the kitchen, probably drawn by the sound of the shot which killed his mother.

Search of outbuildings revealed two more victims of the murderous attack. Gabriel Goromby, a hired hand, was lying dead in the bunkhouse, also slain by rifle bullets. In the barn Wasyl Rosyak, a young Ukrainian immigrant employed by the Boohers, lay in a pool of blood beside a pail of feed which he had been about to give to the pigs.

Verno Booher explained to the police he had heard shots while getting the cows, but thought nothing more of them until he found the bodies of his mother and brother.

Detective Sergeant J. Lesley and Constable A. Olsen of the Alberta Provincial Police discovered that two groups of shots had been heard by neighbors—one at about 6 p.m. and another at 8 p.m. At 6.30 p.m. that day Vernon Booher had talked to Councillor L. Scoot at the gate of the Booher farmyard, and the young man was accordingly arrested.

Net Of Circumstantial Evidence

Bit by bit the police built up a net of circumstantial evidence around young Booher, whose iron nerve carried him along without a sign of emotion. One vital piece of evidence, the rifle, was lacking. For more than a week police, aided by volunteers, searched the farm for the murder weapon without success.

At this point Dr. Maximilian Langsner of Vienna, Austria, was recommended by the British Columbia Provincial police who stated the doctor was an expert criminologist who might prove useful in finding the rifle. He was visiting Western Canada at the time and readily agreed to assist when requested to do so by Attorney-General J. F. Lymburn.

After observing Booher throughout the preliminary hearing at Manville and visiting him once or twice in the cells for periods of from three to five minutes, Dr. Langsner went to the Booher farm with Detective-Sergeant Lesley, and within half an hour found the missing murder weapon in some tall grass 135 yards from the house in a patch of brush.

Booher was shown the rifle, and the next day he sent for Sergeant Lesley and confessed to the four murders, explaining he had killed his mother and brother because they had endeavored to stop his love affair with a girl. The two hired hands he had killed in an effort to cover up the crime.

Had No Funds.

On Sept. 24, 1928, Booher went on trial before Chief Justice W. Simmons. Since he had no funds and his father refused to assist him, the attorney-general retained Neil D. MacLean, K.C., to conduct the defence. Mr. MacLean argued that the confession had been made under the hypnotic influence of Dr. Langsner.

Chief Justice Simmons ruled the Crown had not discharged the onus upon it to prove the confession was wholly voluntary, and it was accordingly barred. However Adjutant E. Stewart of the Salvation Army was placed in the witness box and told of a confession to the murders Booher made to him in Fort Saskatchewan jail. This divulgence of the secrets of the confessional was bitterly fought against by both Adjutant Stewart and the defense, but Chief Justice Simmons ruled under English law it must be made.

Booher was found guilty by the jury after a deliberation of one hour and 40 minutes, and sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 15. An appeal was announced and on Dec. 4 the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Alberta ordered a new trial, giving several technicalities as the reason, though intimating the remarkable circumstances surrounding the case were largely responsible for the order.

Hypnotism Battle.

The second trial, presided over by Mr. Justice W. Walsh, again developed into a battle over hypnotism. This time the crown produced experts who declared it was impossible to make a man do anything prejudicial to himself while he was under hypnosis or post-hypnotic suggestion. The crown again put in the the confession made to Adjutant Stewart and one which Booher made to Warden J. MacLean of the Fort Saskatchewan jail. In addition police officers told of several partial confessions which Booher had made to them.

This time the jury deliberated for five hours before returning a verdict of guilty. Mr. Justice Walsh sentenced Booher to be hanged April 24 at Fort Saskatchewan jail.

During the last trial Booher's iron nerve broke. When the verdict was returned the blood rushed from his face. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced, he paused for a moment, his lips trembling. Then, in a shaky voice, he said,

"Yes—the evidence against me is not true, and I am not guilty."

The next day the prisoner regained his nerve, apparently resigned to his fate. He talked pleasantly with his guards, and spent a great deal of time with Adjutant Stewart, his spiritual adviser.

OFFICERS SEIZE BOOTLEG CARGO

GANANOQUE, Ont., April 25. —(Canadian Press).—William Bartlett and Morton Couch, of Clayton, N.Y., just across the river from here, are being held in jail in Watertown, N.Y., charged with smuggling liquor. On Saturday last the two rented a boat at Clayton and came to Gananoque. Upon their return they were arrested by border patrolmen and their boat and cargo confiscated. They had in their possession, police allege, 72 bottles of ale, 6 bottles of wine and 6 bottles of whiskey. They were arraigned yesterday before Federal Commissioner Larmonth at Watertown, when they asked for an examination. In default of $5,000 bail, the two went to jail.

15,000 MILE CANOE TRIP

START MAY 7.

REGINA, Sask., April 25.—(Canadian Press).—In a specially constructed canoe, four young men of Tyvan, Saskatchewan, near here, plan a 15,000 mile all water journey from Herschel Island, in the Arctic, to the Panama Canal.

Plans for the hazardous voyage now are nearing completion, and under the leadership of Victor Fisher, 27, who spent several years in the far north country, the party expect to leave Waterways, Alberta, on May 7. The canoe and supplies have been shipped to Waterways. They plan to visit Herschel Island, a far northern fur post, where they hope to secure the signature of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer in charge, in their log book.

Fisher will be accompanied by his two brothers, Alvin and Evans, and a friend, Charles Bruder.

Don't "Drive" Your Car to Old Age

PERHAPS your car has been "broken in" —and perhaps you bought it second hand—in either case its lubrication deserves the same attention as that of a new car. When you pass the six thousand mile mark, the car requires the same lubrication as when it registered half that distance.

To stop giving your car regular greasing service is just inviting repair bills and an early old age. Regular greasing service is cheaper by far than irregular towing service. Don't let your car grow old in one season—form the habit of having the grease in your differential and transmission changed every 3,000 miles. Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE for this summer's driving.

HAULTAIN AND DEER BAY

HAULTAIN AND DEER BAY, April 25 — (Examiner Correspondence.)—Within the past week someone entered Holy Trinity (Anglican) Church, Haultain, apparently bent on mischief and collected all the prayer books and hymn books, placing them in a large pile on one of the seats. The Vestry was broken into, and things turned upside down. As yet no loss has been noticed, which leads to the conclusion that children were responsible, who entered the church with the intention merely of upsetting things in general.

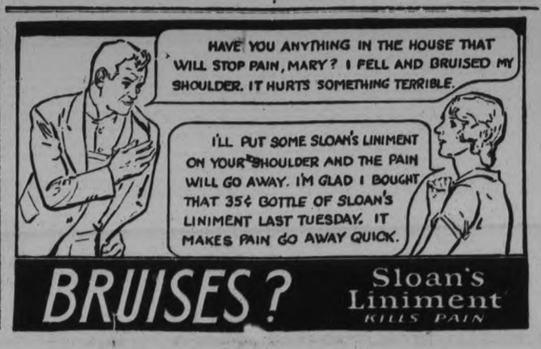
FOR A LAZY LIVER

there is nothing quite so good as Parke's Liver Tone. It tones up a sluggish liver, relieving dizziness, biliousness, headaches, constipation and stomach disorders. This purely vegetable compound is sold in generous sized bottles for $1.00 by Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter streets.



YOUTH HAS LEG INJURED

John Coulter, of Millbrook, Struck Down By Passing Automobile.

DISTRICT NEWS.

MILLBROOK, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—John Coulter, sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Coulter, Zion Line, west of the village, sustained a slight leg injury and had his clothing torn, when struck by a car, while in the village on Saturday night.

The boy, it appears, was playing with two or three companions, and apparently failure to obey the slogan of the "Just Kids Safety Club", 'Be sure to look up and down before you cross the street', was responsible for the accident, as he went directly in front of Dr. H. A. Turner's car as the latter was slowing up in front of his office on King street.

Preparing Fields.

Farmers in this vicinity are busy harrowing fields that are dry enough, in preparation for seeding; overhauling machinery; burning grass and rubbish about the lawns and yards; and generally getting ready for the season's work.

Bridges Being Repaired.

Repair work on two bridges on Bank street, in the vicinity of B. Raper's property, is being proceeded with this week, as both were badly damaged by spring floods. Permanent repairs on the Distillery street bridge are halted until the proper material can be obtained. It is possible that a steel bridge, being replaced in the course of county road work by a wider structure, might be purchased and used for spanning the creek on Distillery street. In any case, the old style of bridge, with centre supports, will not again be used, as these are swept away with spring freshets each season. There will have to be cement abutments, and attachments at the banks only. Action will be taken by the council as soon as the best type of structure is agreed upon.

Personals.

Mrs. C. Platt, of Belleville, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Fowler, for the past week. Mr. Platt motoring to the village and being here for the week-end.

Millbrook Lodge, I.O.O.F. No. 308, will attend divine worship in the United Church next Sunday, April 28, at 7.30 p.m., when the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., will preach especially to the order.

The new electric blower for the pipe organ, which was installed last week, was in use in the United Church for the first time on Sunday, and proved quite satisfactory. Grace Presbyterian church has also recently installed electric power for its pipe organ, and found the change from pumping by hand a decided improvement. It is believed that Saint Thomas' church will make this change in its pipe organ equipment in the near future, one of the church officials assuming the expense as a personal gift to the place where he habitually worships.

Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Henderson motored to Bowmanville on Sunday on account of the death of Mrs. E. Osborne, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton's mother. They were guests, at the tea hour, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Argue, of Bowmanville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brown, Zion, motored to Bowmanville on Monday and attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Osborne, Mr. J. W. Hamilton accompanying them. Mrs. Hamilton was in Bowmanville over the week-end.

Mrs. J. W. Hamilton was called to Bowmanville at the week-end on receiving the sad news of the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Emma Osborne, who passed away in her eighty-seventh year. The funeral took place on Monday, at 2 p.m., from her late residence, Wellington street, burial being made in the family burial plot in the Bowmanville cemetery.

Miss Flossie McMahon left on Tuesday for Toronto, where she expects to secure a position in the immediate future, having completed successfully her course at the Peterborough Business College. Miss Flossie will be at the Elm street Y.W.C.A. with her sister, Miss Hazel, who has had a stenographer's position in Toronto since completing her business course at the Peterborough College last year.

Mr. Austin Sutton, Fallis Line, went to Rochester, N.Y., for the week-end to visit his brother, Louis Sutton, on account of the latter's ill health.

Mr. Cecil Hubbeard, Zion Line, lost a valuable cow on Friday night, the cause of the animal's death being as yet unknown.

FARMERS START SPRING PLOWING

Stirling District Encampments, I.O.O.F., Take Part in Meeting at Trenton.

SHRUBS DISTRIBUTED.

STIRLING, April 25 (Examiner Correspondence).— Weather conditions are not very good for the farmer or the gardener, but work has begun by these tillers of the soil "cold and backward" being the words used by the few who have made a start in this line.

Visit Trenton.

By special invitation the Encampments, I.O.O.F., of this district visited Trenton on Monday night, when Kingston Encampment degree team was present and exemplified the work of the Royal Purple Degree in a very efficient manner. A good attendance enjoyed the work of the patriarchs from the neighboring district.

Seventeen were present from Stirling Encampment and report having had a good time. Patriarchs were there from Picton, Belleville, Frankford and Brighton.

Premiums Distributed.

Shrubs and ferns are being distributed this week to members of the Horticultural Society who desired such for premiums. Quite recently garden and flower seeds were given out to 66 members. The society this year has 132 of a membership. On May 1, W. J. Moore, of Toronto, will give a lecture on "Civic Improvements", with slides. The society is putting forth efforts to have this well attended.

Grant Made.

At a special meeting of the Women's Institute held in the rest room on Saturday evening, several accounts re the recent hockey banquet were presented and ordered to be paid. A grant to the Children's Shelter, Belleville, district fees and federation fees were arranged for.

Personals.

Mr. Clinton McGee, Jr., arrived home on Sunday after a stay of twelve days in a Kingston Hospital, following an operation.

Mr. Seymour Waller and family, of Oshawa, returned home on Sunday after attending the funeral of his grandfather, the late F. G. Fralick.

Miss T. Fargey, of Belleville, spent last week at the home of Mrs. Joseph Reid, Emma street.

Mrs. (Dr.) Potts attended a lecture last Thursday evening given by Rev. G. Tibbs, of Burlington, under the auspices of the Belleville Horticultural Society.

The Rev. H. Shaw, of Menie, preached at both services in St. Andrew's church, in the absence of the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McGee visited their son, Donald, who is a patient in the General Hospital, Kingston.

Mr. J. S. Marshall, of Toronto, was the guest of Mr. H. Reid over Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dobbie and daughter, Isobel, were week-end visitors in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hammond spent Sunday in Campbellford the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hammond.

Mr. F. Demorest is seriously ill at his home on Baker street.

The many friends of Mr. R. W. Buckingham, of Belleville, are pleased to learn of his promotion as manager of the Royal Bank at Thornton. For several years Mr. Buckingham was one of the staff of the Union Bank, Stirling, and also the Royal Bank and was transferred to Belleville branch last May.

Mrs. Joseph Reid left on Tuesday to spend a week in Toronto with friends.

Mr. A. E. Tweedie, of Campbellford, is returning to Stirling to live and has rented a house from Mr. W. Waller.

W.C.T.U. MEETS.

Annual Reorganization Meeting Held of Madoc Society —District News.

MADOC, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Considerable excitement was in evidence on Monday evening when a free show was put on at the Masonic Hall, Madoc. As the children had to be accompanied by their parents, the result was a crowded house. The program was excellent, interspersed by the selling of medicines, resulting in a considerable sale for the promoters of the show, the Shamrock Medicine Company.

Hold Annual Meeting.

On Thursday afternoon the Madoc Branch of the W.C.T.U. held the annual meeting and election of officers. Splendid reports were given of the various activities of the Union and the prizes awarded to public and high school work discussed. Splendid results were reported from these contests and prizewinners will be announced shortly. In the junior third work the results were excellent considering the age of the children. Prizewinners in this class were Bernice Blakely, Robert Caskey and Jean Nickle.

Hold Social Evening.

On Friday evening the Oakdale Lodge of Rebekahs, of Madoc, put on the final social evening of the series of progressive euchre. After the euchre the hours were spent in dancing and games.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Mrs. L. Burley, of Keene, Honored By Friends at Social Evening.

KEENE, April 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—About thirty friends were hosts to Mrs. L. Burley at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Howson on Monday evening, at a delightful party and shower, it being a farewell to Mrs. Burley, who is leaving for Belleville shortly with Mr. Burley and family, where they intend making their future home.

Games and singing were indulged in along with jokes and a real old-fashioned as well as the present-day party, was the result.

During a lull in the proceedings Mrs. Burley was perched up on a high stool and presented with a large clothes basket filled to capacity with many beautiful and useful gifts. A few of the ladies present eulogized Mrs. Burley, who responded fittingly.

Omemee

OMEMEE, April 24. — (Examiner Correspondence).—Inspector Windsor, of Lindsay, was in Omemee several days last week in an effort to protect the lunge during the spawning season. Mr. Windsor and his assistants, P. Parsons and Wilbert Fee, are keeping a close watch on the Pigeon River, and as a result have come upon several fishermen and caught them in the act.

Suffers Injuries.

Stanley O'Neill happened with a painful accident last week while assisting Harold Graham to move his hay to his new farm. He was proceeding with a load on the highway and had almost reached his destination, when the wheels of the waggon suddenly dropped into a hole in the road which was unobserved by the driver, owing to fresh gravel. The load of hay was upset, and Mr. O'Neill with it, with the result that his kneecap was dislocated and the ligaments of the leg torn. He was rushed to Dr. G. N. Earle's office in Omemee and later to his home, north of Omemee, where medical attention was given. He will be compelled to remain in bed for at least six weeks.

MARION'S MAIL

"Dear Marion: You guessed right. I was in a critical mood in my last letter. I'm sorry, and will be content, if you have no objections, to let the matter rest as I am like the majority heartily sick of the subject. Dear Marion, and neighbors, have you on hand an inexpensive recipe for rhubarb jam? I would greatly appreciate it if so. I wish to thank the neighbors for songs I asked for and would like if possible the words of "For Old Times' Sake," and "Annabelle Lee." Dear "Unity," I was so glad to hear you have such pleasant memories of my dear home town, and my heart is yearning for a glimpse of the beloved old Leatherhead. I live in hopes of going back some day "Unity."

My sincere thanks to the neighbor, whose pen name I've forgotten, for more information of Northern Ontario. I must confess I've cold feet and refuse to think any more of leaving this part of Canada for the north. I could not bear to see my wee tots going to school in such terrible weather, and otherwise toughing it. Am I not a coward—but one hears of such depressing things happening up there it does kind of dampen one's ardor.

"I am enclosing song, 'The Sunshine of your Smile' in this and hope some one will like it. I like the suggestion of 'Ella Mays' that we tell the reason of our pen names. Mine is the name of the town I was born in, and lived in, until I came as a bride to Canada—and oh, the memories I get each time I see the dear name, and, yes, heartaches, too.

"Well, I suppose everybody is busy spring cleaning and gardening—I trust not too busy to keep the page well supplied with the interesting letters, helps, recipes, etc., we look forward to so eagerly each evening. Marion, dear, if this letter bores you and is too long, curtail it or waste-paper it, as you wish, but don't curtail the What-nots, whatever may come or go 'Old Top.' Best wishes to all.

"LEATHERHEAD."

Thank you, "Leatherhead" for your letter and its enclosure. I'm glad the neighbors' letters prove helpful.

"Dear Marion: Surely it is nearly time that I was dropping in again for a few minutes. I am sure you know, Marion, we all have a good reason when we stay away too long, and I have mine, but I mustn't load my troubles on the neighbors, so will just say it was impossible to write before. I want to thank 'Harvey' and 'Dory' for their helpful instructions about turkeys. I was glad to get the useful clipping 'Dory' that Marion so kindly forwarded to me. I am sure there are many hints that I shall find useful if I have any luck, although I don't expect to have very many. I may be very glad to ask you some questions 'Dory,' thanks a lot for offering to answer them.

"You have not told us how you decorated those gyp-rock walls. My advice was to paint. Twill and I don't agree some way or else I don't know how to use it properly.

"Well, Marion, this house-cleaning is a problem and I am behind this year, but hope to get caught up before long. I was just reading your What-not on farming and farmers' wives. I am one of course, and can't say that I am terribly in love with the farm. If I had lots of money I would rather live in town, but say I wouldn't want to live in a town or city if I had to live from hand to mouth, as the saying is, as I am sure a good many of the city people have to do. And then again I think children are safer raised on a farm—but there you are, we can't all live on farms, or all in the city, can we?. One place can't thrive without the other. Yes, farming is hard work. I certainly think the wife has a perfect right to help with the milking (not do it all) but when it comes to haying, harvesting, cleaning stables, and such, it isn't a woman's place. For one thing her strength will not hold out, and her body is not built for such work. I am not expected to do it—in fact I couldn't, but I do help milk, and look after my fowl, that I am sure is every farmer's wife's interest, especially if she claims them as her own. As for the hard working farmer himself I am sure there are some men that would die if they were taken away from their beloved farming. Don't you think so, Marion?

"Where are you, 'Lucinda'? I have clipped your floor stain recipe, and about the Vandyke brown, is it an oil when you buy it or do you dissolve it in oil, and what kind of oil do you use; and then do you put it in the water with Pearl Ash and Dragon't Blood? I have an oak floor in my kitchen, but I have never put any stain or varnish on it. The people that were here before us had it painted, but I have taken the paint all off. I have oiled it a few times but I don't like it; it seems to soak in and make the floor so dark and dirty looking. How do you think your stain would do on it 'Lucinda,' and what shade would it be, dark or light oak? Would I need to put anything on before I put the stain? I would be glad if you would give me a little advice, and I hope you won't think me too green asking so many questions, 'Lucinda.'

"This neighborly circle is so helpful Marion, no wonder it is growing all the time. We can all be such friends, rich or poor, whether we know one another or not, and after all isn't that the right spirit?

"I am going to try your lemon tarts, 'Jycynth' one of these days. They sound awful good to me. I am enclosing a coupon, Marion, for the helps marked. I see I am not the only neighbor who missed the instructions for the mob cap; perhaps you will have them printed again some time soon, Marion dear, just a few more you know. I am sure I hear more neighbors wishing they hadn't missed it. I am sending my recipe for custard pie. I never liked custard pie until this recipe was given me by a friend. It is good. Good luck to you, Marion. MARLEIGH."

I'm very pleased to have your letter, Marleigh, and to know that you get so much benefit from our pages. It is a great joy to be able to pass on help. Thank you for the recipe.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Marks and examinations are, in the opinion of Stanwood Cobb, the well-known exponent of progressive education, "one of the chief causes of nervous wear in school, and consequent tendency to ill-health and even to breakdowns."

In many schools the old system of marks and examinations has already been done away with and perhaps before another generation of children take their places in the school room they will be as much a thing of the past as corporal punishment of school children is now. But in many schools they still exist and where they do the best that the parent can do is to minimize the possible harm they may do and turn the system to what advantage he can to the child who must submit to them. There are some children, to be sure, who are not harmed by this time-honored system, some who even seem to thrive on it—but these, I think, are exceptions.

Probably no child is really harmed by marks and examinations whose parents wisely strive to counteract the strain that goes with them. And now that the time for term-end and examinations and tests is at hand mothers ought to give the matter their special consideration.

Remember that mental work is really more fatiguing than bodily work and much play, and that the child who spends a good deal of time at his books actually needs more sleep than the child who is playing outdoors most of the time. Try to get the school children in bed at least a half hour earlier now that examination time is coming. Remember too that children need simple, easily digested food when they are spending more time at their books. Avoid rich foods that might be perfectly wholesome at another time of the year. Avoid as much as possible confusion and argument at home.

By Mary Marshall

The beach parasol and trap pump are made of blue dotted white canvas and the handle of the parasol is of white with painted dots. In the center is one of the new colorful wooden clogs with leather straps, and below a high-heeled rubber shoe that may be worn on the beach or actually in the water.

Every season beach accessories and bathing suits come into earlier requisition—and every year the number of people who can indulge in the luxury of lake-side or ocean bathing is increased. A bathing beach anywhere within a radius of a hundred miles, and a motor car are all that many of us need to make this possible. Weeks before the summer holiday season has come for most city workers traffic in all sorts of bathing accessories begins in earnest.

There are some women who welcome the vogue for sun-tan skin because they are devoted to outdoor sports and spend as much time as they can in the water and at the shore and are glad to find their natural summer complexion an asset rather than a blemish; and there are land-loving women—many of them—who this season will spend all the time they can in the water or along the shore because they realize that in so doing they will acquire the skin tones that fashion most approves.

Among the new bathing accessories none are more appealing than the gaily colored wooden beach clogs that were worn this winter at Palm Beach and other winter resorts. And incidentally if you want to select a birthday present for some young girl of your acquaintance there is nothing that would be more sure of meeting with her approval than a pair of these wooden clogs.

Roseda green, tomato color, butter yellow, primrose, and a rather surprising amount of violet tones strike the eye when seeing the clothes for late spring and summer. There has been a revival of interest in gray and a much-admired new evening dress is mad of silver lace over pumpkin-colored foundation, and is worn with a wrap of thin gray velvet lined with pumpkin color crepe de chine.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

DOES YOUR BODY FIGHT FOR YOU?

During the previous epidemic of Flu—1918—we had a young officer as a patient in a military hospital whose Flu had gone on to a pneumonia. He didn't appear to be very sick, neither temperature or pulse were very high, and yet as the consulting physician went into the history of the case he said "I'm afraid we'll never save this young chap."

Why?

"Because his body is not putting up a hard enough fight for him. His white corpuscles, which should be increased many times in numbers, are not even slightly increased."

Now as you know when an aliment, an infection, attacks the body, all your resisting or fighting forces are immediately stirred to action; the heart beats faster, the temperature is increased and the little disease fighters, the white corpuscles of the blood, may be increased as much as four to eight times their usual number.

You can thus see what a tremendous help they are to you when you need them. Thus practically all the symptoms that arise are really for your benefit. The chill notifies you that trouble has started and the chill shakes or moves ou muscles in an ndeavor to reate more heat.

The sweating is an endeavor to get rid of ome of the surplus heat which has been made; too much internal heat can cause trouble.

Vomiting is likewise an effort on nature's part to get rid of some offending materi.l that has got into the system, and is really a notice to you to do without food for a time so as not to complicate matters.

Diarrhoea is likewise an attempt on Nature's part to get rid of some offending material in the intestine, and diarrhoea should no. be checked at the beginning of an ai'ment.

Now when illness attacks you what you have with which to fight it is the resistance of your fighting forces. These forces are what your folks handed down to you, what you have inherited, and what you have done with them yourself.

So you see it is a great thing to be "well born" physically.

However, what you have done or are doing with what your folks have given you is up to you.

Can you make any change, real change, in that body of yours?

When you see a heart that is beating 90 to 100 to the minute with a weak pulse, brought to 76 strong beats to the minute, within eight to twelve weeks by the simple method of slow running exercises, you can see what can be done.

And remember, the heart is the foundation of things.

The Governor's Lady

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Doris came running into the house where her fragile little aunt sat alone in a sunny window, her fingers busy with some dainty needlework. Angela Allen lifted her quiet gray eyes and saw the dark sparkling beauty of the girl, the rich coloring of youth and perfect health—and radiant joy.

"Auntie, I've had a darling time!" cried Doris breathlessly whirling into a chair. "Guess who was there—and I met him!" she ended ecstatically.

Angela Allen turned her fair face and looked out into the flower garden which seemed to waver uncertainly before her hurt eyes; all the blossoms seemed to nod their heads and say, "I told you so—I told you so—I told you so—some day—"

"You are not listening!" reproached the girl, or this aunt was mother and father to her and had been for many years since a fatal accident had deprived the child of both parents. "You haven't heard a word—I met such an important person at the garden party—we made heaps of money for the hospital—and he looked and looked at me until he seemed to realize that he was being rude; then Bob introduced him to me! Auntie I have made a real conquest!" She made a mock bow of great condescension.

"Goose," smiled Angela, but her lips trembled.

"Behold—the governor's future lady—"

"Doris!" Miss Allen had risen and was staring at her niece with wide, startled eyes in her white face. "What do you mean?"

"Nothing but my foolishness, dear," explained Doris contritely. "I really did meet the governor himelf and he was charming to me. He is coming to call tomorrow afternoon and we must have tea in the garden."

"Of course—" faltered Angela.

"He asked after you, auntie, said he knew you years ago, when you were my age; he said there was a resemblance. Bob was frightfully jealous of him. Isn't he distinguished looking, and so calm and reserved with the twinkly look in his blue eyes? I adore him!" Doris suddenly subsided in her changeable way, and looked dreamily into the gathering twilight.

"You mustn't hurt Bob's feelings, Doris," advised Angela in a troubled voice; you know how devoted he is."

"He seems so young and immature beside Governor Delayne. I told him so," she ended frankly.

"Told—Bob?"

"Yes," carelessly, "on the way home. He was quite like a bear about it—and so we are no longer engaged!"

"Oh!" cried the older woman sharply; then, as if collecting her scattered forces, she added quietly, "I am sorry, dear. Bob is young, but that is a fault we all get over some day!"

Doris laughed and kissed her aunt warmly, but the slim finger where Bob's diamond had proudly gleamed was quite bare.

The next afternoon Doris made preparations for serving tea in the rose-bowered veranda. Miss Allen had silently helped her, making a loaf of a very special pound cake that her mother used to bake. She gave the girl carte blanche where the china closet was concerned, and the consequence was that many bits of old china saw the light for the first time in many years. Angela, dressed in a soft gray silk, with her graying hair pinned in a knot at her neck, looked like some pompador figurine as she wandered restlessly about the garden. It was not until she heard voices at the house that she slowly went back to face the past.

There was Bob Richards, stubbornly faithful in spite of his broken engagement, playing with Doris's cat; and there was Doris, irradiating glorious youth, her dark bobbed hair blowing in the sweet evening breezes, her awed eyes lifted to Frank Delayne's face.

"Here she is at last!" cried Doris, and the governor whirled around to stare for a moment at the slim figure coming slowly across the grass. The tea kettle bubbled furiously just then, and Bob and Doris flew to subdue it; the governor went to meet Angela, his blue eyes keen like a boy's.

"Angela," he said simply as he took wer hand in his, "you told me once hpon a time to go away—you never uanted to see me again—"

"Yes," gasped Angela faintly, her eyes seeking her refuge, the garden. "But one says so many foolish things—"

"Yes—and they hurt all through the years. What a young fool I was in those days not to come back to you."

"Yes," agreed Angela softly.

"There is such a lot to explain—when I saw the child yesterday I was fascinated; I told myself it was either your daughter or a near relative—so—I came."

"I am—glad—you have been so successful," said Angela, regaining her poise somewhat.

"Yes—in a measure," he said patiently, "but I came to find out today whether I shall be the only bachelor governor the state has ever known or—"

"They have gone into the rose garden," said Doris indignantly, as she moistened a burned finger.

"Why not? They were engaged to be married and quarreled twenty years ago—great scott, he's kissing your Aunt Angela!" Bob turned his head away from the rose garden and encountered Doris's brimming eyes.

"Where's—my ring?" she asked.

The Bathroom—the Centre of Cleanliness

I think it might well be said that a housewife is judged by her bathroom, and a housewife who does keep her bathroom spotless, in spite of the fact that bathroom fixtures and walls are so prone to show the tiniest speck of dirt—in spite of the thoughtless men folk who leave a trail of dirty splashes and crumpled towels—certainly has passed a strenuous test and deserves a place at the top of the list.

Isn't it a source of great satisfaction to show guests into a beautiful bathroom? And the secret of a beautiful bathroom is cleanliness—any bathroom can be lovely if there are clean, bright curtains at the window, fresh towels on the rack and the fixtures are always shining. And no bathroom can be attractive if neglected. Of course, I don't believe that any housewife consciously neglects her bathroom, but often she does neglect to use a gentle cleaner—one which will not scratch the porcelain fixtures or the tiled or enamelled walls. And you don't have to sacrifice results in order to use such a gentle cleaning agent. My experience has taught me that the proper thing to use in cleaning a bathroom is Princess Soap Flakes. Here are the directions:

Let's begin with the bath tub. For it use just enough hot water to cover the bottom of the tub and sprinkle in a few Princess Soap Flakes. They will dissolve immediately into wonderfully effective suds. Wash the tub with these suds, using a cloth or a soft brush; then rinse and dry it. This leaves the bath tub glisteningly clean and is an absolutely sure way to keep the porcelain surface from becoming scratched and roughened. The same method should be followed for the basin and toilet, being careful not to use water that is too hot.

For the walls, I prepare a pail of extra rich Princess suds—a tablespoonful to a quart of warm water. Then I clean the walls with a cloth saturated in these suds, and wipe off with another cloth dampened in clear water. When it is housecleaning time and you want to wash the upper part of the wall and the ceiling, use a long-handled mop in place of the cloth.

And Princess Soap Flakes are just as good for the floor too—they are inexpensive enough to use for any household washing task. Try them also for your dishes, windows, woodwork, the family washing. And those dainty guest towels you prize so highly can be kept beautiful for years by washing them in Princess suds. They will not in any way affect either the material or the colours.

If you would like to try Princess Soap Flakes just write me at 64 Natalie Street, Toronto 8, enclosing 4c postage, and I will be glad to see that you receive a free trial package. I would also be very happy to help you with any washing problem you care to tell me about.

This big yellow package is brim full of thin white soap flakes made from the purest of soap—and because they contain no harsh chemical filler or harmful free caustic, Princess Soap Flakes will not give you red hands.

Guarantee

Palmolive guarantee to replace any washable garment which, by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes, has been damaged in texture or its colour made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with instructions. We suggest that you test garments in plain, tepid water to make sure they are washable, and that the colour won't run.

This Red Hand on top of the package guarantees it genuine.

PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES Made in Canada

Give your telephone a bath

Washing the telephone frequently will prevent many a bad cold spreading through the whole family. For this purpose use Princess Soap Flakes, just as for any other household washing task.

Mrs. E. R. Winch was hostess last evening at a delightful party held at her home at 168 Antrim street, when she entertained a number of her friends at bridge games which were followed by a delicious midnight supper. Arrangements and catering were looked after very capably by Messrs. T. H. Hooper and Sons and the decorations of the rooms were a profusion of golden daffodils in silver baskets and vases. Eight tables of bridge were played, the prizes being won by Miss Victoria Bell and Mr. Joseph Bell and the consolation awards by Miss Grace Nicholls and Mr. Walter Rye. Yesterday was Mrs. Winch's birthday and the occasion, forgotten the hostess was remembered by the three sisters with whom she makes her home, Mrs. F. A. Eyres, Mrs. M. Staples, and Mrs. E. Wood. A large iced birthday cake, with lighted candles was brought in during the evening and cut by Mrs. Winch, while Mr. R. Fair made a few appropriate impromptu remarks and the guests joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. A. Jobbitt, Mrs. F. A. Members of four bowling teams of Mason's Groceterias, with their friends, held a very jolly party at Austin's Dining Rooms last night. About forty guests were present for an evening of contests and dancing, followed by the service of a midnight supper. Prizes for contests were won by Mrs. H. Bennewith, Mrs. H. Sisson, Mrs. Roy Penrose, Miss Phyllis Payne, Mr. Herbert Mason, Mr. Arthur Bacon, Mr. Jack Byam and Mr. E. Lillico. During the evening, the presentation of prizes to the members of the winning team in the Bowling League of the Groceterias was made by Mr. E. F. Mason. Members of this team were Miss Rita Hamilton, Miss Caroline Beavis, Mrs. Roy Penrose, Mr. Harold Smith and Mr. Harold Spencer. The prize for the ladies' high single score went to Mrs. Roy Penrose. During the evening also, Mr. Herbert Mason took occasion to speak in complimentary terms of the excellent work and popularity amongst the staff, of Mr. Harold Smith, who is leaving on Saturday evening for Toronto, where he has taken a position with Arnold Brothers' Retail Chain Stores. The guests present last exening were Mr. and Mrs. H. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bennewith, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sison, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Penrose, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lillico, Mrs. Chas. Payne, the Misses C. IN WOMAN'S REALM.

By JEANETTE.

"Night lies over my roof till
The timbers crack.
His purple eyes presses my window-pane.
His finger thrusts in the keyhole chink.
His long hair blows to the candle blink.
Not a niche of the world
But is fulfilled of black—
I have kindled a spark in his face—
He shall quench it again."

—"Night," by Lucia Chamberlain.

In connection with the questionnaire being distributed at the present time among various organizations, in an effort to discover, if possible, the cause of the Maternal Mortality which brings Canada so high up in the list of countries afflicted in this way, a special committee on Maternal Welfare, of the National Council of Women, has prepared a list of hints for a "Festival of Motherhood," to be held about the second week in May, when publicity should be given to the idea of honoring Motherhood.

"The idea of the Festival is to connect the thought of material welfare with the desire to honour the mothers of the people. It presents a great opportunity for suggesting to men a very practical method of effecting this desire, which they are already willing to support by the wearing of a flower and the giving of gifts to individual mothers. It is therefore suggested that the Festival should appeal to the chivalrous and idealistic impulse and direct it along lines which might permanently benefit the mothers of the community.

"An essential feature of the Festival would be the presentation of conditions with regard to Maternal Mortality, in as attractive a form as possible, with the help of the health authorities of the community accompanied by any suggestion of community effort which might be thought advisable.

"A second feature would be the systematic effort to bring this matter to the attention of the community at large by furnishing material on the subject to ministers, speakers at service clubs, and other organizations, to be used at the time of the Festival.

"A third feature would be the presentation to the community of the idea of motherhood as found in music, painting, sculpture, the drama and literature.

Suggested features for the Festival would be (a) an exhibit of pictures and books similar to Whistler's picture of his mother, or the famous Madonnas; (b) a pageant of mothers famous in history; (c) a pageant of mothers famous in fiction; (d) scenes of motherhood as presented in Shakespeare's plays; (e) Pioneer mothers of Canada; (f) the New Canadian mothers of Canada; (g) cradles and baby clothes of to-day and yesterday; (h) appropriate songs and recitations, such as lullabies, Christmas carols, "Mother Machree," etc.; (i) cakes and pies, etc., from mother's recipes, sold at tea after meeting; (j) "Mother's Day" in poetry and practice (humorous presentation of a day's work, contrasted with the ideal); (k) a slide, or "still," in the movies, calling attention to some feature in the Survey, or advertising the Festival."

It is obvious that an attractive program for a meeting, or a series of meetings, might be prepared from such material as is suggested above."

PRINTING SECOND EDITION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press). — A third edition of "Great Men of Canada" may be printed if found advisable, Premier Ferguson stated to-day. The second edition, the Premier added, is nearing completion and will be sent to libraries and schools over the entire province. It contains short sketches of many prominent Canadian Liberals who were omitted from the first edition. A similar number of copies as of the first edition are being distributed.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

RECALLING what I wrote a few weeks ago about the sanctity of the home and the necessity for retaining the home as an institution on the highest plane, it is interesting to read what Florence Riddick Boys writes in this regard.

• • • • •

Mrs. Boys, who is one of the better-known writers in United States, doesn't take the jaundiced view expressed by the woman I quoted before. She doesn't see the home falling to pieces, shot apart by daughters who care nothing for parental solicitude or for a mother's love.

• • • • • • •

"The fundamentals will persist," says Mrs. Boys, "because they are necessary for the well-being of the race." Such was the idea I expressed in a couple of articles recently, and the neighbors agreed. Here is what Mrs. Boys writes:

• • • • • • •

"Why all the uproar about the home, as though this ancient institution were suddenly to blow up? The home is perfectly secure and will adapt itself to changing times, as it hasd one through the ages. Its very elasticity is the best assurance of its permanence.

• • • • • • •

We cannot go back to the home of yesteryear, with its wood stoves, oil lamps, dusty carpets and absence of telephones and bath rooms; but we may fearlessly go forward to the home of to-morrow.

• • • • • • •

The fundamentals will persist, because they are necessary for the well being of the race: security for mother and young, privacy for family association, a supplying of creature comforts, a background of understanding and love, loyalty of kin, and training in race experience which the parents must hand down to the young.

• • • • • • •

Spinning, knitting, shoemaking have allready left the home. Sewing, baking and canning are now leaving. Free adult members of the household, with time and energy released, will follow these industries out of the home into the factory, and so help to meet the mounting cost of living, and a far better living, at that.

• • • • • • •

If the woman helps a bit with the finances, the man will give her a lift with the home and the children, and this will make for better understanding, and appreciation, a more real partnership, and closer family intimacy all around.

• • • • • • •

The home of to-morrow will be less and less a manufacturing plant and a filling station, and more and more a spiritual siesta, a place to retire to for peace and privacy and comfort and sympathy and love and understanding and courage and recuperation and inspiration.

• • • • • • •

We will enhance it with every convenience and beauty and make it the ideal of our dreams. Here we will be free to do as we please and to enjoy our own. To this beloved retreat of the family we will bring our most intimate friends and here we will spend our dearest and happiest hours."

• • • • • • •

Very different this, neighbors, from the Jeremiah-like predictions of the other writer, who saw young girls leaving home because "any place else was sweeter."

• • • • • • •

THIS is constructive; it shows the better side of home life, and is inspiring; the other was DESTRUCTIVE; it promised nothing but chaos.

• • • • • • •

We can't afford to allow our homes to become disrupted, and we certainly should not do anything that will encourage the destruction of home influence.

• • • • • • •

Well done, Mrs. Boys!

• • • • • • •

The bib collar diagram that I am offering as the free help this week will be found very useful. It can be made as an attached collar, or loose to slip over the frock.

• • • • • • •

Anyone at all handy with machine and scissors can make up these dress items. No patterns need be bought, as the diagram and instructions tell all about how to cut your own patterns and make up the goods.

• • • • • • •

Just fill in the coupon and send it along for your leaflet—and if you wish to, I would like you to include a recipe or hint to pass on to the neighbors.

• • • • • • •

Do you know that you can make your own dustless dust cloths? Just soak a piece of cheesecloth for two hours in strong hot soap suds to which a few drops of turpentine have been added. When dry, it will hold the dust and also polish the furniture.

• • • • • • •

I don't usually pay any attention to letters from men, but one that arrived the other day may serve as a warning. "It's all right to 'Say it with flowers'," says this writer, "but it would be a lot more comfortable if women would say it with buttons."

OLD SONGS

THE LETTER EDGED IN BLACK

(Contributed by "Mrs. Soft Voice.")

I was standing by my window yesterday morning,
Without a thought of worry or of care,
When I saw the postman coming up the pathway
With such a happy smile and jaunty air.

He rang the bell and whistled while he waited,
Then he said, "Good morning, to you Jack."
But he little knew the sorrow that he brought me,
As he handed me a letter edged in black.

With trembling hand I took the letter from him
And broke the seal and this is what it said:
"Come home, my boy, your dear old father wants you,
Come home, my boy, your dear old mother's dead."

"The last words your mother ever uttered,
Were to tell my boy I want him to come back."
My eyes are blurred, my poor heart is breaking,
Since I'm writing you this letter edged in black."

I bow my head in sorrow and in silence,
The sunshine of my life has almost fled,
Since the postman brought that letter yesterday morn,
Come home, my boy your dear old mother's dead.

Those angry words, I wish I'd never spoken them,
You know I did not mean them, don't you Jack?
May the angels bear me witness I am asking
Your forgiveness in this letter edged in black.

COME HOME FATHER

Father, dear father, come home to me now.
The clock in the steeple strikes one,
You said you were coming right home from the shop
As soon as your day's work was done;
Our fire has gone out, the house is all dark,
And mother's been watching since tea;
With poor Benny so sick in her arms
And no one to help her but me.
Come home, come home, come home
Please, father dear, come home.

Chorus.

Hear the sweet voice of the child,
Which the night winds repeat as they roam,
Oh, who could resist this most plaintive prayers?
Please father, dear father come home.

Father, dear father, come home with me now,
The clock in steeple strikes two,
It has grown old and Benny is worse,
And he has been calling for you;
Indeed he is worse, ma say he will die
Perhaps before morning shall dawn,
And this is the message she sent me to bring,
Come quickly or he will be gone.
Come home, come home, come home,
Please, father dear father, come home.

Father, dear father come home with me now,
The clock in the steeple strikes three,
The house is so lonely, the hours so long
For poor weeping mother and me.
Yes, we are alone, poor Benny is dead
And gone with the angels of light,
And these were the very last words that he said
"I want to kiss papa good night."
Come home, come home, come home,
Father, dear father, come home.

HEALTHFUL MENUS INCLUDE TOMATOES

Canadian Grown Tomatoes Are Winning Greater Popularity.

Among Canadian women, Canadian grown tomatoes canned in Canadian plants are winning greater popularity as their food and health values become better known. In addition to being the most delicious and appetizing of "vegetable dishes" canned tomatoes are being used in a host of ways in maintaining well-balanced diets in Canadian homes. Here are a few suggestions which other women have found practical and attractive:

Tomatoe Rarebit

Heat one pint of canned tomates and add 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 teaspoonful of sugar, ⅛ teaspoonful of pepper, a dash of cayenne and 1 tablespoonful of chopped onion. When hot, melt in it one-half pound of cheese, cut in bits, adding it gradually while stirring constantly. When smooth, add 1 teaspoonful of butter and then pour over 1 beaten egg, stirring all the while. Serve on slices of hat, buttered toast or hot crackers. Serves six.

Tomato Dumplings

Empty the contents of a can of tomatoes into a saucepan; season with salt, pepper and a few grains of sugar. When it comes to a boil, drop in the dumplings, which are made as follows:

One cupful flour, ¼ tablespoonful lard, ½ tablespoon butter. Mix and sift the dry ingredients; chop in the shortening, then mix with milk to a soft dough. Cook the dumplings for about twenty minutes; serve hot. If desired, grate cheese over the top of dumplings before serving.

Highland Tomatoes

Beat one egg well and add a pinch of salt and stir into it one cup of the more solid part of a can of tomatoes; when well blended combine with one cup cooked barley grits and ½ cup grated cheese, bake mixture in a covered casserole for one hour, in a slow over. Serve at once.

Tomatoes on Toast

Canned tomatoes, thickened with a little flour and a beaten egg and served on toast make a welcome variation in the menu.

"Reading the paper the other evening I noticed in your ad a letter written by Mrs. W. J. P., recommending your milk. Well, I think I can go her one better. My baby has been using Eagle Brand since she was 3 months old. She is not a bit troublesome at night, getting only one feeding going to bed. She weighed 6½ lbs. at birth and at 7 months weighs 17½ lbs., which I think is due to Eagle Brand and which I highly recommend."

RUM RUNNERS LOSE BIG CARGO

Coast Guard Cutter Captures $51,000 Worth of Liquor.

TWO MEN ESCAPE

OSWEGO, N.Y., April 25 (C.P.).—Beaching their cabin cruiser, laden with a $5,000 liquor cargo, two Lake Ontario rum runners escaped to-day under a fusillade of machine gun shots from a coastguard cutter near Present Point, 12 miles east of here.

The capture of the runner was effected by Chief Boatswain's Mate Merrill McCune. Its cargo consisted of 200 bags of Canadian ale and ten cases of whiskey.

The runner was spotted by the coastguard cutter as it was entering Present Point Harbor, and was beached under the fire of the cutter's machine gun. The crew of two escaped in the dense underbush lining the shore.

Rochester customs authorities, who left for this city to bring the boat to Rochester, declared that yesterday's capture was the fourth time the same boat had been seized in the illicit traffic. Each time it had been auctioned off and re-entered in rum-running ventures.

HE STRAINED HIS BACK DOING CEMENT WORK

Ontario Man Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Got Relief.

Mr. Harold Ward Took the Remedy His Mother Used to Use

London, Ont., April 24.—(Special)—"As I have got such wonderful results from taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, I think it only right to tell you about it," states Mr. H. Ward, who resides at 320 Duncas St., London, Ont. "About a year ago I strained my back while doing cement work. I went to two Doctors, also to a clinic for examination and after taking the medicine given me by each of them, I felt the pain just as bad. Then I tried rubbing liniment on, but to no avail. I remembered my Mother used Dodd's Kidney Pills for pains in the back, so I got some. After taking two doses I felt much better and before I had taken the whole box I was feeling as well as ever. So after getting such good results at so small a cost, I will never be without a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house."

LITTLE INTEREST TAKEN IN THEATRES

Toronto Is Said To Be Most Provincial in Regards to Play Production.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25.—(By the Canadian Press).—Toronto is most provincial, in the opinion of Carroll Atkins, director of the Hart House Theatre, in expressing yesterday disappointment at the support given by the theatre-going public to Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatra," a production which first-night critics say is one of the most striking Toronto's Little Theatre has given.

Montreal, Detroit, Vancouver and every hamlet with its Ladies' Literary Club or cosmopolitan metropolis with its Theatre Guild all support local talent, Atkins said, but Toronto citizens prefer to wait for hours in long queues before "talkie" palaces."

"Something must be done if Toronto is to maintain its rank as one of the three outstanding examples of the experimental theatre movement," he said. "Hart House should hold its own with the Theatre Guild, New York and the Community Players in Pasadena, California.

The value of the art theatre, Mr. Atkins said, is that it is a work of co-operative creation between the public and the actors. It is in the spontaneity of interest, rather than the mere willingness to be "entertained" of the ordinary theatre-going public that the benefit of the experimental theatres lies, he said.

INQUIRE INTO FATAL CRASH

Air Force Inspector is Expected To Conduct Court of Inquiry At Leaside.

DATE NOT YET SET.

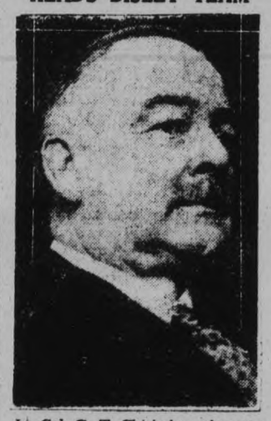
TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.).—With an inspector from the branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Ottawa expected and an inquest to be concluded by Coroner Dr. W. L. Bond, a full investigation will be made into the air crash at Leaside Tuesday night which cost the lives of the pilot of a Gypsy Moth plane, William K. Mackenzie and Noel Marshall, a passenger. No date has yet been set for either the inquiry which will be conducted by a court of inquiry from Ottawa, or the local inquest.

Local flying authorities are still at a loss to account for the tragedy which occurred shortly after the plane had taken off from the field. Witnesses of the crash place the altitude at various distances. Some reports state the plane had only reached 100 feet when the engine stalled and the machine hurtled downward. Others state the machine had reached a height varying from 250 to 300 feet.

So heavy was the impact that the nose of the engine was completely buried in the hard clay, with the other end jammed hard against the cockpits, imprisoning its occupants.

Within a second of the crash the wreckage was enveloped in flames. The bodies were badly burned though doctors state both men were instantly killed.

HEADS BISLEY TEAM



Lt.-Col. G. T. Chisholm, who commanded the 92nd Highlanders during the war, is in receipt of a telegram from the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association at Ottawa appointing him to the command of the Canadian Bisley team. The team, comprising 20 military rifle men picked each year from all over Canada, will likely leave for England the second week in June.

ART STUDY CLUB IS GIVEN PAPER ON INDIAN ART

Interesting Ways of Living of Many of the Tribes Are Described.

RICE LAKE MOUNDS

Hurons and Algonquins Are Believed to Have Come From Central America.

"Indian Art of the Women's Art Association, by Miss Grace Reinhardt.

In introduction, Miss Reinhardt spoke briefly of the history and customs of the Indians of this country, referring to the Archaeological reports of Ontario which were written by archaeologists and men interested in folk-lore, and taken in the main from the letters of "Relations" as they are called, of the early Jesuit missionaries who lived with the tribes in the seventeenth century and sent letters periodically to their college in France.

The speaker also alludd to the theory, held by many, that the Indians of Canada came with Jacques Cartier, who ascended the St. Lawrence to Montreal in 1535, from the tribes of Indians that inhabited Central America, Yucatan and Mexico. The Canadian Hurons and Algonquins of Champlain's time retained in their vocabulary many words of tropical origin, such as "petun" (tobacco) and many others.

Advanced Northward

Taking it for granted that the Hurons and Algonquins advanced northward, they brought with them their feast and war dances, their various religious beliefs and also superstitious methods of curing diseases and many rites, associated with sorcerers, shamans and prophets, which they inherited from their southern forbearers. They also brought with them soutsern seeds of plants and methods of moulding and ornamenting pottery.

Miss Reinhardt described interestingly the ways of living of many of the tribes and the manner in which they fashioned weapons and ornaments.

Worked objects in copper are rare but one of the largest specimens extant was procurred from the Princess Mound on Sugar Island in Rice Lake. It is a tool ten inches long and weighs nearly three and one-quarter pounds. Copper beads were also found in the same place, to the number of 1515.

Concerning the Princess Mound and the Miller and Serpent Mounds, all situated near Rice Lake, many pages have been written and it is asserted that they were intended for burial mounds and that they were the work of an earlier people than the Indians of the land. Stone relics found in Ontario mounds are commonly called "ceremonial" and consist mainly of articles of slate including tubes, gorgets, amulets and banner stones, no reference to which was made by Europeans who first met the Indians of Canada. This leads to the belief that they belonged to an earlier people.

Named After Birds

The red Indians distinguished their families by names of birds and animals and the sign of the turtle, for instance, was therefore emblazoned on the shield, tepee and head dress of the family bearing that name. Its members would also always have a turtle reversed on pillars above their their graves. As a rule, the decorations took the form of the "herring bone" pattern, or such other patterns as can be produced without the aid of spirals, curves or circles, the reason being that tools made of flint, bone or sharpe shell, cannot easily produce any curved lines.

The ceremonial pipe, or Pipe of Peace, was usually very highly decorated, the long stem covered with a design beautifully worked in bird feathers or porcupine quills, in various hues and colors, the design generally representing the tribe or chief by some emblematic figure.

Among the other objects of art worked by the Indians were rush mats, baked clay pipes, baskets and totem poles. Another peculiar way of expressing artistic ideas took the form of false faces or masks.

Miss Reinhardt also described several of the characteristic Indian dances used at their big feasts, and went on to speak of the Indian music and ceremonial songs.

Of Indian mythology, the speaker said there is no more widely-spread myth among the Algonquins and some other Indian tribes than the belief in the Thunder Bird, which was said to be as small as the end of one's little finger, by some tribes and by others to be large enough to cover acres of ground. It produced thunder by the flapping of its wings, and by the swish of its tail, simply by winking or by the snapping of its bill. The methods of depicting it varied with the belief and the skill of the artist.

FOUR CHARGES AWAIT PARKS IN PETERBORO'

Crown Attorney Hatton, K.C., Asks That Jail Breaker Be Returned to City.

PRIOR CLAIM.

Attorney General's Department Has Promised Consideration of Claim.

John Parks, Peterborough jail breaker and automobile thief extraordinary, has been caught in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan and even now is being brought back to Windsor, Ontario, under heavy guard, to stand trial for the theft of the car in which he and his 19 year old Aylmer, Ontario, sweetheart were caught last Saturday. And while he is wanted in the vicinity of St. Thomas for car thefts, Peterborough, with perhaps the major claim on him, has not, as yet, been mentioned as the proper place for Parks' trial to be held. He is wanted here for the theft of four cars, as well as for breaking jail. Will he be brought back?

Crown Attorney George W. Hatton, K.C., this morning stated that to date, he has been unable to secure more than a promise of consideration in the matter, from the Attorney-General's department. He was firm in his conviction that Parks should be brought back, but could tell The Examiner but little regarding what steps had been taken to attain that end. "I have telephoned the Department on two occasions within the past couple of days," said he, "and R. Humphries, of that Department, promised that the matter would be given consideration—there has been no further development to date though word may arrive sometime to-day," he continued.

Prior Claim.

Peterborough's claim on Parks is beyond question so far as its seniority over claims of other municipalities is concerned. The city police got on his trail in the month of January, when he turned up here driving a car with Quebec markers, known to have been stolen along with the car. He had abandoned the car and had taken a second one from the market square, owned by a resident of Young's Point; the city police took up his trail and a day later Parks was arrested in Oshawa, after having broken into several service garages and stores along the lake front. He was subsequently arraigned before the police magistrate and remanded for trial, but during the interval of a week, made good his threat to escape by sawing through the bars of his cell door, escaping by way of the jail roof and the residence verandah, about eleven o'clock on the night of January 3. Immediately he committed the theft of a third car, that of Sheriff Hall, and when it failed to make headway to his liking, returned and made good his escape in the car of Walter Jackson. Then followed his game of hide-and-seek with Aylmer and St. Thomas police, and abandonment of the Jackson car in favor of another at Aylmer. It in turn, was recovered near Sarnia, whence Parks was believed to have gone to the United States. His re-appearance in Aylmer with yet another car, and his escape with Pearl Bowerman, were comparatively recent episodes but so widespread were his thefts, that no single municipality appeared to have so strong a claim on Parks as this city.

It has been pointed out that Peterborough was the logical trial centre of the Menard Brothers, desperadoes who kidnapped Officer Evans and his driver of Havelock and who were later overtaken in Brighton. They were tried in Cobourg, though the offences of kidnapping and robbery had been committed in Peterborough county, and despite the fact that most of the witnesses resided in the vicinity of Havelock.

Uncle Jim's Opposition

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

"So this is little Madge!" Uncle Jim planted a hearty kiss on the pink cheek of his niece. "Grown into a regular young lady, too! I'll wager she has lots of attention!" Madge's uncle exchanged a knowing glance with his sister, Madge's mother, at whose invitation he had consented to leave his farmhouse for a visit at her summer home.

That evening, at the supper table Uncle Jim found himself being introduced to one Bob Stratton, with whom he doubtless felt himself somewhat acquainted. For previously to his arrival, Madge's mother had found time, in the presence of Madge, to comment gushingly on that youth's attractions, his looks, his money, his position, his family.

As Uncle Jim shook the young man's hand he was thinking to himself: "So this is the paragon our little Madge must marry! Well, if clothes make the man, this young feller is there with bells on!"

But it was later, just after young Stratton's departure, that Uncle Jim uttered the remark which caused his sister to be haughtily displeased and brought a queer look into Madge's soft eyes.

"How did he strike you?" Mrs. Evans had wanted to know at once.

Uncle Jim had delayed his reply a moment, thoughtfully wafting smoke rings to the ceiling. Then, with one eye on his niece, he had calmly offered: "Ain't kind of stuck on himself, is he?"

"Jim!" Mrs. Evans's voice was one of shocked disappointment.

"Oh, mebbe I'm wrong. Mebbe I'm wrong!" her brother returned hastily. And by mutual consent the conversation was steered into safer channels.

As the days passed it seemed to Uncle Jim that Madge and her mother were playing a game of battledore in which Bob Stratton was the shuttlecock. As often as her mother threw Bob at her daughter, her daughter found a way of tossing him back.

Incidentally, Mrs. Evans was regretting her invitation to her brother to visit her, for he seemed never to lose an opportunity of commenting unfavorably on young Stratton. Even Madge herself, who doubtless possessed a sense of justice, was roused to Bob's defense.

"These white-flanneled chaps—bah! What they lack is elbow-grease. I'd like to see one of them tackle a real job successfully!"

"But, Uncle Jim," had remonstrated Madge, "it really isn't fair to judge until the emergency arises!"

The emergency came before either Madge or her uncle expected. Madge had managed to entice Uncle Jim, who was a confessed coward on the water, out for a ride in the Sea Gull. The sound waters were sparkling and comparatively calm at first, but as Madge rounded the breakwater preparatory to turning back, she noticed a leaden cloud ascending the sky and a warning of coming wind.

At that moment the engine, for the first time in an honorable career, hiccoughed, sputtered and stopped, and then refused to be coaxed into running. For an instant Madge gazed in astonishment. Then, as the boat bounced aimlessly on the swells, she attempted various stunts with the coil and spark plugs and carburetor, all to no avail. An anxious glance confirmed her fears that the launch was drifting unmistakably seaward.

Suddenly around the breakwater shot a long, slim speed boat, and Uncle Jim, who could recognize a neighbor's horse by the cut of his mane, but to whom all boats looked alike, wondered why a slow blush mounted to Madge's cheek as she stood up and waved her sweater.

An hour later they were safe in port. Bob Stratton had climbed aboard rolled up his silk shirt sleeves, kneeled on the engine bed on white flannele knees, poked a finger here and there, diagnosed the trouble as a leaky gasket, partly demolished the engine and put it together again, and finally started them home under their own power.

That evening Uncle James went down toward the summer house. Subdued voices warned him just in time, but before he could make good his retreat, he caught snatches of a conversation obviously not meant for his ears.

"Bob, darling, I wouldn't admit I loved you as long as mother kept throwing me at your head. But when Uncle Jim, who is an old dear, but of course doesn't understand men, said mean, things about you, I simply couldn't stand it!"

"Time for me to clear out!" said Uncle Jim to himself. "I'm popular, I am! I'll have to have a little talk with my nephew-to-be." But first he had things out with his sister, who stopped him as he crossed the veranda.

"I'm afraid you've spoiled everything," she complained tearfully. She had not yet learned the details of the afternoon episode, having just returned from dining out.

"Oh, I wouldn't worry," said Uncle Jim, philosophically, as he jammed a fresh supply of cube cut into his pipe with a hardened thumb. "The minute I set eyes on that young man I knew he was the young fellow for Madge. But didn't it ever occur to you that a little mite of opposition goes further with these modern girls than anything else?"

At that moment at the turn of the walk leading to the summer house appeared Madge and Bob, hand in hand, with an unmistakable halo of happiness radiating about them.

"Well, of all things!" Mrs. Evans looked thunderstruck, then directed a glance of suspicion at Uncle Jim. "But how on earth did you guess?"

"Oh, I dunno," responded Uncle Jim innocently. "I may be an old codger from the country, but human beings are the same the world over."

CONGESTION FOLLOWS OPENING OF NAVIGATION

With the opening of navigation considerable congestion has developed at Port Colborne, Ont. In the illustration (1) shows the freighter Ashcroft of Midland, berthed at the elevator terminal. (2) is G. E. Price, engineer of the Glenseagle, a typical canal size grain freighter. It is the dearth of this sort of boat which is blamed in part for delays in the movement of grain. The big 600-foot freighter which brings the grain down from the head of the lakes can carry three or four times as much as the canal-size boat to which they tranship at Port Colborne and can move the grain more economically. Shipping interests are reluctant to invest considerable sums in the smaller vessels since they would became comparatively unprofitable if the St. Lawrence deep waterway were built, enabling the big freighters to travel right through. There is, accordingly, a relative scarcity of these smaller boats at present. Picture (3) shows a $500,000 bridge of the lift type over the new Welland Canal.

TO CLOSE THEATRES.

NICE, France, April 25.—(C.P.)—A convention of Fench theatre managers here has voted to close the doors of theatres, motion picture shows and cabarets throughout France next month in protest for certain taxes.

Their resolution demands abolition of the Federal amusement tax, averaging about ten per cent. of the receipts, and certain municipal and other taxes which they declared made it impossible to earn profits.

Fashion's Forecast

SIMULATED BOLERO

THE STYLE No. 2783 in delightful shade of Royal blue with unique pattern printed in beige is perfectly plain with fashionable seaming suggesting a scalloped bolero, with hipyoke in two sections scalloped at edges. The attached two-piece skirt has inverted plaits at either side of front. A shoulder bow with ends trimmed with plain beige crepe, with belt of the beige shade, contributes smart contrast. Printed georgette crepe, plain georgette, canton-faille crepe, crepe de chine and printed cotton foulard also very chic.

THE PATTERN is illustrated in Picture Lessons how to make it without wasting one minute of time. All you need to do is to follow these Pictures which show how each part is joined. Previous experience isn't at all necessary. It is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and designed in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and made with 3¼ yards of 40-inch material in the 36-inch size.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

HOW many times you see those two words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale —as advertised."

And those two words are as welcome as they are familiar, for they form a bond of confidence between the merchant and yourself. They are his guarantee to you of worth and value.

Here is an article that has been described in your newspaper. Its merits have been told; possibly, too, its price. You know exactly what you will get when you buy it. You know its quality, its utility; you know how it fits into your needs. And when you buy it, you know you are getting not some unproved substitute but the specified article—as represented.

It is easy to understand why that phrase, 'as advertised,' creates a feeling of confidence. You have learned to depend upon consistently advertised products. You know that the maker has confidence in them, else he would not spend money calling your attention to them day after day, and month after month. You know that they have been approved by the most critical of investigators—the buying public. And above all you know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

Toronto Leafs Win First Game of Skeeter Series

"ABE" MARTIN HOLDS JERSEYS TO THREE HITS

Wildness of Underhill Aids Leafs to Score Winning Runs.

BISONS BEAT ORIOLES.

Reading Wins 8-6 Victory Over Montreal in First Game of Series.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 25 (C.P.)—William ("Abe") Martin southpawed a 3 to 2 win over Frank Gilhooley's Jerseys in the first game of the series, played before 1,000 fans here yesterday.

The Leafs failed to uncover any fancy clouting themselves, the wildness of one Verne Underhill, with Jersey City, on option from Cleveland, helping to no little extent in the scoring of their three runs. And then Bucky Burke and Petie Cote marred an otherwise brilliant day in the field by unfolding two misplays that threatened to offset the rather nifty service by the young left-hander.

BISONS BEAT ORIOLES

Heavy hitting marked the battle, in which Buffalo used Ogden, J. Barnes and Magum, while Pilot Maisel called on Chambers, Wisner and Thomas. The Birds outhit the Herd, 14 to 12.

Home runs by Pool, Loepp and Brower gave the flock a 4 to 0 lead at the end of the third inning, but Buffalo had big innings in the fourth and fifth, scoring four runs in each.

READING WINS, 8—6

READING, April 25 (C.P.).—George Quellich's home run with one man on base in the eleventh inning gave Reading an 8 to 6 victory over Montreal in the first of the series here yesterday. Two were out when Quellich created his four-play blow.

The Royals came from behind twice to tie the score, rallying for trios of runs in the fifth and ninth innings. Quellich featured on the attack with three hits and drove in three runs.

NEWARK, April 25 (C.P.).—Vic Aldridge, former Pirate and Giant pitcher, set the Rochester batsmen down with six hits yesterday and the Newark Bears won their first game of the season 4 to 1.

Yankees Clout Ruffing To Defeat Sox 9-3

BOSTON, Mass., April 25 (Canadian Press).—Snapping out of their batting slump, for the day at any event, the world champion Yankees spanked Charlie Ruffing for 16 hits here yesterday, and easily defeated the Red Sox by 9 to 3. Waite Hoyt pitched the Hugmen to an even break in the two games played so far in the series.

Giants Bat Philadelphia Hurlers From the Mound

NEW YORK, April 25 (Canadian Press).—The Giants made better use of their bats here yesterday and easily defeated the Phillies in the second game of the series by 9 to 2. Lester Sweetland, star southpaw for the visitors, was driven out by the Clan McGraw beneath a five-run assault in the fourth. Harold Elliott, who succeeded him, was little better, if any.

Slide By Harry Rive Allows Tigers 7-6 Win

DETROIT, Mich., April 25 (Canadian Press).—A spectacular catch of a short fly by Harry Rive, in which he slid on his stomach for several feet, saved the Detroit Tigers from a ninth-inning rally by the Cleveland Indians yesterday and allowed the Bengals to win, 7 to 6.

Pirates Defeat Cubs In 13-Inning Battle

PITTSBURGH, April 25 (Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4, yesterday, in 13 innings after Chicago had come from behind to tie the tally at 4-4 in the 8th. Sheely's double, scoring Traynor, won the fray for the Buccaneers. It was the opening game of the season at Forbes Field and the longest contest played in either league so far this season.

Recommend Abolition Of Four Year Rule

KINGSTON, Ont., April 25.—(By the Canadian Press).—Abolition of the four-year rule for college football players and the substitution of the freshman rule in its place is recommended to the Candian Intercollegiate Rugby Union by The Athletic Board of Control of Queen's University.

The Board feels that the four-year rule which allows students to play in the intercollegiate league for only four years, is a hardship on players who are at college for more than that period.

The Board also went on record as opposed to the introduction of the forward pass into Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby. Members of the Board expressed their opinion that the introduction of the forward pass would prove too drastic a move for senior rugby without first trying it in the junior series.

NEW PERSONNELS MOOTED FOR EAST PETERBOROUGH LEAGUE

Cognawagas Want Services of Ross, Masterson and Hillier.

PRE-SEASON DOPE.

Local Players May Have To Fill Breach On Bethany Line-up.

Like hives of bees the ball players are swarming into teams as Old Sol gets warmer with each passing day. The hum of gossip arising from baseball conjecture and discussion is gaining in volume.

The East Peterborough League is leading the band as far as pre-season dope is concerned. There are more rumors of changes in the personnel of the four teams in this league than in any other. The story is gaining in strength that some of the teams are grabbing off the star players from other teams, but all the facts are in the air yet. However, things have come to such a pass that there will likely be some pointed remarks on this topic made at the meeting of the league executive to be held this Friday night.

It is said on authority that the Cognawagas are out to sign up the services of Bob Ross, catcher, formerly of the Crescents, Casey Masterson, pitcher of the Raybestos, and Dib Hillier, Rays' shortstop. All these players were star performers on their respective outfits last year, and now the Cogs are out to sign them up in their quest for the pennant.

The Cogs were in a strong position without the addition of these extra men. The Crescents, however, need every available player, and the loss of Bob Ross to another team in the league would be felt in no small way by them. It appears to be a surety that two of their star outfielders, the Jones brothers, Joe and Fred, will be up with the Central League this season.

There are plenty of ball players in the city to fill the gaps in the teams caused by the players joining the senior roster. About six of the players from the Royals junior team of last year will be too old to play in that division this year, and will be available.

No rule was made in the East Peterborough League to prevent the players from jumping from one team to another at the beginning of the season, since it was thought that the teams would be interested enough to see that it was not carried to such a length as to weaken the interests of the league as a whole. But the wholesale corraling of star players, as it is claimed is being practised now, will have the effect of weakening the competition among the teams.

It will have a disastrous result on the team that mixes in it, too, since these players are good performers and used to being in every game, and they will not be satisfied to sit on the bench even half the time. It will cause discord in the team itself.

The whole matter will likely get a thorough airing at the meeting on Friday night, although as yet the matter is only in the ether.

Bethany's Needs.

It is likely that some consideration will have to be given to Bethany's needs this season. The village to the west has always been a strong baseball centre, and most independent in the use of only home-brew players. Last year, it is said, the suggestion was made that perhaps some players from Peterborough would not go amiss on the line-up. But Bethany tabooed the scheme and plodded on, giving a stiff argument in every game.

This year, however, the idea may again be broached. Since Bethany have lost the services of their good pitcher and relief second baseman, Ray Staples. True, they still have Dawe, who is also a pitcher, but they want him for first base and Riley ought to be retained at second.

The hole may be plugged up by several good young players from here, and if any do play with Bethany they will get invaluable experience and coaching during the season with that team.

So the discussion goes on in all baseball circles. Each have hopes and aspirations for the season, but as yet it is mostly being realized verbally.

Central League Team Will Practise Saturday

The Central Ontario League team will hold their first workout at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All those wishing to try out with the senior team are requested to be on hand.

CHURCH LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Softball Loop Will Be Divided Into Two Sections.

TWELVE TEAMS.

The suggested plans for the formation of a Church Softball league were crystallized at the meeting held of those enthusiastic about the league in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. There was no difficulties in getting entries and in all twelve teams signified their intention of entering.

It was decided that there would be two sections, senior and junior. The junior will be composed of those boys who have not reached the age of nineteen before May 1.

The entrance fee was fixed at $5 and from this money the league will furnish balls for all league games.

It was decided that City league softball players will not be eligible for the teams, since the plan is to supply sport for those boys who otherwise would not be participating.

One problem that is presenting itself is the lack of grounds, but the members of the executive were appointed as a committee to take steps to secure playing fields.

The committee in charge of the league consists of Howard Hall, Harold Rehill and John Ward. All information for those interested in the league can be secured from this committee.

Athletics Even Series With Washington Senators

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (Canadian Press).—The Philadelphia Athletics yesterday pounded Firpo Marberry and Lefty Brown in a three-round barrage of hits and evened the series with the Washington Senators at one game apiece by scoring a 9 to 4 victory.

Robins Take Second Straight From Braves

BROOKLYN, N.Y., April 25 (Canadian Press)—The Robins made in two straight over the Braves here yesterday, coming from behind to win by 5 to 3. Jim Elliott got credit for winning the game, although his wildness caused his removal in favor of Lou Koupal in the eighth.

BASEBALL FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

New League Made Up of Six Teams Will Get Under Way Next Monday.

SHORT SCHEDULE.

The Public School Baseball League swings into action next Monday afternoon for another big season. All six of the schools are entered in the league and all are grouped together.

Beginning this week the boys have been bringing their bats and gloves to school and striving for a place on the teams during the practises after school, under the watchful eyes of the men teachers.

The competition promises to be just as keen as has always featured this league, where hard play but sportsmanship predominates always.

The schedule will be completed on June 7 allowing plenty of time for the players to give all their attention to the examinations that follow at the end of the month.

All the minor teams in the city are being asked by the Public School League not to invite any of the players into their teams until the Public School League has completed its schedule. The teachers wish to have it understood that if the Public School League is to continue to develop baseball players and sportsmen this can only be done with success by keeping the boys fully interested in the league, and not by detracting them to other teams in the city before their schedule is completed. The selfishness of city teams in using the school players was one of the contributing causes that put hardball out of the public school for a time, it is said. The league rules that: the home team in each game is responsible for the umpire, but the choice must be acceptable to the visiting team.

All postponed games must be played as soon as possible after the scheduled date.

AT THE CAPITOL

HAIR RAISING MYSTERY YARN "THE CANARY MURDER CASE" NOW GRIPPING CAPITOL AUDIENCES, OPENS TO-DAY

All lovers of good mystery; all lovers of good acting; all lovers of swift, pulsing action in moving pictures will enjoy seeing "The Canary Murder Case," the story which has won acclaim throughout Canada, playing at the Capitol theatre this week. William Powell, in the role of Philo Vance, the great fictional detective created by the mysterious author, S. S. Van Dine, has a powerful role and handles it in a masterful way.

The story moves swiftly, surely, logically from the finding of the body of the slain woman in her aparement through the mystifying details of the murder to the discovery of the perpetrator of the crime.

With the presentation of "The Canary Murder Case," a new departure in moving pictures is presented. There are no eerie conditions created merely to excite the emotions. There are no "tricks" employed to fool the public. Everything is shown to the public in a straight, matter-of-fact manner.

CHAMPS ARE NUISANCE.

Says Championship Matches Are Becoming Too Difficult To Arrange.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Viewed from a matchmaker's standpoint, the modern boxing champion is more or less of a nuisance. The game would be just as well off without him.

Championship matches are becoming so difficult to arrange that the Madison Square Garden Corporation may confine itself strictly to bouts between contenders this Summer. Title holders have become so ravenous for money that they leave nothing for their opponents or the promoters.

Tom McArdle is speaking. The Garden matchmaker has been trying for weeks to induce Joe Dundee to defend his welterweight championship against Jimmy McLarnin, and his patience is exhausted. He cannot get a definite answer from Max Waxman, Dundee's manager.

Waxman Wants Guarantee.

"Waxman shows me a $60,000 contract to fight Al Mello in Boston and $40,000 offers to fight Jackie Fields in Chicago or California," McArdie said. "He wants a guarantee. They all want guarantees. These champions are all alike.

"Show me a champion, and I'll show you something wrong with him from a promoter's standpoint.

"Loughran? He wants to fight heavyweights.

"Walker, He won't fight anyone.

"Dundee? Waxman knows that any one of htree men is pretty sure to beat him, and he wants all the money.

Routis? He won the featherweight title and promptly left for Europe.

"There is no bantamweight champion, and the flyweight business is so muddled up that no one can make heads or tails of it.

Will Stop Mello Fight.

I'll say this for Mr. Waxman's benefit. He better not try to defend his title in any State affiliated with New York. I have a contract on Dundee calling for the Garden to name his opponent, and I'll step in if he attempts to fight Mello in Boston. He might fight Fields in California, but I don't see any other place open to him.

"The public may not have given the matter a thought, but we have done pretty well at Madison Square Garden without champions. I haven't promoted a championship match since I became matchmaker at the Garden, if anyone should happen to ask you I don't think anyone noticed their absence, judging from the attendance.

"It takes too long to make a championship match for what the club gets out of it. The champions want guarantees and side agreements and a lot of things that do not appear on the surface.

"I think we can pack the ball parks this Summer without title matches. I have several matches in mind, notably one between Tony Canzoneri and Al Singer.

"For that matter, there is no title involved in the Max Schmelling-Paulino Uzcudon bout, and that will draw close to $1,000,000 or I'm badly mistaken.

"I'm through fooling with champions. They're more of a nuisance than anything else."

VIEWS ON SPORT

The "Y" boxing tourney should commend itself to every fan with a liking for fast, clean sport.

BIGGER THAN BEFORE.

The boxing class is staging an even better tournament than was the last one. Each of the boxers has improved over his last appearance and has had many of the little imperfections ironed out. Besides this the bill has been lengthened to eleven bouts. There will not be many more boxing tournies, since it is getting too warm for this indoor sport.

LACROSSE IN CAMPBELLFORD.

Down in Campbellford the citizens are desirous of bringing back lacrosse, and a real effort will be launched to field a team this year. Campbellford has always been to the fore as a centre of Canada's national game, one of the few places in this part of the province where the great game is still played. Some outstanding players were developed in that town, too. The reason for the decline of lacrosse may be traced to two reasons: The popularity of baseball, which shifted it aside. And, perhaps, mainly because the game was so fast and needed such stamina and training by those who played it that the modern youth became too lazy or effeminate for the game. At any rate few boys in Peterborough have ever carried a lacrosse stick in their hand, and few have ever had an opportunity to do so. Although Johnny Sutherland, "Shocky" Mein and several other devotees of the game tried to revive it here some years ago, after several years of fair success owing to the real effort put forth by these men, the game languished again. Now it would be a treat to see a lacrosse stick on any of the parks or playing fields in the city. It is to be hoped Campbellford has greater success.

THE PETES' MUSKETEERS.

In throwing off some sparks on the Central League meeting in Belleville, the Intelligencer scribe writes of the Peterborough three Musketeers: "The sagacious 'Shiner' Johnston, the irrespressible Tommy Holyman, and the sagely Max Swanston, the whole trio looking younger than ever, represented the Peterborough Ball Club at the annual meeting. The only fly in the ointment in Peterborough seems to be the fact that the kids are practicing high-diving off the stands at James Stevenson Park, since the Otonabee went on the rampage. Fred Craig, that devoted follower of Isaac Walton, whose comments on the ball games are one of the features of The Examiner, will have but to look around behind second and third base after the floods, to have his fondest hopes justified in some sparkling big pike and pickerel all ready for the dining table."

* * * * * * *

CENTRAL LEAGUE PRACTISES.

James Stevenson Park has been under varying depths of water during the high water level of the past week. But the water has receded of late, and this morning only the outfield was covered. It will take several weeks for the stamping grounds of the Central Leaguers to dry up, and the players chafing at the delay, with the sun shining warmly, are looking around for other grounds on which to practise. Likely one of the school grounds will oe secured, and then the initial work-out will be held this Saturday.

THE NEEDLE, WATSON.

Oh, what love the Kingston Whig-Standard bears for the Central League, and Peterborough in particular, despite the fact that the Limestone entry was happily re-placed in the league. Read this blithe message: "The grand and glorious C.O.B.L. will worry along this year without having to send teams down into the wilds of Kingston. Oshawa and Peterborough simply would not play if they had to come here, and of course the league had to consider them."

"Still, perhaps, these two teams don't realize the anguish they were saving Kingston fans. If they were not better than last year, it would be painful to have to look at that Peterborough outfit again this year."

PARKDALE LADIES HERE.

A treat is in store for the basketball fans when on Saturday night Teddy Oke's Parkdale ladies' intermediate team, will come here to play a picked team from the stars of the local girl's teams. Teddy Oke spends vast sums of specie on the Parkdale lady athletes each year, and because of the sweaters and other rich accoutrements which he can supply, he manages to round up all the best players in Toronto for his teams. In fact, the liberal millionaire is besieged with players, and the other clubs in the city are more than jealous.

LEAFS MISSING FIRE.

The Toronto Leafs are not living up to expectations, and instead of making an impressive start they are having great difficulties in getting off on the right foot. However, indications prove that they will at least be factors in the league race once they hit their pace. The pitching has been below par, but the Leafs are getting rosy twirling compared with that dished up by Tris Speaker's Newark slab artists. Eight alleged pitchers, in three games, have proved futile in the desperate efforts made by Tris to come at least close to winning a game. Walter Johnson had no bed of roses either last year, and it appears that Speaker is doomed for the same thorny path.

Davis Cup Test Matches Will Start Next Monday

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (C.P.).—The Davis Cup test matches for the purpose of enabling the selection committee to choose the team to represent Canada in the match against the United States in May will be held here next week.

Six of Canada's first ten players will take part, namely, Dr. J. A. Wright, Willard F. Crocker, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal; Gilbert Nunns, Dr. A. W. Ham and Walter Martin, of Toronto. Play will start on Monday, April 29, and continue all week. Four men will comprise the team.

PETE GAVUZZI RETAINS LEAD

28 REMAIN IN RACE.

MAPLEWOOD, Mo., April 25 (C.P.)—Twenty-eight pairs of bronzed, lead legs resumed their jaunt through Missouri this morning as C. C. Payle's bunion derby left Maplewood, Mo., for Sullivan, Mo., the 26th control point, sixty miles distant.

One bunioneer showed more eagerness than the rest. He was Pat Harrison, curly-headed blond, who set out for Sullivan with the expressed determination of leading the pack into town. The Gateway City is Harrison's home and plans have been made to royally greet him when he arrives.

For the other 27 plodding pilgrims it was just the start of another day. Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Italian speed merchant of Southampton, England, was still in the lead in elapsed time when the bunioneers moved out of Maplewood.

THANKS FOLKS

WE'RE READY AGAIN!

We extend our grateful thanks for the overwhelming response to our FIRST SALE. It met with a success far beyond our anticipations, so much so that what we announced as a ten-day event, had to be discontinued at the end of five days for lack of merchandise to carry on.

During the last two weeks we have searched the markets for the newest and most up-to-date Clothing and Furnishings it was possible to find, and we feel sure we have been successful.

RE-OPENING FRIDAY

For the past two days we have been busy re-arranging our store and placing on display perhaps the finest stock of Men's Wear in Eastern Ontario. We await the approval of the men and young men who are particular about their clothing, and we fully expect their opinion to coincide with ours.

We invite a visit of pure inspection, whether immediately interested or not. We are always pleased to show the new features that are brought out in Men's Wear.

SUITS and TOPCOATS

It is surprising the little touches of the designer's art, that are incorporated in the new Suits and Topcoats for men. Every little feature adds a dressier look to the garment, and our new stock embodies every latest idea for 1929.

Finest of Furnishings

And the outer garments are not the only ones to show new features. Men's Shirts are tailored in new styles, cut in new patterns, and made up of materials that fairly bristle with newness. Ties are always showing changes, and somehow, always seem improved. Other lines receive periodical remodelling, and whatever is new and acceptable will be found in our new stock just put on display.

COMPANY CLOSES EMPLOYEES' HOMES

Strikers Are Notified They Must Vacate Company Houses.

NEWMARKET, N.H., April 25. (C. P.) — The Newmarket Manufacturing Company Tuesday served notice that the families of 200 striking employees must vacate houses owned by the company within 30 days. At an informal meeting the strikers, who left their work six weeks ago as a protest against a 15 per cent. wage reduction, decided to establish a tent city within the city limits if they lose their homes. Further plans for this action will be made to-day.

The company owns 250 houses of which 175 are occupied, many of them by French-Canadian former employees of the company. The company plant closed for an indefinite period on Saturday.

DREADED DISEASE TAKES LITTLE GIRL

Minister of Health Has Ordered An Autopsy On Body of Dorset Girl.

TORONTO, Ont., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Word was received here Tuesday of the death of Doris Aileen Russell, 12, Dorset, Ont., from septicaemia, probably due to the same type of stretococcus infection as reported from Middlesex County. The child was taken to the hospital at Bracebridge, Ont., on Sunday last, but died there early yesterday morning. A wrenched ankle which she suffered while at play on Friday last is believed to have started the deadly infection.

Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Provincial Minister of Health, has ordered an autopsy, and swabs will be taken of the girl's throat, nose and infected leg. These will be turned over to the provincial laboratory experts for examination.

OBITUARY

MISS MARY E. NIMMO

On April 15th death claimed Miss Mary E. Nimmo, daughter of the late Robert and Mary Nimmo of South Monaghan. The deceased was a member of one of the oldest families in the township, and is survived by three sisters and three brothers, the Misses Roberta and Louise and Thomas J., at home; A. L. Nimmo, Keppell, Sask., Mrs. J. H. James, and Dr. R. D. Nimmo of Toronto.

BENTLEY LEGGOTT.

There passed away early this morning an aged and respected resident of this district in the person of Bentley Leggott. Mr. Leggott was born in England on January 1, 1850, but while still a young man he came to Canada. For many years he farmed on his land near the Chemong Road, but of recent years he had retired and was living with his son, R. G. Leggott, on the Chemong Road.

He is survived by his son, R. G. Leggott, and three daughters: Mrs. C. R. Templeton of Toronto, Mrs. F. I. Wharram of North Bay and Mrs. L. LeBeku of Detroit.

The funeral will be held from Mr. R. G. Leggott's residence to the Little Lake Cemetery on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with the Rev. David Wren officiating.

MRS. ADAM KING.

A former resident of this district passed away yesterday in Mortalach, Saskatchewan, in the person of Mrs. Adam King, aged 70 years. The late Mrs. King was born in North Monaghan, the daughter of Thomas and Sarah Wilson, and had lived for many years here, making a wide circle of friends.

She is survived by one brother, Robert Wilson, 279 Thomas Street, and one sister, Mrs. Andrew McCarroll, of Emily Township.

The funeral will be held in Mortalach, Saskatchewan.

MRS. J. R. PAQUETTE.

The death occurred on Wednesday morning, April 24th, at Providence Hospital, Detroit, Michigan, following a short attack of double pneumonia, of Muriel Kathryn Gosselin, beloved wife of J. Raymond Paquette, in her 26th year.

The late Mrs. Paquette was a former resident of Peterborough, having resided here all her life, prior to her marriage last November. She was a well known and highly respected citizen and a faithful member of the Sacred Heart church.

Many business people of the city will remember the late Mrs. Paquette through her connection as stenographer in the office of R. R. Hall, K.C., where she was employed for a a number of years before her marriage.

There are left to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband and mother, one brother, Louis, of Detroit, and two sisters, Alma of Detroit and Mrs. D. Moore of Peterborough. Her father predeceased her two years ago.

The body arrived in the city last night on the C.P.R. midnight, and the funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. J. B. Paquette, 199 Crescent street, Friday morning, April 26th, at 9 o'clock, to the Sacred Heart church, and St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

MINSTRELS TO PRESENT SHOW

C.G.E. Athletic and Social Club Is Planning Fine Program.

SCHEDULED FOR MAY 1.

The C.G.E. minstrels, under the capable direction of Jack McCabe, are making rapid progress towards the completion of a very entertaining program to be presented May 1st in the Legion Hall. This minstrel show, which is being staged under the auspices of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club, for its members will embody all the features that mark a first class entertainment of this type, while the amount of practise and enthusiasm that every member of the cast is showing augurs well for the success of the show.

The orthodox type of minstrel show with its end men in blackface make-up, its soloists and step-dancers, has always appealed to a big majority of the show-going public, and this one which will be staged along similar lines should go over big. A feature of the program will be a selection by the C.G.E. octette without musical accompaniment. Following are the names of the artists in the first part. End men—Bob Runnett, Neil Porter, James O'Brien, Ted Suddards, Spence Hope, and Kink Powers, while Bob Cotton will act as interlocutor.

Several Clever Acts

The oleo will consist of several clever acts including an instrumental sextette and a magician with all the frills. Mr. McDermott will act the part of Houdini while the musicians are Roy Derrick, guitar; Mr. Wickwire, banjo; H. A. Cranfield, mandolin, and Tom Parker, Millard, and L. McGillen, on harmonicas.

The octette, which is composed of Messrs. W. Binks, W. Grieves, B. Kelsey, T. Parker, J. Cairns, J. Wade, T. Bartley and Alec. Kircaldy, have already established a reputation as high class entertainers among the C.G.E. employees and their appearance on the program is being eagerly looked forward to.

Mr. McFarlane as pianist and Bob Gilman as stage manager complete the cast.

AMBULANCE CLASS ORGANIZES IN CITY

S. Berry Is Elected Chairman of the Local St. John's Corps.

Several old St. John's Ambulance service men had their hopes and aims realized when a Peterborough branch of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade was formed in the Legion Hall last evening. After several meetings during the past week to cultivate interest, the organization was completed and officers elected last night.

The officers are: Chairman, S. Berry; Secretary-Treasurer, E. Brazendale; Committee—L. Tomkins, S. Berwick and H. R. Buckley.

Nearly twenty men, representing various firms throughout the city, were present to hear the lecture on first aid delivered by Dr. Murray Fraser. The next lecture will be held on Wednesday, May 1, in the Legion Hall, when Dr. Fraser will give another practical and interesting lecture on the care of the injured.

There is still room in the organization for more members, and any desiring to join should get information from Secretary Brazendale, phone 3307.

IMPROVED LAWNS ALREADY NOTICED

More Citizens Join Beautify Peterborough Campaign—Questions Solicited.

Many improvements have been made to Peterborough lawns and gardens during the past few days of fine weather, and to-day's mild rain will help along the good work. Indications are that the city will look its prettiest this year when the Old Home Week visitors arrive, and they will carry away with them pleasant recollections of the present beauty of their old home.

To those who live here, too, the city will be a joy, and for their own satisfaction, as well as to impress the visitors, residents who have not yet started work should get busy at once. Questions on lawn care and flower growing will be gladly answered through The Examiner by the Horticultural Society.

Since publication of the last list, the following have joined the beautify Peterborough campaign:

L. F. Humber, 827 Water street.
Henry Greene, 202 Perry street.
M. Cain, 163 Aylmer street.
G. W. Soulby, 254 McDonnel street.
Mrs W. Jones, 561 Patterson street.
H. S. Strong, 600 Harvey street.
James Conroy, 498 Sherbrooke street.
George Street United Church.
S. T. Harris, 207 Perry street.

To obtain two of the "Please Keep Off the Lawn" signs, it is only necessary to sign the coupon and bring it to The Examiner Office or mail it with a 2-cent stamp for return postage. Churches and other organizations requiring more than two cards may obtain them on signing the coupon and indicating the number desired.

CHOIR PRACTICE.

Knox Church choir will meet for practice to-night at 8 for the Sunday School anniversary services to be held next Sunday.

Around the City

On Wednesday, another new electrical sign was placed in position on Charlotte street when the Union Cafe proprietors had erected, a sign of considerable prominence. The work of hoisting the sign into position required considerable time and was watched with interest.

The Fire Brigade desires to thank The Examiner for the check sent to the Firemen's Pension Fund.

The bank clearings for the week amounted to $880,537.

TORNADO SWEEPS THE SOUTHERN STATES

Arbitrate "I'm Alone" Case

NEWS IN BRIEF

APPOINTED SECRETARY.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of Harry H. Johnson, well-known Toronto newspaperman, as secretary and organizer of the Ontario Reform Association. Mr. Johnson will take over his new duties about May 1.

KING SIGNS BILLS.

LONDON, April 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—Another indication of the King's wonderful recovery from his serious illness was afforded in the House of Lords last night when it became known that bills passed by both Houses of Parliament may now be signed by His Majesty in person instead of by the counsellors of State, as has been the case for many months past.

5,000 PEOPLE HOMELESS.

QUINCY, Ill., April 26.—(C.P.) — Hurling its tremendous bulk southward in the biggest rise since 1851, the Mississippi to-day was waging a new assault that may break through every levee for 75 miles below Keokuk, Iowa, leave 5,000 people homeless, and cause damage that might reach $5,000,000.

SESSION IS POSTPONED.

PARIS, April 26.—(C.P.)—To-day's session of the Reparations sub-committee which was to have considered the report of the Reparations conference, was postponed, probably until to-morrow, as the preliminary work on the document was not far enough advanced for submission. Private conversations, however, continue.

PASSOVER IS CELEBRATED

Twenty-nine Jewish Families in City Celebrate Biblical Feast.

LASTS EIGHT DAYS.

Last evening and Wednesday evening at sunset the twenty-nine families of Jewish people in the city gathered in their Synagogue on Water street, for the celebration of the Passover, the feast of emancipation.

"The Passover commemorates the exodus from Egypt," declared Rabbi M. Fine to-day. "The liberation of the Israelites of old from Egyptian bondage is the crucial point in the history of the Jewish people. The egress from Egypt made possible the career of the Israelites as a people of priests, and a holy nation.

"The Jew is told repeatedly in the Bible to always remember his ancient Egyptian enslavement, and the final redemption, so that he may have consideration for the stranger, the poor, and the oppressed."

The Feast, which lasts for eight days, was ushered on Wednesday night by the Seder, a home ritual unsurpassed in the beauty of its symbolism. In each Jewish home a family re-union takes place and the occasion is marked by the chanting of special prayers and appropriate ceremonies.

The songs sung by the Jews in the Seder ceremony are over 3,000 years old, explained Rabbi Fine. They are in simple language, much repeated, and have to do with the killing of the kid.

One of the symbols that stands in the ceremony is that of placing the cup of wine on the table for Elijah. This, too, goes back to the days when the Jews were enslaved in ancient Egypt. The Jews open the door, having placed the cup of wine for him, and he is welcomed to the feast because he has promised that he shall convey them, a freed people, back to Palestine.

The first will in the English language was the will of a chandler, who bequeathed candles to various churches.

Countries Fail To Agree

Canada and United States Will Arbitrate I'm Alone Case.

CORRESPONDENCE TABLED.

Both Nations Pointedly Disagree On Fact of the Sinking.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press).—Profoundly and pointedly disagreeing both as to the facts in the sinking of the Nova Scotia Schooner I'm Alone, and as to the principles of International Law applicable thereto, Canada and the United States will submit the entire dispute to arbitration.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States, and Henry L. Stimson, President Hoover's Secretary of State, will confer shortly as to the procedure to be followed in naming arbitrators under the liquor convention effected between Britain and the United States January 23, 1924.

The correspondence tabled in parliament last night by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King is comprised in four "notes" the shortest of which covers nearly three, and the longest approximately 17 typewritten pages. The Canadian notes bear the signature of Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to Washington. The communication from the United States, in which the case is stated from the point of view of that country, is signed by Henry L. Stimson, the new Secretary of State. The first brief note in the series which came from the United States government shortly after the sinking in response to a visit from Mr. Massey, bears the signature of W. R. Castle, Jr., on behalf of the Secretary of State.

Distance From Shore

One of the important differences of fact bears on the disance of the I'm Alone from shore when the United States coast guard vessel Wolcott first approached and ordered her to heave to. Importance attaches to this because the provisions of th 1924 "rum-running" treaty permit search and seizure of British and Canadian vessels only within the distance of one hour's sailing from the shore. The master of the I'm Alone contends that he was outside this limit. The view of the United States government is that he was within this limit and therefore subject to search and seizure.

Again, the Canadian government takes the position that the action of the United States coastguard cannot be justified on the ground of "hot and continuous pursuit." While recognizing that there is such a ground, the Canadian note points out that "the pursuit did not begin within the territorial three-mile limit, which is an essential factor."

Justifies Action

The United States government, on the other hand, justifies the action of the coastguard on this ground also. If the arrest would have been valid when the vessel was first hailed, "but was made impossible through the illegal action of the pursued vessel in failing to stop when ordered to do so then hot pursuit is justified, and the locus of the arrest and the distance of the pursuit are immaterial" the United States. This statement is subject to the provisoes, in the first place, that the pursuit and arrest are without the waters of any other state, and that the pursuit has been hot and continuous.

The Canadian government draws attention to the fact that the United States cutter Dexter, which sank the I'm Alone, was not the vessel which initiated the pursuit. It contends that the language of the 1924 treaty is not such as "would warrant action so drastic as the destruction: till less does authority appear to be conferred for the de-

POLICE SCOUR WENTWORTH FOR ELUSIVE ORVAL SHAW; NOTE FOUND IN POSTAL BOX

Parks Leaves Moose Jaw With Windsor Detective

MOOSE JAW, April 2.—(C.P.—Jack Parks, arrested by the Moose Jaw city police on Saturday last on a charge of the theft of a motor car at Windsor, left to-day for Windsor, under the escort of Detective Campbell, of the Windsor city police force. Pearl Bowerman, Aylmer girl, whom Parks brought west with him, was given suspended sentence for three months, and starts her homeward journey Tuesday afternoon.

Inhabitants Claim Man Resembling Shaw Seen in Neighborhood.

HIDING IN OLD BARN.

"If You Want Me, Take a Peep Into the Swamp," Orval Tells Police.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 26.—(C.P.)—Egged on by what was believed to be a note from Orval Shaw himself, the police to-day scoured Wentworth County for the mystery man of Skunk's Misery. In a post box at Ryckman's Corners on the Caledonia highways was found a note as follows: "Here we are from Skunk's Misery. If you want me, take a peep into the swamp at your left. Good luck. Yours, Orval."

Shaw dated the middle of the 4th month. On the other side of the paper was written: "Thanks to you for the good night's rest in your old barn. Very comfortable indeed—better than my dirty swamp."

Chief Clark searched an abandoned barn on a farm nearby and found signs of it having been occupied recently by tramps. Inquiries revealed that a man somewhat resembling the description of Shaw had been seen loitering about for the past few days.

HEAD GREEK CHURCH.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 26 (Canadian Press).—The appointment of Rev. Father Basil Ladyka of Edmonton as Bishop of the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church of Canada was announced here after despatches from Rome had been received by local Church officials.

BEATS FIVE-MILE RECORD.

VERNEOK PAN, Cape of Good Hope, April 26 (Canadian Press). — Captain Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, in his racing car, "The Blue-Bird," beat the world's five-mile record with a speed of 212 miles an hour here yesterday. He also eclipsed the world's five kilometre record with a speed of 211 miles an hour.

QUADRUPLETS BORN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 26 (Canadian Press). — Quadruplets, three boys and a girl, were born here yesterday to Mrs. Veto Mauro, 37 years old. One of the boys died shortly after birth, but the other babies and the mother were reported to be doing well. The Mauros have three other children. The father is a bootblack.

WAIT JUDGMENT IN APPEAL CASE

First Divisional Court Hearing Which Began On Wednesday Closed To-day.

WANTED MAN ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26.— (By the Canadian Press.) — Judgment was reserved by the First Divisional Court to-day in the appeal of Louis M. Auger, former M.P. for Prescott against his conviction and sentence on a charge of committing a serious offence against Laurence Martel, 17 year old Hawkesbury girl. Mr. Justice Wright imposed a sentence of nine years in Portsmouth penitentiary. Subsequent to the trial Auger resigned his seat in the House of Commons.

Hearing of the appeal in Osgoode Hall was commenced on Wednesday last.

The allegation that Miss Martel did not voluntarily complain about the assault committed upon her by Auger in his office in the Parliament Buildings, and that her complaint was forced from her by the questioning of her aunt, Mrs. St Pierre, was combatted by I. A. Humphries, K.C., who continued his argument against the appeal.

Wanted Auger Arrested.

Crown Counsel contended it would be seen from the evidence that the girl's first intention was to have Auger arrested, but her second thought was that she had better speak to her aunt first of all, and also because she did not want to fight on the street, when she left the Parliament

Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. Left Estate Worth $22,225

KINGSTON, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—An estate of $22,225 is disposed of by the will of the late Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, former Minister of Immigration and Colonization in the Meighen Government, which was probated here to-day. By the terms of the will, the bulk of the estate is left to the widow.

Mayor Denne Suggests July 4 As a Suitable Date For American Day.

MANY FLOATS EXPECTED.

Further indication that the Peterborough Old Home Week committees are swinging into their proper strides with the passing of the weeks, was seen last night in the many items which came up for momentary consideration by the Executive at its meeting held in the Council Chamber at eight o'clock. James Dutton was voted to the chair for the evening, and there followed interesting reports and discussion of many points of the committees' workings during the past week.

There came, through Chairman Alderman Cotton, of the Decoration Committee, mention of communications from various organizations volunteering assistance in one form or another, among these organizations being the Women's Art Association, the King Edward Home and School Association, the Daughters of the Empire, the Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, the Knights of Columbus, offering to erect an arch; the Oddfellows of the city, volunteering similar service, and the Engineering Institute of Canada, with a proposition to put up model power control towers in the vicinity of the C.P.R. Station. All of these offers were looked upon with favor and referred to the committee to proceed as it saw fit. It was decided, however, to hold a joint meeting of representatives

On only two hours' notice, R. M. McGarrell left at noon to-day for Kingston, where he assumes the duties of chief clerk in the office of the Canadian Pacific Express Company. Mr. McGarrell has made many friends in Peterborough, who will wish him every success in his new position.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26. (C.P.)—A reward of $1000 is announced by the Ontario provincial police for the arrest or information leading to the arrest of John A. Campbell, a Toronto barrister, wanted on various charges of theft, forgery and false pretences, and who disappeared about a year ago. A warrant for his arrest is held by the Toronto police, the charges involving a sum over $100,000.

Family Of Famous Detroit Bootlegger Pays $12,000 To Kidnapper For Man's Release

DETROIT, Mich., April 26 (Canadian Press). — Fred Begeman, Suburban Wyandotte bootlegger, was at liberty to-day after his family paid $12,000 for his release from kidnappers who had been holding him nearly a week. Detroit police meanwhile were facing two other possible kidnapping mysteries in the disappearance of four other persons the last two days.

Two other mysterious disappearances remained unsolved to-day. They were the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gross and Robert Forster, a garage mechanic, early on Thursday morning, and the vanishing of Joseph P. Sutton, who on Wednesday night left his wife and small son waiting in their parked automobile near Woodward Avenue.

BRITISH FLIERS REACH PERSIA ON NON-STOP FLIGHT TO INDIA

Aviators Left Cranwell Airdrome, Lincolnshire, On Wednesday.

CROSSED BALKANS.

When Men Passed Over Bagdad They Had Been in Air 30 Hours.

LONDON, April 26 (Canadian Press).—The Air Ministry here late last night received word from the Royal Air Force Fairey-Napier monoplane bearing Squadron Leader Arthur Jones-Williams and Flight Lieut. N. H. Jenkins, who are on a non-stop flight from England to India. The fliers reported at 6.45 p.m. (G.M.T.) that they had passed over Bushire, Persia. Several hours earlier—at 1.50 p.m.—they passed over Bagdad, Irak. At that time they had been in the air 30 hours and 2 minutes.

The plane hopped at Cranwell Airdrome, Lincolnshire, Wednesday, headed for Bangalore, near the southern point of India, 5,100 miles away. At the hour it reached Bagdad the fliers had been in the air 26 hours and 22 minutes, and covered about half of the distance to their destination.

Air Ministry experts consider the worst part of the flight now over. The plane after the first 24 hours was weighted down with its great load of 1,000 gallons of gasoline, and, in addition, the mountainous Balkans have been crossed.

KIWANIS CLUB WINS CONTEST

District Governor Congratulates Local Kiwanians On Winning Competition.

DR. SUTTON SPEAKS.

"Congratulations upon again winning International Efficiency contest in Blue division for this district. Hope you will be successful in competition with other districts in International contest. Will always remember Peterborough as first club I officially visited and as a loyal and efficient club in all district matters.

Sincerest greetings.
A. G. GAUL.

The above message from the District Governor was read to-day at the luncheon of the local club, when previous to a most instructive talk on "The Place of Kiwanis in promoting public health" by Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Medical Officer of Health. To-day was the occasion of an official visit from Isaac P. McNabb, Lieut-Governor of the Ontario-Quebec district and his brief talk to the club, also preceding Dr. Sutton's address, was one in which he expressed his appreciation of loyal support accorded him by his fellow Kiwanians. He told of a visit to the Bowmanville boys' farm with the Riverdale club, last night, and intimated that within a short time, arrangements would be made in the Kiwanis calendar for an annual pilgrimage of all Kiwanis clubs to that institution. The club decided upon the following reply to Governor Gaul's message:

Four Pound Bay Born On C.P.R. Passenger Train

WINNIPEG, Man., April 26.—(C.P.)— An extra passenger boarded a Canadian Pacific special train as it stepped through from the east early yesterday morning. Helped into the world by two former army nurses who were in the same car, a healthy four-pound baby boy was born to an immigrant passenger, and when the train pulled into Winnipeg both mother and child were reported to be well, and were taken to the Misericordia Hospital for care.

U. S. WITHDRAWS RESERVATIONS

Does Not Want To Exclude Trained Reserves From Limitation of Armies.

AIR FORCE FOR LEAGUE.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 26. —(C.P.)—Hugh S. Gibson, United States' disarmament spokesman, announced at the meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament to-day that the United States would withdraw its reservation to the exclusion of trained reserves from any limitation of armies.

The announcement came as a surprise to the conference, which had just listened to one sensational proposal from the Spanish delegation, asking the establishment of an international force of "peace" aviators, to be stationed at Geneva and placed at the disposition of the Council of the League of Nations.

Endorsed by Spain.

The Spanish delegate, Sr. Cobian, said that his suggestion was based on the idea of Clifford B. Harmon, who recently presented such a plan to the conference in a letter which was read from the chair by President Loudon.

The Spanish spokesman said his nation was strongly in favor of what Harmon has called "the silver wings of peace," and he said he adhered warmly to the idea. Harmon's organization, the International League of Aviators, of which he is president, Sr. Cobian said, was highly esteemed in Spain.

Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian spokesman, opposed the suggestion, claiming it was outside the scope of the commission and would create new armaments instead of suppressing them. He resented too its possible implication of penalties against nations.

Cobian rejoined that no organization could be more useful in the consolidation of world peace. It would prove, he said, the beginning of a movement which was certain to put an end to races in armaments.

President Loudon sent the proposal to the council of the League of Nations, ruling that the commission had no mandate to consider it.

PRINCE FLIES TO BOGNOR

LONDON, April 26. —(Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales motored to Hendon and took off in an airplane this morning for Craigwell House, at Bognor, to visit his father and mother.

The Prince arrived safely at the airdrome near Bognor at noon and was driven to Craigwell House.

Seventy-one Are Reported Killed; Hundreds Injured

STATESBORO, COUNTY SEAT OF BULLOCK COUNTY IS HEAVIEST HIT, WITH 30 DEAD IN ONE HOSPITAL

Call Is Sent Out To Health Authorities For Anti-tetanus Serum and For Nurses—Tornadoes Are Accompanied By Hail and Rain Storms.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 26 (Canadian Press). — The total known dead in the tornado-stricken sections of Georgia and South Carolina reached 71 to-day. Several hundred persons were injured.

Twelve persons killed at Statesboro, in Bullock County, Georgia, swelled the known death-list, which this morning stood at 39 in the two states, to above the half hundred mark.

More than 100 persons were injured by the tornadoes, which dipped down in widely scattered communities, demolishing houses and farm buildings and left scores homeless.

The greatest destruction was wrought in South Georgia, sixty-five of the reported dead being in that section. The other six in the death list were in South Carolina.

Statesboro, Ga., the county seat of Bullock County, near Savannah, was the heaviest hit. The hospital there reported that more than thirty persons were dead and many others injured. A call came from Statesboro to the Georgia Board of Health for anti-tetanus serum and for nurses.

Two Tornadoes.

Metter, the seat of Candler County, reported nineteen known dead from two tornadoes which were accompanied by hail and a downpour of rain. One struck at 8.10 last night and the second at 11 o'clock.

Cochran, seat of Bleckley County, approximately sixty miles south of Macon, reported five dead and injuries to approximately fifty. First reports from Cochran had fixed the death-list at a greater number, but later reports revised these figures.

Summary of injured and dead by communities:

Cochran, 51 dead, more than 100 injured.

Dexter, 2 dead, more than 50 injured.

Metter, 25 dead, more than 100 injured.

Rentz, 1 dead, one dozen injured.

Statesboro, 30 dead, more than 100 injured.

Morristown, 2 dead, several injured.

Emanuel County, 2 reported dead.

Pelzer, S.C., 3 dead.

Anderson, S.C., 1 dead.

BELL ENGINEER GIVES ADDRESS TO INSTITUTE

Telephotography, the Transmission of Photographs By Electricity Described.

INSTRUMENTS EXPLAINED.

Telephotography, the transmission of photographs by electricity, was the subject of an illustrated and rather abstrusely technical address by W. A. Dancey, of the Transmission Engineering department of the Bell Telephone Company, Montreal, to members and guests of the Engineering Institute last night.

The subject was approached and expanded from the scientific viewpoint, but in its general outline came within the range of the laymen's limited knowledge of electricity and its practical uses.

Telephotography has received its chief commercial support from metropolitan newspapers and also from news agencies. Although it is still in the experimental stage, it has already demonstrated its efficiency in sending photographs by wire over long distances. For instance, the photograph of some event in New Yorok may appear in the newspapers not only of New York but also of Los Angeles, San Francisco or other remote cities on the same day. Or it may be cabled to London. That is its service, the reproducing of pictures at a distance, and its speed is indicated by its actual accomplishment of sending a 5-inch by 7-inch photograph from New York to Chicago in seven minutes. Probably a half to three-quarters of an hour would be required to develop the film at the receiving end, and only the process of making a newspaper "cut" or photo-engraving remains in the final stage of getting the picture into the paper."

Telephone Suggests Method

Mr. Dancey suggested telephony as an analogy in opening his lecture. Most persons have a telephone in their homes, but considerably fewer than most of them understand the principles of its operation. The telephone simply transmits sound waves or frequency. Sound is the activating element. In telephotography, light is the activitating element, but only the sublime genius of science achieved that magic, and it is not yet complete.

When a person speaks into the transmitter of the telephone its diaphragm reacts to the sound waves from the voice, thereby affecting the intervening current, so that the corresponding diaphragm in the receiver

FOUR NEW HOUSES BUILDING RECORD

Permits Issued All Provide For Dwellings On Douglas Avenue.

Something in the nature of a record not likely to be approached in many days, was established at the City Engineer's office on Thursday, when no less than four building permits were issued providing for the erection of a like number of dwellings, all on Douglas Avenue in the southwest section of the city.

Contractor R. Henry was granted permission to erect two dwellings on Lots 29 and 30, bordering on that street, each structure of a value approximating $2,600, while O. A. Letellier came in a while later and took out permits for two dwellings, each to cost $2,500, to be erected on Lots 16 and 18. One of the first two-named will be finished by July 1, the second by August 1, and the last two by September 1. The houses which Contractor Henry will build are described elsewhere, while one of those by Mr. Letellier will be 34 feet by 24 feet, on concrete foundation, with brick veneer walls, one story high, and of five rooms. Brick and tile chimneys, prepared roofing, an electric fireplace and a hot air heating system will be features. The house for Lot 18 will be similarly built, save that it will be two feet wider, and will have six rooms instead of five.

No. 4 — April 26, 1929

CAN A HOSPITAL REFUSE A PATIENT ADMISSION?

Section 18 of the Ontario Hospital Act provides that:

"No hospital receiving aid (meaning Government grant) shall refuse to admit, and care for, any sick person brought to it while suffering from any disease other than a COMMUNICABLE DISEASE, notice of which is by the Public Health Act, or by the regulations thereunder, require to be placarded."

Hence the hospitals are forced to accept patients, and the means of collection for its services are: by the patient paying for that service, or it being paid by the municipality at the rates provided for in the Act.

FINNISH CHILDREN ALLEGED TO HAVE TRAMPLED UNION JACK THE POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING

Sudbury Committee Petitions Government To Have Vapaus Suspended.

RESIDENTS ASSIST.

Timmins Parents Ordered Children To Trample Flag in Dust.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press). — An alleged flag-trampling incident at Timmins, Ontario, is under investigation by District Inspector Moore, Cobalt, Ontario. Moore was instructed to investigate by General Victor Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial Police.

According to reports received here by Commissioner Williams, Finnish residents of Timmins are reported to have hauled down a union jack from a school building and to have ordered their children, pupils of the school, to trample it in the dust. They are then alleged to have torn the flag to shreds.

Other Finnish "Communist" activities were also received here yesterday when Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, received a petition from a Sudbury committee, representing, it was claimed, the whole of the English-speaking and French speaking population of Sudbury, is presenting to the Dominion parliament, and through which suppression of the Finnish language newspaper, "Vapaus" of Sudbury is sought.

The petition claims that "Vapaus" has published for a number of years and continues to publish articles of a "seditious, immoral, anti-Christian anti-Canadian, and anti-British character."

The petitioners point out, too, that the Finnish government for the past four years has refused Vapaus the right of entry into Finland, and that mail is rigidly examined to prevent copies passing through.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

WELLAND, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Accidental death, with no blame attached to the railroad officials, was the verdict returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Oscar Gaiser and his sister, Adia, of Chantler, Ont. Gaiser and his sister were killed a week ago when the motor truck in which they were riding was struck by a train.

CROWN ARGUES AUGER APPEAL

Hearing, Which Began Wednesday, Will Continue To-day.

UPHOLDS TRIAL JUDGE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press). — With the arguments of counsel for the Crown unfinished, the hearing of the appeal of Louis M. Auger, former member of Parliament, sentenced to nine years' imprisonment for an offence against a young girl, will be continued to-day. The hearing began on Wednesday.

I. A. Humphries, K.C., opened the argument against the appeal and contended there was no evidence the girl had kissed Auger voluntarily, a point stressed by defence counsel. He said the girl had gone to Auger's room in the Parliament Buildings for the purpose of getting a job, and there was no hint of any affection on her part for the young parliamentarian.

Minimizes Fact.

Counsel minimized the fact adduced by the defence of the girl having told the hairdresser she wanted to look nice as she "had a date with an M.P." The appointment with the hairdresser had been made a week before, and she had also told the hairdresser about the possibility of getting a job through Auger.

Dealing with the evidence submitted by the defence Mr. Humphries said it was not the duty of the trial judge to go about with a microscope looking to pick up a small piece of evidence like that given by the hairdresser relative to an appointment or as to how loud the cries would have to be to be heard in the corridor or in the adjoining room.

In his argument for the defence, A. G. Slaght, K.C., contended the trial judge had misdirected and non-directed the jury. He stressed the necessity of the judge emphasizing the fact that there was no corroboration.

WE'LL SELL OURS.

PARIS, April 26.—It's worth a lot more than $250 just to get rid of a cold. But M. Gautron was awarded that amount for just catching one. He sued his employer for damage the alleged result of "sniffles" caught in 1913 and the First Chamber of the Seine Tribunal awarded him $250.

FEW HEADLIGHTS ON OFFICAL NOTES

Canada accepts the proposal of the United States that the I'm Alone incident be submitted to arbitration as provided for in the convention between Great Britain and the United States in 1924, to which Canada adhered.

The I'm Alone was a schooner of Lunenburg, N.S. registry, equipped with engines and sails. The United States notes refer to her as "a notorious smuggling vessel." The Canadian notes admit she had for some years been in the liquor-smuggling business.

On March 20 last, the I'm Alone was sighted off the coast of United States, having cleared from Belize, British Honduras, with a cargo of liquor.

The schooner was ordered to heave to by the captain of the United States coastguard cutter Wolcott. Capt. Randell of the I'm Alone refused and proceeded out to sea. After the Wolcott had fired through the sails and rigging of the schooner, the gun on the cutter jammed, according to the United States notes, and she asked for assistance from the coastguard headquarters.

On March 22, another coastguard vessel, the Dexter, came up and ordered the I'm Alone to heave to. On the continued refusal of the latter, the Dexter shelled the schooner and ultimately sank her, some two hundred miles from shore. One member of the crew of the I'm Alone was drowned.

The situation is not altered, the United States sets forth, by the fact the cutter that hailed the "I'm Alone" was not the one that sank her. Both cutters were under the same command and co-operating, is the argument.

The Canadian Government contends that to make use of the privileges of "hot pursuit," the vessel must be hailed within the territorial waters, three miles. It also contends the United States ships exceeded their rights even had the hailing been within the required limits, in pursuing the ship so far into the high seas.

* * *

With regard to the actual sinking of the vessel, United States placed the blame on the captain of the "I'm Alone" in not obeying the order of the coastguard officials. The Canadian Government disagrees with this.

The Canadian notes assert that the evidence shows the coastguard officers could have boarded the "I'm Alone," and that the firing on the schooner and the putting of the crew in irons gave the impression of distinctly punitive intent.

Canada is anxious solely to uphold the performance of treaty obligations and to maintain in full integrity the rules which protect the freedom of traffic on the high seas, the Canadian notes explain.

The United States takes the position that if the vessel is hailed within "one' hour's sailing" of shore, the coastguard ships are permitted to follow and capture her regardless of distance, provided the chase has been continuous.

The convention of 1924 gave the United States authorities, in its suppression of rum-running, certain privileges of search and seizure outside the territorial waters, which extend three miles from shore. The convention permits search and seizure of vessels suspected of endeavoring to smuggle liquor into the United States, within the distance from the United States coast that the suspected vessel can traverse in one hour

The two Governments are at variance not only as to the distance the I'm Alone was from shore when first hailed, but how many knots she could travel in an hour.

The United States coastguard authorities claimed the schooner was 10½ miles off shore when hailed and that she was capable of travelling over 13 knots an hour.

The officers of the schooner claimed they were 14½ miles from the shore and that the best speed the I'm Alone had ever obtained was 9½ knots.

* * *

Accordingly, the two Governments disagree as to whether the coastguard officials had any right to interfere with the I'm Alone when she was first hailed.

STREET CAR IS HIT BY TRAIN

REMARKABLE ESCAPES.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—John Petrick, Hamilton, sustained serious injuries here yesterday when a freight train crashed into a street car at a level crossing in the east end of the city. Fifteen other passengers in the street car escaped with minor injuries.

That the smash was not more serious is nothing short of a miracle. The occupants of the car were thrown to the floor, tossed about and showered with flying glass as the car was pushed off the rails and thrown on its side.

Petrick was rushed to the hospital, where it was stated his condition was serious.

The street car was given a signal to proceed over the railway tracks, and it had just got half-way across when the freight train crashed into it.

U. S. FARM RELIEF BILL PASSES CONGRESS BY BIG MAJORITY

Measure Is Steam Rollered Under House of Representative Rules.

$500,000 GRANTED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26. — (C.P.)—The Hoover administration farm bill was passed by the House of Representatives yesterday by a vote of 37 to 34. Of the opposing votes, only two were Republicans, the others Democrats, mostly from consuming centres like New York.

The measure was steam-rollered under the house rules. Attempts to inject amendments covering such controversial subjects as debenture and equalization were ruled out as not germane. A final effort to recommit was defeated by a standing vote of 302 to 63.

While the House machinery worked relentlessly and monotously there was no enthusiasm on the Republican side. The measure is clearly an administration program, which sets the old McNary-Haugen measure and those who voted for it privately voicing the conviction that they were granting President Hoover a blank cheque to handle the farm problem as he pleases.

The bill carries an appropriation of $500,000,000, called a stabilization fund, but privately described as a camouflaged subsidy, which the treasury will have to lose eventually. There is provision for a farm board under the President's control, a system of stabilizing corporations and plans for the encouragement of co-operatives.

NEWS IN BRIEF

REPRESENT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

GUELPH, Ont., April 26.—(C. P.)—Appointed to represent the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the meeting of the General Assemblies of the different churches of that denomination in Scotland and Ireland, Rev. Dr. A. J. MacGillivray, Guelph, former Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, will leave for the Old Country on May 10.

UNKNOWN DRIVER BLAMED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press). — The driver of an unknown car was found by a coroner's jury here last night to have been partly responsible for the death of William John Maginnis, 74. Maginnis was killed when a car driven by David Menzies mounted the sidewalk and struck him. Menzies is being held on a charge of manslaughter. The driver of the unknown car, according to Menzies, "cut in" on him, forcing him to lose control of his machine, which mounted the sidewalk, striking Maginnis.

FALLS NINETY FEET.

PORT ARTHUR, April 26.—(C.P.)—Alexander McKenzie, residing on Donald street, Fort William, who was in charge of the annex at the eastern terminal elevator here, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon, when he fell 90 feet into the bottom of an empty bin. McKenzie was married. The cause of his fatal fall is unknown.

TORNADOES IN NEBRASKA.

OMAHA, Neb., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Tornadoes, rain, snow, hail and sleet raked Nebraska yesterday, causing heavy property damage and injuring at least two persons. While two tornadoes struck in Eastern Nebraska, the western section of the state was being swept by snow and rain.

STEAMER IS SAFE.

PORT ARTHUR, April 26 (Canadian Press).—The steamer Champlain, reported as not being past the Sault, is now sailing down the Welland Canal, en route to Montreal. She was not reported in the Sault passages, because she was a cargoless boat.

FIGHTIN' IRISH

CORK, Irish Free State, April 26. —When De Valera ordered his little army of Irish followers to lay down their arms five years ago, everyone of them did—except Cornelius Healy. "One-Eyed Gunner of the Sarostat," as he was known, marched all over the country, carrying a machine gun on his shoulder, and started his own little war whenever he got the chance. Free State police, however, have decided that Healy will be safer if boarded by the state for the rest of his life. He was caught one night at his home—and the war is ended.

Bishop of Ontario Visits Marmora Parish

CHURCH GROWTH PARALLEL WITH THAT OF EMPIRE

More Than 150 Sat Down At Banquet in Marmora Town Hall.

BISHOP IS PRESENT.

History of Anglican Church Dates Back to Year 683.

MARMORA, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—With tables most artistically arranged and graced with choicest of blooms, more than one hundred and fifty sat down at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening to a sumptuous banquet which was served by the ladies of the Anglican parish of Marmora, the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Right Rev. C. A. Seager, D.D., being the chief guest and special speaker of the evening. Other clergy present were the Rev. G. Sparling, of Bannockburn, and the Rev. M. J. C. Levason, of Rawdon. The rector of Marmora, Rev. A. B. Caldwell was toastmaster for the occasion. At the conclusion of the Royal toast, he welcomed the gathering and referred to the object in bringing all Anglicans together that the financial needs of the parish might be better known. He also extended thanks to the Ladies' Guild for its general labors and in particular that of arranging the banquet. S. B. Wright, rector's warden, in a short but choice speech proposed the toast to "The Church of England." "Few," he said, "realized the great heritage we have in this church, which dates back to the year 683.

Delivers Inspiring Speech.

Bishop Seager, replying, gave an inspiring speech. He said that churchfolk should never think of their congregation as apart from their Bishop. He had himself the deepest personal, as well as official, interest in the parish of Marmora. The root problem of a Bishop, he declared, is the kind of leaders he has in the various parishes. His Lordship then referred to the appointment of the present rector and the pleasure with which he had observed his success since coming to the parish. Replying to the specific toast, he said that out of the great things to be said about the church two or three things he would mention. First the greatness of the heritage in the old Church of England was realized by few. What a wonderful church it was, this great fellowship in episcopacy. Though more than 1,500 years of history were behind her, the Anglican Church was still new and strong in development. Her growth had been practically parallel with that of the British Empire. The British Empire was a new thing. It was only about a century ago that Britishers awoke to the fact that they had an Empire.

Mission Work in Church.

Touching on the world wide spread of the Anglican communion, the Bishop referred to missions in Africa, India and China. The Bishop's second point was the fundamental principle of Anglicanism. The church is represented by the sum total of dioceses and not by the sum total of parishes. Every loyal Anglican will think of the church in terms not of the church but of the diocese. The diocese is the wheel of which the parish is the spoke. Bishop Seager warned against the disaster of localism. He claimed that the great trouble in Canada today is that people are locally-minded. Upon the contact of English- speaking peoples with the peoples of the Orient, lies the great problem of the 20th century. The third and final point of the Bishop's message was that only in terms of that great principle can the greatness of local church work be understood.

T. Llewellyn Jones, having given a delightful violin solo, Rev. E. Bonter, people's warden, proposed the toast to "The Guests", Rev. G. Sparling and Rev. M. Levason responding. The toast to "The Ladies" was fittingly proposed by A. V. Yates to which Mrs. C. A. Bleecker made an eloquent reply. John Baker sang "Memories of France" receiving a deserved encore and T. Llewellyn Jones played some old favorites before the gathering dispersed.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

Prices were steady on an offering of 75 head of cattle at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. The supply was made up of a few fresh arrivals that reached the market by truck and a small hold-over from Wednesday.

Steers were sold at from $9.50 to $10.75 per cwt. Cows brought from $6.00 to $9.00 per cwt., with one weighed out at $9.25. Bulls were steady at from $8.00 to $8.25 per cwt. A half-dozen baby beeves changed hands at from $11.00 to $12.50 per cwt. Store cattle sales were confined to one load of feeders, weighing around 860 pounds, which were taken at $9.25 a cwt.

Calf Prices Steady.

The calf supply reached the market by truck, and sold steady at from $9.00 to $16.00 per cwt. No lambs or sheep were on the market. The hog market was unsettled, but indications were that sales would be made at the week's advance of 75 cents per cwt. Salesmen were asking $12.75 per cwt. for selects, f.o b. or $1.00 higher weighed off car, with road hogs at $13.50 per cwt.

Representative Sales.

Steers—10, 1090 lbs., $10.75; 2, 1120, $10.50; 2, 815, $10.00; 5, 970, $9.50.

Calves—2, 195, $16.00; 10, 203, $15.50; 1, 170, $15.00; 2, 170, $14.00; 2, 135, $13.00; 20, 136, $10.00; 1, 150, $9.00; 1, 80, $7.00.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 26.—Heavy offerings, which flooded the market whenever period prices showed signs of an upward swing, held yesterday's wheat market in check, and at the close final quotations revealed declines of 1c to 1⅜c.

Houses with seaboard connection brought a fair amount of wheat, and prevented the market from sinking to lower levels.

Dullness marked the cash wheat trading, although prices held steady. Nos. 4 and 6 wheat recorded advances of about ¼c to ½c, while the other grades remained unchanged.

Trading in the coarse grains was not heavy enough to effect the price trend, and all grades closed unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 26.—New low price records for the 1929 wheat crop were established yesterday by May, July and September deliveries. The downturn of values was simultaneous with a sudden, almost complete, suspension of export business in North American wheat and widespread beneficial moisture throughout the greater part of domestic wheat producing territory.

Selling Pressure Foreseen

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1½c to 2c to 2⅜c a bushel net lower. Corn finished at 1¼c net decline to ⅝c advance, oats ¼c to ½c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7c to 10c. A large part of the selling yesterday which pulled wheat prices down resulted from liquidation of May contracts on the part of holders who were adverse to accepting tenders of wheat as a means of settlement. Inasmuch as contracts for upward of 45,000,000 bushels of the May delivery of wheat here now were awaiting settlement and actual deliveries on such contracts will start within a week, the pressure of liquidating sales yesterday was not altogether unforseen. However, bearish sentiment which developed was given decided emphasis by news of rains and snow in domestic winter and spring wheat sections alike, and by the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations yesterday were lower, whereas some advance had been looked for. Besides, foreign selling here was in evidence, and the wheat crop of India was officially estimated at 20,000,000 bushels in excess of last.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, April 26.—Large supplies and lack of demand brought about another reduction in the price of butter on the wholesale produce market yesterday, and No. 1 finest creamery was quoted at the range of from 40 to 41 cents per lb. Dealers reported that prices are barely steady at the present levels, and the market gives every indication of an easier undertone.

Fresh New Zealand stock was unloaded on track locally yesterday, and word was received that the large shipment of 25,000 cases is being unloaded at Halifax. The mild weather has aided domestic production, and supplies from this source are increasing daily.

Quotations to the retail trade were as follows: No. 1 creamery, 44 cents per pound; No. 2 creamery, 43 cents.

Egg Prices Firm

The egg market was steady, and a firmer undertone was in evidence. Dealers reported large receipts from Ontario points, and movement into storage is active.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned were as follows: Fresh extras, 26 to 27 cents per dozen; firsts, 24 to 25 cents; and seconds, 21 to 22 cents per dozen.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 26.—Butter was a cent cheaper to the retail trade yesterday, jobbing houses announcing a reduction to 42c per pound for solids and 43c per pound for prints. This was the second decrease of the kind during the week, a reduction of 1c having been made on Monday. Receipts were 812 boxes.

The local cheese market was easier. Western No. 1 colored, which represents the bulk of current receipts, was selling as low as 18c per pound. Receipts were 201 boxes.

Egg Market Steady

The egg market ruled generally steady, with prices unchanged. Receipts were 3,365 cases.

The potato market yesterday was described as steady, but somewhat dull. Prices on track here, in carload lots, were 60c per 90 pounds in bulk for New Brunswick Green Mountains, with Prince Edward Island potatoes at 70c for whites and 80c to 85c for Green Mountains per 90 pounds, in bags.

CUTTEN SECURES STORE LEASES

Agreement Has Been Reached Between Guelph Merchants and Arthur W. Cutten.

WORK HAS STARTED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (C.P.).—Dispute between Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago financier, and four Guelph storekeepers in connection with securing their leases for the proposed Cutten Hotel in Guelph, is declared at Parliament Buildings to have been settled.

Mr. Cutten is reported to have offered to pay these storekeepers a substantial sum for release of the lease, as well as their book profits for a year of two years in order to secure the properties. Some of the storekeepers have kept no books, and the question as to what profits are for a year is being settled.

Work upon the golf course and recreation grounds donated for the use of students of the Ontario Agriculture College has been commenced. the students have started removing fences on the property in order to permit laying out the golf course.

Ontario Government loans, provided for by a $40,000,000 appropriation during the session, will not be floated for about a month, it is stated by the Provincial Treasurer's department. British Columbia is shortly floating their loans, and Ontario is waiting and watching to see how that province succeeds in view of the adverse condition of the money, and markets generally.

Safe and Comfortable

THE Ford car rolls down country roads as smoothly and comfortably as over trans-continental highways. Roomy front and rear compartments—lots of leg room, head room, body room—make it the ideal family car.

The safety features of the Ford car give driver and passengers a sense of security and well-being. They enable one to avoid dangers in traffic and the inbuilt strength of the car resists damage from the careless driving of "the other fellow."

DURABILITY—The durability of the Ford car has never been fully measured because one year of consistent driving leaves it like new. But it is possible to estimate by the materials that go into it, the finer alloy steels, higher grade equipment and better basic quality in every part, that many thousands of miles of service are built into its chassis.

SAFETY—The fully enclosed six brake system grips the flying wheels with silent power. The windshield is of shatterproof glass. An all-steel body gives maximum protection. At high speeds the unique and effective Ford spring and shock absorber system provides perfect balance.

COMFORT—Deeply upholstered seat cushions, set at a restful angle, match in comfort your easy chair. Large windows allow unobstructed vision and open wide in warm weather. Four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, and the unique Ford feature of transverse, semi-elliptic springs, give the effect of riding on air.

DEMONSTRATION—Ask your Ford dealer to let you drive a Ford car. He will be glad to take you out. Select the steepest hills, the heaviest going—you will be amazed at the power at your command. Head for the busiest streets. Drive alongside other cars. Try the quick getaway, the swift pickup in second, the easy gear-shift. Feel the smooth, sure action of the six brake system.

A demonstration will convince you of the outstanding merit of the Ford car. Drive it yourself, there is no better test.

Also request your Ford dealer to show you the hidden, inbuilt quality features of the car which make it so enduring.

TIME PAYMENT—If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the authorized time payment plan offered by all Ford dealers most attractive.

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW.

One argument that is being used in opposition to the Nicholls Hospital by-law is that outside patients are admitted to the institution, and that it is not reasonable that local ratepayers should be taxed to provide hospital accommodation for non-residents.

It is true that from time to time citizens of the surrounding district who are in need of hospital attention are taken care of in local hospitals, but such a condition cannot very well be avoided, and the number of such patients is not large enough to be a material factor in the situation.

This petty issue should not be allowed to distract attention from the main point, which is, that the Nicholls Hospital has not been able to keep pace with the growing demand for hospital services, and that the time has come when the enlarging and modernizing of the institution must be undertaken.

To argue that this great need should be disregarded because some outside patients are accommodated would be about as logical as having one's telephone taken out because occasionally a neighbor may use the 'phone in the case of an emergency call.

NEIGHBORLINESS.

(From Woodstock Sentinel Review)

Life in the big cities has its attractions, but neighborliness even among people who live in adjoining houses isn't one of them. The other day an automobile was left parked in one of the residential sections of Detroit for four days. People passed to and fro, never thinking it odd that the owner didn't drive off with his property—or if they did think of it, they didn't bother about it. Finally a policeman investigated and found that the car contained the lifeless body of a woman. The murderer merely disposed of the body by leaving it in the abandoned car, which turned out to be the easiest way to get rid of it without detection. It might have been there yet had the policeman not come along.

People in most big cities do not know and do not care who their neighbors are. They just go ahead minding their own business and expecting others to do the same. Sometimes it isn't safe or desirable to become too inquisitive, so they drop the idea of becoming acquainted. But they are thus missing one of the most coveted pleasures of life—neighborliness. The beauty of life in the smaller cities is enhanced by the ability to know and see one's friends, and to enjoy their company. That is why a city the size of Woodstock is the most ideal place of residence. One can have neighbors, and get the most sociability out of life. Life without neighborliness would be unbearable, to anyone who has become acquainted with the joy it puts into human existence.

GREAT MEN OF CANADA.

In referring in these columns yesterday to the successful convention of Ontario Liberal women in London, The Examiner stressed the importance of educating women voters in the issues of the day.

The value from a public viewpoint of such education, however, depends largely upon the fairness and accuracy with which these issues are discussed, and in this connection some portions of the speech of Mr. Sinclair are fairly open to criticism.

The reference is to the attack of the Liberal leader upon the book, "Great Men of Canada," issued by the Ontario Government for use in the schools of the Province.

Mr. Sinclair sought to leave the impression in the minds of his hearers that for political motives the names of such great Canadian Liberals as Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been deliberately omitted, and that the book was being circulated as political propaganda.

Yet he must have known—because the announcement was made last autumn—that the volume was only the first of two books, and that the second containing the names of those whose omission he criticized, as well as of Sir Adam Beck, Sir James Whitney and other well-known Canadians will be in circulation in a short time.

When the first volume was issued The Examiner, in common with many other papers, roundly condemned the leaving out of the names of Mowat and Laurier and other great men, but the explanation that the first volume dealt largely with famous Canadians of earlier days and that a second was to follow reviewing the careers of great Canadians in the period from Confederation onward, was accepted as satisfactory.

The second volume, as a matter of fact, is on the press, and will be available almost at once.

Yet Mr. Sinclair ignored the second book in his address, and as a result of what he said, the convention passed a resolution condemning "Great Men of Canada."

That is a matter for regret, for the two volumes, dealing as they do with the Canadians who have played a leading part in the development of this country, should be of great value in Ontario's schools.

It is of vital importance that our young people should have a more intimate knowledge of the men who helped to build the Canada of to-day.

These two books, exceedingly well written by John Henderson, cover a wide field, and it is unfortunate that their usefulness may be impaired by making them the subject of political attack.

For that, of course, the Premier, as well as the Liberal leader, must accept a share of the blame.

Mr. Ferguson could have averted criticism by prefacing the issue of the first volume with a statement that the second book, bringing the record up to date, was to follow, and Mr. Sinclair, in the light of his knowledge that the second volume did justice to the men he referred to was not justified in his attack of this week.

IN PRAISE OF HOCKEY.

Visitors to Canada from lands where ice hockey is practically unknown almost invariably comment upon the excellence of that sport, both as a game and as a spectacle. St. John Ervine, the celebrated English novelist and dramatic critic, who recently spent some months in New York and incidentally paid a visit to Montreal, is no exception to this rule, for he has written for the London Observer the following warm appreciation of a hockey match which he was privileged to witness in the course of his brief Canadian visit:

"In Montreal I was taken to see an ice hockey match between Montreal and Canadiens (spelt like that, for the team is French-Canadian), and I here and now announce that there is no other game that I had seen so thrilling, so stirring, so manifestly demanding in those who play it courage and resource and swiftness and skill, as ice hockey. The third Canadien goal was a beautiful feat, scored by a player who seemed to glide along the ice as swiftly and as effortlessly as a seagull when it flies down the wind with long motionless wings. He landed the "puck," disc of black rubber, so nicely in the net that one could not at first believe it was there. Ice hockey is a game. It does not cease to be enthralling for more than a moment or two. The men move with such ease and dexterity and grace that they might be stags in flight and the speed at which they move is greater than that of a racehorse. They twist and turn with amazing celerity, and their eyes seem to be extraordinarily true."

This praise, coming from such a source, cannot fail to prove of value. Nor is it undeserved. It is a pity that Mr. Ervine could not have visited Canada during the summer months and perhaps had an opportunity of observing a lacrosse match. He would then have found, as the London Advertiser rises to remark, that Canada has two games, and not merely one game, of the most thrilling order.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

OUR TRADE WITH U. S.

According to figures issued this week by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the value of goods sold by the United States to Canada in 1928 was $916,156,000, while the value of Canadian goods sold to the United States during the same period was $448,999,999—less than half the value of our purchases. And a very large percentage of our sales were raw materials which we might quite well manufacture here.

Put another way, it means that not far short of $500,000,000 of Canadian money went over the line and stayed there; a direct monetary export which no Canadian can contemplate with equanimity, although Premier Mackenzie King made a statement during the budget debate to the effect that it was more important to be "cool-headed" than "red-blooded."

At the present time Canadian trade is threatened with a raise of the U. S. tariff barriers, and history shows that every time that has happened, Canadian business has been depressed.

Canada is to-day the biggest customer of the United States. That suggests several things. One is that Canada must be prosperous to be able to spend over $900,000,000 a year over there. It suggests that the United States has cause to be chary about hitting Canada's trade lest it lose Canadian good-will as buyers. And it suggests that Great Britain, which formerly was the best customer of Uncle Sam, has been forced to buy from other sources, probably within the Empire, because the country cannot afford to pay the huge war debt and spend British money there as well.

The United States is anxious to sell all it can to other nations, but it is not willing to give a quid pro quo and enable the others to trade with them on something like reasonable terms. If it can keep out foreign merchandise from its home markets, keeping the home markets to the home producers, that is sound policy. More fools they who do not do the same thing!

What is the Canadian home market? It is not merely Canada, but the whole British Empire.

If within the next few months Sam adds another bar to the gates which shut us out, the policy for Canada is to seek markets with Great Britain and the other members of the far-flung British family.

Sir Herbert S. Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, a man who must study economics from the standpoint of national prosperity, regardless of political influences, said the other day:

> "If further handicaps are placed on the exports of Canada to the United States, it will be imperative for Canadians to seek more favorable trade agreements with other nations and to change the present relationship by the application of measures for their own protection. As a last resort it may be necessary to meet this situation by direct tariff increases and by granting further preference to Great Britain and to most-favored nations."

Retaliatory tariffs should be avoided as far as possible, but to some extent they may be a necessary policy for Canada in the near future. Even the threat of them may serve a useful purpose in keeping the proposed raise lower than it might otherwise be. At any rate, U. S. manufacturers are said to be not too enthusiastic about the Hoover proposals, aimed as they are at Canadian farmers, knowing that when Canadian farming is hurt, the Canadian manufacturer is going to suffer, too, and Canadian buying power is going to be reduced.

If Canada has to purchase hundreds of millions worth of manufactured goods, a shifting of the source of buying from the United States to other parts of the Empire is not going to make things any worse than they are. It merely means buying from a member of the family instead of from a "cold-blooded" neighbor who seemingly doesn't care much how we get along if he is all right himself.

The British Empire Marketing Board is doing splendid work in bringing British buyers in touch with each other. By exhibitions and by newspaper and poster campaigns, they are doing their utmost to stimulate Empire trade. It has already been the means of putting millions of dollars into Canadian business through channels which were unexplored before.

Preferences are somewhat ticklish things to deal with. But the wits of business men—not politicians—should be capable of working out plans by which intra-Empire trade can be expanded to mutual advantage without injuring each other's markets at home.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A Thought

WORDS OF WISDOM.

One wants a temple beside the outdoor temple—a place where human beings do not ramble apart but meet with a common impulse. And as true worship can never be selfish, so, though it may have in it an element of mysticism, it will never be unpractical. Divine service consists not in ceremonial, not yet wholly in gratification of personal desires after the Infinite, but in labor for the brotherhood. The work of Jesus Christ must be the work of His Church. Such work is worship. The passionate longing of men fired by the vision of Christ and sustained by Him is to do the Father's will on earth as it is done in heaven. There is room yet for a witness of that inward life which draws out nourishment from the hidden love of God, and bears rich fruit in holy fellowship, blessed by the unity of a common consciousness that God, the world, and humanity are one.

—George Eliot.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

AS A DOG

I never saw a man so poor
A dog would not attend him;
And, brother, let us hope that you're
As ready to befriend him.
A ragged coat, a tattered glove,
Meant not a thing to Rover;
A hope man finds that kind of love
In men the whole world over.

I never knew a man so gray,
So bent with toil and sorrow,
A dog would follow him today,
And turn aside tomorrow.
I hope that men who saw his brow
Grow old with care and labor
Are just as glad to greet him now
And call him friend and neighbor.

I never knew a man so bad,
However he might sin him,
But that some dog could find he had
Some goodness still within him.
I hope, as through this world we jog,
This life that we are living,
That we're as faithful as a dog,
As friendly, as forgiving.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

XXIV

There was another eloquent silence. Mollie lay back on her pillows, the color dying from her face

"How do you know?"

"Never mind, but—"

"You have seen him?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"At the beginning of the week when he was up in town. He wrote and asked me to meet him."

"And you never told me?"

"I was afraid to."

Mollie gave a short laugh.

"Saint Ana and Saint Anthony!" she sneered. "Well, what did he tell you?"

"Not very much. He wanted to know if I—if you—"

"If I'd made a confidante of you. Yes, go on."

"I said I didn't know anything except that you were friendly with Mr. Mahon." Ana stretched out an imploring hand. "Don't look like that! If I wasn't fond of you I shouldn't be here."

"Fond of me!" Mollie pushed her hand away. "Nobody's fond of me—I've come to that conclusion," she said harshly. "I suppose I'm not the sort that people really love." She closed her eyes and lay still for a moment, then she said again: "That explains why he was so strange the other night. He wouldn't stay with me—he got another room."

"Oh!" Ana rose and went over to the window. "Do you mind if I pull up the blind? It's so dark."

She did not wait for permission; she drew it up, letting in the sunshine.

"What else did he say?" Mollie asked in a hard little voice.

"I can't remember, but I think someone had been talking to him."

"Phillis, I expect," Mollie said. "I always hated her." She threw the bedclothes aside. "What is he going to do?" she asked.

"Do?—he didn't say." Ana could not look at her. She was wishing with all her soul she had not come, and yet—"I had to, I had to" — she thought hopelessly.

She turned suddenly.

"Don't be a little fool, Mollie," she implored. "Think what you are throwing away. It's for all your life, you know—and you did love him once!"

"I loved acid drops once," Molie said with bitter mirth.

She looked very young and sweet as she sat on the side of the bed, staring down at the floor. Her hair was rumpled like a child's, and her throat and shoulders were white and beautiful above the loose folds of her nightgown.

"It's his fault as much as mine!" she broke out with passion, after a moment. "His fault and the fault of that hateful Africa! I loathe it! I won't go back, I won't"—and suddenly she began to cry, petulantly, like a child. "I've begged him to bring me home to live and he won't," she sobbed.

"How can he? His work is out there," Ana said.

"Besides, you were happy enough at first, weren't you?"

"I never was. I don't know why I married him—because he didn't seem to want me, I suppose—you don't understand, Ana, you're such a dull life. I must be fuss of, and admired—and out there's nobody! nobody!"

"There's Anthony, and you married him for love," Ana said.

It seemed a crude joke that she should be pleading for the man whom she wanted with all her heart and soul for herself. With every word she was undermining the foundations of her own happiness, and yet she knew she must go on—leaving no stone unturned.

"What did you say to him?" Mollie asked with a sob. "I suppose you must have said something?"

"I said I was sure you had done nothing wrong—that you were just fond of attention and flattery."

"I've never had any from him, anyway!" Mollie said fiercely. She got out of bed and put on her dressing-gown. "My head is just splitting," she sobbed.

"That is because you were out so late last night," Ana told her. She looked out of the window again.

The sun was shining and felt warm upon her face, and for a moment she shut her eyes and thought of Anthony down by the sea.

Walking along the sands with the General, perhaps—perhaps thinking of her. She caught her breath with a sharp little sound of pain and turned.

"Tell him the truth, Mollie," she implored. "When you go back today tell him the truth—all about the money and everything. He's so—decent"—she choked a little over her stumbling defence of the man she adored. "He wouldn't be hard on you. But you don't need me to tell you that."

"Well, then, you come with me," she said suddenly. "Anthony likes you. Anthony will listen to you. I'm afraid of him. I'm afraid to go alone."

Afraid! Ana felt her heart turn cold. Was Mollie more than just vain and foolish after all?

"You can't possibly be afraid of him," she said hoarsely. "Nobody could."

Mollie caught her hand.

"You come with me, Ana. I've got nobody but you, and Anthony will believe what you say."

"No, no, I couldn't."

"Why not? You're alone. Miss Sawyer is away, isn't she?"

"Yes, but—"

"Be kind to me, Ana—I'll never forget it, I swear. Come down with me, and things will be all right, I am sure they will—Anthony will believe what you say." The same old coward cry.

"I can't! I can't!" Ana drew her hand away. "It's not my business—he would hate me to interfere. Don't be a coward. He's your husband—if he—loves you—" The words were dragged from her.

"That's what I'm not sure about any more," Mollie wailed. "He did love me at first, I know, but lately—" She broke off, wringing her hands. "I know what it will be," she said, suddenly calm. "He will take the General away from me."

Ano looked at her with tragic eyes.

"Do you love the General so much?" she asked slowly.

Mollie's face quivered.

"He's all I do love in the world," she said pathetically. "I know I'm not as nice to him as I might be—but I love him all the same, and if Anthony tried to take him away—" Her face flamed passionately. "I'll kill him if he tries to," she cried.

Ana made no answer.

"Why did I come! Why did I come!" she was asking herself again frantically. She felt as if with every spoken word Anthony was slipping farther from her.

Mollie began to dress with feverish hands.

"I'll catch the earlier train. I didn't mean to go till the afternoon, but I'll catch the earlier train. Ring for my bill, will you? and ask for some tea. I can't eat anything, it would choke me."

Ana obeyed silently.

She had never seen Mollie like this before. Was it genuine, she wondered? Genuine love for the General and fear of losing him, or was it—guilt?

She hated herself for the thought, but she could not dispel it; Mollie talked away all the time; she seemed to be regaining her confidence.

"Things will be all right, you see," she said more cheerfully. "I've always been able to manage Anthony before—he'll believe what I tell him. It's kind of you to have come, Ana, but I think you are exaggerating things." She even laughed a little. "I can get Tony back in two minutes," she declared. "He's jealous, that's what it is!"

"And do you think you will be able to explain about the money?" Ana asked. Her limbs had gone icy cold and felt like dead. She was losing Anthony of her own will.

"I suppose I shall have to tell him the truth about that," she admitted with a little grimace. "But it will blow over. He ought to give me pretty things himself if he doesn't like me taking them from other men. How do you like this frock, Ana?" She pirouetted in front of the mirror like a little peacock.

"Did Ralph Mahon give it to you?" Ana asked bitterly, and then could have bitten her tongue through.

Mollie flushed scarlet to the roots of her hair.

"And supposing he did?" she demanded shrilly.

Ana's self-control gave way.

"I should like to thrash you," she stormed passionately. "You are bad and wicked. How dare you behave as you do when life has given you so much to be thankful for? You ought to be eternally grateful for what you've got when you look round and see how little other people have. You ought to thank God for your happiness, and instead, all you do is to run about after rotten men like Ralph Mahon and take money and presents from them—men who are not fit to black Anthony's boots. Haven't you got any pride or self-respect? Aren't you ashamed? Why, I would rather die than take a farthing of Mahon's money, and I haven't got anything at all—not anything!" She stopped, breathless and panting. Mollie was very white, but there was an ugly sneering smile on her lips.

"I'm afraid you'd never have the chance to take any man's money, my dear Ana!" she said cruelly. "But you don't seem to mind taking it from Anthony or from me—we've kept you for more than three months, remember."

It was an unpardonable thing to say, but both girls had entirely lost their self-control.

"And as for preaching at me," Mollie went on hoarsely, "I think you've got rather a nerve to say anything, when I know, if anybody else does, that you are head over ears in love with Anthony yourself."

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Evidence of the necessity for continuation of the activities of the Canadian Legion is contained in two reports recently issued. One of these reports tells that 99,561 artificial legs, 2,928 artificial arms, 50,644 orthopedic boots, 1,606 peg legs, and 147,898 minor orthopedic appliances have been issued to Canadian soldiers, while optical supplies, such as artificial eyes, number 26,552. More than 125,000 repairs have been made to these appliances.

All of these war-scarred men require constantly increasing care as years go by, and the Canadian Legion exists to see that they receive it. There is no other organization through which their cases can be properly presented to the government branches charged with their care.

The above, with the 152 Canadian blinded soldiers, are the obvious cases. There are thousands of other cases, where soldiers signed out of the army as "A1" and now find unsuspected disabilities, such as result from gas and internal injuries. These are the difficult cases, and it is gratifying to know that the Peterborough branch of the Legion has succeeded in obtaining relief for many such.

It is this work which justifies the support of the public. It is not the desire of the people that the men who fought for Canada should suffer because of their service.

One way to implement the desire to safeguard these men is by supporting the Legion in its efforts, and the Legion will next month extend the opportunity through its carnival.

The money is urgently needed to bring up the Legion relief fund, and the method taken to garner funds will not work hardships on anyone.

Tickets, good for admission AND full value for the ten cents inside the carnival, will be on sale at the end of this week.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY ONE MAN'S FOOD IS ANOTHER MAN'S POISON.

We are all alike in kind, but we differ enormously in degree. The similarity extends to all the races of man. There is some dispute whether or not in the remote past there were several species of homo. It is generally agreed among the authorities that of the living creatures called man there is but one living species. The attempt to classify the races according to color or other physical or mental traits is purely arbitrary.

All men seem to have the same kind of a body, at least in general outlines. One may be three feet tall and another nine. One man may weigh less than a hundred pounds, while another will tip the beam well over five hundred pounds. One may be a Shakespeare while another may be an imbecile. One may be a saint and another a sinner. One may sing like a nightingale while another will scarcely be able to croak. Despite all these wide differences of body and mind, men are men. They share common feelings, emotions, instincts, sensibilities. For every man, water drowns and fire burns. All are born and all must die.

Physical differences are obvious. The mental differences are probably more pronounced and more numerous. There are differences of temperament, of sharpness of senses, of special talent and aptitude—in brief, there is a difference of degree for very physical and mental trait.

That is why it is both literally and figuratively true that one man's food is another man's poison. Some stomachs will digest the toughest kind of food, while others will not take the simplest. In beverages some can stow away the strongest concoctions, while others can't stand the weakest. The habitual user of narcotics can get away with a dose that would kill a person not used to it.

If the fundamental likeness of all human beings were recognized there would be less race prejudice and a better feeling of sympathy and cooperation. On the other hand, if men realized the differences they would not try to do the impossible. Because some man can make money in the stock market is no sign that you can do it. Because most men can't run a hundred yards in less than ten seconds is no sign that you can't do it.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him, care of this paper, sending a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Australian Memorial Costs $1,250,000

SYDNEY, Australia, April 26.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—Anzac Day, set aside to mark the famous landing of the Australian and New Zealand troops at Gallipoli with the aid of strong naval forces, on April 25, 1915, was fittingly commemorated throughout Australia and New Zealand yesterday. The outstanding New South Wales feature was the march of 20,000 ex-service men at Sydney.

At Canberra, the federal capital, an impressive memorial service was attended by Premier Stanley Bruce and his cabinet, while Lord Stonehaven, Governor-General of Australia, unveiled the commemoration stone of Australia's war memorial, which will cost $1,250,000.

struction of a vessel by shell fire on the high seas, accompanied by loss of life, after a pursuit lasting for two days."

Under One Command

The United States note sets forth that the duration of the pursuit is immaterial provided the other elements of hot pursuit are present. With respect to the objection that the Wolcott, the original pursuing vessel, was not the one which sank the I'm Alone, the United States note points out that the Wolcott and Dexter were "operating conjointly as a unit of the same force and under one command." The Wolcott had been in continuous pursuit of the I'm Alone but was forced to call the Dexter to her assistance after she had jammed her gun.

The intention of the United States coastguard vessel Dexter, when she joined in the pursuit of the I'm Alone, was clearly to sink the vessel, the Canadian note sets forth. The Dexter did not join in the pursuit "merely with the intention of rendering her helpless as might have been done for example, by drippling her rudder." The result had been "that the vessel was deliberately sunk and the crew plunged into the sea in imminent peril of drowning with the result, in fact, of the death of one member of the crew."

Opportunity Given to Surrender

In answering to this, the United States note points out that "The captain of the I'm Alone could at any time have signalled his readiness to comply with the coastguard's request, thus putting an end to all danger either to his vessel or to himself and his crew."

The commanding officer of the Dexter, as well as the master of the Wolcott, repeatedly commanded the I'm Alone to stop and made every possible effort to force it to do so before sinking it, the United States note declared. It expresses regret at the loss of the life of Leon Maingui, the member of the I'm Alone crew who was drowned, but, in this connection, it declares that the captain of the 'Im Alone "had it within his power to remove at any time, prior to the sinking of the vessel, the danger in which the lives of the members of his crew were placed, by complying with the order to stop."

The denial of Captain Randell, of the "I'm Alone" that he ever threatened to use force if an attempt was made to board his vessel, or that he flourished a revolver at any time during the pursuit, is pointed out in the Canadian note. This is an answer to a declaration in the United States note that the captain of the "I'm Alone" had threatened the pursuing vessels if they attempted to board him. The first Canadian note sets forth at length, the efforts which have been made by Canada to recoprocate and assist the United States in the enforcement of the prohibition laws of the latter country. This co-operation is acknowledged by the United States government.

Accept Proposals.

The main United States note concludes with an offer of arbitration, if the Canadian government finds itself unable to concur in the findings set forth by the United States. The Canadian government, in its final note, dated April 24, expresses regret that the two governments have been unable to reach similar conclusions as to the facts in the case or the applicable principles of law.

"Both governments," it points out, "have an interest in the full and strict observance of international agreements, and it is desirable that a definite agreement be reached as to the interpretation of the treaty provisions which is to be accepted."

The Dominion Government then accepts the proposal of the United States to arbitrate the question.

DIRECTORS TO MEET IN MONTREAL FRIDAY

Lake Superior Corporation Will Appoint Successor to Robert Dodds.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26. (C.P.)—Home Smith, Toronto, director of the Lake Superior Corporation, announced to-day that a meeting of the directors of the company will be held in Montreal next Friday when the matter of the appointment of a successor to Robert Dodd as president, will be considered.

Mr. Dodd's resignation through ill-health, was announced at a meeting of the Board on Wednesday. He will retain his directorships in the Lake Superior Corporation, and the Algoma Steel Corporation. Mr. Smith, who accompanied the former president on a European trip recently said that his colleague was in poor health and unable to stand the strain imposed by his duties as president.

Mr. Smith was optimistic regarding the future of the Corporation and Algoma Steel, declaring that Steel earnings continued excellent.

After Irregular Start Wheat Scores Advance

CHICAGO, Ills., April 26.—C.P.)—After an irregular start in which new low record prices for the season were touched, wheat to-day scored something of an advance. Passage of the farm relief bill in the House was construed as moderately bullish opening at 1 3-8c. to 1-8c. up, wheat later rose all around to above yesterday's finish. Corn and oats developed firmness likewise, with corn starting 1-4c. off to 5-8c. up, and subsequently showing general gains.

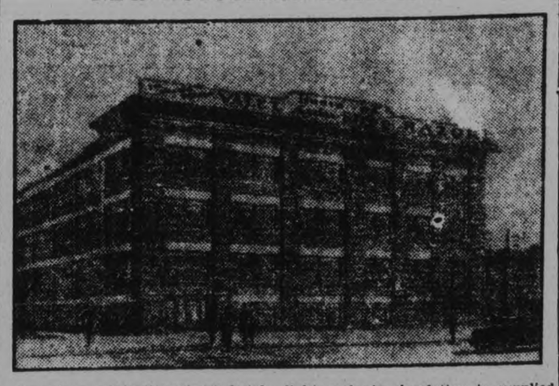
NEW AUTOSTROP BUILDING



A modern, up-to-the-minute building addition is being erected by the AutoStrop Safety Razor Co. Limited next to their present premises at 83 to 87 Duke Street, Toronto.

The new wing will approximately double the present manufacturing space, making a total of 40,000 square feet available. The building will be fully equipped with the latest fire protection devices, constructed of reinforced concrete and capable of carrying a load of 200 lbs. to the square foot.

The lighting and ventilating features have been carefully considered with the result that abundant daylight and air circulation is supplied from four sides.

The AutoStrop Safety Razor Company have owned the houses at 89-91-93 Duke Street, which is the site for the new wing, for some time. These were acquired with a view of possible additional space requirements to take care of assured increased demand for their razor which has become especially popular since their announcement of a new Million Dollar model razor last year.

The erection of new building is being rushed by Sullivan and Fried, Contractors, so as to make possession of the addition available on June 15th.

INITIAL FLOW 5,000 BARRELS

Rodeo Well No. 2 Has Most Promising Future Declare Geologists.

PROPERTY VALUE TRBLED.

TORONTO, April 25.—Toronto officials of Nordon Corporation Limited have been notified that Rhode Well No. 2 to the southeast of its royalty holdings in the Santa Fe Springs Field, Los Angeles Basin, has been brought in at a depth of 7,407 feet with an easy initial flow of close to 5,000 barrels from the Clarke Sands, a new producing horizon. Los Angeles advices say that the event has doubled or trebled the value of all property in the field. Santa Fe Springs is now producing 180,000 barrels daily with approximately 25 percent. of maximum production shut in. Till last year all production, which reached a maximum of 356,000 barrels daily in 1923 came from the upper sands, known as Bell and Meyer, extending from 3,600 to 4,700 feet. The famous Buckbee Sands were then penetrated extending from 5,200 to 5,900 feet and the daily average of the field, which had dropped to 50,000 barrels was brought back to 200,000 barrels. The last development in the lower Clarke sand is quite as important as discovery of the Buckbee and will immeasurably increase the potentiality of the field. Geologists predict discovery of at least two more lower sands equally prolific.

TOLLEY BEATEN IN SEMI-FINALS

W. Sutton, of West Cheshire, Wins in Amateur Golf Race.

FINAL TO-MORROW.

NEWCASTLE, England, April 26.—(C.P.)—Cyril Tolley, famous amateur, was defeated in the semi-final of the English native amateur golf championship at Gosforth Park this afternoon by W. Sutton of West Cheshire. Sutton triumphed one up.

In the final to-morrow Sutton will meet E. Tipping of Ashdown Forest. Tipping defeated W. Millar of Haworth four and three in the other semi-final.

BEAUTIFYING SQUARE.

Grass Seed Has Been Sown On Confederation Square.

The spring work of beautifying Confederation Square for the summer and the Old Home Week visitors has been going on all week. The park presents a spick-and-span appearance to-day after the thorough raking that has been given its surface. In all a hundred pounds of grass seed will be sown on the park.

Ald. Walter Stocker, chairman of the Parks Committee, is especially requesting all citizens to keep off the grass for the next month to allow the new grass an opportunity to grow.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 26.—(C.P.)—Foreign exchange irregular; Demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 13-16; Canadian Dollars at ¾ of one per cent. discount.

TORONTO PHYSICIAN HONORED.

LONDON, Apr. 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—Dr. A. W. M. Ellis of Toronto has been elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians.

Little Change Evidenced Amongst Mining Stocks

TORONTO, April 26. (C.P.)—Little change in prices was evidenced in a listless session on th Standard Mining Exchange this morning. There were no indications of any definite price tendency, though losses were slightly in excess of gains. All changes however were of no significance.

Domes Mines failed to retain its sudden advance of yesterday, slumping 20c to 10.40, while Noranda after coming out at 51.50, eased off to 51.10, up 10c. The Lindsley group easing 5 to 8.35; while Ventures, Falconbridge, and Sudbury were unchanged. McIntyre gained 30c to 19.05.

Mayland Oil sold back 25 to 14.00, while Lowery, Alberta Pacific, and Sterling Pacific, which were moved to the listed section to-day, were unchanged.

LEADERS TAKE UPWARD SWING

ROYALITE UP 13½.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (C.P.)—Led by a spectacular run in Royalite practically all the market leaders joined in an upward movement on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. The general list, however, was inactive and showed very little change. Even in the more active stocks, the sale tournovers were small.

Royalite, after opening at 715, climbed rapidly to a peak of 181, with the noon price of 178½, showing a net advance of 13¼ points. The other oils, Imperial, British American and International Petroleum, were fractionally unchanged.

International Nickel revived some of its former interest, shooting up to a high of 50, while the noon price at 49¾, was 1¾ points higher. Lake Superior was fairly active, advancing 1¾ to 24¼, while Pake Hersey shot up 3 points to 134. Gypsum and Alabastine moved up 1 to 111. Ford Motor ⅝ to 52 ⅜, and Dufferin Paving 1 to 32. The Walker stocks were slightly stronger. Service Stations sold up a point to 76½, while Massey-Harris at 72, Durant at 20 and Tip Tip at 42, were all fractionally higher.

100,000 MEN ON STRIKE.

BOMBAY, India, April 26 (Canadian Press).—A large scale cotton mill strike was started here to-day. Employees of 38 out of 84 mills responded to the labor leaders' general strike call and threw down their tools after the general lunch period.

A total of 100,000 men was involved. The trouble was believed to be the outgrowth of a failure of a conference between union representatives and mill-owners to discuss the alleged victimization of workers in the Wadia group of mills after the recent strike there.

YOUTH LEADS FIELD

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press).— The outstanding performance of a 15-year-old Ukrainian boy, has featured the play in the Northern Ontario Badminton tournament which commenced two days ago. Joseph Zaharko, a mere youngster compared with the rest of the competitors, yesterday, defeated Harold Tolley, one of the most experienced players in the district, in straight games, 18-4 and 15-6.

THREE DEATHS FROM MENINGITIS

HONOLULU, April 26.—(Canadian Press).—Three Filipinos died of meningitis on the steamship President Lincoln which arrived here yesterday from Manila and other eastern ports. Sixteen others believed ill of the disease were transferred to a hospital here. All victims were steerage passengers.

For observation 302 Filipinos were taken to the quarantine station.

CALL MONEY ADVANCES TO 12 PER CENT

Early Gains On Wall Street Were Reduced Or Entirely Wiped Out.

CAR DELIVERY BLAMED.

Quarterly Report of General Motors Brings Disappointment to Market.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 26 (Canadian Press)—Another 'money squeeze' which sent the call money rate from 9 to 12 per cent. unsettled to-day's Stock Market after an early display of strength. Early gains of 1 to 8 points were reduced, or wiped out altogether, and a number of speculative issues sank 1 to 4 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Call money renewed at 9 per cent., advanced to 10, and thence to 12. Banks called only a moderate amount of loans, but there was a marked scarcity of new funds in the market. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Two quarterly reports by large corporations — Bethlehem Steel and General Motors—brought disappointment to speculative holders, the former because of the announcement of an additional stock offering and the latter because of smaller earnings in the face of record-breaking sales. From a long range view, both reports were accepted as constructive, however, because the new finance will supply Bethlehem with sufficient funds to expand without increasing funded indebtedness, while General Motors smaller earnings were due to unusually heavy charge-off for new models and the delayed delivery of the new cars.

WOHELO CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

Her Ladyship's Niece Is Presented in the Y.W.C.A.

WELL RECEIVED.

A mix-up in identity was the subject of the entertaining little comedy "Her Ladyship's Niece" presented at the Y.W.C.A. last evening by members of the Wohelo Club. There was a good attendance and plenty of applause greeted the efforts of those taking part, all of whom did splendidly under direction of the Club leaders, Miss Bertha McConnell, Miss Mabel Carroll and Miss Leta Brownscombe.

The play deals with the adventures following upon the arrival simultaneously of Nora, niece of Lady Melbourne, ("Her Ladyship's Niece") and Norah Jones, the new maid. A mistake in identity ensues and the two girls and their audience get a lot of pleasure out of the resulting complications. The place is Sir Thomas Melbourne's country residence and the time the early summer at the beginning of the last century. The costumes are designed to chime in with the time and action of the play.

Those taking part were Miss Jessie Gregory, as Captain Charles Beresford; Miss Margaret Simpson, as Sir Thomas Melbourne; Miss Connie Mason, as Sir John Phillips; Miss Myrtle Pearson, as Joseph Lupton, the butler; Miss Dorothy Copping, as Lady Melbourne; Miss Myrtle Melrose, as Nora, Lady Melbourne's niece; Miss Rose Kemp, as Lady Betty Everill, Nora's friend, and Miss Edna Simmons, as Norah Jones, a maid.

During intermissions, a pleasing program was given, including a reading by Miss Mildred Lloyd, a vocal solo by Miss M. McCarroll, with accompaniment played by Miss Cox, and an Irish dance by Miss Hazel Bradley.

Later, refreshments were served.

ORGANIZATIONS VOLUNTEER

from each of these bodies, along with the Decoration Committee.

John Crane Resigns.

Secretary F. H. Dobbin reported receiving descriptive literature, relative to the Toronto Scottish Regiment, as well as a communication from John Crane, resigning from the Music Committee chairmanship. This latter communication was greatly regretted, and the matter was referred to Mr. Crane's committee in the hope that he might be persuaded to carry on.

R. M. Glover had an interesting verbal report regarding the progress of the Publicity Committee, telling of the committee's decision to abandon the plan to put cards in all stations through the district, in favor of a plan to advertise the Old Home Week in the district within a radius of 60 miles. It was felt that the station card plan more or less applied to those persons further away for whom the mailing list has been prepared.

Some discussion was provoked by J. J. Turner's suggestions regarding the place and program decided upon for the water sports, and finally the matter was referred to Reeve Rye and his Regatta Committee to make use of the suggestions as they saw fit. Mr. Turner also reported the engaging of Andrew Purman as general executive assistant, to work with the various committees in an advisory as well as practical manner.

Chairman Dutton told of the work of his Accommodation Committee, mentioning a questionnaire to be sent out to all householders in order to ascertain what billeting accommodation may be obtained for visitors to the Old Home Week. The hotels had already been circularized in this respect, while hotels and summer places throughout the district had been included.

Charles Lacheur told of the work that is being carried on in cities such as Toronto and Buffalo, as well as the probability of Peterborough folk in Montreal, Chicago, Detroit and other cities organizing as in the first two named cities. It has been proposed that a Toronto day be held during the Old Home Week. Later in the meeting, Mayor Denne came forward with the suggestion of an American Day, on July 4, and suggested a committee of Americans now resident in the city, to work out details for this occasion.

The Accommodation Committee was granted $500.00, to be used, if necessary, in carrying out its work.

Old Home Ideas.

R. M. Glover, Arthur Costello and others were of common opinion that suggestions should be forthcoming to make the Old Home Week program genuinely "old home," such as the compiling of a list of those old boys and girls who would volunteer to take part on programs. Mr. Glover mentioned a lacrosse game between two old time teams, and Mr. Costello told of his committee's plans to hold certain dance nights for the surrounding townships, so that on Otonabee night, for instance, the old time fiddlers and callers from that township would be in charge. These ideas met with approval.

Colonel Hall of the Militia was present and gave considerable interesting detail regarding the entertainment of visiting military units, as well as volunteering the local regiment's services for parades on Saturday night and other times during the week. It was decided to have Colonel Hall look after the invitations to those at the head of the prospective visiting units.

E. F. Mason told of progress being made in the matter of the main parade to be held, and predicted many floats. He went into discussion with the Executive regarding suggestions, such as that of a calathumpian parade, and received many other suggestions likely to be of assistance to his Parade Committee. Dr. Middleton mentioned the window box now on display in Grafton's store window, and expressed the hope that many of its like should be seen during Old Home Week.

Hear Mr. Miller.

At the close of the meeting, a general reminder went around, to all of the chairmen, that on Thursday night, John Miller, Orillia's Old Home Week promoter, and a splendid speaker, would address a public meeting in the Collegiate auditorium, and all were urged to see that their respective committeemen be present on that occasion. Mr. Miller spoke at the Peterborough Kiwanis Club not long ago, and his ideas on Old Home Weeks, as they should be, were a source of genuine inspiration. One cannot hear him and remain unmoved regarding the value of an Old Home Week for Peterborough. The citizens are urged to hear Mr. Miller, for the Executive is certain that if a large audience greets the speaker, there will be no scarcity of volunteers to help the Old Home movement along.

NORDON CORPORATION LIMITED is a Canadian company, acquiring the property of Nordon Corporation and other valuable oil leases and royalties, deriving substantial present income from existing oil fields of the United States, directed by technical and practical talent of the highest order, which will largely devote its efforts to development of oil in the fields of Western Canada. Nordon Corporation had its inception early in 1928, to acquire exceptional opportunities in various oil districts of Canada and the United States, under the guidance of Mr. C. G. Willis and associates.

PROPERTY HOLDINGS:—Leases on 24,000 acres and royalty under 76,800 acres on seventeen distinct oil areas of the United States, and 10,000 acres in prospective valuable areas in Western Canada. United States royalty interests include portion of landowner's royalty in one of the finest leases in the Santa Fe Springs field of California. Five wells have here been completed to recently discovered deep and very prolific sands, and thirteen more wells are drilling on the company's royalty acreage. In New Mexico, company owns royalty under 70,000 acres, in the latest producing oil area in the United States. In Texas, the latest major producing field in the United States, company owns leases on 7,500 acres in Midland county, part of which is now being drilled on acreage-division basis by some of the larger operating companies of the industry; leases on 2,500 acres in Crockett county, where 2,500 checkerboarded acres, transferred on acreage-division basis, is being drilled by Marland Oil Co. and W. A. Moncrieff, and where within the past few days one well reached the sands and was bailing at the rate of 288 barrels daily, with prospects that a big producer would be brought in; leases on 960 acres in Pecos county, on the Fort Stockton "high"; and leases on 1,000 acres in Ward county on the Soda Lake structure. In Oklahoma, one-half of royalty under 160 acres on top of a large core-drill structure in the Wilcox sand area, where Marland Oil Co. owns the leases on Nordon royalty acreage. In Kansas, acreage in the vicinity of the recent discovery just north of Wichita, Central Kansas. In Ohio leases on 80 acres in eastern part of state, where a well within one mile has just come in with yield of 100 barrels of high-gravity Pennsylvania crude. Other royalties and leases are under option or negotiation in Santa Fe Springs field and in other fields in Texas and New Mexico.

PRESENT REVENUES:—Royalty revenue from five wells in Santa Fe Springs field will presently be at rate of $300,000 per annum, and rate is expected to reach $500,000 per annum before the end of this year, as thirteen more wells are being drilled on royalty leases. Further revenues are expected from Texas and New Mexico fields from wells now drilling.

FINANCES:—Upon completion of this present financing the company will have in excess of $1,100,000 in its treasury.

INTENSIVE CANADIAN OPERATIONS:—The immediate objective of the Corporation is large expansion of its operations in the prospective fields of Western Canada, where its staff, in possession of valuable geological data, believes some of the most important structures on the continent may be developed.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS:—The principles which have been and will be followed by the Corporation in building up revenues necessary for execution of its policies, used with marked success by the great royalty companies of the United States, will be rigidly adhered to, thus eliminating, in largest measure, drilling operations—the most costly and most hazardous branch of the industry. Leases and royalties will be negotiated over a wide spread, thus minimizing hazard of loss and increasing the chances of big success.

The Corporation is not a drilling company and will confine its operations in that direction solely to offset drilling where such operations are imperatively demanded in protection of its holdings.

PERSONNEL:—The standing of the directors of Nordon Corporation is of the highest order. President and General Manager Glen M. Ruby is acknowledged to be the outstanding authority upon the prospective fields of Western Canada, with the widest experience in continental oil affairs. Managing Director C. G. Willis stands equally high in the Southwest and is generally accorded a portion of the credit for discovery of several of the important fields in the Los Angeles Basin. From time to time, announcements will be made regarding the personnel of a Board of Consultants, which will include oil experts of continental and international reputation.

Application will be made for listing on Eastern and Western Stock Exchanges.

Literature, with halftones and maps, containing further details, gladly furnished upon request.

OBITUARY

BOBBIE TELFORD.

DUNSFORD, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The death occurred on Sunday, at 8.30 a.m., of Bobbie, six months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Telford.

He had been in the best of health until Thursday, when he took convulsions, and all efforts failed to save his life.

The funeral was held on Monday, and burial was made at Bobcaygeon Cemetery. The sincere sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Telford in their beereavement.

MRS. HENRIETTA N. JOHNSTON.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 26. — Funeral services were held here on Wednesday afternoon for the late Mrs. Henrietta N. Johnston, aged 82, mother of James F. Johnston, and sister of Frank Clarke and Mrs. Thomas Jobe, all of Peterborough, Ont., and who died on Sunday night following an extended illness at her home here, No. 9 Owen Street. The late Mrs. Johnston is survived also by three other sons, Herbert A., John R., and Thomas W. Johnston; two daughters, Mrs. Lillian Free, and Mrs. William Miller; eleven grandchildren, five great-grandchildren of this city, and by another brother, Charles Clarke, of Detroit, Mich.

The funeral services were held from the undertaking parlors of Moore & Fiske here at No. 105 Lake Avenue, on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and interment was here in Riverside Cemetery.

MRS. MARTHA RUTH.

EAST EMILY, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred on Monday, April 15th, of the late Mrs. Martha Ruth, after a brief illness.

The deceased was in her ninety-sixth year and enjoyed life to its utmost. She has lived in this neighborhood all her life and was loved by all. Her husband predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from the home of her son, Albert Ruth, with whom she made her home.

Rev. Mr. Blanchard conducted the service both at the house and at the graveside.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful showing the high esteem in which Mrs. Ruth was held by her many friends.

THOMAS LAUGHLIN.

OWEN SOUND, April 26. — After an illness of several months' duration, Thomas Laughlin of concession 8, Proton, and clerk of the municipality for upwards of 32 years, passed away on Monday night at the age of 67 years. He was born in Peterborough, and came to Proton as a boy with his parents over 50 years ago. With a good public school education, he was a useful man in his community. After serving for a few years in the township council he was appointed clerk. In this capacity he became an expert in municipal procedure and service, perhaps more particularly in drainage, of which much has been done on the township in recent years. His work as a public servant has been faithfully and honestly performed. He had good business ability and a fund of humor. He resigned the clerkship last year on account of ill-health.

He is survived by his widow, and son William at home, and daugther, Miss Mary, teaching in Toronto, also his sister, Mrs. Gordon, Dundalk.

The funeral was held on Thursday at 2 o'clock p.m., from his late home, to Ventry cemetery.

OLIVER R. MOYNES.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DUNSFORD, April 26. — The funeral, held in Oshawa, on Wednesday afternoon, of the late Oliver R. Moynes, who was electrocutd while at work about eleven o'clock on Sunday last, was very largely attended, and the profusion of floral tributes gave evidence of the high esteem in which the young man was held. The late Mr. Moynes was born in Fenelon township, near Zion, 37 years ago, and was well known around Lindsay, having lived there when a youth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moynes. He had been an electrician for some 16 years, and in the employ of the General Motors at Oshawa for about 11 years. He was regarded as a most efficient and careful workman, and his friends are puzzled to know how the accident could have happened with such fatal results, as he received the full charge of 4400 volts, and was horribly burned. The service was in charge of Rev. C. E. Cragg of the Simcoe street United Church.

Left to mourn besides his father and mother are his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Flossie Yew, of Oshawa, and three children, Erline aged fourteen, Gwelda, aged nine, and Elgin, aged seven. Roy Moynes, of Peterborough, and Rev. J. F. Everson of Dunsford, are cousins. Both were present at the funeral. Interment was made in the Oshawa cemetery.

ALICE MOLONEY

MARMORA, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday of this week, residents of this district learned with regret that Miss Alice Moloney had passed away at the residence of her sister, Mrs. William Neill, North Marmora. The deceased, who was born on March 7th, 187? in Marmora, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Moloney. For a number of years she kept house for her brother, P. J. Moloney. After living for a time in the village, they moved to a residence near Halloway. The late Miss Moloney became ill last fall and was obliged to consult specialists in Peterborough and Kingston. It was found that the disease from which she suffered was in too advanced a stage to permit an operation. Since them, she gradually grew worse, so that her end was not unexpected. She is survived by three brothers, John J., James, and Patrick J., and five sisters, Mrs. Archie Neill, North Dakota; Mrs. Edward Shannon, Calgary, Alta.; Mrs. John Bibby, Alberta; Mrs. John Nolan, Toronto, and Mrs. William Neill, North Marmora. One sister, Mrs. Dan Gillen of Alberta predeceased her about two years ago. The funeral left the residence of her sister at 8.30 on Friday morning, and proceeded to the Church of the Sacred Heart for Requiem Mass, interment taking place in the adjoining Roman Catholic Cemetery.

49 DIVORCE BILLS PASS.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian).—There was no obstruction offered in the passage of forty-nine divorce bills in the special standing committee of the House of Commons on miscellaneous private bills yesterday. Owing to the strong opposition to these bills in parliament committee members anticipated some argument or consideration of evidence on the bills before them. But each was read and passed without protest.

TALL NEGRESS IS SOUGHT

Western Ontario Police Want Woman in Connection With Supposed Murder.

IN DRESDEN OVER WEEK-END

DRESDEN, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press)—A tall negress is sought by Western Ontario Police in connection with the supposed murder of Mrs. Robert McCorkle, 20, of Detroit. Mrs. McCorkle disappeared from the home of her father, Joseph Snell, a sailor resident of Dresden. Robert McCorkle, the husband of the missing woman, is also sought. All the principals are negroes.

The woman sought is described as being about 25 years of age. She was in Dresden over the week-end and is believed to have come from Detroit. Police believe Mrs. McCorkle was murdered in the Snell home late Saturday night or early Sunday.

CHEESEMEN HOLD SPRING MEETING

George Spencer Appointed Secretary-Treasurer of Madoc Association.

MARMORA, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence.) —The first spring general meeting of the Madoc District Cheesemakers' Association took place in the Fire Hall, Madoc, on Thursday afternoon, with President Brennan in the chair and a good attendance present. George Spencer of Springhill factory, Madoc, was appointed secretary-treasurer in place of Harold Henderson, who, since his appointment last fall, has moved into the Stirling district. The main business was arrangement of summer monthly meetings. The first of these will be held at Alexandria factory in Madoc township on May 29th.

By motion, it was decided that prizes at close of season be as in 1928, for highest average score.

UNDERTAKER IS GIVEN BODIES OF TWIN INFANTS

Coroner's Jury Unable To Determine Cause of Death of Babies.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 26 (C.P.).—To determine the cause of death of twin infants left by an unknown man at an Ottawa funeral parlor on April 15, an inquest was conducted last night by Dr. J. K. Craig, coroner. The jury was unable to determine the circumstances or the place of birth.

According to the evidence presented a man brought the bodies to the funeral parlor in a plain wooden box. He gave his name and address to the undertaker and left saying he would return. The name and address were later found to be fictitious.

It was shown that one child was stillborn, while the other lived after birth. An investigation is being conducted by police.

AN EMBLEM OF LOVE

Up in a snowclad country,
Full in winter time,
A little tree was planted
In a garden "fair" and fine.

A few precious moments of each day
Were set aside to watch and pray;
'Midst life and death this little tree grew
Unseen by all save two.

A fragrant rose bud soon appeared,
'Twas plucked and placed within my hand,
I cherished this little emblem of love
That once had been in another land.

It was soon a beautiful, red red rose,
Which I knew I could not keep;
So one by one the petals fell,
And they lie at my lover's feet.

Violets for remembrance they say,
Pansies for all kind thoughts;
But a crushed rose in my hand, he'll understand,
Shall remain for ere and a day.

SCHOOL BOARD FAILS QUORUM

Only Five Of Fourteen Members Were Present At Campbellford Meeting.

HYDRO PARTY.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The school trustees did not turn out in sufficiently large numbers last night to form a quorum, and there was no meeting. Only five of the fourteen members were present and at eight-thirty, after summoning several by telephone, the attempt to hold the meeting was abandoned. The members present were John Jeffs, chairman; Charles Benor, Dr. O. C. Watson, George O'Sullivan and William Stephens. F. H. Grieg, principal of the High School, was present in the capacity of secretary of the board.

Hydro Party

Last night was the last of the social evenings given by the local Hydro Athletic Association in the Parish Hall. Euchre and dancing were the orders of the evening, with lunch served in the form of boxes which were sold with one dollar as the limit set by the committee. There were twelve tables of cards and the prizes went to Mrs. William Smith and Bert Stephens for games, and to Miss Irene Davidson and R. H. Cole for lone hands. "Pinkie" Smith was the auctioneer when lunch time arrived. Music for dancing was furnished by Leonard and Frederick.

District Rebekahs Meet

From three o'clock yesterday afternoon, the district meeting of the Rebekah Order was held in the Campbellford (Loch Lomond) Lodge rooms. The hands of the clock were at the midnight hour when the festivities ceased. In the afternoon, the business pertaining to the district organization was transacted and the evening was spent exemplifying the degree of initiation. There were two condidates. Mrs. Frank Kemsley, Picton, the District Deputy presided.

Supper was served in the lodge rooms and after the evening session the local members and visitors enjoyed a social hour. Among the visitors were Mrs. Henry Norwood, past District Deputy; Mrs. Charles Frances and Mrs. Bert McInnes of Picton; Mrs. James Thow; Mrs. M. Graham, Mrs. Walter Miller and Mrs. Fred Dadswell of Trenton; Mrs. E. Taylor, Mrs. H. Rose, Miss Tackaberry, Mrs. Ada Jacques, and Mrs. Edythe Craig of Brighton.

Wrong Impressions.

With something of a shock members of the Old Home week executive here learned of a rumor in Peterborough to the effect that Campbellford intended to "soak" the Old Boys and Girls who returned for the celebration. The story is absolutely without truth, they say, and they are very indignant to think that such a tale should be circulated or believed. It is however the intention of the executive to form an Old Boys Association with a membership of one dollar. The membership cards will be sent out with the next list of invitations. Whether or not the recipient wishes to donate his dollar is a matter entirely up to himself. It is not in any way an obligation. The story that the visitors were to be taxed five dollars each for the privilege of coming home again is not true. Campbellford wants every old boy and old girl to be home during that week. Whether they be rich or poor the town wants to see all the familiar faces again, shake familiar hands and renew acquaintances of former days. The men behind the celebration are working diligently to make the week a huge success, but they have no intention of resorting to highway robbery or piracy on the high seas. Everybody's hand will be out, but not with the palm up. The palm will be held in the vertical plane, eager to grasp that of a friend and welcome him back to his old home town.

BOMB PLACED AT DOOR.

WELLAND, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—A hand-made bomb placed at the front door of the store of Sylvester Cutia, South Main Street merchant, rocked the east side of the city early this morning, and partially wrecked the store. Nine persons sleeping on the upper floor escaped injury. Less than $1,000 damage was caused to the building. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cutia, who has been blind for the past two years, is suffering severely from shock.

MUCH BUILDING DURING APRIL

Month Promises To Be Most Outstanding—Many New Buildings.

STORE TO COST $85,000.

A glance over the list of building permits issued from the City Engineer's department so far this month, and particularly during the past two weeks indicates that the month of April 1929 will be an outstanding period so far as provision for building in the city of Peterborough, is concerned. Since April 11, the permit for erection of the new Kresge store at the corner of Simcoe and George streets has been granted, providing for an approximate expenditure of $85,000; the Shell Gasoline company has been given permission to establish an oil and gasoline storage depot valued at $3,000; two houses each of a value in the neighborhood of $2,600 have been provided for and a list of smaller miscellaneous building activities have also been accounted for.

The two new houses mentioned will be erected on Lots 29 and 30 on Douglas avenue, by R. Henry, contractor for P. S. Dallin and A. Heckman, owners. That of Mr. Dallin will be 36 feet long and 28 feet in width, with brick veneer walls on concrete foundation. The interior walls will be of lathe and plaster, with pine interior finish, and the one-story dwelling will comprise five rooms. Brick and tile chimneys, asphalt roofing, and electric fireplace and a hot air heating system will be features of the work, which will be complete about July 1.

Mr. Heckman's new residence will be of two stories, brick veneer walls on concrete foundation and will have six rooms. Asphalt roofing, brick and tile chimneys, and pine finish for the interior are among the details mentioned on the permit, while a hot air heating system will be installed. August 1, has been set as the date of completion.

Garages will be erected in connection with both houses.

YOUNG PEOPLE NEED COURAGE

Premier of Canada Offering Congratulations To Women's Organizations.

PETERBORO' ONE OF THREE.

Reminiscent of Sir James Barrie's famous rectoral address to the students of St. Andrew's University are the sentiments expressed by the Premier of Canada regarding the participation of young people in public affairs. Barrie told his hearers that courage was needed in the great fight that seems to be coming between youth and their betters exhorting them to take an active interest in matters of national and world import, he said: "I want you to take up this position that youth have for too long left exclusively in our hands the decisions in national matters that are more vital to them than to us. That the time has arrived for youth to demand a partnership."

The Premier of Canada, in offering his congratulations to the Twentieth Century Women's Liberal Club of Ottawa upon the successful manner in which this new organization had been launched on its career, expressed his conviction that nothing could give greater inspiration to the cause of Liberalism throughout the Dominion than this evidence of the strong appeal of Liberal principles to the young women of our country.

"The formation of this new association is an event of more than local importance in its relation to the future of our party," Mr. King continued. "It illustrates at the same time the strong appeal of Liberalism to the youth of our country and the response of the younger generation of Canadians to the responsibilities of citizenship. It has always been the strength of Liberalism that its sanctions lie not in tradition but in the progressive thought of each succeeding generation. There could be no more happy augury of the future of the Liberal party in Canada than the active co-operation of young Liberal women in the work of political education and organization throughout the Dominion."

Ontario now has three young women's Liberal organizations: The Toronto Young Women's Liberal Association, with Mrs. A. J. P. Cameron as president; the Mackenzie King Young Women's Club of Peterborough, with Miss Alberta Hunter as president; and the Twentieth Century Liberal Women's Club of Ottawa, with Miss Odette Lapointe, daughter of the Minister of Justice of Canada, as president.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

HALL'S BRIDGE, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual cheese-factory meeting was held on Monday evening at the factory. There was a good attendance at the meeting. The following were elected as the officers for the ensuing year: President, John A. Northey. Directors, Messrs. Evans Blewett, J. W. Blewett, William John Stockdale and Frederick Pluard. Mrs. Richard Fawcett was re-elected as secretary, and Mr. George A. Wilson as treasurer. The prospects for this season's cheese-making are very bright, and Mr. Wilson, the cheesemaker expects that more milk will be received at this factory than for some years past. Mr. Wilson hopes to begin making cheese on Wednesday, May 1.

WOLVES VISIT OPS TOWNSHIP

Animals Are Seen On Farm of P. McGuire, Just Outside of Lindsay.

ONE IS SHOT.

LINDSAY, Ont., April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A posse of Ops Township farmers, residing about two miles west of Lindsay were on the warpath yesterday for a pack of wolves, five in number, and which have made their headquarters in Garfield Pogue's swamp. On Wednesday the animals visited P. McGuire's farm just outside the town limits and threatened to attack Mr. McGuire. Yesterday morning Frank Roach bagged one of the pack with his trusty rifle but the other four are still at large.

VETERAN SHOWMAN COMPLETES SEASON

Joe Mark Presents Three Nights of Entertainment in Havelock.

HAVELOCK, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence). — On Wednesday evening, a three-night engagement was brought to a close here and this also marked the close of the season for Joe Marks, veteran showman and his troupe headed by the great Bert Johnston, magician, and his assistants.

In the world of magic, Bert Johnston is more than a figurehead. He is considered the greatest magician in the Dominion; is a Canadian by birth and an overseas service man. At his home in Oshawa he has what is practically the only magician's studio, in Canada.

With a remarkable degree of ease and skill he is able to swing a butterfly net through the air and scoop down a pair of pigeons which suddenly appear in its path. Oriental magic is one of his strong points. A favourite trick is to change coats with a man on the stage while he, himself, is securely bound to a chair.

Mrs. Johnston appears on the stage with her husband, assisting him in the Oriental magic and has a considerable knowledge of the magic art. Mrs. Johnston is assisted, too, by her son, who appears to be following in his father's footsteps.

Billy Williams is officially known as a chalk talker, but he might easily mon was enthusiastic and earnest, the speed of lightning in his fingers. Upside down or right side up, he is able to sketch a scene or character with equal ease and his work added greatly to the entertainment of the evenings.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT COMEDY

"Never Again" Is Well Received in Plainfield Orange Hall.

ROSLIN, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of Roslin the delightful three-act comedy, "Never Again" was presented by the young people of St. Paul's Church in the Orange Hall at Plainfield.

The interest and hearty applause amply rewarded the actors for their efforts to make it a splendid play.

Before the curtain was drawn back the pastor, Rev. Mr. Smith, introduced the characters. Those taking part were Rev. A. and Mrs. Smith, Misses Alice and Hazel Wilson, Ena Kerr, Minnie Hamilton, Arthur and William Bates, John Hart, John Suttle and Milton Snider.

During intermissions solos were given by Miss Grace Simmons, of Corbyville; a reading by Miss Mary Grey, of Roslin, and music with violin and piano by Mr. and Mrs. G. Burleigh, of Roslin.

WEDDING BELLS

CLAYDON—SENNETT.

On April 20th by the Rev. Paul Costello at St. Peter's Cathedral, the marriage was quietly solemnized of Elsie Sennett to Walter Claydon. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Claydon will reside in Montreal, Quebec.

MAHOOD—WARBURTON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 26. — The marriage took place in St.Saviour's church, Toronto, on April 20, of Gertrude Ada Warburton, of Toronto, to John Albert Mahood, son of Mrs. Mahood and the late James Mahood of Lakefield. Rev. G. I. B. Johnson was the officiating clergyman.

ARMSTRONG—McCONKEY

LAKEFIELD, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The marriage took place on Tuesday at Knox Church manse of Marion Evelyn McConkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey of Smith to John Roland Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Armstrong, also of Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. M. Wesley in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple. The bride wore a becoming gown of rose colored embroidered georgette and wore a gray hat; she was attended by her sister, Miss Doreen McConkey, who wore a pretty frock of yellow taffeta with hat to match. Mr. Maxwell Wilson attended the groom. The young couple left for a motor trip to Toronto and Detroit and on their return will reside in Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong are popular young people in the community and begin their married life with many good wishes from their large circle of friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY

St. James' Church Society Presents Enjoyable Program in Smith Hall.

BRIDGENORTH NEWS.

BRIDGENORTH, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The young people of St. James' Church, Peterborough, gave their play entitled "The Path Across the Hill" in the Temperance Hall on the fourth line of Smith, on Friday evening.

At the conclusion of the play V. Fife acted as auctioneer for the many pretty baskets which were brought by the girls.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to about fifty dollars, in aid of the British miners.

Personals.

Messrs. J. Reynolds and Lewis, of Port Hope attended the play in the Temple on Friday evening.

The many friends of little Grey Peterson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Peterson, of Bridgenorth, will be pleased to learn that he has been removed to his home after being in Nicholls Hospital for several days.

Mr. J. Robison, of Otonabee, is spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. Silas Robison, of Smith.

The many friends of Mrs. Garbutt Mann, of Bridgenorth, will be very sorry to learn of her removal to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

WORKMAN INJURED CUTTING WOOD

HALL'S BRIDGE, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Arthur Gamble who is engaged by Joseph Johnston of Deer Bay, met with a serious accident last Friday. Slipping whilst using an axe, and falling, he cut himself severely on the left forearm. After tourniquets had been applied, he was rushed to Dr. Willis' office, Hall's Bridge, where he had several sutures put in. At present he is doing well. Mr. Gamble is a young Englishman who came from Reading, in the old country, to Canada last summer.

Personals.

Mr. William Haines who shot himself so severely some little time ago is doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson motored to Peterborough on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly of Young's Point was in the village on Wednesday.

At the end of last week, Mrs. Bert Calvert was taken seriously ill. Dr. Willis who attended ordered immediate removal to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where Dr. Yelland performed an operation. Every hope is entertained of her recovery.

Messrs. William and Arthur Haines were on Wednesday called to Toronto to visit their sister, who is seriously ill.

Mrs. William Calvert and family, who had the misfortune in February to have their residence burned to the ground, some three miles west of Hall's Bridge, have moved to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gillespie were in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hall motored to Lakefield on Wednesday.

Mrs. Archie Fulton went to Peterborough on Sunday where she expects to spend a few days with friends.

Mr. W. Tinney of Peterborough was in the village on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Walter Nugent of Peterborough was in Hall's Bridge on Wednesday.

Miss Tretheway, school teacher, is at present teaching her students the useful art of home gardening. The pupils enjoy this new experience.

ASKS FOR RESIGNATION.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 25 (Canadian Press). — President Hoover has asked for and obtained the resignation of Clarence D. Clark, former Senator from Wyoming, as chairman of the International Joint Commission, which handles a number of boundary and other matters between Canada and the United States.

Weak After Operation

"After having an operation, I was very miserable, weak, nervous and very near unfit to work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and tried it and believe it helped me wonderfully. I have no weak spells any more, the pains have left me and my nerves are much better. I feel safe in saying Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines have helped me wonderfully."—*Mrs. Wm. H. That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barlor

TEACHING CHILDREN TO STAND ERECT.

In talking about securing the erect years to lecture to teachers in training who were qualifying as high school and public school teachers. I tried to give them a few facts in anatomy and physiology and some suggestions regarding the care and training of the body.

In talking about securing the erect carriage of the body for their students and for themselves, I emphasized the value of developing the abdominal muscles.

I pointed out that the more development these muscles received the smaller the waist would be. In fact Sandow, the world's strongest man, had a waist that was only one inch larger than his thigh.

I pointed out further that although the development of the upper back muscles, as in the breast stroke in swimming, would pull the shoulders back and help to correct round shoulders, the development of the abdominal muscles was more important, as the drawing in of the abdomen automatically pushed the chest forward and the shoulders back. Now the point back of all this is that you and I should remember that when we were made it was intended that the weight of the body should come on the bones. The bones of the spinal column should sustain the weight of the body or hold us erect..

What happens if you do not stand erect?

The weight of the front of the body pulls your spinal column forward, and the ligaments, that bind your bones together, get a good deal of the weight thrown on them; hence the pain in the back, so frequently suffered. This pain can be in the neck, in the upper back, in the lower back, or right down where the end bone of the spine joins the two large hip bones. Your muscles get tired holding up a weight that should have been held up by the bones of the spine, not by the soft tissues.

As you know, any exercise that brings the thighs on abdomen or abdomen on thighs, knees straight, will develop the abdominal muscles.

Lying on the back and raising the legs with the knees straight. Trying to touch your toes with your fingers, knees straight. Keeping abdomen drawn in when you are sitting, standing or walking, will help to keep your spine straight and prevent pain in the back.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

I DON'T suppose there is any subject in which most of us are more interested than the care and upbringing of children. The letters on the subject have been very interesting and instructive.

* * * * * * *

There is one phase of the subject that has not been touched upon, and yet I think it is one of the most important. I think "Bobby" did come near it on one occasion.

* * * * * * *

There are happy individuals, of course, who get on well with children under any circumstances, but I think they are in the minority. Most people wonder what to say.

* * * * * * *

Few people know how to be friendly toward children. Most of us would rather meet a strange adult any day than be thrown into contact with and have to make conversation with a strange child.

There are stereotyped phrases, of course, which all use: "What is your name?" or, more subtly, "Whose little boy are you?" This, however, usually produces only that disconcerting stare with which the shy child guards himself. The solemnity is unbroken.

* * * * * * *

Maybe the well-meaning visitor will next try that out-worn phrase, "What, can't you talk? and this makes matters worse than ever, because the remark is obviously beneath reply. Jessie Fenton says of this particular opening, "If a child is not bewildered by its inanity or frightened by the savagery of its implications, he will probably be filled with utter contempt for its asininity."

* * * * * * *

It is strange, but most adults think it correct to open a conversation with a child with a question. And the questions are too often unintelligent.

* * * * * * *

One of the stock phrases is, 'Can I take you home with me to be my little girl?" And one cannot very well imagine anything better designed to antagonize the young mind.

* * * * * * *

Just think! All strangers are unprepossessing to children. They are STRANGE. And think of the idea of the child being taken from her own little world into the terror of unfamiliarity that lies without!

* * * * * * *

I've seen a little boy, subjected to this senseless bit of torture, scurry behind his mother and wrap his arms around her, the while his big eyes clung to hers in stricken appeal that she would not allow this thing to happen.

* * * * * * *

After all, when one has lived in this world for only a matter of five years or so it is still so bewildering and complicated that one cannot be too sure that ANYTHING might not happen.

* * * * * * *

How is the child to know that the remark is not meant seriously? She has never had experience of this kind to go by; she does not know but that in other cases children have been carried off from their families.

* * * * * * *

And, escaping these pitfalls, the unwary visitor is just as likely to make the next greatest blunder by asking "Shall I take your baby home with me "

* * * * * * *

What! Take away the most wonderful baby that ever existed The little heart all but stops beating at the very suggestion.

* * * * * * *

It's a terrible suggestion to the child—and does not prepossess her in favor of her interlocutor.

* * * * * * *

Probably just as dangerous is a sport frequently indulged by members of the family—the inversion of fact. The visitor declares, looking at a boy, "My! What a nice little girl." When the child insists on his masculinity, the pompous visitor persists that "this is surely a little girl—so pretty."

* * * * * * *

When the boy gets really mad some people might take pride in having so expertly "got a rise" out of him.

* * * * * * *

I recall one mother who delighted to "show off" her little daughter. The girl had been taught that oranges are blue—and in the middle of a lot of commonplace inquiries, all correctly answered, she would answer to the question: "What color are oranges", "Blue." It seemed to the family very smart.

* * * * * * *

But think again of the strangeness of the world to the young mind. There are so many things to learn, so many new things unfolding every day. Does anyone ever learn as much every five years as the child absorbs in the first five years of life

* * * * * * *

And isn't it unfair, when the child is coping with the intricacies of life, to add to the confusion?

* * * * * * *

There are two viewpoints. The first should appeal to everyone in this efficient age. It is not right to hamper the child on the path of learning. And, from the other viewpoint, what can the child think of parents who mislead her?

* * * * * * *

I remember (and probably shall, as long as I live) one mistake my father (one of the best men God ever sent) made. He was endeavouring to illustrate the Bible story of the stoning of a martyr. We were out for a Sunday afternoon walk, and passed by a lane where workmen had stored broken stone intended for road work. My father told me the story in such a way that for years thereafter I repeated to my girl friends, as we passed the spot: "There's where Stephen was stoned to death."

* * * * * * *

When I found out that I was wrong, of course, I was mortified.

* * * * * * *

In another case I asked, (precocious infant that I was) how to pronounce "Simile" and a teacher, being 'smart' told me to say "si-mile" (saying "mile"). I looked for an opportunity to use the new word, of course, and was laughed at.

* * * * * * *

The fact that these things have stayed in my memory all these years (I'd hate to tell you how many!) shows the danger in this apparently harmless inversion of fact. Tell the truth when dealing with children. There is no difficult question that cannot be answered in a nice way—and there is no excuse for deliberately misleading the child.

* * * * * * *

Well, everything so far seems to be of the "Thou shalt not" type, and I don't particularly like prohibitions. What SHALL we say to children?

* * * * * * *

First of all, remember that a child's self-respect is at least as important as your own. It is, in fact, more easily wounded. Don't treat the child with ridicule or contempt or condescension. Take the same line that you would with an adult—endeavour to form the friendship on common interests.

* * * * * * *

Choose a subject within the child's comprehension and interests. If you have seen a dog, or a cat, or a railway train, or a new kind of auto, or a woolly caterpillar, or a new baby, or a bird's nest—make a casual comment about it. You will find that the little one will prick up her ears and come a little closer.

* * * * * * *

When you have found a topic of common interest, talk about it intelligently. When a child has interests, she is serious about them, Don't belittle them.

* * * * * * *

In short, to meet a child on her own level, don't act childish, but talk within the limits of her comprehension and experience.

* * * * * * *

And remember the Golden Rule.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Let me suggest that you buy a bottle of glue, and that the next time you find yourself with an hour or so at your disposal you go through the rooms of your house or apartment looking eagerly about you for ways to use it. Unless you are a most exceptional housewife with a most exceptional equipment you will find the bottle empty before you have finished your rounds.

In the kitchen glue may be used to fasten down the oilcloth on the table. In fact, it is much better to use glue than tacks for laying table oilcloth to start with. It is also an excellent plan to glue down the edges of the floor linoleum if it has not been cemented down. Once the glue has set it provides a watertight filler for the crack between linoleum and floor.

If you have children, don't forget the toys in your rounds with the glue bottle. Older children can usually do much of the work themselves—and enjoy it as much as a new game.

Lampshades often need a touch of glue. The leather seat of a chair may have become loosened at one side and a bit of glue will keep it from further loosening. Loosened book bindings may be tightened, knobs on bureaus replaced and bits of veneer put back into place.

. . . . of course, Paris decrees new styles from year to year. But most often the changes are merely in colors.

. . . . how fortunate then that there are the Tintex Tints and Dyes which enable smartly-dressed women to keep their entire wardrobe up-to-the-minute in fashion—at small cost. How nice to know that last year's dresses, blouses, sports-wear, scarfs, etc., can be made colorfully new again for this year's use. Tintex in the Gray Box gives you all the newest shades, including the favored greens, yellows, peach—and the more subdued blues, browns, red and tan.

. . . . use Tintex for your "undies", silk stockings and negligees, too. It restores their faded color or gives them smart new shades. So easy—just "tint as you rinse." For lace-trimmed silks, use Tintex in the Blue Box—it tints the silk, lace remains untouched. Ask your dealer to-day to show you the Tintex Color Card.

KITCHENER MAKES STRIDES

KITCHENER, Ont., April 26 (C.P.).—Civic officials report a marked scarcity of houses here. This is due to the fact that most local industries are working at top speed and the only unemployed on record at the government employment bureau are unskilled laborers. Officials expect Kitchener's population to go over the 30,000 mark this year. This being an increase of 2,000 since last year.

A bride-elect of this week, in the person of Miss Irene Field of Prince street, was honored last evening by her fellow members of St. George's choir at a miscellaneous shower held in the church basement. Immediately following teh usual weekly choir practice, a social time was spent in music and games. A basket containing the gifts was brought in by two of the members, Beatrice Curtis and Doris Dossett. The Rector acted as chairman and asked Miss Field to accept the contents of the basket with the good wishes of the givers. The bride-elect came forward, and untying the many strings and wrappings, displayed the various articles, reading out the names of each donor with accompanying verse or wishes. She thanked all for the contributions. Miss B. Curtis gave a vocal solo. Serving of refreshments added to the pleasure and enjoyment of the evening.

A delightful afternoon tea was given in the church parlor yesterday by St. James' Ladies' Aid, with a good attendance, considering the downpour of rain.

The affair was in honor of those members whose birthday came in April, Mesdames Mann, Fry, Rowe, Bennett, Roberts, Pratt and Turner, most of whom participated in the splendid program given.

Mrs. E. A. Rowe gave Chopin's "Valse Brilliante," which was very much enjoyed. A group of pleasingly rendered readings contributed by Mrs. Harold Bennett, were "Unawares" and "Too Busy."

Mrs. George H. Rowe gave a decidedly novel and appropriate musical reading, entitled "In the Rain," and as a recall, "A Kentucky Courtship."

Another pleasing group was two vocal solos, "In the Garden of To-Morrow" and "The Teddy Bear Son," sung in her usual sweet voice, by Mrs. H. Turner, who also gave a humorous reading, "Aunt Polly Green."

A splendid chorus was sung by the Birthday Party, and while they were still standing, their audience rose and sang birthday greetings to them in the song, "May You Be Happy All the Year."

Mrs. A. Wilson, the president, presided at the tea table, which was lovely with a centre of early Spring flowers in silver vases. Assisting were Mrs. Gregson, Mrs. Beatty, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Pratt, and Mrs. Armstrong, who served with other refreshments a delicious birthday cake.

FRENCH CHIC

THE STYLE presented with important scarf neckline expresses the latest in all-day dress of silk crepe for woman of chic. It affects Princess lines through molded bodice and flaring skirt that shows novel up-in-the side movement. Design No. 2776 is a favorite in printed silk crepe with scarf of plain crepe for immediate wear with the younger set, for afternoon tea and bridge. Georgette crepe, chiffon, crepe Elizabeth and crepe satin are suitable fabrics now and later for resort.

THE PATTERN is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew and can be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the 36-inch size 3½ yards of 40-inch material is sufficient. Better Cooking • More Leisure • With Controlled Heat!

Beach Gas Ranges are the only Canadian ranges equipped with the Robertshaw AutomatiCook oven heat control — an exclusive Beach feature. It automatically controls the heat of the oven. You simply set the dial and leave it. With it, whole meals can be cooked in the oven at once.

"I can attend to any number of things, while other women are fretting over old-fashioned ranges and stoves," says Mrs. Eugene Marquis, of Montreal, who has five children and does all her own housework—cleaning, mending, washing.

"Once I get the dinner on the stove, I need never worry about it till it's ready for eating," she says.

Beach Gas Ranges do the same in many Canadian homes—for they give the housewife just the help she needs. The automatically controlled oven heat makes cooking so much easier. Results are sure. Oven watching is eliminated. The housewife is given hours of leisure, and she can offer her family better, more interesting meals for the Beach makes the cooking of even elaborate dishes a simple matter.

Beach Gas Ranges possess many other outstanding features also. Ask to see them at your local dealer's.

These Gas Ranges carry the Blue Star Label, representing the approval of the Canadian Gas Association and the American Gas Association.

DANVILLE, Ky., April 26.—They say a man's best friend is his dog. And James Ashe will cast one vote in favor of that saying. Ashe lived alone, an old man feeble and poverty-striken. While out walking one day his dog stirred up a rabbit. The rabbit fled to a hollow tree. As he dug around the tree trying to get at the rabbit, he discovered an old kettle, containing 1800 silver dollars.

WOMEN HEAR FINE SERMON BY REV. O'HARA

"The Blessed Sacrament" Is Subject of Eloquent Address At St. Peter's Mission.

CHRIST'S PROMISE.

Very beautiful were the exercises last evening at the Cathedral, when Rev. Father O'Hara preached an eloquent sermon on the Blessed Sacrament. The high altar of the church was decorated for the occasion with numerous candles and flowers, and the Blessed Sacrament was exposed during the sermon.

Taking for his text the words, "He came unto His own and His own received Him not," Rev. Father O'Hara began by referring to the promise made by Our Divine Lord during the second year of His public ministry. This promise was to be understood in its literal sense, and Christ being the infallible truth, He cannot deceive, and so if Christ promised anything, He was bound to His promise.

Promise of the Blessed Sacrament.

"Let me," said the reverend speaker, "repeat again the words of Christ, 'The bread that I shall give is My flesh for the life of the world.' To understand correctly what was meant, we must go back to the very occasion and see how the Jews understood Him. Now, as soon as Christ uttered these words, the Jews understood Him in the very sense in which He meant the words, and so they were actually horrified to hear Him telling them that at some future day, He would give them His flesh to eat."

"Did Christ really mean what He said? Yes, and therefore the Jews understood Him correctly. If they had misunderstood Him, Christ would have been under obligation of correcting them. His veracity and sincerity would have demanded it. And here let me say, that throughout all His teaching and preaching, He never allowed the multitude or a single individual to misunderstand Him. We find several passages in Holy Scripture where both the people and the disciples took a wrong meaning from our Lord's words, but in every case He corrected them at once and told them what He meant.

"Now, did He correct them when they understood Him literally on this occasion of which we are speaking? When He saw their horror and indignation and heard them murmur, and ask, 'How can this man give us His flesh to eat?' did He correct them? No. On the contrary, He confirms them in the meaning they have taken from His words, for He declares: 'My flesh is meat indeed and my blood is drink indeed.'

"Again He goes on to explain the union that takes place between the one who receives and Himself, 'He that eateth My flesh and drinketh My blood abideth in Me and I in him.'

Again He points out the reward of those who receive Him. "He that eateth my flesh hath everlasting life and I will raise him up on the last day."

Fulfillment of the Promise.

Finally He proceeds to the awful judgment of those who refuse to receive Him. "Amen, amen, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you shall not have life in you."

After referring to the promise of Christ, Rev. Father O'Hara turned to the fulfillment of the promise. He pictured the scene of Holy Thursday night, when our Divine Lord gathered His apostles about Him in the supper chamber in Jerusalem. Here He gave to his apostles the greatest gift of His love.

"What does He do? He leans down, takes the bread into His sacred hands, blesses it, and gives thanks and says, 'Take ye and eat, this is my body.' And what happens? Lo, at those words what was ordinary bread becomes the body of Jesus Christ.

"Then taking wine in a chalice, He blessed it and gave thanks and said, 'Take ye and drink, this is my blood of the New Testament that shall be shed for the remission of sins.' As soon as he pronounces those words, what was wine was no longer wine, but becomes the true blood of Jesus Christ. There we have the fulfillment of that promise, 'I am the living bread come down from heaven and the bread which I shall give you is my flesh for the life of the world.' There is God faithful to His word—because He is infallible.

"Now this great miracle performed by Jesus Christ at the last supper did not stop there, for after the apostles received Holy Communion for the first time, our Divine Saviour turned to them and said, 'Do this in commemoration of me.' There was the commission. 'Do what I have done, for I now give you power.' With those words He gave them the power to perform the same miracle that He just performed, and by this means Christ shall remain with His Church till the end of the world.

Love of God For Us.

This gift of God, said Father O'Hara, shows the love of God for us. Do we appreciate this gift? Does the person who misses Mass realize what God has done for Him? Too true are the words of St. John, "He came unto his own and his own received him not." Do we, he said, realize that the Blessed Sacrament is the centre of our Catholic lives? Take away the Blessed Sacrament from our Churches, and what would they become—simply meeting places for the Blessed Sacrament is our boast and our pride. Therefore, appreciate it, because God is always with us. If we were permitted to stand at the gates of hell, and behold those condemned souls paying the everlasting penalty, what would they say? "Happy souls, you enjoy the presence of God upon earth, whom we shall never see, except in anger. We are suffering here and shall suffer for all eternity on account of our disregard, our neglect, our coldness, our insults to Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament."

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, limiting foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

For young men—rope shoulders and new Tattersall vest.

CHALMERS
A model of conservative smartness for young men.

CARTER
Featuring the new Peak lapel—styled for young men.

Why...

Birkdale clothes... the tweeds... the worsteds... the serges...are guaranteed all wool and are equal in quality if not superior to any thirty-five dollar suit in the country. The styles are as up-to-date and certainly as smart.

But why the claim — "The best thirty-five dollar suit in Canada"— because Birkdale Specifications are standard and embody the best tailoring practice. There is no other suit in Canada, we believe, selling regularly at the price that combines the same quality of goods, authentic styling and high grade specified tailoring. "Birkdales" are a unique value and bear out the truth of the slogan "It's what you can't see that counts."

A model for the smartly dressed man—slightly fitted.

BLACKSTONE
A model for men who affect conservative dress.

These Specifications Tell the Tailoring Story

1— Goods are guaranteed all wool.

2— All goods, canvas, haircloth and tapes used in the making are thoroughly shrunk to retain true shape of garment.

3— Checks and stripes are cut to match on pocket flaps, back of collar and sleeves to match body of coat and down outside leg seams in keeping with best tailoring practice.

4— All seams sewn with silk and pressed out flat to improve finish.

5— All buttons are sewn on with thoroughly prepared linen thread. Button-holes are reinforced.

6— All pockets in coat securely stayed with linen, to keep them from sagging.

7— All garments are thoroughly underpressed. Lapels, sleeves and shoulders are pressed by hand.

10— Only fine Irish linen is used in front of garments to which is added an all-wool hymo, which gives a soft roll to the lapels.

11— Trousers are sewn with double silk thread at back seams and part of inside leg sewn for added strength.

12— Linings and trimmings throughout are of a quality usually identified with garments of a much higher price.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole, M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

With the exception of a few families who remained in Peterborough (or rather on "Scott's Plains" as it was still called) during the winter, the entire number of immigrants were located on their lands during the autumn of 1825. Each family was then supplied with a cow, an axe, an auger, a handsaw, a hammer, 100 nails, 2 gimlets, 3 hoes, 1 kettle, 1 frying pan, 1 iron pot, 5 bushels of seed potatoes, and 8 quarts of Indian corn.

But though these poor immigrants were thus provided for in a manner which would now be considered more than sufficient for their necessities, they had still difficulties and discouragements enough to overcome. Fifteen of their number had died during the passage to Quebec, and eighty-seven more after their arrival in Canada, up to March, 1826. That scourge of the early settler, fever and ague, assailed them almost from the moment they arrived in the country, and many strong hearts were unnerved, and vigorous forms prostrated by it during the first few seasons. Scarcely a family escaped, and sometimes the entire household shook for months, till they were hardly able to hand each other a drink of water. Eleven funerals from the immigrants took place in Kingston in a single day, where dysentery was combined with fever, and a number of families were detained at Cobourg from the same cause, till nearly every family had to mourn its dead. In the remoter settlements, where medical aid could not be procured, the most loathsome draughts were used, in order, if possible, to mitigate the disease, but as clearances were made, and dampness eliminated from the soil, its effects diminished, till of late years, except in localities peculiarly favorable for its production, it is comparatively rare.

Embarked at Cork, May, 1825	2,024
Joined in Canada	12
Born in Canada up to March 15, 1826	33
Total	2,069

A surgeon of the Royal Navy was on board of each ship, and accompanied the immigrants to their destination. Among these were the late Dr. Connin, Dr. Reade, and others whose name we have not learned.

The immigrants were, not unnaturally, regarded at first with coldness and distrust by the previous settlers, and it has been said of them that, while their rations lasted, they contented themselves in idleness and sloth, and only put forth the exertions necessary to persons commencing life in a new country when compelled to do so by the cutting off of their supplies. But the falsity of this calumny is sufficiently shown by the official returns of the products of their first year's labor; the facts of which were collected by Mr. Robinson, and their correctness vouched for by him to the emigration committee before referred to.

Here's The Examiner building as it was thirty or forty years ago. The sign over what is now the Paris Cafe reads, "J. J. Sheehy," and there is a "To Let" notice in the window. On the part of The Examiner building which was lately occupied by Trebilcock's store are the signs, "J. R. Stratton" and "Books, Stationery." The small window signs of the Peterboro' Book Store read, "Peterboro' Book Store" and "Examiner Office." In the windows are many of the huge bound account books that are now replaced by loose-leaf devices. On the top floor, printers are seen at work at the type cases.

Thursday, May 2, will be a red-letter day in Old Home Week preparations—J. C. Miller, of Orillia, will address a public meeting in the Collegiate auditorium, at 8 o'clock.

The next meeting of the Community Dance committee will be held in the city building on Monday, May 13, at 7.30.

The feature dance, planned as one of the biggest social events ever held between Toronto and Montreal, will take place on Wednesday, July 3, in the Armouries.

Some committees—regatta, excursion, community dance—have formed the idea of sending the editor of the Old Home Week News carbon copies of their committee reports. This is an appreciated service, as publicity cannot be written without facts on which to base it.

ACCOMMODATIONS ARE DISCUSSED

Committee Will Seek Information From Hotels and Restaurants at Once.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce committee on Accommodations and Registration for Old Home Week was held in the Chamber of Commerce offices on Monday.

In an effort to ascertain what sleeping and eating accommodations will be available during the week, it was decided to send out a questionnaire to the city hotels, restaurants, churches, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. The question of accommodation in private homes will be taken up with the public later through the medium of the press.

The practicability of using school playgrounds for parking purposes was also gone into. It has been suggested that it might be advisable to consider putting up tents, equipped with camp beds, on the grounds of householders. This suggestion was given due consideration, but it was the opinion of the meeting that other accommodation should be found if possible.

Regarding registration of visitors, President Dutton reported that a registration card has been prepared and printed which will be forwarded in duplicate to potential visitors, they being asked to fill out and return immediately one half of the card, and preserve the other half for presentation to the accommodations committee on arrival in Peterborough. It is felt that this method will greatly reduce the work involved in registration.

The matter of regulating charges made by householders for accommodation during the week was also touched upon, and it was felt that the public should be given an opportunity to indicate the probable cost of rooms.

Old Home Week

(By Archdeacon Davidson)

It is a real and great disappointment to me that after long looking forward to this event I find it impossible to be present, as with Mrs. Davidson I am obliged to leave for England on May 1st, and cannot possibly return in time. I feel confident, however, that the absence of no individual will interfere with the assured success of this happy Gathering.

Citizens of Peterborough have ever been interested in, and strikingly loyal to their beloved city, and even when to our regret, some of us have been called away by duty, our hearts still go forth to what I for one still think of "my own city".

As I have still happily links binding me to Peterborough, and am able to pay occasional visits, it is comparatively easy for me to maintain a close and living connection.

My term of residence was from 1888 (population 10,500) to 1920 (population 21,500) when Peterborough was advancing from the status of a town to that of a city. It is cheering to remember what strong support was given to many efforts from different quarters for the public welfare, and I wonder do people realize how steadily and consistently good citizenship has been fostered by the local Press? And it is striking that from the Press have graduated at least three most useful public men—Mr. F. H. Dobbin, local historian; Mr. F. M. DelaFosse, public librarian, and Mr. S. R. Armstrong, city clerk.

During Old Home Week no doubt the names of hardy pioneers and outstanding officials and citizens of bygone days will be appropriately recalled. It may well also be remembered that there are to-day strong and devoted leaders and workers for the general welfare of the city who should be cheered and encouraged by public support and appreciation. It is easy to undervalue and pass over men with whom we are in close daily contact, but those who remain are often the best, and are certainly far the most deserving of appreciation. Let this be generously given and present and possible leaders will be much more likely to come forward and serve the city. The Rotary, Kiwanis and Canadian clubs, Chamber of Commerce, Women's Local Council, Daughters of the Empire and other organizations must all be training clubs for community service and leadership, and far greater advances should be possible to-day than was ever the case in bygone years

I am glad to see the call to individuals to make special efforts this year towards beautifying home surroundings (as so often urged in bygone days by Mr. F. R. Yokome). No doubt efforts of all kinds will be directed towards putting Peterborough in Canada's show-window.

The unveiling and the dedication of the unique and striking soldiers' monument will be a great and historic event, which I deeply regret missing.

Altogether through the concentration of all efforts, public and private this year, public spirit and enterprise, citizenship should be stimulated and the influence of Peterborough as one of Canada's progressive cities should be distinctly increased and far more widely recognized.

—J. C. Davidson.

BELL ENGINEER GIVES ADDRESS

The A. T. and T. Instruments

Mr. Dancey described the telephotographic instruments of the American Telephone and Telegraphy Company. As the telephone translates sound waves in terms of an electric current and re-translates this agency, after transmission, into sound waves and words, so in telephotography light and shade (the black and white) of a photograph are translated into an electric current, transmitted to the distant receiving machines, retranslated into the light and shade of the picture at the sending end.

The telephone deals with sounds of varying wave lengths; telephotography deals with varying light, according to the degrees of light and shade in the photograph that is being sent. Special phases of the main problem are to get the parts of the received photograph in their relative position as in the original, and also to show corresponding degrees of light and shade as in the original.

The Pulse of the Machine

The photo-electric cell is the mainspring or generator, so to speak, of the sending apparatus. It is a glass tube with one end coated inside with potassium, which gives off electrons as light falls on it and according to the degree of light. The photograph negative may be considered, as in one system of sending, as consisting of lines placed close together across the picture, and it is these lines which are individually reproduced.

Sent a Line at a Time

The reproduction of one line may be called scanning it. The negative is set on a glass drum or cylinder, and a beam of light passing through an arrangement of prisms scans a part or line of the picture into the photo-electric cell. According as the lines varies in shade and light (that is the top line may be a narrow bright part of the picture, or dark or may vary in light and shade), the beam of light passing through that thin strip of the negative varies in a corresponding degree, and as a result there is a similar variance in the number of electrons given off the inside of the photo-electric cell. An electric current is thereby set up in the cell, and this current varies in frequency according to the degree of light and shade in that strip of the negative. This is an exceedingly small or low current, .08 microwatts, but amplifiers increase it to a "reasonable power to handle."

Rapid Transmission

That one imaginary line of the picture is transmitted to the receiving apparatus far more quickly than it can be described. The heart of the receiver is a light valve or shutter which opens and closes in response to the current of varying frequency which has come from the first or top line of the photograph. This light is directed upon a sensitized paper or film and reproduces the first line of the original in its varying degrees of shade and light, or rather black and white.

Meanwhile the drum on which the photograph has been set moves forward automatically and the next or second line from the top is sent, and so on until the whole picture is complete from top to bottom. It is the ordinary black and white of photography and it is these colors which are reproduced.

Working in the Dark

The receiving room is necessarily in darkness because of the exposure of the sensitized paper which receives the photograph by wire. This paper is placed on a drum of the same size as the sender. They are synchronized, and it was this and many other technical details which Mr. Dancey clarified with his "slides" and charts.

The ordinary half-tone "cut" or "picture" in a newspaper presents a surface of fine points. It may be said to be composed of dots and dashes, the dots being the black and the dashes the white of the "cut." The same idea may describe the telephotograph, except that its dots and dashes are made by a light flashing through a little shutter operated by the current which is set up by the transmitting apparatus, and these flashes of light play upon the revolving sensitized paper, line after line to the bottom of the 5 x 7 photograph.

Multiple Sending

How the synchronization of the two machines, one for example in New York and the other in Chicago, so that they send and receive in unison is only one of the entrancing details of this new marvel of modern science and invention.

The method of testing the apparatus, the amplifiers, the filters which exclude some frequency bands, were other details which were explained at length.

On the A. T. and T. system photographs are now sent from New York simultaneously to Chicago, Boston, Atlanta, St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The use of telephotography is not confined to the service of newspapers, but is rapidly developing ancillary functions for business in general.

W. M. Cruthers was chairman of the meetings, and E. R. Shirley moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Dancey, whose invitation to the Peterborough branch of the E.I.C. was mentioned by Mr. Cruthers as an engagement for which John Barnes deserved compliment. Ross Dobbin promised a big time at the annual meeting two weeks hence.

and H. C. Huffman had been announced as winners of Douglas Grant's booster prizes announcements followed including that by H. C. Huffman that six cars were wanted to carry a delegation from the local club to Picton in company with Lieut-Governor McNabb on the occasion of his official visit to that club on May 16.

E. Vernon Morphet called attention to the coming of Senator Logan as speaker, and further stated that on the occasion of the next ladies' night, Dr. Margaret L. Patterson of Toronto would be the speaker. On the night of May 17, the graduating nurses of both hospitals will be entertained at luncheon.

Arthur Moffatt spoke of the newly formed Kiwanis softball league composed of four teams, chosen by Mark Bredin, Al. Sharpe, E. Vernon Morphet and Roy Taylor, while President J. J. Turner reminded the club of the coming visit to Peterborough of oJhn Miller, speaker on "Old Home week", to be heard in the Collegiate Auditorium next Thursday evening.

Kiwanians Have Part

"The Kiwanians, as builders in the community, have a part to play in building to the city's health plan" said Dr. Sutton following his introduction by Kiwanian Morphet. As the speaker of the day, he went on to tell of the Provincial Board of Health, and its organization, showing where the services of the Kiwanis and other service clubs, as well as the Red Cross, Women's Institutes and like organizations might best fit into the general scheme of promoting public health. Speaking quite generally, and studiously avoiding application to any local situation, the District M.O.H. stressed the value of efficient Officers of Health in the community, pointed out the objections to part-time Medical Health Officers, owing to the necessity for disregarding private practises, and went on to show where Kiwanians might direct their efforts in the support of outpost hospitals in the sparsely populated districts further north.

Value of Pasteurization

One phase of Mr. Sutton's address was given over to the all important question of milk pasteurization as a safeguard against the spread of epidemics, such as had recently broken out in Ekfrid township. He assured his listeners that pasteurization only served to kill injurious and not the non-injurious germs in milk and humorously referred to the recent mention of oranges as necessary adjuncts to pasteurized milk. "There is more vitamines in a leaf of lettuce than in so many oranges" he smiled."

In conclusion, Dr. Sutton spoke of the Social Hygiene council's splendid work. He had come as a substitute for Dr. Currie, President of that organization, and in closing commended that official for the work he is carrying on.

The vote of thanks was moved by A. J. Reynolds.

WAIT JUDGMENT IN APPEAL CASE

"The girl's first spontaneous exclamation when she entered her aunt's home was: 'I am through with Mr. Auger,' said Mr. Humphries. "Then the aunt said, 'Why did Auger kiss you?' And the girl replied, 'He did more than kiss me. He did something he should not have done.' The aunt said: 'You must tell me what he did,' and then the girl told the story."

Not Put in the Girl's Head.

The statements made were not put into the girl's head by the aunt, or by the questions asked Mr. Humphries said, and even though Miss Martel may have been persuaded to tell her story was no reason why her evidence should be rejected.

In response to Mr. Humphries' contention that "corroboration is not necessary in this case," Mr. Justice Hodgins said: "If corroboration is not necessary I would like to know why the Judge should have referred to the lack of it before the jury."

Chief Justice Mulock observed it was "a pretty dangerous doctrine," to suggest that the fact that the man was in the room might be some corroboration, as remarked by Mr Justice Hodgins.

In Police Court

A charge of keeping liquor for sale was changed to one of allowing drunkenness on his premises a North Monaghan man, pleaded guilty, was fined $25.00 and costs in police court this morning. There was also a juvenile case slated, a young lad being charged with the theft of a canoe. He was allowed to go on suspended sentence after a word of advice and warning from the bench.

TORONTO LEAFS ARE IDLE IN JERSEY CITY

Manager O'Neill Disappointed When Rain Prevents Game.

GIBSON VERSUS MALEY.

Former Team Mates Will Take Mound To-day in Jersey City.

JERSEY CITY, April 26—The Toronto Leafs were considerably put out yesterday by their inability to take another crack at the Jersey City Skeeters, upon whom they trampled 3-2 in the first game of the series here Wednesday. However, today is another day, and if the elements are agreeable, the Leafs will then try to tag Jersey City with its fourth straight defeat.

The luckless Skeeters haven't won a game since taking their first two starts of the season from Buffalo. Furthermore, all of their defeats having been by one run, they have much about which to complain. The spring postponements are less agreeable to Manager Steve O'Neill of the Leafs than to any other pilot of the league.

O'Neill feels that for the present at least, he has the best pitching staff in the circuit. Accordingly, he wants to make use of it, and these frequent rain-falls prevent him from doing so. He has at least a half-dozen really good pitchers, who are aching for a chance to get a little work, which they have been prevented from getting because of the postponed games which April showers everywhere have necessitated.

Bedore Recovers

All the Toronto players are in excellent condition to finish out the series here. Freddy Bedore, the slugging young third baseman, had not been well for several days, but awoke this morning in greatly improved health. Considering the clip at which Freddy had been batting when he was not feeling just right, his teammates are wondering just what he will do now that his condition makes him more disposed to vigorous action.

Guy Cantrell, the big righthanded pitcher, who is one of the few hurlers in the league to have already won two games, seems to have recovered from a cold which he contracted while he was winning his second start in Reading last Sunday.

The probability is that Cantrell will work before the team leaves this city on Saturday night. Guy always likes to pitch in Jersey City, and the fans here like to see him in action. He is still quite popular with them, since they retain vivid memories of the 1926 season in which he won 22 games for the Skeeters.

To-day's game will probably see James Roy ("Sam") Gibson oppised on the mount by a former Maple Leaf, Joe Maley. Neither Gibson nor Maley has started a game this season, although both have appeared in relief roles, so it will be interesting to note how the former team mates shape up opposed to each other in their first start.

Saving Star Pitcher.

Although the Jersey City Manager, Frank Gilhooley, has announced that he will pitch Maley to-day, judging by the manner in which he has jockeyed his pitchers this far, his logical selection should have been Milburn ("Lefty") Shoffner. Therefore the impression prevails that he is saving Shoffner for Saturday to use him against Cantrell. Shoffner has been given credit for both of the Jersey City victories this season, so this duel undoubtedly will be the "piece de resistance" of the series.

Julian Wera, the $40,000 infield beauty who is with the Skeeters on option from the Yankees, will resume his second basing in the final with the Leafs on Saturday. Wera was forced out of the line-up by weakness in Jersey City's last game, against Rochester. The weakness was brought on by lack of condition. Wera was unable to accompany the team South to whip himself into condition, because at the time he was recuperating from an appendicitis operation which he underwent in February.

The Yankees club physician has informed Julian that he can get back into the game on Saturday and Sunday, if he doesn't play to-day, and then play every other day for two weeks, and if he feels all right at the end of that time, he can play regularly through the season.

George Price, young Maple Leaf catcher, has been called to Philadelphia by the death of his aunt, with whom he made his home during the winter. Price is expected to report back to the club in Newark on Monday.

FIRST PRACTICE OF BALL CLUB

Petes Will Work Out At King Edward School.

The first practice of the Peterborough Central Ontario League team will be held to-morrow afternoon at the King Edward School Grounds, not King Edward Park as announced yesterday. All players who have signed and all others wishing a try-out with the senior team are asked to be out at two o'clock sharp. It is hoped to be able to practice at James Stevenson Park a week from to-morrow, as the water is all out of the park and the grounds should dry rapidly.

SOFTBALL RULING TO IMPROVE GAME

Toronto Women's Softball Have Rigid Rules in Queen City.

TORONTO, April 26. — There is a hard and fast ruling in the Ontario Women's Softball and Toronto Women's Softball Associations whereby teams affiliated with either of these bodies are not permitted to play with teams or clubs not affiliated. Players should be very careful of playing or entering into any league or series not sanctioned by either of these bodies, as they are liable to let themselves in for a lot of trouble if they do.

It is expected that within a short time the Federation will rule that any athlete competing in any sport not affiliated with the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation is not eligible to compete in sports that are affiliated. Contrary to reports, it is not the intention to put any team out of Sunnyside, who played there last season. One thing is sure, and that is it will not be possible to accommodate any new teams under conditions as they now are at the stadium.

As a result of requests from several leagues that no club be permitted to operate more than one team in any series a by-law was unanimously passed prohibiting clubs from having more than one senior, intermediate, and junior team. The Patricia senior team are not operating this season, and two intermediate teams will be out of the Sunnyside League, they having withdrawn.

The public are demanding good softball with teams closely matched, and in as far as possible the Toronto Women's Softball Association are going to try and give them what they are asking. It is the intention of the executive of the T.W.S.A. to have a round-table conference with the managers of the different clubs playing at Sunnyside before the season opens with a view to securing their opinion on bettering of conditions for a bumper season.

FIELD STRONG TEAM.

C. T. Nicholson is Elected Captain of the Blue and White.

MARMORA, April 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Deloro are fielding a strong team to engage the Brinton team on Saturday afternoon. At the selection meeting held on Wednesday evening, the captaincy of the Blue and White was accorded C. T. Nicholson, the choice proving most popular.

Deloro grounds having been drained and improved, given fine weather, will be in good shape for games.

SOCCER LEAGUE GAMES TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

C.G.E. Vs. C.P.C. at King Edward Park—Deloro Vs. Brinton at Deloro.

The opening league game in the local soccer schedule takes place to-mororw afternoon at King Edward Park when the Canadian General and the Canadian Packing meet. Kick off is ordered to be at 3 o'clock prompt. Referee Alex. McKinley will handle the whistle in this important match.

The C. G. E. have chosen the following players to represent them as follows:—Bolton, goal; Figg and F. Wade full backs; Rankin, Mann and Blowers half backs; Robb McMaster, Mitchell, A. Wilson and Alex Burgess forwards.

Their opponents have not picked their eleven but it will be at full strength when they line up and will include two old C.G.E. players in Westwood and Laidler who have changed their team this year.

Canadian Packing team will be: Griffine, goal; Westwood and A. Downer, full backs; R. Carmichael, Buchan and Bromley, halves; N. Downer, O'Halloran, A. Beggs, Laidler and T. Foster, forwards. Reserves—T. Wilson and W. Beggs. All players be at pavilion not later than 2.45.

Brinton Play in Deloro.

The other schedule game in the soccer league is at Deloro, where the Brinton A.A. will be the guests of Deloro for the afternoon. Frank McKinley has kindly consented to referee and will accompany the local team. Vincent Stewart, president of the P. and D. F. A., will spend the afternoon in Deloro. Kick-off is arranged for four o'clock.

ALL PETERBOROUGH MEN.

Business men, working men and men about town are due for a treat that comes only once in a lifetime. W. S. Merrell, successor to H. LeBrun & Co., Peterborough's oldest men's store, has made arrangements to offer the entire stock, consisting of the products of over 30 of Canada's finest manufacturers in huge sale at tremendous reductions, beginning April 27th.

Suits, topcoats, shirts, hats, caps, neckwear, underwear, and everything right down to garters and armbands will be thrown into this mighty undertaking. The fact that this event takes places at the beginning of the season instead of after it is over, will bring people from many miles to share in the savings. It will be held at the well known old store at 396 George street beginning Saturday and continuing for two whole weeks.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS BEAT WHITE SOX

Ted Lyons Touched For Four Hits and Three Runs in First Frame.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 26 (Canadian Press).—Swooping down on Ted Lyons for four hits and three runs in the first inning, the St. Louis Browns scored a 3 to 2 victory and ruined the 1929 home debut of the White Sox here yesterday. Less than 10,000 fans shivered in an icy wind which swept through the stand.

After the first inning Lyons held the Browns in check until he was forced to retire in the eighth, when he was injured in making an assist. George Connally finished. Sam Gray was touched for eight hits, two more than the total permitted by Lyons and Connally, but the Sox efforts lacked co-ordination. Gray also received excellent support.

SURVIVORS TO MEET IN FINAL ON SATURDAY

Bolton Wanderers and Portsmouth Are Two Exceptional Teams.

PROBABLE LINE-UPS.

Portsmouth's Rise From the Minors Has Been Real Romance.

LONDON, April 26. — The decks have all been cleared for the cup-tie final at Wembley Stadium on Saturday, April 27, when Bolton Wanderers and Portsmouth will meet to decide who will hold the silverware that carries with it the championship of the English Association for next year. The match is more than ordinarily attractive this year because in Portsmouth are found a team which never before reached the final of the cup series. They will be pitted against a club which is an old and tried finalist, and which has won the cup twice in less than seven years—in 1923 and 1926.

Portsmouth's rise from the minors has been one of the romances of English soccer. This year while fighting their way through the various rounds of the cup competition they got careless in their league engagements with the consequence that during the past month they have had to fight hard to avoid demotion to the second division. The terrific grind may or may not have told on the team.

Bolton Wanderers, who are not going anywhere particular in the league have been able to take things easy. Portsmouth were picked by the critics to lose their last two cup engagements, first against Chelsea, and then against Aston Villa, but they dumbfounded the experts by winning through. Bolton's hardest hurdle on the road to Wembley were the cup-holders, Blackburn Rovers, whom they defeated by two goals to one. They then eliminated Huddersfield Town, last year's runners-up.

The English Cup was first contested in 1872 when the old Wanderers (not Bolton Wanderers) defeated the Royal Engineers 1-0. Aston Villa and Blackburn Rovers have won the cup six times, and the Wanderers five times. Bolton have won it on two occasions. The record score for a cup final was made by Bury in 1903, when they defeated Derby County, 6-0.

TIGER SOUTHPAW EARNS SHUTOUT

Emil Yde Starts Well For Detroit With a No Run Game.

DETROIT, April 26. — Emil Yde, former Pittsburg Pirate southpaw, pitched the Detroit Tigers to a shutout victory over the Cleveland Indians here yesterday afternon in his first start of the season. The score was 5 to 0. Yde kept the Cleveland hits well scattered, and his mates gave him a three-run lead in the first inning, which was two runs more than he needed for victory. The Tigers scored two more in the fifth inning.

The Tigers pounded Willis Hudlin, Indian right-hander, for four hits to gain their three runs in the first inning. Rice started it off with a triple to centre. Gehringer followed with a single that scored Rice, and stole second. Alexander and McManus added singles. Alexander has hit safely in the ten games played to date.

Each team made eight hits, but the Tigers sank Hudlin by bunching their safeties.

CAPTURES TITLE FOR FOURTH TIME

WORPLESDON, Eng., April 26.—(Canadian Press)—Showing the same brilliant golf which enabled her to win he British women's championship three times, Miss Joyce Wethered yesterday breezed through the Surrey women's championship to capture that title for the fourth time.

Miss Wethered defeated Mrs. Latham Hall of Guildford eight up and six to play in the final yesterday afternoon after disposing of Mrs. R. L. Kennedy of Worplesdon, eight up and seven to play in the semi-final, played in the morning.

The Committee Meets to Decide Mother's Fate

"WE would be glad, of course, to have mother come and live with us," says one of the sons. "But the trouble is our house is so small."

"We haven't a spare room," adds the daughter-in-law regretfully.

And so it goes. One after the other makes excuse. Each has his or her own problems, and responsibilities.

Widowed at 65, Mother's fate would have been vastly different had father left any estate, or adequate life insurance. Mother could have had a nice little monthly income of her own if father had planned aright—an income guaranteed by the Mutual Life of Canada, and payable as long as she lived.

This Mutual Monthly Income policy is one every man with family responsibilities should seriously consider. Any Mutual Agent will be glad to tell you the advantages of this policy. Let us send you our folder "The Greatest Thing in the World of Insurance."

"DOC"
Canadian Motion Picture Dog — Performs Stunts with Almost Human Intelligence

THEATRES

"THE CANARY MURDER CASE" AND "DOC."

A Canadian edition of the wonder-dog of the movies, Rin-Tin-Tin, is here in person this week, in the German shepherd dog, just twenty-three months old, which is appearing on the stage of the Capitol Theatre, with his trainer, M. J. E. Melanson, a native of New Brunswick.

This afternoon, "Doc' as he is called, caused a great deal of excitement on the streets when he appeared in the act of wheeling a baby carriage. He is a fine-looking black and tan dog with pointed ears and intelligent eyes. He is said to have been trained without the use of either the whip or the sweetmeats which are usually considered necessary in chastising or petting such trained animals. He appears to do his many clever tricks out of sheer interest in the performance and gets plenty of kick, evidently, from the applause which greets his efforts to amuse and entertain.

His best stunt is the one which puts a Canadian flag in his mouth and makes him carry it, backward, up a fifteen foot stepladder. Another amusing trick is smoking a pipe and he prays earnestly at a word of command, with head down, until the sound of "Amen' brings him to attention once more. He selects a playing card from a pack and also does some quick work in jumping through hoops and barrels.

Mr. Melanson has travelled with his dog all over Eastern Canada as well as Newfoundland and is now on his way back to western points. He states that Rin-Tin-Tin may be the great American dog, but "Doc" is Canada's great wonder dog. He is the only dog known to parade as far as three miles on his hind legs, and will in a short time be in the movies. He is valued at $20,000.

"The Canary Murder Case" is one of those interesting affairs that pictures what is said to have been a real incident in the annals of the New York police force. It makes the detective the main character throughout and removes him from the traditional role of a heavy-handed cigar-smoking gentleman with a flair for handling situations in a brutal manner. A contrasting type of sleuth is pictured in "The Canary Murder Case," where William Powell is the smoothlooking and acting Philo Vance, who uses modern psychological methods in his tracking down of the criminal. He "thinks through" every situation and utilizes a poker game in his search for the murderer.

"The Canary," as she was called on Broadway, Margaret O'Dell, makes a brief appearance in the first act, before passing out by the garroting method. Then six people are involved in her murder, with the finger of suspicion pointing at each one in turn. How Vance discovers the real criminal makes an interesting picture.

—Jeanette.

Cassie and Jones Give Fans Fast Demonstration of Boxing.

NO KNOCKOUTS.

Bill Taylor and Reg. Lesurf Stage Smartest Bout of the Evening.

The boxing class coached by Wilfred Jones displayed their wares in another sparkling tournament of nine three-round bouts at "Y" gymnasium last night. A goodly crowd of fans enjoyed the fights and echoed their appreciation in hearty handclapping at the end of each round.

Sportsmanship was the key-note of the tourney, and although the boys went into each other with a will, they showed that they are boxers, and not fighters. Wilfred Jones, their trainer, was the referee and he enforces the rule that all applause for the boxers must take the form of clapping—no partizan shouts greeted any of the boxers through the bouts.

The large turn-out of fans attested to the facts that the "Y" boxers have secured a high place in their favor. All went away loud in their praise of the bouts and the manner in which they were handled. Every fighter showed improvement over his first appearance two weeks ago and are gaining that perfection of smooth foot and head work that distinguishes the smart boxer.

METCALFE—BROADLEY.

This was the opening bout to the smart program and these two boys weighing 135 pounds, although in their first public appearance, were willing workers. Metcalfe used a long left to advantage and showed the added polish of more lessons, but George Broadley was most willing to get into close quarters. Metcalfe had a nice swinging motion with his head that ducked punches, but Broadley came on smartly in the second round, planting Metcalfe as he ducked. Broadley has a fine style keeping his head well up and he should make a good boxer with more training. He smacked Metcalf one hot one that echoed to the rafters, after Metcalfe's left punch miscarried.

GEORGE CASSIE—DICK JONES.

Cassie and Jones are both light, fast boxers with smooth shifting foot-work and they waded in heartily. They were evenly matched and took turns in forcing the fighting, relying mostly on long-range left hooks. Jones toward the middle of the round was going under Cassies drives, hammering away at every opening. Cassie pulled the best piece of foot-work of the evening when he got clear away when Jones thought he had him pocketed in a corner. Jones was the more rugged of the two, but Cassie never hesitated.

LESLIE MUNDEN—FRANK WOOD.

This was a long-range bout, both snapping out long lefts and using their feet to bounce in for a blow and then satisfied beat a hasty retreat. It was a fifty-fifty split, with Wood's sturdiness being matched by the greater speed of Munden. Both were bothered with long hair which repeatedly got in thir eyes. Munden toward the end worked in for some neat body punches. In the third Munden was pelting Wood's head when the latter dropped his guard in his anxious search for openings. Both showed good condition but were often wild on their placements.

NEIL GEMMEL—WILMOT GORDON

Gordon is a rugged boxer with a tight guard, but Gemmel was slippery as an eel with a shifty head movement and a rapier-like left. Theq exchanged smartly right from the bell. Gordon used his right more than any previous boxer, but Gemmel's foot-work more than made up for his lack in size and reach. Gordon forced the bout, his opponent slipping in with telling effect on every opening.

JACK GREEN—GRANT PALMER.

This bout came the nearest to a knockout of any. Palmer using a hard right to the body that wore Green down and when in the closing seconds of the bout he landed a punch that caused Green to reach gropingly for the ropes in a daze. Both stepped in lively, Green using a swaying motion that eluded many blows. Neither backed up in the heavy going and it was one of the best bouts of the night. Both mixed it from close range, Palmer's right going in with speed and purpose. Green guarded closely with his right, using only his left, but Palmer, a two-fisted boxer, wore his opponent down at the end with his body blows.

Ted Tompkins—Bud Goodwin

These boys at 118 pounds were speedy and tricky showing good training. They used their elbows as almost impregnable barriers in defence. Their styles were widely different, Tompkins keeping his right always up to his face, while Goodwin was equally ready to deliver with either hand. Goodwin showed the advantage in the second round, but Tompkins weathered the storm serenely and toward the end he had solved Goodwin's guard. He whipped over a left across Goodwin's right guard landing frequently on the chin in the last round.

Otto Laderach-Harry Blewett

Laderach was the best boxer of the two, although both were sturdy, weighing in at 158 pounds. Blewett was game. Both should be heard from later.

Bill Taylor-Reg. Lesurf

Opening with a rush this bout proved to be the peppiest go of the tourney. Lesurf is a capable boxer using both hands with good judgment and speed. Lesurf backed Taylor into the ropes and they pummelled blows with gusto until Taylor gained the centre of the ring. Taylor lacked the experience of Lesurf and he weakened near the close of the second round. After the breather he returned with renewed vigor and waded into Lesurf with a will. He had the advantage as Lesurf tired in the last minute and he whipped in some telling blows. It was the best bout of the program.

Rupert Lewington-Bert Cowan

Announced as a heavy-weight bout this setto supplied a lot of fireworks and sent the customers away more than satisfied. Evenly-matched in every respect, weight-height and reach these boxers set a lively pace. Cowan was always on the aggressive until he tired in the last round. Lewington covered well and his left was never at rest. Cowan had the knack of snapping out a long left just as he sprung back after an exchange that generally landed accurately. Toward the close Cowan weakened under the gruelling pace and his opponent slipped in frequent body blows.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The East Peterborough League is holding a conclave with important matters up for consideration this evening.

BOXERS EXHIBIT IMPROVEMENT.

Everything went off smoothly in the "Y" boxing tournament last evening, and the fans seemed to appreciate the fact that every boxer showed vast improvement over his initial public appearance in the bouts two weeks ago. The nearest approach to a knockout came after Grant Palmer had effectually weakened his opponent, Jack Green with a heavy right to the body, and in the dying moments of the third round he sunk a right to the midriff that had Green seeking the ropes dazedly. The hard-working seconds, Jack Smith and Alfred Bishop, who proved that they have real skill with the towel, added a great deal of color to the bouts.

The boys are asking the question: "Who will be the first lady to come in to see the boxing shows?" The crowd showed their sportsmanship throughout by controlling their excitement and cheers for their favorites.

NORWOOD CLUB ON TOES.

The Norwood Lawn Bowling Club are looking forward to a successful season and they are already taking steps to insure the success of their annual tournament. Invitations have been sent out to all bowling clubs in the district requesting their attendance and participation in the Norwood tournament. C. B. Cutcliff is the hustling president of the club, and he has a great many equally busy assistants.

CLAPPER BACK IN HASTINGS.

"Dit" Clapper of Hastings, one of the stars on the Boston Bruins, world's professional champions, came home the other day to rest up after his strenuous season of play. Mr. Clapper is properly the hero of the town. He has had a rapid rise to the height of hockey ability. Learning his hockey in Hastings he went to Parkdale Canoe Club, thence to the New Haven pros., and then he landed a berth on the Bruins. He aided in their clear-cut victory in the N. H. L.

DOUG. BRENNAN IS HOME.

Havelock is another town that is proud of the return for the summer of one of her sons, who has made his mark in the hockey world. Doug. Brennan and Mrs. Brennan arrived home recently, after putting in a stirring hockey season in Vancouver. Doug. hit his stride in proper style playing with the Frank [illegible] Vancouver Lions in the Pacific Coast Pro. League. He is sturdy, standing on the defence he stopped many a rush during the season, being also a leading scorer in the league.

LOCAL GOLFERS ARE PUTTING.

Some of the local golfers have already gone into action on the links of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. The low ground is still marshy after the heavy rains, but they have been putting around on the hills. Golfing does not need any impetus here, but it is expected that the addition of the Rogers' property and the enlarging of the course to 18 holes will lend it even greater attractions for the players

CENTRAL LEAGUERS BUSY.

The Central League team will hold its first work out to-morrow afternoon at King Edward School Grounds. The players eager to get throwing the ball around, since all have been getting into shape during the past month, will likely want to dig right in from the outset. However, Manager Swanston will see that the players take it easy and let themselves get gradually into the traces. Every player and recruit will be on hand.

PURPOSE OF SOFTBALL.

Entries are coming in satisfactorily for the City Softball League. The Westclox have sent in their entry, and the Teco Stores are busy scouting for players. The softball league would be hitting at a real need if it gave recreation to those who otherwise would not be participating in any form of sport It is serving no purpose if it takes in those who are playing hardball, or normally would be playing the more strenuous game. At least it could increase its scope if two groups were formed, one being confined to factory and lodge teams. The idea of this group would be to bring out the average player and give him a chance to disport himself. This was the chief purpose of the first softball league formed in the city and which operated in the armouries during the late fall and early spring.

FLYING COP GAINS ON DERBY LEADER

SULLIVAN, Mo., April 26 (C.P.).—With the toughest lap of the run thus far behind them, the twenty-eight survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby looked to-day toward Rolla, Mo., for their next resting place. Yesterday they completed a sixty-one mile run from Maplewood, Mo., to Sullivan, Mo., under worst conditions yet encountered, a stiff head wind impaired their progress and a bitter cold rain fell all day.

Johnny Salo, the flying cop of Passaic, N.J., cut deeply into the lead of Pete Gavuzzi, Italian waiter of England, by his victory yesterday. Gavuzzi's margin of leadership was narrowed to 2.41.25 hours, when he placed fourth. Phil Granville of Hamilton finished eighth, but is still seventh in elapsed time. To-day's distance is about 45 miles.

LEAVES FOR CHINA

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (C.P.).—Dr. Wallace Crawford, Toronto, is to proceed to Cheugtu, China, to become director of the Council on Health Education for West China, it was announced yesterday. At least 65,000,000 people will be the field of his leadership. Reports from West China indicate the need for preventive measures against cholera, the plague, smallpox, tuberculosis and other major diseases.

10,000 FANS WATCH GOLF TOURNAMENT

U. S. Team Wins in First 18 Holes of International Foursome.

MATCHES ARE CLOSE.

Walter Hagen and John Golden Are Two Up On British Golfers.

MOORTOWN, Eng., April 26. —(anadian Press).—More than 10,000 golf fans saw the Ryder Cup team of British Professionals stage a stubborn but losing fight against representatives of the United States in the first 18 holes of the international foursome to-day. So stubbornly did the Britishers battle that the vaunted American stars secured only a bare lead in two of the matches, one finished all square while in the other Leo Diegel, well known to Canadian golfers, being present at the Canadian open championship coupled with Al Espinosa, played a brilliant round in which their medal score was 66 to smother the British combination of Captain George Duncan and Aubrey Boomer and retire for lunch seven up.

Two Up on British

Walter Hagen and John Golden were two up on Ernest Whitcombe and Henry Cotton and Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa had an advantage of one hole on Charles Whitecombe and Archie Compston. Gene Sarazen and Ed. Dudley were all square with Abe Mitchell and Fred Robson.

The sensational and well co-ordinated play of Diegel and Espinosa featured the morning round. They played practically perfect golf.

Farrell and Turnesa were two down in the early stages of their match and were not able to draw even until the tenth, they lost the eleventh but with three threes in a row, two of them birdies, took a two hole lead which the British reduced to one when Turnesa missed a putt before the big crowd at the home green.

Sarazen and Dudley had the hardest fight of the morning. Mitchell missed a two foot putt on which he was half stymied at the eighteenth to lose a one hole lead.

The fourth match was closely contested all the way. Hagen turned the tide in favor of the Americans at the seventeenth when he holed a chip shot and the Americans added another at the home hole when Cotton found a bunker with his second.

WOMAN GIVEN THREE YEARS

ILLEGAL OPERATION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Elizabeth McClintlock was sentenced to three years in Portsmouth penitentiary by Chief Justice Meredith yesterday when she was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Anna Grieve, who died on March 10 from the results of an illegal operation.

His Lordship, in sentencing the prisoner, reminded her that the sentence for a person found guilty of her offence, even if the other party did not die, might be life imprisonment.

In Police Court

Magistrate O. A. Langley, Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C. and Provincial Constable Harry Thompson were in Havelock on Wednesday where the trial of Joseph Dunne, of Belmont township was held. Dunne had appeared in court in Peterborough a week previous charged with having stolen goods in his possession. A remand had been granted.

After pleading not guilty, the accused man went on trial Wednesday, and after hearing the evidence, Magistrate Langley imposed a sentence of two months.

FAMILY AFFAIR.

LONDON, April 26.—The Waring Furniture Factory at Lancaster has had three generations of the Rogers family in its employ. Thomas Rogers, who recently died at his job of wood turning, worked for the same concern for 76 years. His son has been working for the furniture outfit 49 years and a grandson 20 years.

C.G.E. RUNNERS TO HOLD MEET

Saturday Afternoon Programs Are Gaining in Popularity.

The C G. E. runners will hold a cross country run on Saturday, April 27, leaving the Y.M.C.A. at 2.30 p.m.

These Saturday afternoon programs are gaining in popularity with the Harriers in the city and the bill for this week-end should attract a large crowd of participants, who must come prepared to enjoy a real cross country run with all the frills, such as fence climbing, etc.

Every member of the Y.M.C.A. or C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club are especially invited to be present while all unattached runners who enjoy this branch of the game will be accommodated also.

IF "SKINNY," GAIN WEIGHT QUICK WAY

New YEAST and IRON adds pounds in few weeks. Your own druggist guarantees results — or pay nothing.

You don't want to be underweight, nervous and always tired—an object of pity to your friends. Start ironized Yeast now and put pounds of good flesh on those bony arms, hollow cheeks and scraggy limbs. See ugly lines give way to graceful curves. Feel a new vitality and strength you haven't had for years.

Only when Yeast is Ironized is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast.

Ironized Yeast brings pounds of weight in astonishingly quick time. Letters say: "10 pounds gained in 3 weeks," "one full treatment added 7 pounds," "11 pounds and better health." The blood is toned up too, because the iron adds strength and richness to the blood, clearing up the complexion and increasing your vitality. Ironized Yeast comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets. Safe for everybody. Does not upset stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Ask your druggist today for a full course treatment. It will prove that you can gain many pounds or your money will be refunded.

PRISONERS READ TO BIG EXTENT

Former Penitentiary Official Says Most Prisoners Avail Themselves of Library.

LOOK AT MAGAZINES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—Romeo P. Lapierre, B.A., has left off teaching convicts in penitentiaries and next year will teach French to the pupils of Humberside Collegiate here. After six years of work in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, Quebec, and a period in Portsmouth Penitentiary, Mr. Lapierre has many interesting things to tell about his work in the prisons.

"Every inmate has a library catalogue in his cell," he said recently, "and there are 8,000 volumes of all kinds in the prison library to choose from. In addition the Government subscribes to about 60 magazines. Practically all of the men avail themselves of the library privileges and even the illiterates take out picture magazines. Fiction is most popular and the library is quite up to date."

Part of Mr. Lapierre's duties consisted in visiting the men in their cells and asking them what they would like to read as well as advising them what books to select.

"The idea," he said, "is to try to mould a man's life in prison so that he can better his position after he gets out."

The penitentiary school, Mr. Lapierre explained, is conducted in the noon hour. Attendance is not compulsory except for illiterates, but many of the convicts undertake various kinds of voluntary studies. Last year eight wrote the high school entrance examination and passed, one with honors. In the lower school examinations six wrote and three passed in five subjects, while several wrote the middle and upper school examinations with a measurable degree of success.

Mr. Lapierre said he was unable to teach all the convicts, but received assistance from some educated men among the prisoners, one of whom was a school teacher. He said he had never had any trouble with discipline but there were always three or four guards presiding over the school.

Mr. Lapierre comes from Montreal. He was transferred from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary to the institution at Portsmouth after six years' service. He graduated from Queen's University in 1927, and this yea will obtain his high school teacher's certificate at the Ontario College of Education.

BIG AIR MAIL ROUTE MOOTED

Windsor Believes Walker Airport Will Be Hub of Trancontinental Service.

EAST TO WEST SERVICE.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press). — Postmaster General P. J. Veniot's recent announcement in the House of Commons that air mail service will be established this year between Toronto and the Border Cities, is an indication that the Walker airport near here will become one of the most important aerial stations on the continent. It will be the transfer juncture for all air mail en route to the western states and Western Canada. It is believed here that the Walker airport will be the eastern terminus of an important American mail route, which would form a link between Windsor and Calgary via Winnipeg.

District aviation officials and enthusiasts see fulfilment of their hopes and a favorable answer to their agitation for this service.

The Postmaster-General made the definite declaration that Windsor would not be the terminal of the route. It is therefore believed American planes will land at Walker Field, for connection with Toronto fliers. A rapid transfer of mail would be made and the American planes will transfer their mail at Winnipeg after dropping Chicago and midwestern states mail at Chicago.

Expert estimates are that the new combination of routes will bring Montreal and Calgary within 24 hours of each other for mail service, and also for passenger work.

Mr. Veniot's announcement was to the effect that stops will be made at important points between Toronto and the Border Cities, but only at points where the municipalities have established landing fields. He made it plain that these facilities must be supplied by the towns and cities themselves. The Post Office Department has no intention of setting up its own airports, at great expense.

Hamilton and London will, therefore, probably be the only two stops. They are the only cities which have recognized air ports. Some others have small private fields, but it is unlikely that these will be used. Eventually, the service will extend through to the Pacific Coast, but the Postmaster-General said that this would probably not be made this year.

Another conjecture made by aviation officials was that mail from Toronto for Detroit would probably be unloaded at the local field and transferred by motor across the river. They pointed out it would not be economical for the planes to proceed to a Detroit landing field as all those in the vicinity of the Michigan metropolis are actually further from the Detroit post office than is Walker Airport.

Meanwhile, keen competition is going on for the contract which is to be let. Two lines of aircraft are definitely in the running, the National Air Transport, headed by Capt. Earl M. Hand, M.C., of Toronto, and International Airways of Canada, the president of which is Major-General J. H. MacBrien, president of the Aviation League of Canada.

Both companies have begun a daily service between here and Toronto, carrying passengers and express. The National is flying Buhl Airsedans while the International uses Fairchilds and Fokkers. Capt. Hand's company flies out of the Leaside Aero drome, Toronto, while the International's Toronto terminal is at Weston.

Limitation of Army Reserves Is Ruled Out

Bolton W. Win English Cup

NEWS IN BRIEF

DRIVER EXONERATED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—No blame was attached to Wilbert E. May, driver of the motor truck, which, on April 17, struck and killed Margaret Williams, aged 3, a coroner's jury found last night.

The child darted out from behind another car immediately in front of Williams' truck and gave him no chance to avoid striking her.

KILLED BY SAW.

TILLSONBURG, Ont., April 27. — (Canadian Press).—Arthur Fox, 50 years, was killed yesterday while assisting a neighbor in sawing his wood. Fox was feeding a log of wood to a buzz saw when he stumbled and fell headfirst into the saw. No inquest will be held. He is survived by his wife and six children.

STORM TAKES TWO LIVES.

WARSAW, Poland, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Heavy snowstorms were reported throughout Poland today with low temperatures in the neighborhood of Plock.

During a gale, Major Rychlowski and Captain Pawlowski, Polish Army aviators, were swept into the Vistula while on a flight and both were killed.

FLIGHT STOPPED SHORT.

PARIS, April 27 (Canadian Press). —Frank Mase, young New Zealand airman, who took off from Lympne in a tiny single-seater airplane yesterday on a 13,500-mile flight to New Zealand, made a forced landing four miles from Rianne, France.

His plane hit an embankment, turned over and broke the propeller and landing gear. Mase was injured slightly on the face.

FEDERAL VICTORY REPORTED.

MEXICO CITY, April 27 (Canadian Press).—A Federal victory in the four day battle with 1,500 "Cristeros" or so-called religious rebels at Tepatitlan, Jalisco, was reported to the Government to-day by General Saturnino Cedillo, commanding the army of Central Mexico.

General Cedillo said 150 rebels had been killed and 20 captured, and had been executed because there were no jails for their confinement. A hundred rebels were wounded, while his own forces lost only 39 dead and 39 wounded.

BODY IDENTIFIED.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 27. —(C.P.)—The body of a man taken from the hydraulic canal Thursday evening, was identified at an undertaking establishment here to-day as that of John Jasinski, shoemaker, aged 52, of Utica, N.Y.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 27.—(C.P.) —Three men and a woman were reported under arrest here to-day in connection with the $8,100 machine gun hold-up and murder at the plant of the Fedders Radiator Company yesterday afternoon.

Police declined to divulge the names of those held.

MAYOR McBRIDE SUES TELEGRAM

Libel Action Is Started By Toronto's Chief Magistrate Against Newspaper.

LEGAL FIRM RETAINED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.).—Mayor McBride is taking action against The Evening Telegram for alleged libel in an article published in that paper last Saturday.

He has retained the firm of McCarthy and McCarthy as counsel, and yesterday served the usual notice under the terms of the Libel and Slander Act.

Irving E. Robertson, managing dieor of The Telegram, said last night that he had not had any official notification that Mayor McBride had taken action against the newspaper.

Big Crowd Watches Final

Bolton Wanderers To-day Captured British Cup From Portsmouth.

SCORE 2 POINTS TO 0.

93,000 People Are Estimated To Have Watched Final Game.

WEMBLEY STADIUM, England, April 27 (Canadian Press Cable). — Bolton Wanderers won the historic English Football Association Cup here to-day from Portsmouth by two goals to nil. Both tallies were securcured in the second half. The attendance was estimated at 93,000, which was very much below expectations. Many people preferred listening to a demonstration of the match over the radio The game was watched by the Prince of Wales, while the spectators included contingents of visitors from all parts of England, notably from the Midlands and the North. Bolton's goals were scored by their forwards, Butler and Blackmore.

The first arrivals from the North detrained at three o'clock, and by eight the neighborhood of the termini at Paddington, Euston, and King's Cross was swarming with men and women sporting the colors of the rival teams.

The earliest arrivals got a glimpse of London at its worst. After many weeks of drought a heavy rain fell during the night. A cheery contingent from South Wales started singing optimistically, "It Ain't Going to Rain No More."

The teams were:

Prince of Wales Enters.

The huge crowd gathered to see the final soccer match of the English Football Association Cup series got their first chance to cheer when the Prince of Wales entered the enclosure. He was given a tremendous ovation. He was presented to the members of the two teams, and shook hands with each of the Bolton Wanderers and Portsmouth elevens.

Bolton won the toss and decided to take advantage of the slight breeze blowing. Bolton made a half-hearted attack, which was comfortably repulsed. Portsmouth then were decidedly dangerous, but their left outside, Cook, hesitated when he got close in, and Bolton relieved. Kean of the Bolton team conceded the first corner, which came to nothing. Portsmouth staged an offensive, maintaining it at great speed. The Bolton defence were sorely tried, and finally they let in McIlwaine, who shot past the post.

After ten minutes of defensive, Bolton shot through with a ground shot which brought the crowd to their feet. Pym only managed to kick the ball away by the narrowest margin. Portsmouth then tried a number of attacks and some of their accurate low passing had Bolton's halves in a tangle. The Southerners finally swept down with splendid co-

BRITISH CONSERVATIVE PARTY IS STAKING ELECTION FATE ON SAFEGUARDING PROPOSALS

Permanent Board Would Be Established To Hear Tariff Arguments.

NO TAXES ON FOOD.

Final Responsibility For Imposition of Duties Will Rest With House of Commons.

Following is first of a series of articles by George Hambleton, European staff correspondent of Canadian Press on the forthcoming British elections. Three more, dealing with the three other parties, will follow.—(Ed).

LONDON, April 27. — (Canadian Press).—The Conservatives propose to extend the safeguarding of British industries, that system under which certain industries enjoy the benefit of a customs tariff, if returned to power in the coming general elections. This is one of the main planks of their platform. They do not, so they declare, propose the adoption of a general system of protective tariffs. "We are pledged", Premier Baldwin wrote to Commander Eyres-Monsell, Chief Government Whip, last August, "and shall continue to be pledged, not to introduce protection. We are pleged and shall continue to be pleged not to impose any taxes on food."

What Conservatives propose if they are returned at the general elections is a simplified and shortened procedure which will extend safeguarding. At present an industry wishing to be safeguarded i.e., to secure the advantage of an import duty) must prove to the board of trade that there is a prima facie case to be before a committee. When that is done, a committee is set up for the purpose. Conservative proposals will involve the setting up of a single permanet tribunal for hearing safeguarding applications, a tribunal something after the style of the Canadian tariff board. This permanent board will be appointed by the president of the board of trade. The government, as in the case of the Canadian Tariff Board, will not be bound by the findings of the tribunal. Final responsibility for the imposition of duties will rest with the House of Commons. And no manufacturing industry will be barred from presenting its case.

Duties of Tribunal

The duty of the safeguarding tribunal will be to decide:

(1) Whether foreign goods of the class to which the application relates, are being imported into and retained for consumption in the United Kingdom in qualities substantial in proportion to consumption in this country.

(2) Whether by such importation employment in the United Kingdom is being or is likely to be seriously affected.

(3) Whether the foreign goods imported are manufactured in the country of origin unfair unfair or inferior conditions of wages and hours.

(4) Whether the industry is being carried on in the United Kingdom with reasonable efficiency and economy.

(5) Whether the imposition of a duty would exercise a seriously adverse effect upon employment or cost of production in any other productive industry, including agriculture.

Agriculture Represented.

Hitherto agriculture has never been able to secure representation before a safeguarding tribunal. Before it could appear before a tribunal to oppose an application, an industry had to be able to show that employment within that industry would be adversely affected by the granting of the application.

Under the revised procedure agriculture will be able to appear before the tribunal should it have cause to fear that its cost of production will be increased. "This does not mean," comments a booklet issued from Conservative headquarters, "that agriculture can apply for a safeguarding duty."

Safeguarding duties are attacked, both by Labor and Liberals. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Labor government, charges that no Chancellor of the Exchequer has imposed so many new indirect taxes as Mr. Churchill. He cites the "heavy duties" on silk and artificial silk, lace cotton embroidery, and so forth, the dutie son sugar and dried fruits, cocoa and coffee. (he attacked the tea duty which was repealed in the budget.) Mr. Snowden adds: "The declared purpose of the Labor party is to abolish all taxes such as these as soon as possible. It may take more than one Labor budget to undo all the mischief Mr. Churchill has wrought but a Labor government backed by a parliamentary majority will set to work to restore our finances an dto establish a fair and just sytsem of national taxation."

Condemn Safeguarding.

Liberals condemn safeguarding as

Two Lindsay Youths Are Granted Remand

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.). — Claiming protection of the police court which gave them a private hearing, Harold Lee, 17, and his brother, Russell, 14, of Lindsay, Ont., who are alleged to have admitted holding-up the staff of the Dominion Bank at New Toronto and attempting to steal money from them, were today remanded in custody until Thursday night.

The boys were not represented by counsel and the entire court proceedings took less than four minutes.

SHEFFIELD WINS FIRST DIVISION BURY LOSES OUT

TIED WITH BURNLEY.

Tense Race of Past Month Is Turned in Favor of Cutlery Team.

LONDON, Eng., April 27.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Sheffield Wednesday to-day won the championship of the first division of the English Soccer League. A tense race which has been going on for the honor during the past month turned definitely and finally in favor of the Sheffield team today. They needed only one point to win the championship from Leicester City and Aston Villa. This they got by tieing with Burnley to-day. Leicester City could only draw with Huddersfield Town, while Aston Villa were beaten by Manchester City. To-day games also decided the fate of Bury, who have been fighting against demotion to the second division with Cardiff City. Bury lost and cannot now save themselves as they are five points behind Portsmouth and there is only one more game in the league schedule.

CONVICT MAKES DARING ESCAPE

Harold Griffiths Jumps From Fast Moving Train Near Prince Albert.

LATER RECAPTURED.

SASKATOON, Sask., April 27.—C.P.)—After a 20-hour hunt, Harold Griffiths, alias Edwards, who made a daring escape Thursday night from a fast moving train bearing him to Prince Albert penitentiary, was recaptured by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police posse last night, four and one half miles south of MacDowell, Sask., near Prince Albert.

Surrounded by the posse, he offered no resistance, but submitted meekly, complaining of being tired, thirsty, hungry and injured. He had hurt his shoulder and leg in his jump from the lavatory window of the train.

Griffiths will be turned over to the penitentiary officials at Prince Albert, where he will serve a three-year term for theft.

TOMATO WEEK IS BIG ANNUAL EVENT

Commences Monday and Runs All Next Week—Dealers Co-operate.

The Canadian tomato is a great health vegetable and each year about this time the attention of the whole province is specially directed to this popular vegetable with the idea that its consumption will be increased not only throughout the week, but throughout the year.

It is claimed for the tomato that it is a natural spring tonic and that tomatoes served daily have a beneficial effect on the health.

Dealers are stocked with canned tomatoes for this special occasion, and include them in your order.

Habitual Drinkers In Toronto Will Be Given An Opportunity To Sign The Pledge By Police

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(Canadian Press).—A new regulation governing taxi-drivers, whereby habitual drinkers who get in trouble will be called upon to sign the "pledge," will be put in effect by the Toronto police department. The action is being taken in the interest of the public and for the benefits of the men themselves.

The new order has been found necessary after a thorough survey by police of the station. From time to time drivers have run foul of police regulations and have been brought before the Board of Police Commissioners have attributed their difficulties to drinking liquors.

The system of having the drivers found guilty of driving taxis while under the influence of liquor sign the pledge and being put on probation for a period of from 3 to 12 months is being tried out by the police in the hope of giving every man an even chance.

BRITISH TRADE COMMISSIONER ASKS FOR TOLERANCE ON PART OF CANADA WITH MOTHERLAND

Sir William Clark Addresses British Columbia Branch of Manufacturers' Association.

CLOSER RELATIONS.

Time Will Come When the Products of the Two Lands Will Clash.

VANCOUVER, B.C. April 27. — (Canadian Press).—How Canadian statesmanship had well and truly laid the corner stone of inter-imperial trade when thirty years ago Canada gave the mother country the benefit of tariff preference, was referred to here last night by Sir William Clark, High Commissioner of Great Britain in Canada, in an address to the British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Sir William spoke on trade relations between Great Britain and Canada. He asked tolerance and co-operation between Canada and the Motherland when the time would certainly come when Canadian manufactured goods would clash with British manufactured goods in the British markets.

Closer Relation Sought

The British High Commissioner asked for closer relations between Canada and the Motherland so that severe competition might be avoided in the home market. This could be done, Sir William said, by organization, by control of the market so that the products of each dominion and other parts of the empire might find its place, each producing that for which it was best fitted.

"When the clash comes, let us talk it over as freely as we can. Thus we ought to be able to avoid competition and to fit in with our products. In this way we may be able to march on unitedly to attack successfully the large markets of the world," he said.

TWO WOMEN ARE HURT IN ACCIDENTS

Both Are in Toronto Hosptial in a Serious Codition.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—Two women were seriously injured here yesterday in automobile accidents. Mrs. Elizabeth Church, 70, was struck by an automobile, driven by Harry Rotenburgh. Mrs. Church was crossing the street when struck by the car. Rotenburg was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence.

Mrs. Elizabeth Manning, 82, was the other victim. She was a passenger in a car driven by her nephew, Warren, which was struck by another car driven by George Hoyle. She suffered concussion of the brain. Both women were rushed to the hospital where their conditions are said to be serious.

Henry Ford Imports Antique Buggies

SARNIA, Ont., April 27.—(C. P.)—Henry Ford, exporter of motor vehicles, was yesterday importing antique buggies from Sarnia to Port Huron valued by persons unversed in antique values at about ten cents a dozen.

An ancient cab was taken over the St. Clair river yesterday by ferry and two others on the ferry wharf in Sarnia were taken over yesterday afternoon for shipment to Dearborn, Ont. They are to take their places in Mr. Ford's exhibit of the evolution of the modern vehicle.

RIVER MEN ARE BELIEVED LOST

Two Detroiters Are Upset From Small Craft Near Sugar Island.

400 YARDS FROM SHORE.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 27 (C.P.)—Two Detroit river men of the Amherstburg-Grosse Isle sector are believed to have been drowned last night when their craft was upset at the head of Bob'lo Island. A search for the men was conducted throughout the night and is proceeding again today. Their craft was recovered during the night. The missing men are "Capt. Jack" Hart, who lived on Sugar Island, between Hictory and Bob'lo Islands, and Frank Jackson, permanent address undetermined.

There were numerous witnesses to the mishap which occurred just before nightfall yesterday. Hart and Jackson, according to a report of Chief of Police Henry Timmis, of Amhersburg, pushed off for Amherstburg from Hart's dock on Sugar Island. They operated a 15-foot "scooter" equipped with an outboard motor.

As the boat round the head of Bob'lo approximately 400 yards from the shore, it was seen to lurch violently, pitching its occupants into the water. Rivermen at Amherstburg believe that a swell from a passing speed boat headed down the Livingstone channel, was responsible for the disaster to the smaller craft.

A rescue party put out promptly from the Amherstburg dock and an intensive search of Bob'lo and Sugar islands and the surrounding water was instituted. The searchers who remained on duty until relieved to-day by a fresh crew, located the boat resting right side up in the mud of the shore at the head of Bob'lo Island. The motor, peculiarly enough, was still throbbing and there was but little water in the "scooter."

An antelope is said to be able to run 60 miles per hour.

New Dratt Treaty To Permit Nations To Train Armies

Despite Strong German and Russian Objections, Limitation On Trained Army Reserves Is Ruled Out of Treaty By Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

CONSCRIPTION COUNTRIES OF EUROPE FAVOR PLAN GREAT BRITAIN AND U. S. TAKE NEUTRAL STAND

Count Von Bernstorff Maintains Reserves Formed, a Decisive Factor in War and Should Be Limited—Unless in Treaty It Will Be Unacceptable To Germany, He Asserts.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 27 (Canadian Press). — Despite strong German and Russian objection, limitation on trained army reserves was ruled out of the draft treaty of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission to-day.

After clear evidence that a majority of the countries at the conference favored taking no action on reserves, President Loudon this afternoon ruled that no limitation of them could be envisaged in the treaty.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet delegate, demanded a vote, but President Loudon refused this as the question involved a principle. He said that M. Litvinoff would have a chance to vote when the text of the draft treaty takes written form.

Conscription Countries Oppose.

It became certain that the conscription countries like France, Italy and Japan would win their point that trained reserves should not be included, when Lord Cushendun, the delegate of Great Britain, disclosed that Britain, like the United States, in the interest of making progress toward disarmament would not insist upon the reserves being in the treaty. He said he believed, like Ambassador Gibson, that they should be included, but if he insisted on his views it might wreck the draft treaty.

This would oblige them, he said, to inform the Council of the League of Nations that they had despaired of achieving any results. He explained that it was difficult to engraft any limitation of trained reserves and that it was clear the nations of continental Europe were ready to abandon conscription.

Count Von Bernstorff, the German delegate, maintained that reserves formed a decisive factor in war and should be limited, even intimating that a disarmament draft treaty which did not take into account trained reserves as army effectives would be unacceptable to Germany.

Bargaining for Concessions.

His declaration was interpreted here as expressing German chagrin at announcement by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson that America would withdraw its objections to non-inclusion of trained army reserves as effectives. He intimated that the United States in taking this stand was bargaining for and expecting concessions on naval questions when the time came to discuss them.

He said: "It is by trained reserves a nation mobilizes swiftly great armies and launches aggression. The peace treaty not only imposed upon the necessity of reducing our effectives with the colors but also rendered it impossible for us to have any reserves."

Soviet Russia, the Netherlands and Sweden supported the German viewpoint.

General Tsiang-Tso-Ping, the Chinese delegate, then made a plea for adoption of disamendment for the abolition of conscription because it engendered the warlike spirit. Without taking a decision, the conference adjourned to Monday morning

TRIUMPHS OF LIBERAL PARTY ARE OUTLINED

Mackenzie King Young Ladies' Liberal Club Holds Its First Annual 'At Home.'

VISITING SPEAKERS

Miss Florence McDonald Speaks On Duty of Women in Relation to Politics.

"Do not gossip, or, if you do, be very careful who you gossip to. Gossip does not make for unity, and if someone gossips to you, turn into a kind of shock absorber. Don't pass it on."

Speaking on "The Duty of Women in Relation to Politics," Miss Florence McDonald of Toronto, past president of the Toronto Young Women's Liberal Association, gave the advice just quoted as a part of her speech to members of the Mackenzie King Young Ladies' Liberal Club on the occasion of their first "At Home," held last evening in Austin's Dining Rooms, with a good attendance of the members and their friends, who listened to the addresses by two visiting speakers, Miss McDonald of Toronto and Miss Margaret Heenan of Ottawa, daughter of the Hon. Peter eHnan.

The president, Miss Alberta Hunter, occupied the chair and introduced the speakers. Pretty bouquets of flowers were presented to the two ladies by little Gladys Watson and Ruth McNeely.

Franchise to Women

"The forward march of civilization," said Miss McDonald, "has brought the franchise to women, not so very far behind manhood suffrage. It is a responsibility and an obligation to exercise the privilege of the vote and, to be interested in politics, one must be a party member.

"Does the Liberal party appeal to you and me only because our fathers and grandfathers were Liberals? But they may have been Liberals because the purpose and glory of the Liberal party is to keep Canada the land of equal opportunities and equal political rights.'

Miss McDonald itemized some of the triumphs of the Liberal party in Canada during the last century, mentioning among them responsible government, representation by the people, the extension of the franchise, vote by ballot, disendowment of what was practically a State church and the placing of all religious denominations on an equal basis, establishing a system of commons schools and the recognition of Canada as one of the autonomous nations of the Empire.

"A lack of interest comes from a lack of knowledge," said the speaker. "We should emulate the Prime Minister in striving to be constant students. If people would tackle politics as they do business or any other prob-

HOME BURNED.

Residence of W. Hill at Bobcaygeon Destroyed Thursday Night.

LINDSAY, April 27 (Examine, Correspondence)—Fire completely destroyed the home of Wesley Hill, Main Street, Bobcaygeon, Thursday night. The origin of the fire is unknown. It started in the summer kitchen and in a few minutes the whole house was in flames. A portion of the contents downstairs was all that was saved.

At one time it looked as if the flames would sweep the whole street, but the fire-fighters stayed the progress of the flames. Mr. Hill had a small insurance on the house.

Nicholls Hospital Bulletin

No. 5 — April 27, 1929

Written by the Board of Nicholls Hospital to explain the necessity for an addition to building and equipment.

The Nicholls Hospital has been for over 40 years practically self-sustaining—it has been asked that should the Hospital be enlarged would it entail further grants from the city for maintenance purposes? It can be said that at other points where development has taken place the ability to take care of those requiring hospital care has added to the clientele and has justified the program of development in a reasonable time.

LINDSAY YOUTHS UNDER ARREST

NEWS IN BRIEF

APPOINTED CHANCELLOR

LONDON, Ont., April 27 (C.P.).—Col. the Hon. W. Harry Cockshutt, Brantford, former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, was yesterday appointed Chancellor of the University of Western Ontario to succeed Hon. W. J. Roche, whose term has expired. The appointment was moved by Archbishop Williams and was unanimous.

600 SEARCH FOR BOY

KITCHENER, Ont., April 27 (C.P.)—Six hundred schoolboys of the public and separate schools this morning began an intensive hunt for Harold Dietrich, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dietrich, who has been missing for nine days.

The lads will search the city and the surrounding district. They will be under the charge of Harold Ballantyne, physical instructor of the schools.

JUDGE HARDY ACQUITTED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 27, C.P.—Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles, was acquitted by the Senate yesterday on all charges of misdemeanors in office as set forth in the Assembly's four charges of impeachment among which were included his activities on behalf of Amiee Semple McPherson, evangelist.

UNCERTAIN OF MURDERER.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 27. —(Canadian Press).—The preliminary hearing of Sherif Rakip, accused of the murder of Alfred N. Westaway, was adjourned here last night until Monday next. Westaway was fatally stabbed in a local cafe here on March 31. Considerable evidence was taken before adjournment.

Fred Thayer, who was with Westaway on the night of the fracas, admitted that while he saw a knife in Rakip's hand he did not see him stab Westaway.

BRITISH IMMIGRATION HEAVY.

LONDON, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian National Railways, during the coming season, will bring to Canada more than double the number of British settlers brought to the Dominion in past years, it was announced here yesterday by W. D. Robb, vice-president in charge of colonization.

"We shall concentrate this year on residents of the British Isles, as we have found that they make the most desirable settlers," said Mr. Robb.

MAY APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE.

COBALT, Ont., April 27.—(C.P.)—Preliminary steps have been taken here, it is reported, toward carrying an appeal to Osgoode Hall, Toronto, from the sentence of death passed by Mr. Justice Wright at Cochrane recently on John Ivanchuk, convicted of the murder of License Inspector Harry Constable at Cochrane in October, 1926, and at present awaiting execution in the district jail at Haileybury, Ont.

PANIC AVERTED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(C.P.)—A panic was narrowly averted here last night by the prompt action on the part of ushers and attendants in throwing open the exits of the Beach theatre when fire broke out in the building Over 1,000 people were in the building at the time and they made their way to the street in a very few minutes.

The fire was extinguished before it had gained any headway and only $25 damage was done.

72 KILLED IN TORNADO

ATLANTA, Ga., April 27 (C.P.).—Southern Georgia and a small area just over the line in South Carolina yesterday counted a death toll of 72 an injured list approaching 500 and property damage high in the thousands from a series of tornadoes that struck late yesterday and last night.

Confess To Hold-Up

HAD WATER PISTOLS.

Wanted a Little Money To Pay Their Railway Fares Home.

TORONTO, April 27 (C.P.).—Police announced yesterday that Harold and Russell Lee, of Lindsay, Ont., aged 15 and 14 respectively, had confessed to the attempted hold-up of the Dominion Bank, New Toronto, Thursday. When arrested yesterday one of the boys had in a bag a black raincoat similar to the one worn by one of the bandits.

The police said the two brothers explained they were inspired to rob the bank after reading accounts of the hold-up of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Beamsville, Ont., last week.

"We used water-pistols," Russell Lee is quoted by police as saying. "We were only after a few dollars. I stood there and a guy in the bank held up his hands. All we wanted was enough money to pay our railway fares home."

The bandits fled from the bank on hearing footsteps, and were fired at by Horace Norton, 16-year-old teller, as they left.

JUSTICE DUFF IS MENTIONED

Chief Justice May Represent Canada On Board of Arbitration For I'm Alone Case.

PROMINENT COUNSEL.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—While no decision has been reached by the Government as to Canada's representative on the arbitration of the "I'm Alone" case, rumor has it that the Government will appoint a prominent jurist, probably a member of the Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Duff's name is most frequently mentioned, but the Chief Justice might not favor this. Whoever is appointed will have the assistance of prominent counsel, authorities on international law. Among those mentioned as counsel are Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C.

It is probable C. H. Cahan, M.P., will be chosen as counsel for the owners of the "I'm Alone," and also Captain Randell. Mr. Cahan is one of the best authorities on international law in Canada.

TAFT MAY PRESIDE

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 27 (C.P.).—One of the judges on the United States Supreme Court Bench may be appointed arbiter in the "I'm Alone" tribunal. President Hoover stated yesterday that he had made no decision yet. There is some talk that Chief Justice Taft himself may be asked to serve. It is more likely that one of the other eight justices will be the representative of the United States.

CANADA HAS EIGHTY-FOUR TITLED MEN

Number of Titled Canadians Is Gradually Diminishing.

95 IN 1918.

In Past Few Months Death Has Removed Several Honored Personages.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27.—(By W. W. Murray, Canadian Press Staff Writer).—The number of titled Canadians is gradually diminishing. Slowly and inexorably, time is rounding off the work which the Canadian parliament began in the spring of 1918, and eventually, save for descendants of the few hereditary peers resident in this country, a generation in the not remote future will see Canada completely divested of men upon whom the sovereign had conferred titular distinctions. Knighthood has not flowered in the Dominion for more than 10 years. And only a few weeks ago the House of Commons gave emphasis again to their resolve that, within the lifetime of the present parliament at least, there was little prospect of Canada's return to titles.

In 1918 Canada was represented in the peerage by eight persons; of baronets and knights, there were in all 95. Since then 10 titles were conferred on soldiers and military administrators, bringing the total to 113. In the present year of grace Canada's representation among the peers of the realm has been reduced to five barons; there are eight baronets and 71 knights—a total of 84 and a diminution of 29 in the past decade.

Debated in Commons.

These figures are recalled by the recent debate in the House of Commons when the effort was made to reopen the question of titles. C. H. Cahan, Conservative member for St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal, sponsored a resolution which would have had the whole matter made the subject of enquiry by a parliamentary committee. Explaining his purpose, Mr. Cahan said it was desirable to remove the anomaly which arose from the fact that while in 1918 parliament banned the bestowal of titles on Canadians by His Brittanic Majesty the same inhibition did not extend to foreign sovereigns. Out of this had developed the curious situation of alien monarchs exercising with respect to Canadians a prerogative denied to King George himself.

Mr. Cahan's resolution had the support of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition. But in spite of this rank and file of the House of Commons voted overwhemingly against it and for the time being the "status quo" was maintained.

The abolition of titles in Canada was one of the first offspring of the Union government, following the Khaki election of 1917. It was on April 8, 1918, that W. F. Nickle, Union member for Kingston, first introduced his famous resolution praying that "His Majesty may hereafter be graciously pleased to refrain from conferring hereditary titles upon his subjects domiciled or living in Canada." Extreme democrats were dissatisfied with this; they thought the resolution was not sufficiently watertight. A champion arose in the person of the late R. L. Richardson, another Unionist from Springfield, Man., better known as "Fighting Bob" of the Winnipeg Tribune. Mr. Richardson moved to eliminate the word "hereditary", thus placing a ban on titles of any sort.

It was at this stage that the then Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, intervened. To the amazement of the House of Commons, he announced that on March 25—two weeks prior to the introduction of the Nickle resolution—the government had passed an order-in-council which had been submitted to the British Colonial Secretary. This requested "that no honor or titular distinction (saving those granted in recognition of military service during the present war or ordinarily bestowed by the Soveregn 'proprio motu') shall be conferred upon a subject of His Majesty resident in Canada, except with the approval of the Prime Minister of Canada.'

Sir Robert made the matter one of confidence. The debate was warm, for many arose to defend this ancient institution. One of its severest criticis, however, was Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself. The aged Liberal chieftain said: "I am quite prepared, if we can do it without any disrespect to the Crown of England, to bring our titles to the market-place and make a bonfire of them."

But no conflagration lit up the market-place. By a vote of 104 to 71, the House of Commons accepted Sir Robert Borden's stand. Two

ASPHODEL BOY IS KILLED WHILE RIDING HORSE BACK

Arthur Hooke, Son of Harold Hooke, Dragged To His Death.

HORSE WAS FRIGHTENED.

Foot Caught in Rope Stirrup of the Boy's Own Device.

WESTWOOD, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — A fatal accident has occurred here that has proved a shock to the entire community — Master Arthur Hooke, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hooke, of Asphodel, having been dragged to his death by a horse which he had been riding.

The boy, who was particularly fond of horses, was riding a horse to which he had been accustomed all winter. In some unknown manner his foot caught in a rope stirrup of his own device, frightening the horse, which ran, dragging the unfortunate boy. When the boy was finally out loose, death came almost immediately.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence, Rev. S. H. Moyer, of Westwood United Church, conducting the service.

UNDERWRITERS HOLD BANQUET

Time is Fast Approaching When Every Writer Must Belong To Association.

FIFTY MEMBERS PRESENT.

"The time is fast approaching when every Life Underwriter will have to enroll in the Life Underwriters' Association in order to hold the confidence of his clients," so declared J. F. H. Wallace, Ontario vice president of the Life Underwriters' Association at a dinner held in the Empress Hotel last evening.

Presided over by John I. Allen, with over fifty members present, the meeting was one of the most successful and one of the most interesting that has been held to date, according to those present. Mr. Wallace was the speaker of the evening, while W. O. Bennet, president of the Oshawa branch of the association, also addressed the club in a short after-dinner talk. W. McLaren provided the laughter with a few witty stories. Two very enjoyable vocal selections were rendered by Vernon Morphet, accompanied by G. Nichols at the piano, to make one of the most enjoyable programs of the association.

In his address to the club, Mr. Wallace stated that he was very proud and pleased with the organization because of the honor that had come to the Peterborough club. As shown by the reports of the various committees, there is only one conclusion to be reached, he said; that is, it has a wonderful system and is a real organization in every sense of the word.

"I had never given the functions of the organization much thought until recently, but on going to Toronto and hearing the various reports I realized that we are affiliated with a live organization. It is a chartered institution, made legal by an act of parliament with the main purpose to look after the interest of the men in the field. The association forms a common meeting ground for the men and makes them anxious to play the game squarely.

By figures and facts, Mr. Wallace quoted many statistics to substantiate his statements and to endorse his feeling that the organization was a growing one and gaining ground rapidly in the eyes of the people.

One of the great steps of the Life Underwriters has been the success with which they have met in having legislation adverse to the interest of the people annulled as far as insurance was concerned as well as adverse legislation that was hampering successful association expansion and favorable legislation substituted. The Insurance Act owes its existence mainly to the efforts of the Life Underwriters' Association. Many other interesting and vital facts were revealed by Mr. Wallace to complete a very instructive address to the members present.

During his address Mr. Wallace

PUBLIC WORKS CONSIDERED BY MEMBERS

House Spends Most of Days Considering Estimates of Department.

ALBERTA'S SOON PASS.

Hon. J. C. Elliott Outlines Proposed Building On Parliament Hill.

OTTAWA, April 27 (Canadian Press).—The activities of the Public Works Department are so widespread and pertain to such a range of subjects that the House of Commons, which spent almost all yesterday afternoon and evening delving into the Department's estimates, had variety if it did not have much excitement. Many were the points raised as item followed item.

The vote for public buildings in the Province of Alberta, totalling $596,700, breezed through with very little questioning, and British Columbia's allotment for similar purposes, totalling $160,500, also enjoyed a peaceful passage.

Plea For Halifax.

A plea that the Halifax Citadel and the hill on which it stood be improved was made by Felix Quinn (Conservative, Halifax), when the general estimates for repairs were before the committee. For many years the Citadel was garrisoned by the Imperial Government, and the Citadel was then kept in good repair. However, since it had been turned over to the Dominion, it had reached a deplorable state. He was promised consideration.

The amber hue of Ottawa's water supply got its annual condemnation from several members when the estimates for rents, repairs, etc., totalling $5,932,000, was under consideration. Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William), however, told the committee that the city had embarked on a rapid-sand filtration plant.

New Government Building.

Hon. J. C. Elliot, Minister of Public Works, who was piloting the estimates through the House, gave an outline of the program the Government is following in erecting departmental buildings in this city, when a vote for $1,800,000 was under review. The Confederation Building now in course of construction west of Parliament Hill was the first of a group planned to take care of the needs of the country as the years went by. The item carried.

The House was still in committee on estimates when the House rose at eleven o'clock.

During the first hour of the evening sitting, the quietness was ruffled by another discussion of the divorce bills when a long list of them came before the House in Committee. Explanations of the various bills were insisted upon, and as a result only eight bills got through.

Parliament goes on daylight saving when it resumes activities next Monday.

FINANCE PLAN IS COMPLETED

Details of New C.N.R. Scheme Have Not Been Analyzed by Government.

WILL NOT INCREASE DEBT

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27.—(By the Canadian Press.)—The Canadian National Railways plan for re-organization of its financial structure has been completed. This announcement was made by Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways in answer to questions by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, before the Railways and Shipping committee of the House of Commons yesterday.

Details of the scheme have yet to be analyzed by the Dominion government and the necessary legislation prepared. "I will be very much disappointed if the plan is not brought before parliament next session and I am sure Sir Henry will be disappointed also, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, assured the committee.

Not Increase Federal Draft.

If an amount of $1,290,218,481.97 for mass deficits, etc., classified under C. N. R. liabilities as Dominion government account, were wiped out, Mr. Dunning later declared, the result would have very little effect on the net debt of Canada. A substantial part of this amount, Mr. Dunning explained, was now listed in the government books as non-active.

The Montreal Terminals Bill calling for an expenditure of $50,000, in the city was briefly touched upon. While the measure had not been introduced as yet in Parliament, Mr. Dunning stated, it was no secret that the expenditure provided for this year would not be for more than $10,000,000.

MANY CITIES CHANGE TIME

All in Province of Quebec and Several in Ontario Change To-night.

MORE TO FOLLOW

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(Canadian Press).—Residents of several cities in Quebec and Ontario will make their annual forfeit of an hour's sleep to-night when daylight saving time goes into effect.

In all the cities in the province of Quebec and in Toronto, Ottawa, St. Catharines and Oshawa in Ontario, clocks will be put forward one hour at midnight, but as usual the railways will adhere to standard time in their train schedule. Stock exchanges, following the lead of New York, which also goes on summer time, will operate on daylight saving hours.

Two other cities in Ontario will adopt daylight saving time at a later date, Kingston on May 5 and Niagara Falls on June 15. Citizens of Peterborough will vote on the measure, and if it carries, will go on summer time June 15.

In the Maritime provinces, Halifax and Saint John will put their clocks ahead an hour two weeks hence, while in the west, Regina, Sask., will again be the only "daylight saver." The Saskatchewan capital will go on summer time May 5.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

SEVENTY-SIX years ago, the head master of Wirksworth Grammar School, Derbyshire, England, a man not only of great intellect but also of a deeply devout spirit, was led to edit and see through the press a book which had long been out of print. It bears the rather quaint title, "Boanerges and Barnabas: Judgment and Mercy, or Wine and Oil for Wounded and Afflicted Souls," by Francis Quarles. It may still be picked discerning reader it will be worth far more than the small sum for which it can be bought when a copy can be found for sale. I shall be greatly interested to hear from any of my readers who may have seen this book, or his "Book of Emblems" and his "Hieroglyphics of the Life of Man," with their quaint devices and solemn appeals addressed to man's better reason.

The Plan Of The Book.

In the edition which I possess the editor has included an excellent preface in which he sets forth the plan and scope of the book. It seems that in the edition previous to the one with which we are dealing the work was mutilated and shorn of one of its chief beauties: all the pithy and apt quotations from the writings of holy men of old, which, in the original, followed after each array of texts from the Word of God, were left out. As the editor says, the work was robbed of many of its most striking and heart-searching thoughts by this omission. These passages were penned by men who had set their seal that God is true, and who, in these words, have given to His truth the testimony of their experience. And, therefore, as being a portion of that ever-widening cloud of witnesses, whose light still shines among us, though they themselves have passed away, their testimony, even though it should not be instrumental in awakening the wilful sinner, is especially fitted to strengthen the weak disciple, and encourage the faint-hearted. The author has preserved a strict uniformity in the composition of his work. It addresses itself to every variety of character, from the lowest in the scale of moral degradation, to the most hopeful in the opposite scale; and each receives a like share of attention.

Continuing his analysis of the book within the scope of his preface, the editor goes on to show that the abandoned votary of evil pleasures, whatever their nature may be, may here see himself described by a bold unshrinking hand, and all the rude attractions of the course he is following, fairly set down. He is made, as it were, to utter with his own lips, the praises of his cherished and besetting vice, and to defend it by every available argument, with all that specious and cunningly devised reasoning with which the disciple of sin is wont to defend himself, and to hush the better voice within him.

But this description and defence are not given to gratify the sinner, and to confirm him in his evil courses, but to show him the worse than emptiness of all in which he takes delight, when the end thereof is regarded: the burden of each description is, "Know thou, that for all these things, God shall bring thee into judgment." Thus all his reasoning is overthrown, and its falsehood made manifest, by a sentence which is above argument, and before which the wisdom of the worldly-wise must be confounded and come to nought—even the sentence of the Word of God. And this sentence has the testimony of experience given to it, in those words of ancient writers above spoken of.

Helped By Others' Experiences.

These writers were men of like failings with ourselves, subject to like doubts, and fears, and despondencies; yet they found the grace of God sufficient for them, even as we may find it sufficient, and by that grace at length obtained the victory. Nor can it be doubted but that the author set a great store by these quotations: for they are evidently choice thoughts, culled with much care in the course of laborious and extensive reading.

Checked in his career of folly by this word of truth, and the testimony of holy men, and brought to a sudden halt in his madness, the sinner is not committed to despair, with the threatenings of judgment alone sounding in his ears; in the pauses of the thunders of Sinai the still small voice of mercy is heard, and the entrance upon a better course is pointed out to him. In the "Soliloque" which he is supposed to hold with himself, the voice of conscience is made to speak, and to reason with him of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come; and thoughts meet for the beginnings of repentance are suggested to his mind. And the whole concludes with a prayer, in which he is taught, and supposed to make, a contrite confession of his guilt, and to cry unto God for deliverance from its penalties, and for renewal unto holiness.

Other Types Of Men.

In the second part of the book an entirely different class of characters is brought into view: we no longer meet with the sinner boasting of his sins, and defending his course of folly, but with men of a more hopeful caste. The writer's object is no longer to awaken those who are out of the way, but to administer strength and consolation to the feeble and desponding, yet, in the main, sincere child of God. In this portion of the book, the characters are represented as mourning over failings, and bewailing their weaknesses, deficiencies, and errors, and fainting in spirit, and sick at heart, at their want of progress in the divine life. To these, the Word of God, and the concordant testimony of holy men, are made to speak peace and encouragement, and to point out to them where alone strength and sufficiency may be found. Again, the "Soliloque" that follows, embraces such thoughts and communings with the heart, as are natural and suitable to those who have received, and accepted as their own, such cheering assurances; and in faith embraced the offered promises. And each character concludes with a prayer of a most suitable nature, in which the mercies of God in Christ Jesus are pleaded as a ground of forgiveness for past failings, and His promises and loving-kindnesses as a ground of claim upon His bounty to bestow upon the suppliant strength for the future, and grace to help in time of need.

A Promise To Be Kept.

Such is the general structure of the work. And by this brief outline, it is hoped, the end and aim of the author in composing it will be made clear. In a later article I shall endeavor to give a few samples of the actual contents of this very interesting book in the hope that I might thereby create a desire within the hearts of many to possess it for themselves. Meanwhile I shall content myself with giving a brief sketch of the life of the author. He was, as all his works testify, a man of deep and genuine piety. Early in life he had been brought under the influence of religion: and the troublous times in which he lived, those of the reign of Charles the First, gave him many opportunities of experiencing the support and consolation it can afford under trials and persecution. Hence it was, perhaps, that, although he was brought up to the profession of the law, his studies and writings are rather those of the divine: for he was desirous that others also should be brought under the same influences, and should experience like consolation and comfort with himself: and, therefore, he felt constrained to devote the talents which God had entrusted to him, to His service, by promoting the spiritual good of his fellow-men.

Taken From An Early Edition.

I shall close with a short narrative of the author's life which was prefixed to an early edition. Concerning those we love, we are curious to know all we can. And if the stone be of price, we are not contented the least fragment should perish. Know then that the author of this book was a gentleman of an ancient family. His father was James Quarles of Rumford, Esquire, Clerk of the Green-cloth, Purveyor of the Navy to Queen Elizabeth, younger brother of Sir Robert Quarles. After his education at school in the country and at Christ's College in Cambridge, and last at Lincoln's Inn, he was for some time cupbearer to the Queen of Bohemia, and then Secretary to the Reverend and learned the late Lord Primate of Ireland; last of all Chronologer to the city of London, in which office he died. And the world had known that by a more eminent testimony, if death had not kept him from finishing what he had designed and begun. He was the husband of one wife, and by her the father of eighteen children. As in his life he had been most religious, so was he in his death; in both a great example of devotion. He died September 8th, 1644, being two and fifty years old, and lieth buried in the Parish Church of Saint Foster, London.

We let bygones be bygones when people are dead, and are quite willing to indulge in "tombstone panegyric." But when we meet a man who has injured us it requires some grace to wipe out the past, for we are creatures of gusty passions and wayward emotions.

When we are inclined to be hard on people younger than ourselves we shall do well to remember our own weaknesses and follies.

The Minister Remarks--

—When a man returns from a trip abroad and talks about nothing but the kind of hotels he lived in he doesn't need to say any more to tell us what sort of a man he is.

—If you want your life to count for the most think less of your comfort and more of your character.

—The real test of life's success is not what we have made of it, but what it has made of us.

—If you are passing through the furnace of suffering be comforted with the thought that in all probability that is God's method of moulding you to the higher uses of His grace.

—It is not easy for some people to do right so long as evil-doing seems to pay.

—I'm not so sure but that the victim of plenty is more to be pitied than the victim of poverty.

Mistakes In Ministry

AT one time the thought was more prevalent than it is to-day that ministers of religion were as near being perfect as human beings can be, and that it was well-nigh impossible for any of them to make a mistake. At that time it was thought that when a man entered the ministry he entered it for life. But that day seems to lie far back in the past! One can scarcely glance at the trend of things to-day as it is reflected in the press, and in the practice of so many who have been ordained to the Christian ministry, without discovering that the ministry is no longer looked upon as a life's task by many of the men who enter it.

If a certain religious periodical the question is being asked if it is a mistake for a man who has once entered the ministry to leave it for financial reasons. Or to put it more specifically, is it disgraceful for a minister who needs more money than he can earn at preaching, for the proper support of his family, to enter some other pursuit?

Various answers might be given to this question. But the common-sense answer, it seems to me, would be, No! If a man is perplexed with the problem as to whether, for any reason, he should stay in the ministry, and is only kept in it for fear of making a mistake—why not suggest that possibly the mistake was made in entering the ministry. When any man finds that he has made a mistake in the choice of a calling, the sooner he corrects it the better. In the case of the minister, the gain will not only be for him but also for the church which, more than any other institution, is being handicapped by incompetents.

No man should enter the ministry who can possibly stay out of it! There is no room in the pulpit for any man who cannot honestly say, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." Such a man will not be free from trials, but he will be fortified to meet them with a faith that will bring him through triumphantly every kind and every time of trial. The man who can give up the Christian ministry lightly took it up in the same way. And the only mistake he can make is in continuing where he never had any right to be.

—A. F.

One Thing I Know

EXPERIENCE is indubitable. Mere opinions and theories are frequently quite unable to withstand the force of argument and the pressure of opposition. What a man has seen, however, with his own eyes, he can never unsee. Though he may fail to convince those who controvert him, his own assurance only deepens with every fresh declaration of that which he knows. Such is the case of the blind man, the story of whose healing strikes such a tender and human note in the gospel record. Faith in Christ and implicit obedience to His command have been the means whereby the miracle has been effected. The man, hitherto imprisoned in darkness, is liberated in light entirely by the power of the Son of God. That such an event calls attention to Christ, and evokes a hostile demonstration by His foes, is scarcely a cause of wonder; for it is ever so. That it is unable to shake the confidence of the one who is enjoying the glad amaze of a newly discovered world is likewise not to be wondered at. Such an experience is entirely beyond the reach of all question.

Ultimate and final certainty with regard to Christ has to be sought by each man in the realm of his own life. Where argument fails and logic is insufficient, the victory is ever with the one who can say, "I know!" Ignorant concerning many things he may be, and fragmentary even with regard to Christ may be his knowledge. But the irrefutable proof of His reality and power is in the realm of his own being. There the unspeakable change has been wrought, and of this "one thing" at least he is confident. He may know but in part—yet he knows! His faith stands not in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God; and its declaration is a veritable gospel to those who hear it. For this, indeed, is the knowledge which is power.

—J. Stuart Holden, D.D., M.A

Education should be full of feeling. It takes sunlight to draw out the fragrance of the violet and the perfume of the rose.

A life without a purpose is like a ship without a rudder; it may be going but it will never get anywhere.

TELL US A STORY

THERE is a legend of a certain king whose subjects missed so many good things because they would not seek them or remove the difficulties that hindered their easy possession, that he resolved to teach them a lesson.

The next morning when his subjects awoke they saw in the middle of the King's Highway a large stone, but being in the habit of avoiding patient endeavor of any kind, they passed around the obstacle all day.

He then returned and took from a hole in the earth, just beneath where the stone had laid, a golden casket, and, raising the lid, displayed to the astonished eyes of soldier and peasant gold and jewels beyond price. Then he read from the lid of the casket these words:

"This box is for him,
And for him alone,
Who takes the trouble
To move this stone."

In some ways that is just like God. He has hid treasure for saint and sinner if they will but remove the doubt and indifference that stands between them and it. The eternal promise stands: "Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

In a Friendly Way.

READER, will you permit me the privilege of urging upon you the necessity of having your quiet times alone with God? You will be wise if you refuse to let anything or anyone come between you and such seasons of seclusion. If you would be accomplished on the spiritual side of your nature you must persistently practice the art of prayer. This cannot be done in a hurry or in the midst of a hubub. You must take time to behold Him if you would be like Him.

OUTSIDE PATIENTS.

In answer to the criticism that Nicholls Hospital accepts patients from outside Peterborough to which The Examiner referred in these columns last evening, the Nicholls Hospital Board points out that there is no choice in the matter.

The Ontario Hospital Act, as a matter of fact, declares that no hospital receiving aid (i.e., a Government grant) shall refuse to admit and care for any sick person brought to it while suffering from any disease other than a communicable disease, notice of which is by the Public Health Act or by the regulations thereunder required to be placarded.

The admission of outside patients under this measure cannot be prevented, and the legal ruling should dispose of this question as an issue of any importance in the consideration of the hospital by-law.

The matter has been mentioned by The Examiner not because it was regarded as of great weight but because this objection had been raised by citizens who oppose the by-law, and a word of explanation was under the circumstances considered as desirable.

THE COMMONS' MISTAKE.

The House of Commons has tossed out a bill originating in the Senate and designed to control the carrying of weapons by undesirables.

It is not easy to understand why the Lower House has given such summary treatment to a measure that seemed to be sound in principle.

The Police Constables' Association of Canada had endorsed the proposal, welcoming it as legislation that would make it easier to prevent crimes of violence in this country.

To render it difficult for criminals to possess revolvers is simple common sense, but for some reason or other the Commons gave the bill scant consideration.

It is true that we have too many laws in Canada and there are times when measures strike many people as an unwarranted interference with personal liberty, but why anyone except a criminal should complain because revolvers were to be made less easy of access is a mystery.

Senator Belcourt's bill was in the right direction, and eventually the Commons may have to change front on this question, which is of far more importance than the time spent on this occasion in discussing would indicate.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Toronto and other Canadian cities, as well as many centres across the line, will operate their activities according to daylight saving time, commencing to-morrow.

This will give such communities a much longer period under the summer-time system than is proposed for Peterborough.

It is suggested that in this city daylight saving should be adopted only from June 15th until Labor Day, and it is upon this proposal that the electors of Peterborough will be called upon to express their opinion next Friday.

The result of the plebiscite is difficult to prophesy at this stage, particularly as there has been, up to the present at least, an absence of the controversy usually stirred up when daylight saving is being considered.

Twice before summer-time measures have been voted down here, but it may be that the shortened period and the realization of the fact that should Peterborough not follow daylight saving we will be out of joint with other communities will prove deciding factors in bringing about a different verdict.

The campaign is likely to take on more liveliness next week, and the trend of public opinion will then be easier to estimate.

MR. MILLER'S VISIT.

John C. Miller, of Orillia, who was the spark-plug of the organization which made a huge success of the old boys' re-union in Orillia, as he has been in many other civic activities in that town, comes to Peterborough on Thursday night of next week to discuss various aspects of the local Old Home Week celebration at a public meeting in the Collegiate auditorium.

The affair will afford a fair test of the extent of community interest in Old Home Week.

Mr. Miller's reputation as a breezy and highly interesting speaker is well known here, and should be sufficient to ensure a crowded hall on Thursday night.

Certainly, with the big event coming rapidly closer, anything short of a capacity audience on this occasion will give good cause for dismay in the hearts of the committee; so that in fairness to Mr. Miller, who has kindly consented to visit Peterborough as a contribution toward the success of the local re-union, and as a sign to the Peterborough organization that the community is behind their efforts, there should be a large and representative audience in attendance at Thursday's meeting.

The Old Home Week campaign is gathering momentum, and Mr. Miller's address will mean more speed and enthusiasm.

THE I'M ALONE NOTES.

The net result of the exchange of diplomatic notes on the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone is, as expected, to turn the matter over for final liquidation to an arbitration tribunal. But the net effect of the notes themselves is conclusively to show up the emptiness of the half-hearted pretensions by Washington.

The Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in his capacity as Minister of External Affairs, has handled Canada's case both courteously and capably. His first note is studiously moderate in its expositions. But it is significant that Canada's attitude stiffens perceptibly when it becomes apparent that the United States State Department is inclined to cubble, hedge and procrastinate. Mr. King not only effectively demolishes the American prevarications of legality on behalf of a piratical act, but he also pointedly, if politely, indicates to Washington that the sure effect of a truculent American State Department attitude in this case would be to encourage Canadians to wash their hands of all attempts to co-operate with the United States in the enforcement of her liquor laws.

While the Prime Minster has handled Canada's case well, it must be apparent to all that the legal strength of his position was such as to delight the heart of any experienced advocate. For, as Mr. King shows:

1. The Canadian skipper of the I'm Alone claims to have been over fourteen miles from shore when first hailed by the Coast Guard. If such was the case (as the tribunal may speedily decide) the whole action was plain piracy, and nothing remains but to fix damages. But

2. If the I'm Alone, as claimed by Washington, was less than twelve miles from shore when first hailed, the American action was no less illegal. The only certain effect of the insistence on the legality of the sinking would be to initiate a movement in Canada for the abrogation of the treaty under which Washington strains to excuse it.

It is no secret in Canada that the considered opinion of eminent American lawyers was unanimous that the sinking was a violent and lawless Coast Guard action which had no legal justification whatever. It is therefore somewhat surprising that Mr. Stinson, the new State Secretary, was so expansive in his condoning attempts. It is idle to assert that the treaty of 1924 gives the United States any other rights, between the three and twelve-mile limits, than those of "seizure and search." As the Canadian notes show, the preamble of that treaty distinctly states that the territorial waters of the United States are not thereby extended. But Mr. King clinches the whole matter by his quotation of the specific promise, made in 1923 by the American Secretary of State, that

> It may confidently be asserted that there would be no disposition on the part of the American authorities, and the special agreement would not justify, any attempt to seize a British vessel, save within the limits proposed.

Necessity is the mother of ingenuity. Only dire necessity would lead the State Department of a great nation to claim that the right of seizure within the twelve-mile limit gives the right to sink over 200 miles from shore; and then to add insult to injury by bringing the crew (save the one man drowned outright) ashore in irons.

The Canadian note is sharp to the point of obvious sarcasm when it comments on this "extended interpretation" of sea law.

The ordinary layman reading the polite and voluminous correspondence of diplomacy is liable to impatience. He wonders why the diplomatic knights do not put more vigor in their thrusts and omit the seemingly useless flourishes. Some of these flourishes are no doubt made for no other purpose than to conceal the weakness of the defense. Thus Washington remarks that "it is an established principle of law that every alleged offender has the right to the most competent advocate of his case." This principle may explain the setting up by Washington of the numerous straw men whose only purpose seems to be knocked down. But it is also a fact that, in discussing cases such as these, the establishing of precedents must be remembered.

Some years ago the United States pursued and seized a British vessel just outside the twelve-mile limit. Washington now uses that to justify the I'm Alone sinking—regardless of the fact that the British Government explicitly stated at that time that the action was allowed to pass without protest because of the minor inconvenience which resulted, and positively without prejudice to principle. These facts are fresh reminders that Uncle Sam, like other human powers, is likely to take an ell where an inch is given. There is no disposition in Canada to weep over hardships inflicted by the lawless and violent attack on a ship's crew which itself had for years lived by lawlessness. Neither is there any disposition in Canada, or elsewhere throughout the British Empire, to allow the United States to extend the Chicago police code to the open seas.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Seven murders in Detroit in the past seven days is a record that shows that Chicago has a dangerous rival.

The official United States attitude toward the "I'm Alone" incident is not exactly helpful in securing Canadian co-operation in the enforcement of the Volstead Act.

The election will have to take second place in Britain to-day to the cup-tie final.

Peterborough Kiwanians have again won the efficiency contest. The local organization has a consistently good record in this respect that has won it international recognition.

Britain has scored again in the automobile speed field with the breaking of the world's five-mile record by Captain Malcolm Campbell.

We're surprised to find on looking over the post-office debates in Hansard that, so far at least, no postmaster has been fired for reading the postcards passing through his hands.

Rumor connects Premier Ferguson with an executive position at $60,000 a year. Financially, at least, that would be a much better job than directing the administration of public affairs.

A Thought

BEAUTY EVERYWHERE.

Everywhere we go there are a thousand things to develop the best there is in us. Every sunset, landscape, mountain, hill and tree has secrets of charm and beauty waiting for us to discover. In every patch of meadow or waving field of wheat in every leaf and blossom, the trained eye will see beauty which would ravish an angel. The cultured ear will find harmony in forest and field, melody in wind and stream, and untold pleasure in nature's songs. It is astonishing how much beauty we can see everywhere when we look for it.

A naturalist roaming about the country in search of specimens, stopped near a farmhouse and filled his bottle with brackish water from a muddy pond. While doing this he told a farm hand who stood watching him what wonderful things a microscope would reveal in that water.

"Within this pool, my man," said he, "are a hundred, nay a million universes; had we the sense of the instrument by which we could apprehend them."

The man with the hoe, unmoved by this remarkable statement, replied, "I know the water to be full of tadpoles, but they be easy to catch." He saw only tadpoles where the naturalist saw miracles of nature.

The most loathsome object, under a magnifying glass of sufficient power, will reveal beauties undreamed of; so even in the most unlovely environment in the most cruel conditions there is something of the beautiful and the hopeful when viewed through a trained, disciplined mind.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXV.

Looking back afterward on that moment it seemed to Ana as if the whole world were suspended, waiting, to hear what her answer would be to Mollie's accusation. Those horrible, whispering, mocking voices seemed to be all about her again, jeering, laughing at her, till in sheer desperation she tried to silence them with her own.

"I will never forgive you for that as long as I live," she said hoarsely, and turning, she wrenched open the door and was gone. It was some time later before she realized what she was doing or where she was; then she found that she was in the park where she and Anthony had walked together that afternoon, and that it was raining. Already her clothes were wet, and she felt cold and shivering.

"I will never forgive you as long as I live"—that was the last thing she had said to Mollie, and what a foolish thing to say! Never forgive her—for what? For having discovered the truth? Because it was the truth. She did love Anthony, she adored him. She realized in agony what a muddle she had made of things. Why could she not have kept her promise, and have left everything for him to manage?

"But I had to see her, I had to!" she told herself again feverishly. She felt horribly guilty and humiliated. She felt as that other poor girl must have felt when Mrs. Clair and Miss Selby talked about her with such shocked enjoyment.

Soiled, that was how she felt, and ashamed! And yet she had done nothing that really mattered—she had even tried to save Mollie from herself. But she had taken Mollie's husband; she knew that no matter how the future panned out for them, Anthony Hambledon belonged to her and always would.

She remembered Mollie's sneering voice and smile.

"I hate her, I hate her," she thought with blind passion, and she felt as if her heart that had been so uncertain and unhappy turned suddenly to stone.

She had a right to the happiness which Mollie had thrown aside; she had done her best to help Mollie, and now she no longer cared. On Monday she would go to Anthony, and they would never part again. Defiance took possession of her. What did it matter if the world jeered and looked down upon her? What did anything matter if only she and Anthony were together?

There was a letter from Miss Sawyer by the midday post. Brighton had deteriorated, she wrote; it was not what it used to be in her young days. Was Ana watering the aspidistra carefully? Was she counting the silver spoons every night before she locked them away?

Ana half smiled as she read the many instructions and questions.

Already Miss Sawyer and everything connected with her seemed to be a part of life remote and far away; soon she would have left them behind for ever. She was glad now that she had seen Mollie again—that interview had made up her mind for her once and for all.

She had burned her boats — life could never step in again to take happiness from her.

She spent the afternoon looking over her clothes. They had never before seemed so shabby and uninteresting. She wondered what Anthony would think of them? He who was so used to Mollie's extravagant attire.

She counted her little store of money; not quite fifteen pounds. It was not possible to buy very much with so small a sum.

While she was wondering despondently what she could do, the doorbell rang, and when she went down to answer it she found Mrs. Inglis' friend Jessica on the step.

Ana had forgotten all about Jessica—forgotten all about everyone but Anthony Hambledon; she felt a little confused as she asked her to come in; she wondered if Jessica could see anything different or strange about her; somehow she felt quite changed, almost like another person.

"I am all alone," she apologized. "But if you will stay and have tea with me I shall be delighted."

She took the First Prayer into the sitting-room.

"I daresay it's all very different to what you are used to," she said as she saw the way Jessica looked around her.

Jessica laughed.

"It is, rather," she said, "there is such a terrible air of respectability about everything. I'm sure you've never committed a sin in your life if these are the surroundings you were brought up in."

"I'll get tea," Ana said, and escaped.

When she came back Jessica was ensconced on the hard, uncomfortable couch, with every cushion in the room beneath her head, smoking a cigarette.

How horrified Miss Sawyer would be! Ana thought with a covert smile. She was sure that nobody had ever before smoked a cigarette in the room—or in the house for that matter.

"I was calling near, so I thought I'd run in and have a look at you," Jessica said. "No sugar, thanks, and no milk—if you've got any lemon, I'll have a slice instead—it keeps me thin."

She looked at Ana with her bright eyes.

"I like you, you know," she said frankly. "You intrigue me, if you can understand that! I should like things to happen to you."

Ana laughed. "Whatever do you mean?"

Jessica waved her cigarette in the air. "Oh, I don't know. I should like you to fall in love, or something—not any milk and watery kind of affair, but something desperate — a married man or something."

"That's not a very kind wish, is it?" Ana asked with an effort.

"It would be an education for you," Jessica said coolly. "It would sort of complete you. It completed me, anyway—I was just nothing at all before that happened."

"Where is he now?" Ana asked bluntly. She kept her eyes away from her companion's.

Jessica did not answer for a moment, then she laughed.

"I haven't seen him for three years. I don't ever want to see him again." She sat up suddenly and threw her unfinished cigarette into Miss Sawyer's spotless grate. "That's a lie," she said in blunt contradiction to herself. "I do want to see him. I'd walk from Land's End to John o' Groat's this minute if I could just see him for half an hour, but he wouldn't be at all pleased to see me."

"Why not?"

"Poor lamb, he had what the psychologists call the guilty complex," she explained. "His conscience woke up and gave him a nasty prick or something. He tried to explain it to me, but I can't understand things like that, having no conscience myself. If I want a thing I just—grab!" she put out her hand with an eloquent gesture. "I don't see any fun in standing aside like a perfect lady and saying to the other competitor, 'All right, you have him—'" She lay back again on the cushions. "What stuff I'm hurling at you," she said, rather breathlessly, and her booming voice lost its momentary softness. "I didn't come here to unburden my soul to you, but to ask you to dine with me on Monday."

"On Monday," Ana flushed. "I'm afraid—at least I'm not sure — I've half promised someone else, but—if it falls through—"

"All right—if he turns you down, come along," the First Prayer said calmly. "I know what men are."

"I never said it was a man."

Jessica's eyes twinkled. "No, but if it was a woman you wouldn't look all hot and bothered," she said pleasantly. "Never mind! I'm only teasing. Tom Drake is coming—he's dying to see you again."

"What nonsense!"

"No, it's true, and he's a decent sort. Too decent for you to marry."

"What do you mean?" Ana asked half angrily.

"Nothing for you to get annoyed about. I only mean that with him for a husband you'd never have a thrill—no heartaches or ecstasies."

"Do you think anyone wants them?" Ana asked sceptically.

"Whether we want them or not, we all get them," the First Prayer said with conviction. "Of course we don't want them! At least, not when we've got them; and yet—it's something to look back on when it's over."

"You don't think love lasts, then?"

Lasts! yes, for about five minutes, but it's a very good five minutes."

She drank her tea and lit another cigarette.

"Are you all alone in this house?" she asked.

"Yes."

Jessica shivered.

"Rather like being in a tomb, isn't it?"

"I'm used to it."

"Poor kid!" There was a note of kindness in her voice that brought the tears to Ana's eyes. She suddenly felt lonely and unhappy without knowing why, and in her heart she found herself saying as a child might have said, "I want Anthony—I want Anthony." With an effort she recovered her self-control.

"I think it's very kind of you to come here," she said. "I'm not really your sort a bit, am I?"

The First Prayer smiled whimsically.

"I think you will be, some day," she answered. "I think you and I are going to see a lot of one another, and be good friends."

"We shall not. I am going away on Monday for ever," was the triumphant thought in Ana's mind, but she only smiled and said she hoped so.

"Well, if you can come on Monday, I shall be bucked to see you," Jessica said as she left. "Don't dress up—any old rag will do." She guessed that Ana had no evening frock.

"I'm afraid old rags are all I've got," Ana said, but she did not mind admitting it to Jessica; there was something very human about her in spite of her painted face and booming voice.

When she had gone Ana went back to her room and looked at the clothes lying on the bed, but somehow she seemed to have lost interest in them.

Jessica had said that love did not last—and Jessica was a woman of the world.

"But she never loved anyone as I love Anthony," Ana thought with passionate belief, "and nobody has ever loved me as he loves me."

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

(By Douglas Malloch.)

WHEN THE DAY SEEMS LONG.

When the day seems long, recall
No day was ever long, at all—
Not long enough for all the livng
That one can do, for all the giving
That might be done, for all the pray'r
That might be whispered, all the care
That might be borne, for all the sorrow
That has some purpose in to-morrow.

When the day seems long, be glad
That in the whirling days you had
One day that did not push and crowd you,
One day the busy world allowed you
To live as life would have you do,
To make things well, to think things through,
To sound the depths, and heights to climb for
That now there's never any time for.

When the day seems long again,
Yes, even long with waiting, then
'Tis but a day to lovers given
To love a little better even.
Let this remembrance make you strong,
Some lingering day that seems so long:
No day has ever had a minute
But had some sort of goodness in it.

DUCHESS OF ATHOLL.

Deaths of four passengers aboard the Duchess of Atholl, a photo of which is shown here, C.P.R. liner, on a South American-South African cruise, was reported to the New York offices of the company. The report stated that three men and one woman passenger had died from sunstroke and malaria, which had been contracted ashore. The company officials deny that any deaths have occurred among the crew.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, April 28, 1929

Except in the early morning hours when few persons are abroad this is not a fortunate day in planetary government, according to astrology.

Women probably will be more favored in the influences of this configuration than men, but they should devote their attention to home and church affairs, if they desire a happy beginning of the week.

The sway is more auspicious for religious worship and out-door recreation than for attention to personal interests.

There is a good sign for travel by water and excursions of short distance should be lucky.

The ministry is subject to rather depressing influences at this time, and pastors of large congregations may be temporarily discouraged. Golf will be more popular than good works on Sunday.

While religious observances may be irksome in some quarters and among certain persons the direction of the stars is likely to inspire poetry which is philosophic, astrologers foretell.

The digestion may be untrustworthy under this rule of the stars, and they who dine too well may expect to pay the penalty.

Diet becomes of foremost interest as the summer approaches, for much stomach trouble is foretold. Sudden deaths will be many and the heart will cause numerous careers of distinction to end.

Astrologers warn women that they will mourn departing hair when they take time to consider their crowning glory. The stars presage the same anxiety that bald-headed have faced.

Because the quest of beauty will not be for natural instead of artificial aids there will be intense interest in health among women of every age, it is predicted.

Longevity will become more and more commonplace as the new era of man's existence progresses the seers prophesy.

The evening of this day is read as of sinister import for lovers. It is not wise to enter into engagements to marry under this planetary rule which seems to indicate lack of harmony in the future.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be especially cautious in all financial issues.

Children born on this day may lack self confidence and initiative. The subjects of this sign may be stubborn because of timidity. They should be carefully educated and wisely trained.

Monday, April 29, 1929

Good and evil planetary aspects appear to balance in to-day's horoscope, according to astrology.

It is pre-eminently an auspicious day for those who project big business enterprises and for those who wield power in financial circles.

Good will will be drawn to men in high places as by a magnet while this configuration prevails. It is especially fortunate for the President of the United States and for governors of the several states.

There is a sign read as unfavorable to those who think they belong to the American intelligensia. They should beware of dangerous propaganda.

Some sort of national scandal or libel may be widely whispered at this time when gossip is supposed to be encouraged by the stars.

Under this direction of the stars the tendency may be bridled.

The seers declare that under this sway those who live in a least creditable way are likely to deceive the public while the innocent are criticised.

In the time when true civilization begins to be prevalent in the world thoughts will be as easily read as telegraphic signals, the seers prophesy, and then there will be less scandal since all must safeguard their minds.

Startling news that in some way may affect oil and oil interests appears to be indicated for next month which is to be eventful in the business world.

June is to bring rumors of war from across the ocean, it is prophesied, and there will be more or less anxiety in diplomatic circles.

Labor unrest and uprisings in England are indicated by the stars which seem to presage grave crises in various parts of Europe.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a successful year in business or profesional work. Certain women may benefit through an aged relative.

Children born on this day may have a brilliant but eccentric way of looking at life. The subjects of this sign often are extremely gifted and able to perform unusual tasks in the world of big activities.

The Duke of Wellington who won the Battle of Waterloo was born on this date, 1769. Others who claimed this as a birthday were Edward Rowland Sill, 1841, poet; A. H. J. Sutro, Mining engineer; Lorado Taft, 1860, sculptor; Matthew Vassar, 1792, philanthropist.

Trent River

TRENT RIVER, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. Frank Brewer arrived Wednesday from Toronto, where he has spent the winter with relatives. Mr. Brewer will occupy his residence for an indefinite time.

Miss Maybelle Inkster, nurse-in-training at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, arrived Wednesday to spend a month at the parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Greenley and daughter, Margaret, who have been residing in Toronto, have moved to Mr. Earl Greenly's place, Havelock Road, to take up residence.

The majority of the farmers in this district are working on the land.

Early potatoes were planted during this week.

REPORT DENIED

German Press Association Denies Report of Withdrawal of Foreign Funds.

BERLIN, April 27. — Canadian Press).—The Wolff Bureau, German Press Association, has issued a denial of reports of French origin dealing with the condition of the Reichsbank and the raising of its discount rate yesterday from 6½ to 7½ per cent.

The statement charges 'conclusions" reported to it by French sources represented an intentional undermining of German credit abroad. It denied there had been extensive foreign withdrawal of deposits from Germany.

Madoc

MADOC, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — The W.M.S. of Trinity Church held a very successful afternoon tea on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Duncan Brown. Several of the ladies acted as assistant hostesses, and a good program of instrumental music and readings and recitations was given.

Mr. Anglin, inspector of High Schools., paid his official visit to Madoc High School on Wednesday and Thursday.

Hold Successful Dance.

The old-time dance held in the Orange Hall on Friday last, under the auspices of the Orange Lodge, was well attended. Music was furnished by the Jones Orchestra of Marmora.

SPRING WORK NOW GENERAL

In Spite of Heavy Rains the Fields Have Dried Up Quickly.

FARMERS PLEASED.

Farm work in this district may be recorded as opening up generally this week. Thursday injected a wet holiday, but the first three days hummed with work. Farmers everywhere were on the land, harrowing, rolling, seeding, and plowing. In spite of the heavy rains this spring the roads and fields have dried up quickly. In this respect conditions are better than a year ago. The fall planted crops are very promising and the great majority of farmers are highly pleased with the present prospect. These observations are based on reports from Otonabee, Cavan, Monaghan, Smith, and Douro.

MILLBROOK STARS PRESENT PROGRAM

Girls' Class Stages Entertainment of Merit in Presbyterian Sunday School.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Ont., April 27. — Mrs. J. R. Eakins' class of 'teen-age girls, the "Stars," sponsored an enjoyable entertainment in Grace Presbyterian Sunday School auditorium on Wednesday evening, the pastor, Rev. John Riddell, acting as chairman for the occasion.

The room was well filled by the time the opening hour had arrived, the attractive stage arrangement, with easy chairs, settee with gay-colored afghan, floor lamp, red candles in crystal holders, and flowering house plants on the wide window casement, focusing attention immediately the members of the audience were seated.

Miss Phyllis Kidd presided at the piano for the community singing, which opened the program, and in which everyone joined heartily. The chairman welcomed the gathering expressing appreciation, especially of the large number of 'teen-age boys who were present. The work involved in preparing the program, and the labor and time the teacher, Mrs. Eakins, had devoted to her girls,were also referred to in terms of the highest praise. "The Stars" is a large class, and the loyalty of the members to their teacher is quite evident. This was the first public gathering which the organization has had under its auspices, and it was thoroughly enjoyed throughout. The program included:

Piano duet by Misses Jessie Armstrong and Audrey Keen; recitation, "The Inventor's Wife," by Miss Audrey Larmer, with encore, "Just Let Down the Bars;" piano solo, by Miss Phyllis Kidd; duet, "Drink to Me only with Thine Eyes," by Mrs. Wilson and T. Ingram; vocal solo, with banjo accompaniment, "Carolina Moon," by A. T. Armstrong; "Not a Man in the House," with the following cast of characters: Aunt Maria (Mrs. Timothy Bangs) Miss Phyllis Kidd; Aunt Belinda Ryder, Miss Miriam Lord, Aunt Lucy Ryder, Miss Margaret Armstrong, Miss Jessie Wright, Miss Vaneta Ingram; Katie, the maid, Miss Audrey Larmer; Policeman, Dalton Brown.

The determnation of Aunt Maria, who had not had any too happy a married life with her late husband, Timothy Bangs, not to allow a man in her new home under any circumstances, led to a number of ludicrous situations, especially as Kate the new maid, seemed never to understand the conditions, and was continually coming in with the announcement, "Please Mum, there's a man at the door; shall I let him in?"

Aunt Maria was equal to any emergency, even to ejecting the reporter who called to interview her regarding her views on the male sex, though as Kate said, "Them ones will squeeze in anywhere," but the advent of a beggar, who refuse dto be put out until a policeman was called, broke up Mrs. Bangs' plans, and her sister, Aunt Lucy, gained courage to confess that she had her admirer, John Wright in the reception room, while her pretty niece, Jessie Wright, also was forgiven when she acknowledged that her fiancee, Hal Van Ostrand, was seated in the parlor. "All's well that ends well yet, though times seem so adverse, and means unfit."

The evening added substantially to the funds in the class treasury.

Personals.

Mrs. Robert Hall, of Essex, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith. Miss Muriel Smith has returned home after a brief stay in Toronto, her sister, Mrs. Havelock Graham, accompanying her.

The many friends of Mrs. W. E. Russell will regret to learn that her health is not good, and she is taking an enforced rest under her physician's orders. Mrs. Russell received a severe nervous shock recently when word of the sudden death of her sister, Mrs. Morton, of Toronto.

Rev. Joseph Wilks, who is greatly beloved by the entire community, is at present confined to bed on account of illness, his many friends will be sorry to learn. Rev. Mr. Wilks will reach his eighty-fourth birthday in June, and throughout the winter has not been able to go about as much as in previous years. His interest in his many philanthropies is, however, as active and intense as ever.

Mrs. Lloyd Acton, of Detroit, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Gray.

Mr. Aubrey Todd left for Toronto this week to secure a position, having completed his stenographer's course at the Peterborough Business Colege.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 27—(Canadian Press).—Butter prices were again reduced by 1 cent, bringing levels to 41 cents for solid and 42 cents for prints. With New Zealand butter from the Tairoa at Halifax due shortly, together with the increasing production in this Province, the trade appeared to want to clear as as much as possible of present stocks as soon as possible. The general opinion seemed to be for lower prices next week. Receipts were 426 boxes.

Cheese Is Reduced

The cheese market was also easier. Dealers were asking 18 cents per pound for Western No. 1 colored, but were not able to make any sales at the price. Receipts were 331 boxes.

No change was reported in egg prices, the market continuing the steady tone it has shown of late.

The potato market was likewise unchanged from the previous day.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 27. — Packing houses were short of beef at the opening of the market this week and buyers were active and trading was brisk. Receipts were approximately 5,800 head of cattle, which is about the same as the number received last week, and the yards were well cleared daily. Prices were strong at the opening, and by Wednesday noon all grades were selling fully 75c per cwt. higher for the week.

Handyweight steers were mostly taken at from $10 to $11 per cwt., with some heavyweights selling upward to $11.50 per cwt. Choice heifers sold at from $10.25 to $10.75 per cwt., and a few head of cattle of the common variety were bought slightly below $9 per cwt.

Best quality cows and bulls sold readily between $8 and $9 per cwt. Two hundred and fifty baby beeves were sold at from $10 to $13 per cwt., according to quality, which represents an increase of 50c per cwt. over one week ago.

Store Cattle in Demand.

Store cattle were in strong demand and orders were more than four times the available supply. Prices were gradually advanced until they were 75c per cwt. higher at the close of trading. Light stockers brought from $8 to $9.75 per cwt., and feeders, weighing approximately 900 pounds, were cleared at from $925 to $10 per cwt. Milker and springer trade was quiet and prices were steady at from $100 to $125 each. Any buying interest in this class was centred chiefly on forward springers.

The supply of calves was approximately the same as the previous week and, although purchases for export decreased 500 head from the total of last week, prices were steady and the general market showed no signs of weakness. Choice quality vealers were cleared from the yards at from $15 to $16 per cwt. and medium quality animals brought from $10 to $14.50 per ckt. Light calves sold downward to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and lamb receipts were 663 head. Scattered lots of yearling lambs sold well at $14.50 to $15.50 per cwt. for the best, with culls selling downward to $9. Spring lambs were a shade lower at $14 to $15.50 each for good quality and at $6 to $12 each for poor quality lambs. Sheep were steady on a small supply at $4.50 to $9 per cwt., according to quality. Some of the spring lambs offered were of very poor quality, and were turned down by the buyers.

Hog Prices Advance.

A total of 5,234 hogs were received at the yards and in addition 558 were billed through. An increase in the biggest activity was in November refrigerators. Butter trading was more sluggish with the spot price for extras softening. Announcement was made that the rule for delivery of cars on track had been liberalized to include all Chicago cold-storage house sidetracks so long as no additional expense to consignee is involved.

price of bacon in Great Britain and short runs of hogs imparted strength to the local market and packers paid 75c per cwt. higher than last week for selects. At the close of trading sales were made at $13.75 per cwt. for selects weighed off car or $1 less f.o.b. Road hogs sold steady at $13.50 per cwt. for selects.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 27. — Wheat poured into the pit at a lively opening, dropping prices a cent above yesterday's close. Prices eased to close ¼c to ½c higher for the day.

Passing of farm relief measures in the United States and whispers of Kansas frost were bullish factors. Continental interests bought but little.

Picking up the active grades—the lowers and No. 3 durum—at spreads of ½c to 1½c better than yesterday's close, shippers were the best buyers. Oats figured in the morning, and barley in overnight sales. Rye and flax were dull.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, April 27. — A decidedly easier undertone developed in the wholesale butter market this week, and the price of No. 1 finest creamery was reduced 2c per lb. to the range of 39c to 39 1-2c, and No. 2 grade was quoted at from 38c to 38 1-2c per lb. The present price of butter is approximately 1c per lb higher than it was one year ago at this time.

Large Supplies.

Fresh supplies from New Zealand reached the local market this week and were more than sufficient to take care of the quiet demands of the retail trade. The last of the imported stocks is expected to arrive on track here about next Thursday and this information of a further increase in supply had the effect of dampening buying, as dealers are looking for still further reductions in prices. At present most of the trade are operating on hand-to-mouth requirements and only in the case of compete depletion of stocks were they in the market for butter.

Domestic production has rapidly increased during the past two weeks and the supply from this source is sufficient to balance the consumptive demand. The fine weather has enabled cattle to feed on the pastures earlier and production is ahead of last year.

Eggs are now moving into storage freely and as a result there is a firmer tone in the local wholesale market. Production is steadily increasing throughout the province and reports indicate that competition is keen at outside points. In comparison with last year production has increased and prices are 2c per dozen lower.

Prices Firm.

A firm feeling was in evidence at the close of the week and prices were advanced 1c per dozen over one week ago. Quotations to Country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, are as follows: Fresh extras, 27c, for firsts 25c, and seconds 22c per dozen.

Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged at the following: Fresh extras, in cartons, 34c per dozen; loose, 32c; firsts, 30c per dozen, and seconds 27c.

Cheese Prices Lower.

Fresh supplies of cheese reached the market this week and prices declined 1c per lb. for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies. The new range of prices were quoted at from 20c to 21c per lb.

Receipts of live and fresh poultry are extremely light and are not sufficient to meet the demand. Fowl are very scarce and the demand for live birds is strong, due to the Jewish holidays.

CHICAGO PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, April 27. — Butter and eggs: Egg futures kept their stride on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, with receipts lower than a week and spot holding well. Current deliveries did better than deferred as shorts covered, though the

J. I. McQueen moved a vote of thanks, which was the entire feeling of all those present, and D. D. Grant's reply to a letter of sympathy sent to him while in the hospital was read to the meeting.

Several Deaths Recently.

One Canadian baronet and four knights have died this year. Sir Vincent Meredith, Montreal financier, was a baronet, but as he had no children, his title became extinct. He was one of the few Canadian baronets who resided in Canada. The others still living in the dominion are Sir Joseph Flavelle of Toronto, and Sir Charles Tupper of Winnipeg. Six baronets reside abroad.

Sir Lomer Gouin, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, and Sir Clifford Sifton, former minister of the interior, financier, and sportsman, of Toronto, who died recently, were Knights Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. There are 20 Canadian knights of this ancient order now living.

Two Knights Bachelor, Sir Hugh Macdonald, son of Sir John A. Macdonald, and Sir James Aikins, former lieutenant governor of Manitoba, also died this year. This leaves 19 to a Knights Bachelor in the Canadian roster of knighthood.

Of the five Canadian barons, only two, Lord Atholstan of Montreal, and Lord Shaughnessy of Montreal are still residing in the dominion. Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Aylmer and Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, are in England.

Sir Bertram Windle, of the University of Toronto, who died this year, was not included among the title Canadians because he possessed his title when he came to this country.

SEEDING BECOMING GENERAL IN ONTARIO

Deputy-Minister Says Work Not As Far Behind As Some Previous Years.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(Canadian Press.)—While Ontario farmers may not have been able to commence seeding this year as early as they had hoped because of April rains, seeding is not as far behind as it has been in some previous years, according to W. B. Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. Seeding is under way in various districts and in a few days will be general throughout the province. Thursday's rain will cause little or no delay, Mr. Roadhouse said.

Comparison Reveals Its Value

Our endeavor to build a thoroughly substantial six cylinder motor car at a price within reach of millions has resulted in a steadily increasing demand for the new Model 612. We invite you to study its features in detail; to examine the entire car for surplus values, and to make your own comparisons.

Five chassis—sixes and eights—prices ranging from $1095 to $3210. Car illustrated is Model 612, six cylinder, five passenger, four door Sedan, $1145 (special equipment extra). All prices f. o. b. Windsor, taxes extra.

'PRAYER' IS SUBJECT AT Y. P. MEETING

Rev. H. B. Hetherington, of Warsaw, Took Charge of the Topic.

WARSAW, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — There was a good attendance at the community young people's meeting on Monday evenng. Fred Crowe led the opening exercises. Rev. H. B. Herrington took charge of the topic, which was "Prayer." Miss Lucille Herrington read the poem "Prayer," Miss Rita Robertson read a selection on "Preparation," Mr. Stickler gave a violin selection, and Miss Elsie Tucker read a paper on "Why Do We Pray?" Some of her thoughts were that [illegible] were few subjects to which Jesus gave more time and thought than prayer. "We have His own example of constant communion with God. He gave instructions to the disciples regarding prayer, and gave an actual prayer the manner of which they could follow. Much good would come to the church and to the world at large were there a revival in the art of prayer. From the time of primitive man, down through the ages until now, man has instinctively worshipped something. The elements of prayer are thanksgiving, confession, intercession, supplication. There is a world of difference between saying our prayers, which may be nothing but repeating words and praying, which may be an unworded cry. In this age of hurry we are constantly telling God what we want, instead of trying to discover what God wants of us. Quiet waiting upon God is a lost art, and the decline of prayer in private, at family worship, and prayer meetings is quite evident. In this day God is not regarded as a master to be obeyed, nor an idol to be worshipper, but a leader to be imitated, and if not as reverent and submissive as previously, we are more sincere and self-reliant. Our way lies forward through prayer to a more effectual service. We need the consolation of prayer, and anywhere is a temple with God. Prayers may be ineffectual if our words fly up and our thoughts remain below. Secret, quiet communion with God brings full results, and fills our lives with divine energy. God stands at the door and knocks, but He will never break through. Christ's words are full of comfort: 'If ye abide in me, and my word abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.'"

Mrs. Digweed gave a paper on "'Prayer As a Fellowship With God." Some of the thoughts given were that if a man begins to make an effort to do something with his life, he must clearly understand what prayer means, for in most lives there is some practical experience that is very disturbing.

"Prayer is very real to little children. They have great confidence that they will get whatever they pray for. As we grow older we realize it is not so, and keen disappointment is felt; some give up prayer altogether, while others continue prayer with a new motive and may come to know that God knows best. Many requests are made of God which, if granted, would be very detrimental. Sometimes people think there is something wrong with the prayer, when the trouble is with themselves. Prayer enlarges the sympathies, quiets the mind, sweetens the disposition, broadens and purifies the thoughts. Prayer is a privilege, and becomes habitual, because it uplifts, and the more talks with Jesus, the greater the inspiration. God can make Himself known only to one who prays. To such an one He is no dim, vague Being. Nothing is real, except those things with which we are in the habit of dealing, so if we do not hold communion with God, He will not be real to us. Prayer is the aspiration of our poor, struggling souls towards our Eternal Father. The thought of prayer as fellowship with God relieves us from many intellectual difficulties, and often keeps us from yielding to temptation, disappointment and unbelief. Christ Himself prayed If it be Thy will let this cup pass from me' thrice, but His prayer was not granted. So let us ever remember God's will is best."

FINER THAN EVER and LOWER IN PRICE

THE finer Oldsmobile is more beautiful than ever in appearance—the result of new style refinements and new color combinations now presented in its composite Bodies by Fisher.

The finer Oldsmobile is more luxurious, more comfortable and offers new conveniences for driver and passengers. Roominess is a feature. Seat cushions are deeper and softer. Upholsteries are richer. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, makes the driving position a matter of individual choice.

The finer Oldsmobile provides even more gratifying and dependable performance. Its big high-compression engine now develops 62 horsepower. Typical of its fine car design, oil is forced directly to the piston-pins through rifle-drilled connecting rods — a feature heretofore characteristic of high-priced cars.

Come in and see this new Oldsmobile —finer than ever—and lower in price.

The ROYAL MASTER

A luxury Tire? Yes and No

THE ROYAL MASTER was designed as a super tire — a tire worthy of the finest cars that travel the roads. But results have proved that all types of cars are being equipped with Royal Masters.

Men who are shrewd appraisers of value are buying these super tires. They are convinced that Royal Masters are a positive economy for any man who drives a car for more than one year.

Taxis are being equipped with Royal Masters — more and more of them every week. That is surely the final proof that these tires do give more economical and trouble-free mileage than any other tire made.

Are Royal Masters, then, luxury tires?

—If you drive your car for one year only, yes. They are an extravagance. They last too long.

—If you keep a car as long as the average man does—no. One set will see you through.

The Royal Master is the best tire ever made, and it should be, because it was built with deliberate disregard for costs.

It is made oversize — the proper size for real economy.

It has a new tread — double thick. Compounded without regard to cost. Cured by a new slow process.

Extra plies of latex-treated web cord make walls that are thick yet highly flexible — a carcass that will resist extraordinary bruises.

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL HISTORY PAYS TRIBUTE TO GENEROSITY OF ITS DEVOTED FOUNDER

Institution Has Grown in Keeping With City Without Cost to People.

NOW NEEDS HELP.

Quarters Are Cramped and Facilities Out of Date.

The following is the history of Nicholls Hospital, taken from a booklet published in 1909:

"Nicholls Hospital, upon its situation of eminence, and in its continuous mission of healing, constitutes a monument to its founder more lasting than pillars of marble, or monuments of brass. This hospital and the work it does is an enduring perpetuation and practical application, from hour to hour, and from day to day, of the noble spirit of charity and good will which inspired Mrs. Charlotte J. Nicholls to so beneficiently discharge the trust she felt reposed in her. Mrs. Nicholls was known to have long entertained the conviction that those to whom Almighty God has given the means, should to the best of their ability, use opportunities for doing good, and apply the spirit of the Holy Scripture, which says: "All things come of Thee, O God, and of Thine own have we given Thee."

The practical outcome of this sentiment was the Nicholls Hospital, whose history of modest beginning, and munificent expansion, is of interest. In the year 1885, the late Mrs. Nicholls acquired and set apart the residence and grounds known as Moira Hall, at the west of the then town, as a hospital, with an endowment of $15,000.

This was soon found to furnish inadequate accommodation for the work of the hospital. Mrs. Nicholls nobly met the necessity of enlargement of building and consequent facilities for effective treatment of disease. She provided means for the erection of a new building to meet her desire to give her benevolent intentions adequate practical expression, with an additional endowment of $35,000.

This new building—the present hospital—was erected during the year 1889, and formally conveyed to the trustees and opened to the fulfilment of its purposes on January 29, 1890. On this occasion the most prominent men of the city were present and voiced the warm appreciation of the public of the munificent liberality and beneficence of Mrs. Nicholls. As expressive of the character of her benefaction, a brief description of the beautiful memorial window erected by the trustees at the main entrance of the hospital, will show to what extent it is significant of her aims and object:

The window is placed on one side of the partition separating the main hall from the vestibule, balancing the folding doors, also fitted with stained glass. The size of the window is four feet in breadth, and seven feet in height. The subject of the beautiful picture which composed the window is our Lord's pathetic parable of the Good Samaritan. The foreground shows the Samaritan supporting the poor man who "fell among thieves," upon his ass, and bearing him to the inn. At the feet of the group the wayside grass and flowers spring up. In the middle distance is seen the heartless Levite passing "by on the other side," reading his scroll, with sanctimonious absorption, and leaving to the despised Samaritan the work of mercy. In the background the rocky way from "Jerusalem to Jericho" is very happily depicted: rock, trees and water filling in the details.

The whole scene is powerfully shown and is more free than usual from the conventional stiffness of outline and inflexibility of detail inseparable from the unplastic nature of the materials. The lower part of the window contains this legend:

"This window was erected by the Trustees of the Nicholls Hospital, to the memory of Robert Nicholls, Esq., and in honor of his wife, Charlotte Jane, who donated this hospital in the year 1889."

In her will, Mrs. Nicholls provided for an additional endowment of $35,000, bringing up the total of the endowment fund to $85,000. Nor is this all; at the winding up of the Nicholls Estate in 1908, the trustees, out of the residue, apportioned a substantial sum to the endowment fund, which serves to make the hospital practically self-sustaining. The new south wing was erected in 1914 to care for the increasing needs. This cost $60,000 and was financed by the Nicholls Trust without assistance from the ratepayers.

The city and county of Peterborough has a hospital not only architecturally handsome, but provided with every equipment and appliance demanded by the latest advances of medical science in the treatment of the afflicted. While, of course, the main debt of gratitude is due to Mrs. Nicholls, a warm tribute of praise belongs to the members of the profession, who constitute the efficient medical staff of the hospital, and have given since its foundation, and continue to give, their services gratuitously.

The Nicholls Hospital, like the temple of Solomon, is "beautiful for situation." It is of red brick, and its symmetrical mass, and imposing facades, rising on the highest ground in the city limits, dominate the view of the city, and including the winding sweep of the river, and the rolling hills to the eastward. Such a situation could not be surpassed for salubrity, prominence of site or magnificent inclusiveness of scenic view.

In a word, the noble benefaction of Mrs. Nicholls, represented by the hospital will, for generations to come, not only constitute a memorial to her beneficence, but will remain in active operation as a perpetual fountain of healing to the sick and suffering.

The Act of Incorporation

March 25th 1886.
Amended, 1891.

Provisions of The Act

Trustees are elected as follows: Two by St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; two by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and one by each of the other Protestant churches of the city.

Trustees are elected for a term of three years, and are eligible for re-election. Richard Hall, Esq., and Charles McGill, Esq., are life members of the Trust.

The Mayor of the city is ex-officio a member of the Trust.

The Trustees may request the City Council each month to provide for the cost of maintaining the hospital for any amount over and above the income of the hospital from all sources.

The amount so required is to be raised by special levy on all Protestant ratepayers of the city.

The Endowment Fund must not be diminished."

And Now . . .

This was the history of the hospital up to 1909, with a note made of the addition in 1914.

To-day, the needs of the institution have far outgrown its facilities, and an appeal is being made for authorization to the city to issue $300,000 for extensions. Through all the years since 1885 the work has gone on to the limit of the hospital's possibilities. That the splendid service should not be curtailed is the reason for the Board's request for support of the by-law.

THE FIRST NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

MOIR HALL, the first hospital acquired through the munificence of the late Mrs. Nicholls. It stands at the south west corner of Charlotte street and Monaghan road.

THE 1890 NICHOLLS HOSPITAL

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL as it was erected by Mrs. Nicholls and formally presented to the city on January 28, 1890. This formed the nucleus of the present building, again needing expansion.

Ontario Lady Suffered from a Severe Backache

"I am very glad to be able to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills," says Mrs. Linton Robbins, Monk Road, Ont. "I have taken two boxes and I have great faith in them. I suffered with a severe Backache and Urinary Troubles. At times I was not able to do my housework, but thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills I am much better and able to do my own work. I cannot recommend them too highly."

When you have Backache it is often a timely warning that the Kidneys are not working as they should. Do not delay, but make and keep the body healthy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. For over a third of a century they have been the favorite for treating ailing Kidneys.

Could Not Sleep Heart Would Start Pumping and Pounding

Mrs. Fred P. Averill, 136-12th Ave., Calgary, Alta., writes:—"I was bothered so much with my heart I could not sleep. I would waken up in the night screaming, and my heart would start pumping and pounding.

A neighbor lady told me to try

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

so I started taking them and I can truthfully say I am a different woman. Altogether I only took two boxes."

Whippet
FOURS SIXES

Sales 58% Ahead of RECORD YEAR

Whippet sales for first 3 months of 1929, far surpass sales for same period of 1928

All Willys-Overland sales records are broken as the new Whippet's ever-growing tide of popularity sweeps the country. Thousands of new owners are responding to the appeal of the unprecedented values offered by these finest and most modern of light cars.

"FINGER-TIP CONTROL"
The greatest advance in driving convenience since the self-starter. A single button, located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn. No wires in steering post.

You will readily understand such remarkable success when you see and drive either car. An inspection reveals new beauty of design and tasteful refinement of detail.

The longer bodies, smarter lines, higher radiators and hoods, more distinctive colors and one-piece full-crown fenders of the new Whippets make them the style authorities in their classes.

In sustained speed, dashing pick-up and power, the Whippets are so far ahead that they surpass even their famous predecessors. New, higher compression engines give more than 20% added horsepower. And their dependable performance and low operating costs result in complete owner satisfaction.

A demonstration reveals higher speed, faster pick-up and greater power, together with ease of control and comfortable riding qualities never before associated with such inexpensive cars.

Brading Breweries Declares Dividend

At a meeting of the directors of The Brading Breweries, Limited, held on the 20th instant, a dividend of 50 cents a share was declared, payable on the 22,000 common shares outstanding, thus placing the stock on a $2.00 basis. This action was taken in consequence of the substantial increase in business being enjoyed by the company. Sales in March showed an increase of 82.7 per cent. over March of last year. In order to take care of its ever growing trade, plans are being drawn up for the construction of a new bottling plant of the most modern type. Contrary to current belief, the Brading sales are all derived from Ontario and Quebec and the company is not dependent in any way upon export business to the U.S.

New York Stock Market Regains Poise To-day

NEW YORK, April 27. (C.P.) — The stock market, which was unsettled yesterday by a flurry from 9 to 16 per cent., in call money rates, regained its poise today and moved higher under the stimulus of buying operations in a wide assortment of industrials and specialties. Rails were out of the speculative picture with the exception of New Haven, which crossed 104 to the highest price since 1913.

Money was not a factor in to-day's market as Friday's rate carries over the week-end. While stiff rates are expected again early next week Wall street looks for a gradual easing.

Little Trading Done On Toronto Standard

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.) —While a few of the more active stocks staged substantial advances, the general list on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day remained motionless. Spirited trading was lacking, many of the stocks having a turnover of only 25 shares and less. Ford "A" led the list in point of activity, a sudden demand for the stock sending the price up to a peak of 58, with the close at 57 showing a net gain of 4½ points. Royalite Oil held at the morning's high of 174, up 4 points, while Canada Dredging gained three points to 77. Page Hersey made a further gain of 1½ points to 132½.

International Nickel got as high as 49 and finished with a slight appreciation of 48⅞. Walkers was quiet and moved up ⅞ to 78. A few shares of Ontario Equitable Life changed hands at 60, off 3 points.

BRITISH CONSERVATIVE.

"Protection by instalments." At its annual conference at Great Yarmouth last fall the National Liberal Federation pledged the Liberal party "to sweep away all protective taxes, and take the lead in the world movement for the removal of commercial barriers." An election pamphlet issued by the Liberal publication department declares the general trade of the country would be better without these (safeguarding) taxes, and roundly adds: "Whenever the Liberals have the chance, they will abolish them."

Canada is interested in either extension or repeal of the safeguarding duties, for under their provisions empire products enter the British market at generally twothirds of the full rate.

OIL STOVE CAUSES BLAZE

BRYANSTON, Ont., April 26 (C.P.) —Fire starting from a coal oil stove destroyed the general store of A. W. Wall, in this village, late yesterday. Strenuous efforts by volunteers from the surrounding countryside, resulted in the saving of a planing mill in the vicinity which was several times threatened. The loss is placed at $10,000 covered by insurance.

LOST FLIERS REACH SYDNEY

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 27 (C.P.) —Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith arrived at Richmond airdrome at 11 a.m. to-day, aboard the Southern Cross, completing a flight from Western Australia. He and his three companions seemed little the worse for their harrowing two weeks in the brush near Port George, where their plane was forced down while on a flight to Wyndham.

LEAVES FOR PRISON.

MEXICO CITY, April 27 (Canadian Press). — Removal of Mother Concepcion Acevedo de La Llata to Las Tres Marias prison colony off the west coast of Mexico will take place early in May, an official announcement said to-day. Madre Concepcion was convicted and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment as the "intellectual author" of the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon last July.

RAILWAY WAGES INCREASE.

LONDON, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press). — A wage increase for railway shopmen announced yesterday at New York affects one thousand men in shops and round houses in this city, according to machinist union officers here to-day. The increase is effective on May 1, and is approximately five cents an hour. It is understood Stratford and other Canadian National Railway points will be affected.

SLIGHT GAINS REGISTERED

Ajax Oil Responsible For Major Portion of Total Sales, As Interest Centres In Its Class.

STRONGER APPEARANCE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(C.P.) —Pulling away from the irregular trend established yesterday, prices generally bore a much stronger appearance on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Much of the interest was confined to the cheaper stocks, where such issues as Ajax Oil, Big Missouri and Premier made substantial headway. Ajax, which accounted for more than 162,000 of the some 800,000 total sales, held close to the morning's high, showing a net gain of 17 cents at 95. Big Missouri was also active, soaring 33 cents to 1.75, while Premier ran up to 25 cents to 2.00.

Noranda recovered 65 cents to 51.25, while Sudbury Basin improved 15 to 8.75, Falconbridge 39 to 11.35, Ventures 20 to 9.75 and Nipissing 20 to 3.05. Lake Shore was 50 cents stronger at 27.00.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS HAVE HIGH STANDING

Local Lads Attending O. A. C. Are Successful in Examinations—One Scholarship Secured.

Six Peterborough students attending the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, did exceptionally well in their examinations just concluded. Russell Roseborough, of Smith, had the honor of heading the first year, a class of forty-six. His high marks won for him the scholarship prize in English, Chemistry, and Physics.

In the first year associate class, Alex. Mervin of Peterborough, stood twelfth, Harry Seymour of North Monaghan, eighteenth, and Harry Elmhurst, of Otonabee, nineteenth, in a class of forty-seven. ' Harry Elmhurst won the County Council's scholarship last year

Dick Graham of Lakefield was twelfth in his year. Frank Dench of Peterborough County, who graduates this spring, was on the College live-stock judging team and at the Royal Winter Fair he made the highest score that has ever been attained in a judging competition

RETAILERS WILL PETITION COUNCIL

By-law Will Be Sought Make Half Holidays and Closing Hours.

By mutual consent, the retail stores of Peterborough, with but few exceptions, will, pending the submission of a petition to the City Council at their next regular meeting, close at 12.30 noon Wednesday, May 1st, and on Wednesday afternoons thereafter, except in any week when a public holiday is held on Tuesday or Thursday.

The merchants have been circulating petitions throughout the retail section and the stores in outlying districts, with the result that the City Council will shortly be approached to legally sanction a Wednesday half-holiday petition and to pass legislation having to do with: closing Saturday evenings; the period of remaining open before Christmas; closing on New Year's Eve, and the period of remaining open on evenings immediately prior to public and statutory holidays.

Among the stores to close on Wednesday afternoons during the months of May, June, July and August are those classifying as department stores, men's clothing and furnishing stores, jewellery stores, dry goods stores, boot and shoe stores, novelty stores, millinery and ladies' wear stores, grocery and butcher stores, furniture stores, piano and general music stores, optometrists, etc.

The foregoing statement is issued under the authority of the Retail Merchants' Association.

CHEQUE PRESENTED TO REV. A. MINCHIN

Congregation of St. John's Honors Minister and Wife For Their Services.

The congregation of St. John's Anglican Church voiced their appreciation to Rev. A. E. Minchin for his services as pastor of the church during the three months absence of Dr. R. C. Glagrave at an informal gathering in the Parish Hall last evening. Rev. and Mrs. Minchin have endeared themselves to the congregation of St. John's during their stay in the city and it was a fond farewell that their parishioners wished them.

The personal sacrifice of Mr. Minchin in remaining at St. John's after he had received an appointment to another church and his qualities as a Christian gentleman were spoken of by W. C. Ackerman, vicar's warden, in a short address. W. R. Thompson, people's warden, presented Mr. Minchin with a cheque as a small token of the congregation's appreciation.

In his reply Mr. Minchin spoke of the friendliness of St. John's and the true Christian fellowship he had found among the people.

R. N. Stewart, lay reader, was chairman of the meeting. The ladies of the congregation served dainty refreshments.

Rev. Minchin will preach his farewell sermons on Sunday and he leaves on Monday for Virden, Manitoba, to take over his new charge.

VICE-CONSULATE IS ESTABLISHED

Presence of Italian Representative Raises Status of Toronto Consular Office.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.).— When Signor Giovanni Battista Ambrosi pays his official calls shortly on the Lieutenant-Governor and Mayor, and presents his credentials as Vice-Consul for Italy in Toronto, the Italian community here will have received a new recognation from the government of their homeland. For with Signor Ambrosi's appointment the Toronto Consular office rises in status from a Consular agency to a full-ledged Vice-Consulate.

It would take 213 states the size of Rhode Island to make one state as large as Texas.

LOCAL EXHIBIT AT CONVENTION

Roy Studio Prepares Display To MBe Shown at Buffalo Next Month.

TWO CLASSES.

Fred L. Roy, well known local photographer, has on exhibition in his window a number of excellent photographs which will be shown at the annual Photographers' Convention to be held this year in Buffalo from May 20th to May 24th.

The work is of two classes. Special portrait photographs which are of the finest type, constitute the first class in which there are three specimens on exhibit. The second class is of commercial portraits in which are shown views of local factories and a window advertising Hickok belts and buckles. These are very clear, bringing out the very minutest detail in each photograph.

Passers-by stop and admire the work of the local studio, commenting on its excellence, feeling sure that the merits of the photographs will receive their just reward at the convention.

FATALLY KICKED.

LINDSAY, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — An accident, which terminated fatally, occurred at Maple Lake, Haliburton County, on Thursday, the victim being William W. Sawyer, son of Reeve Sawyer, of Stanhope Township.

The young man was engaged in driving a team for Edward Packard, and while bringing the horses to the stable, one of the animals kicked and struck the deceased a severe blow in the face, breaking his nose, inflicting an ugly gash in his forehead and inflicting other injuries. Dr. Frain of Minden was summoned, but the injuries proved fatal.

LARGE CROWD WATCHES GAME

hesion. Several corners were forced.

Bolton Backs Wavering.

When the game had been in progress for thirty minutes the Bolton backs were beginning to waver under the persistent attacks. To relieve them the Bolton forwards became more aggressive, but Bell robbed Blackmore of the ball when he was about to shoot at close range. A foul by Seddon let in Portsmouth, who could only swing the ball about, and were often guilty of ballooning. However, the Bolton goalkeeper seemed to bear a charmed life, and his citadel had many miraculous escapes from potential scoring shots. Howarth and Finney, the Bolton backs, played like demons in protecting Pym. Just before the interval McIlwaine saved Portsmouth from a goal by clearing only a yard from the goal-line; Gilfillan, the Portsmouth netminder, was on the defensive.

Second Half

Bolton monopolized the first few minutes of play after the cross-over. Cook and Gibson combined in one pretty movement, which broke down just when it looked like getting somewhere. Weddle, Portsmouth centre, then gathered his forward line together for a combined assault on the Bolton goal, but the Bolton defence broke up the run. Later Howard cleared a corner kick luckily, the ball taking a favorable bounce.

The great Bolton half and forward lines, with their group of international stars, who had been playing a waiting game, now came into action. After being robbed of the ball when well placed, Blackmore came back and severely tested Gilfillan. Clever individual work by Bell kept the ball away from the Portsmouth danger zone for a while, but when Weddle again tried a combined foray toward the Bolton end it was summarily checked.

Made Great Save

McClelland took a shot which would have gone in, but Gilfillan flung himself lengthwise on the ground to save. Gilfillan saved again brilliantly after a corner when Gibson put in a hot grounder. Bolton were obviously asserting a superiority and the character of the match underwent a complete reverse.

The Portsmouth side looked spent and their offensive work was only spasmodic. Bolton richly deserved their first score which came in the thirty-fifth minute of the second half. Butler shot and Mackie on the goal line desperately attempted to kick the ball away. It hit the goal post and rebounded into the net. A minute later Butler looked like getting another, but the ball went over the bar. Clever work by Butler and Gibson then enabled Blackmore to shoot into an empty net, Gilfillan having been lured out. The final phase of the match saw Portsmouth struggling fiercely to stave off defeat but the Bolton defense confident and comparatively fresh, checkmated their efforts.

Toronto Elevators Limited owns and operates a grain elevator at Toronto, and owns or controls all the outstanding capital stock of The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited.

The combined capacity of the elevators is 3,000,000 bushels and is being increased by the addition of a 2,000,000 bushel extension at Sarnia.

Earnings for periods of approximately five months ended March 30th, 1929, available for dividends after depreciation and income taxes amounted to $82,278. Normal operating conditions at the Toronto Elevator did not obtain until the end of this period. Earnings estimated on the above basis for the fiscal period ending September 30, 1929, are $200,000. For the fiscal year ending September 30th, 1930, earnings are estimated at $364,000, which gives effect to the results of the additional capacity at Sarnia.

NORDON CORPORATION LIMITED is a Canadian company, acquiring the property of Nordon Corporation and other valuable oil leases and royalties, deriving substantial present income from existing oil fields of the United States, directed by technical and practical talent of the highest order, which will largely devote its efforts to development of oil in the fields of Western Canada. Nordon Corporation had its inception early in 1928, to acquire exceptional opportunities in various oil districts of Canada and the United States, under the guidance of Mr. C. G. Willis and associates.

PROPERTY HOLDINGS:—Leases on 24,000 acres and royalty under 76,800 acres on seventeen distinct oil areas of the United States, and 10,000 acres in prospective valuable areas in Western Canada. United States royalty interests include portion of landowner's royalty in one of the finest leases in the Santa Fe Springs field of California. Five wells have here been completed to recently discovered deep and very prolific sands, and thirteen more wells are drilling on the company's royalty acreage. In New Mexico, company owns royalty under 70,000 acres, in the latest producing oil area in the United States. In Texas, the latest major producing field in the United States, company owns leases on 7,500 acres in Midland county, part of which is now being drilled on acreage-division basis by some of the larger operating companies of the industry; leases on 2,500 acres in Crockett county, where 2,500 checkerboarded acres, transferred on acreage-division basis, is being drilled by Marland Oil Co. and W. A. Moncrieff, and where within the past few days one well reached the sands and was bailing at the rate of 288 barrels daily, with prospects that a big producer would be brought in; leases on 960 acres in Pecos county, on the Fort Stockton "high"; and leases on 1,000 acres in Ward county on the Soda Lake structure. In Oklahoma, one-half of royalty under 160 acres on top of a large core-drill structure in the Wilcox sand area, where Marland Oil Co. owns the leases on Nordon royalty acreage. In Kansas, acreage in the vicinity of the recent discovery just north of Wichita, Central Kansas. In Ohio leases on 80 acres in eastern part of state, where a well within one mile has just come in with yield of 100 barrels of high-gravity Pennsylvania crude. Other royalties and leases are under option or negotiation in Santa Fe Springs field and in other fields in Texas and New Mexico.

PRESENT REVENUES:—Royalty revenue from five wells in Santa Fe Springs field will presently be at rate of $300,000 per annum, and rate is expected to reach $500,000 per annum before the end of this year, as thirteen more wells are being drilled on royalty leases. Further revenues are expected from Texas and New Mexico fields from wells now drilling.

FINANCES:—Upon completion of this present financing the company will have in excess of $1,100,000 in its treasury.

INTENSIVE CANADIAN OPERATIONS:—The immediate objective of the Corporation is large expansion of its operations in the prospective fields of Western Canada, where its staff, in possession of valuable geological data, believes some of the most important structures on the continent may be developed.

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS:—The principles which have been and will be followed by the Corporation in building up revenues necessary for execution of its policies, used with marked success by the great royalty companies of the United States, will be rigidly adhered to, thus eliminating, in largest measure, drilling operations—the most costly and most hazardous branch of the industry. Leases and royalties will be negotiated over a wide spread, thus minimizing hazard of loss and increasing the chances of big success.

The Corporation is not a drilling company and will confine its operations in that direction solely to offset drilling where such operations are imperatively demanded in protection of its holdings.

PERSONNEL:—The standing of the directors of Nordon Corporation is of the highest order. President and General Manager Glen M. Ruby is acknowledged to be the outstanding authority upon the prospective fields of Western Canada, with the widest experience in continental oil affairs. Managing Director C. G. Willis stands equally high in the Southwest and is generally accorded a portion of the credit for discovery of several of the important fields in the Los Angeles Basin. From time to time, announcements will be made regarding the personnel of a Board of Consultants, which will include oil experts of continental and international reputation.

Application will be made for listing on Eastern and Western Stock Exchanges.

Literature, with halftones and maps, containing further details, gladly furnished upon request.

HIGH PARK CHOIR VISIT.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir: In connection with the Anniversary services of St. Andrew's church in May, a very unique event is being sponsored by the choir of the church. The High Park United Choir of Toronto, will visit Peterborough on Monday evening, May 6 and give a concert in St. Andrew's church The choir will consist of 76 members, a professional male quartette, elocutionist, and violinist, under the direction of Mr. Charles Leslie, who, it will be recalled, was the leader of song in connection with the week of special services last fall. The program is one of great excellence and it seems as if the occasion should be one of great interest to choir members and music lovers in general. It is many years since a full choir has visited the city, and the undertaking is one of moment. I make no apologies in commending this event to our musical people, one which is not likely to be repeated often. The program will be a popular one, though of merit, and I feel sure there is a rare treat in store for us on that night.

The tickets are in the hands of members of the choir, and as the seating capacity of the church is limited, only that number will be sold, it would not be wise to take chances of admission that night. Your truly.

JOHN CRANE,
Director of Music.

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL BYLAW.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: Re the Nicholls Hospital Bylaw: This bylaw was vetoed by the ratepayers last year, namely, I believe, because the ratepayers felt they were not being fairly dealt with; this feeling was expressed by the Mayor, when he suggested that the Hospital Board and the Council meet together to arrange for a more direct control in hospital affairs than we now have.

The bylaw is again before the people, and so far I do not know of anything being done to remedy this. If the ratepayers are to pay the piper they should at least be consulted as to the tune.

The hospital is not only a city institution, it is used (and properly) by many residents in the surrounding districts. Under the circumstances I think the county should be asked to bear its share of the cost of enlargement, and not the city alone.

Last week you published a statement from the Hospital authorities showing the need for the expendi- of this money. While admitting that the accommodation appears inadequate, the statement shows the need of new blood on the board, and a more direct control in the affairs of the hospital. I say this, because I think that any association having the interests of the public at heart, as this should, would not have allowed the buildings to have become so overcrowded and out of date.

This alleged overcrowding is caused, so rumour has it, because the institution is being used too much as a nursing home by those who are quite able to pay the fees of a private concern.

Then as a citizen I would like to know just how much the hospital is costing the city each year, and also how much more (exclusive of interest and repayment of loan) the city will have to pay in the future.

I think the bylaw will be again lost unless we hear, and that quickly, that the foregoing objections have been met. I would like to see a statement from both the City Council and the Hospital Board that the bylaw had been withdrawn pending a suitable and equitable agreement on this matter of control. Yours faithfully,

PROTESTANT RATEPAYER.

PASTEURIZATION OF MILK

To Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—As the pasteurization of milk is a much discussed question in many towns and cities of Canada at the present time, the following article taken from The New York Produce Review is timely, and may prove interesting.

"Prejudice still exists in the minds of great numbers of highly intelligent individuals against the pasteurization of milk for home consumption. They maintain that it renders milk less wholesome, and injures its health-giving qualities. Opinions of this nature are not based on scientific facts but usually on the theory that milk is a natural food and therefore needs no processing to make it more valuable for human consumption. Scientists, however, are in quite general accord that from a purely physical standpoint proper pasteurization renders milk more easily digested and of greater general benefit to the human race.

But pasteurization would not be essential were there not hidden dangers lurking in milk. Composed as it is, it is the one natural medium for all varieties and types of germs. In this category is included not only bacteria that apparently are harmless but those which produce the great majority of disease that are common to the human race. Not the least of these is the tuberculosis germ, to which the dairy animal is susceptible and from which it may gain access to milk, which has wrought so much havoc among these exposed to it. In addition, epidemics of typhoid fever, diphtheria and numerous other disease have been traced directly to a milk supply that in some manner has become contaminated.

The large city invariably protects its milk supply. This it does beginning at the source, the farm, and continuing through until the individual bottle is ready for delivery. It is a most noticeable fact that even those who require milk from tuberculin tested herds also insist that the milk be pasteurized. Exception may be taken to this in that pasteurization is not prescribed for milk from certified dairies. It is readily apparent that those who give the matter the deepest thought and study are the most emphatic advocates of milk pasteurization.

In spite of all that has been said and written regarding the pathogenic dangers that may exist in milk, pasteurization ordinances are unknown in many of our relatively large cities. This is even more true of hundreds of smaller cities and towns. In these, any individual who so desires can peddle milk from house to house without fear of interference from municipal authorities. This is why in many small cities the number of milk distributors exceed those to be found in cities of many times as many inhabitants. A condition of this nature can be classified only as a case of criminal negligence.

A milk pasteurization ordinance is essential to the welfare of every municipality whether large or small. It is only humane that the health of growing children should be protected in this manner. While this might work a hardship to many small retailers of milk and require readjustments in handling the milk supply of a considerable number of cities, it would be productive of material beneficial results. Not the least of these would be the elimination of many milk peddlers whose ideas of sanitation make them utterly unfit to handle any product that is consumed by the general public."

TAKES OFF FOR NEW ZEALAND.

LYMPNE, England, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Piloting a tiny single-seater light airplane, Frank Mase, young New Zealand airman, hopped off to-day on the first stage of the 13,500-mile flight to New Zealand.

The airman had special tanks with enough fuel for a 2,000-miles non-stop flight.

This is a Mathematical Certainty. .

If a buyer starts out with the one thought and the one thought only that he wants his driving comfort to be as complete as is humanly possible, the contrast between Cadillac-La Salle and all other cars admits of only one decision. . . . . .

Cadillac's position as the leader of the fine car group is an accepted fact that one would scarcely think of challenging. On the basis of quality and value, the contrast with all other cars has always been so sharply drawn that a discriminating choice offered no real difficulties.

But within recent months Cadillac and the Cadillac-built La Salle have forged ahead to such an extent that you may not realize how vastly their superiority has been increased—especially from the viewpoint of safety and easy mastery of control.

Take these latter two points, which any one will quickly admit are of paramount importance in this day of high speed and congested traffic.

In braking, gear shifting, steering and all driving operations, there are no other cars in all the world that can compare with Cadillac or La Salle.

That is because, for one thing, you can not find on any other cars the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes, the most powerful braking system ever developed, yet the easiest and quickest to operate.

On no other cars can you find the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission which enables you to shift your gears at any speed, under any conditions, without awkwardness or the slightest hesitancy. The operation is instantaneous as well as clashless.

These are safety features of the utmost importance, as is the improved steering mechanism, but there is also the Cadillac-La Salle crystal-clear, non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass. In the remote event of collision you cannot be injured by flying glass fragments; neither will there be any danger from the impact of stones cast up by the wheels of passing cars.

These are some of the new facts to add to those you already know about Cadillac and La Salle. When these new facts are yours through personal experience, and you have made comparisons with all other fine cars, one conclusion becomes as certain as a mathematical theorem: The buyer who seeks the greatest possible driving comfort must select a Cadillac or La Salle.

Cadillac-La Salle dealers welcome business on the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan.

LADIES' AID MEETS.

Much Business Discussed By Members of Warsaw Presbyterian Church Society.

WARSAW, April 2[illegible] (Examiner Correspondence). — The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Munro on Thursday afternoon. There was a full meeting, with the president in the chair. After the usual opening exercises and routine business, there was some discussion about an entertainment, and it was decided to hold a tea meeting in the latter part of May. There have been some offers for the quilt, which is well finished, and the upper part in white with red designs outlined in each block. The offers are not its value, as the materials alone cost nearly $7.00, and a great amount of work was put on it. Finally the ladies decided to sell tickets, and the lucky number would be drawn at the tea meeting. Miss Della Tucker has the tickets.

Conducted Services.

Rev. Mr. McCleary preached in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, and will continue to do so for some time.

Pastor Eikenaar preached in the Baptist Church on Sunday evening.

Rev. J. T. O'Conor-Fenton conducted evening service in the Anglican Church last Sunday. It is the first time Rev. Mr. Fenton has held a service here since Good Friday afternoon. Next Sunday morning Holy Communion will be held.

Gives Interesting Talk.

As announced, Rev. H. B. Herrington gave a talk on "The Inspiration of the Bible" on Sunday evening. Some of his points were that Christians believe in the inspiration of the Bible, but the method of inspiration was, or is, a matter of question. He said there were two main ideas regarding the inspiration—one is that the Bible is God's word, therefore every word of it is absolutely correct. Men who wrote it were simply as pens in God's hands; their intellects were quiescent, at least for the time. The idea was of pagan origin, and Rev. Mr. Herrington quoted several writers who wrote to the effect that the pagan gods revealed themselves to the weak-minded. Rev. Mr. Herrington quoted many authors to show that with the idea that God dictated every word and man was only a helpless individual, every error, even in translation, is absolutely correct. For his part he could not see it. He earnestly wished every person would study the Bible more. The other method is to take the Bible and study it ,and find out from the Book itself about its inspiration. According to this method, God inspired men, but their mental faculties were fully alive Rev. Mr. Herrington will talk on this method next Sunday evening.

Shaky Nerves

ARE your hands shaky? Do you worry and find difficulty in going to sleep? Do small things make you irritable?

Your nerves may be strengthened. Like all other body tissues, they get their nourishment from the blood, and the basic need is a blood builder. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved themselves the ideal blood builder and nerve tonic. Here's a typical example:

"A year ago," writes Mrs. Duncan Arthurs, of Sadowa, Ontario, "I suffered from a nervous breakdown. I could not get to sleep at night; I became irritable; had no appetite; suffered from frequent dizzy spells and headaches. I was so weak and nervous that I cried without knowing what I was crying for. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills completely brought me back to health and strength. I feel that I cannot praise them enough, for they are certainly worth more than their weight in gold."

Start to re-build your nerve cells now by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. At your druggist's or by mail, postpaid, 50 cents, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GRANT IS MADE TO SCHOOL FAIR

Harvey Township Council Appoints Stanley Barcroft Weed Inspector.

ASKS FOR SURVEY.

HALL'S BRIDGE, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The Township Council of Harvey met in the Loyal True Blue Hall, Hall's Bridge, on Saturday morning last. All members were present.

Correspondence was received from the representative of the Department of Agricuture asking for a grant towards the Harvey Township School Fair. After some discussion it was decided that a grant of $10 be made for this purpose.

Nathan Nicholls addressed the Council with regard to having a survey made of the village of Hall's Bridge in order to ascertain lines and street allowances. No action was taken by the Council in this matter.

Stanley Barcroft was appointed Weed Inspector for the Township for the current year 1929.

Albert Allen addressed the Council in respect to the poor condition of his road. This matter was left over to be discussed with the Government Road Inspector.

By-law 435 was introduced and passed appointing pathmasters, fence-viewers and pound-keepers for the current year 1929.

Orders were drawn on the treasury for the following amounts:

Rollie Armstrong, freight and cartage re grader, $10; Sawyer Massey Ltd., grader, $145.00; Richard Davis, road work, $5; John Valois, grading, $11.25; Joseph Oliver, 200 loads of gravel, $20; Stanley Payne grading, $4.50; Ernest Irwin, road work, $1.40; Mr. Pluard, assessor's salary for 1929, $80.

The Council then adjourned. It was decided that the next meeting should be held as a Court of Revision on Saturday, May 25, at 10 a.m.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

ROSENEATH UNITED.

ROSENEATH, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. R. M. Brown took charge of the service in the United Church on Sunday morning after an absence of several weeks owing to sickness. His sermon was enthsuiastic and earnest, taking the text from Matthew 6, verse 10: "Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven', saying, "Thy will be done, the greatest of all words, yet they may be used by the fatalist and thereby lose their true significance, or they may be used by those who have found God.

It is disastrous to identify God with the misfortunes and pestilences of life and whatever happiness or success that comes our way we say 'It is our good luck' I ask you, 'Is that fair?' Many of us weep and exclaim, 'It must be God's will that the little one should die' when what really has caused a large number of them to leave us is unsanitary conditions, ignorance of the diet it should have, and hereditary weaknesses.

Malnutrition and filth is not God's will, it is the devil's will. It is not God's will that our boys should be slain in war. The same conditions that caused the Great War erected that brutal cross on the Hill. If our boys lived clean and died clean, if they possessed courage, self-sacrifice and tenderness to father and mother, that is God's will. Their death is God's woe as it was our woe."

Continuing Rev. Brown said, "It is in the Christ and His marvellous spirit, not the ugly heathen cross erected by Jewish bigotry and Roman hands, that you see the will of God. God does not use evil in His plan for the ages.

God is, always has been, and always will be, pure, undiluted, unmitigated beauty, goodness, truth and infinite love.

People are not determined to do evil. It is because they have no mater-passion, but are torn by a battle of many meaner, lower passions and some good ones.

The will of God is to be your master passion, and the experssion of this true master passion is love.

For God is love, and that being God's will, there is no evil present in that.

In our community life we, who call ourselves by His name, were more like Him, keeping the heaven on earth idea in view instead of our neighbours faults then His will is better done on earth for it is envy, strife and treachery rather than the mistakes of our young people that breaks the image of heaven on earth.

This was precisely the lesson Jesus taught when he exclaimed "He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her.'

Or in other words, is it not too true that those critical, unsympathetic people among our own church members, who may be guilty of treachery, envy, selfishness and bigotry are among the first to throw stones and bruise our blundering youth?

But if, in all I speak, I try to do His will, no more shall any, bitter, ungenerous or malicious words pass these lips of mine, then I bring heaven to earth because His will is done."

KNOX UNITED, LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, April 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday evening last the service in Knox United Church was in charge of the Young People's Society and was very inspiring and illustrated the value of the society in the activities of church life. Miss Helen Burgess, president of the society, was in the chair; Dr. G. E. Renwick read the Scripture lessons with a commentary on them by Rev. T. W. Wesley. Gordon Porter led in prayer, showing a zealous interest for the cause of Christ and the obligations and privileges which it gives young people.

Norman Lemay took the topic which was "Some Aspects of the liquor problem," a subject of strong movement and with a diversity of aspects.

The choir, under the able leadership of Mrs. Georgie Craig Bell, rendered special and appropriate music. Two anthems were sung—"Speak a kind word" and "Thou Art the One I Need" the latter with a solo part by Mrs. Bell.

The young people's service marked a new epoch in the history of Knox Church as it was the first time a service of this character was held.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

CAVAN

The Women's Institute discussed e matter of staging a play with me talent, but did not commence anning in time to have it prepared fore the busy season. Consequently ough persons could not be gotten take the characters in the play osen.

May has usually been the month osen to have something to make oney to add to the treasury of the stitute.

They will have a supper and pro- am during the latter part of May. The members will contribute home- ade candy, which will be sold dur- g the program.

The committee who were trying to unch a play, have been asked to cure a play from some other source. Any society or organization who ve a play prepared and wishing to peat it, are requested to write the stitute Secretary, Miss M. E. Hunt- . Cavan, sating terms and a de- ription of the play.

The date has not yet been defin- ly set.

The Institute have a good bank account, but are desirous of adding to it, as they are hoping some day, to be able to have a good library.

The loan library is proving quite satisfactory. The books are circulating, each one to be kept two weeks and then passed on, or sooner if read.

When the complete circuit has been made by all the books, each one will be returned to its owner.

WARSAW

According to the hand-book, the Institute year ends on April 30. The annual meeting is held in May. Warsaw annual meeting will be held in the Institute room, upstairs in Mr. J. A. Crowe's house, on Thursday, May 9, at 2.30 p.m. As well as the election of officers, other matters of vital importance to the Institute, and to the community will come up.

For years the Institute has been handicapped for lack of space, and the time has come when it seems necessary to make some radical change.

Oftentimes the Institute has been unable to do necessary things, but has started the ball rolling. It feels that it should do more. One thing every member should remember is that every interest of the community, which is the Institute's work, is that, wether she will or not, whether she is a member of the Institute or not, if it is an actual community work, it is her interest. If she has little children growing up in the community, so much the more is the community interest hers.

The Institute exists for the community. If it wants to make money, it is that it may carry on community work, and it is generally found throughout the country, that where there is much community work, there is a thriving Institute. The Institute asks no money for its own selfish ends. It believes in Canada, in Canadian homes, and that every chance should be given every young person to become a useful, honest, God-fearing citizen.

AT MILLBROOK.

The Women's Institutes of the Province are constantly teaching the busy homemakers how to conserve time, energy, and strength; how to make their home liveable and inviting, with furnishings tastefully arranged, whether their cost mounts to a high figure, or not; how to utilize labor-saving devices, home-made or purchased; how to balance the family budget, and yet to know food and food values, and the proper balancing of the family menu; how to buy clothing, and other supplies; to understand fairly well the principles of home nursing; in short, to be companion, wife, mother, and citizen—truly a homemaker, and not just a housekeeper. This is a great task, and one that makes a worthy ideal for the women of any community, urban or rural, to have constantly before it, and arrange programs and discussions so that progress in attaining the ideal may be marked, as the months roll by.

Practical things to try out do, apparently, provide features at the regular meetings of the local branch, and are undoubtedly advanced at the Institute gatherings generally throughout the province. In the local program for the April meeting "Helpful Hints for Housecleaning" were demanded in answer to the roll call, and for May the annual meeting will be called, when in addition to the reports and election of officers, the reply to the roll will require: "Suggestions for Next Year's Program." "Branch Responsibility" will be discussed, and there is listed an exchange of seeds, bulbs, roots, or plants, which is very seasonable in view of the gardening activities which are just ahead. Several of the local members are flower lovers, and have a fine showing of bloom, well-arranged flower beds, and shrubbery in the grounds about their homes during the summer season.

Beautifying the homes means adding much to the attractiveness of the community, and this is an obligation resting upon the Institute, and one that locally is very well fulfilled. In the household budget may very well be included an allowance for seeds, plants, or shrubs at this time of the year.

A suggestion that has recently been sent out from headquarters, since the question as to what prizes to offer for the school fairs will doubtless be engaging the attention of the Institutes in the immediate future, is on the subject: "Drawing of an up-to-date kitchen," and this should be inviting to the school pupils following the many short courses which have been successfully held during the winter months; the one held locally reached a high mark in enrollment, regular attendance, interest, and instruction. "Dairy Dishes at School Fairs," is another suggestion for the prize list. The local branch, for two or more years past, has offered prizes amounting to five dollars, for the best collection of vegetables and of flowers at the school fair here—it is possible a change might be made this season, and a new heading chosen.

THE SATURDAY MARKET BASKET

Fruits and vegetables do not differ in price, in many respects, from those of last week, and there are no comparatively new arrivals on the market.

Maple sugar, a new arrival a few weeks ago, sells for 10 cents a cake. Apples are priced according to the variety. Cooking apples are 40, 50, and 60 cents a peck; Spies are 75 and 80 cents a peck; eating apples are 40 and 50 cents a dozen.

Oranges are very varied in price. This year there are many small oranges in Peterborough, and these may be purchased at 15 cents a dozen, with the larger ones being priced at from 35 to 60 cents a dozen. Blood oranges are quoted at 25 and 30 cents a dozen. Bitter oranges, for marmalade, are 50 cents a dozen.

Potatoes are quoted from 18 to 20 cents a peck, while Manvers potatoes at 90 cents a bag. New carrots are 10 cents a bunch, while the old ones are 20 and 25 cents a peck. New beets are also priced at 10 cents a bunch. Turnips are 20 cents a peck and parsnips are 40 cents a peck. New potatoes are 20 cents a small measure. Sweet potatoes are 2 and 3 pounds for 25 cents.

Celery is 15 and 20 cents a head and celery hearts are 2 for 25 cents. Green onions are 5 and 10 cents a bunch. Radishes are 5 cents a bunch. Tomatoes are 25 cents a pound and 35 cents a pound for the hothouse variety. Cucumbers are 10, 15, and 20 cents each. Spinach is priced at 2 pounds for 19 cents.

Cocoanuts are 10 cents each. Grapefruit may be purchased 2, 3, and 4 for 25 cents, and lemons are quoted from 23 to 28 cents a dozen, while some merchants sell them at 3 for 10 cents.

New cabbage is quoted at 4 pounds for 25 cents. Cauliflower are priced at 25 and 30 cents a head.

Rhubarb is 10 cents a bunch. Dutch Set onions are priced at 20 cents a pound, and mushrooms are 90 cents a pound.

Bananas are 3 pounds for 25 cents and 25 and 30 cents a dozen. Grapes are 25 cents a pound and strawberries are priced at 25 cents a pint box.

The Mirror of the Mode
By Mary Marshall

This little girl's dress of white handkerchief linen has facing and edging at arms and neck of contrasting colored linen. Ends of the linen form a tie at the front of the collar.

The problem that the designers set before them recenty was to make clothes for women that would meet the growing demand for increased femininity—without being any less comfortable or less wearable than the less gracious clothes that we had been wearing And in the frocks and wraps and hats that have been accepted for spring we can see that they have solved their problem with real success Graceful curves can be suggested without a return to tightly laced corsets or boned bodices Skirts may be somewhat longer and fuller without being burdensome A few frills may be added without giving the effect of fussiness.

And so women generally have been persuaded that they lose nothing that they had gained in wearing the new clothes that are more feminine. And even the very little girls have been provided with dresses that are entirely girlish and yet as comfortable and practical as the clothes worn by their brothers. Little girls' dresses show no disposition to grow longer nor is there any appreciable change in the place of waistlines because most little girl dresses now, as last season, are made hanging straight from the shoulder or with a shallow yoke.

White voile with colored embroidered dots, white lawn with colored organdie pipings, plain linen used with printed linen, printed striped pique, pastel organdies with occasional colored embroidered floral designs, ginghams of a wide variety—these materials are all included in the new dresses for very little girls.

VALUABLE TRAINING.

The importance of a knowledge of first aid among workers is being steadily emphasized by leading corporations throughout the country. The Bell Telephone Company has been a leader in promoting such knowledge amongst its employees. The annual report of the company states that of its male plant employees, over 5,100 in number, seventy per cent, are qualified first aiders. This in an enviable position and one of which the company may well be proud. As a result, Bell employees have been able to render aid, in critical cases, not only to their fellow employees but also to other victims of accident.

TOMATO COCKTAIL FEATURED IN MENU

Juice is Greatly Favored as Morning Eye-Opener For Adults.

Canned tomato juice, for some time past favored as a morning eye-opener for adults and recommended by doctors for infant feeding, has definitely taken its place on the finest tables in the land.

For instance, at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, a favorite tomato juice cocktail recently served was made of 20 ounces of tomato juice strained from a can of tomatoes through a sixteenth-inch sieve without pressing:

2 teaspoons malt vinegar.
¼ teaspoons salt.
½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce.
8 drops Tobasco Sauce.
2 teaspoons lemon juice.

For a private dinner, a Canadian hostess chose the following menu:

Tomato Juice Cocktail
Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes
Yorkshire Pudding
Brussels Sprouts
Pear Salad
Cheese Straws
Steamed Pudding
Custard Sauce
Coffee.

This hostess strained a can of tomatoes, added a suspicion of onion juice, salt, pepper and just a bit of grated lemon rind. This was chilled and served in glasses A segment of lemon was on the plate beside the glass.

WEDDING BELLS

TUNSTALL—WILSON.

KEENE, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Wesleyan Methodist Church of Brunswick, Cheshire, England, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, when Mrs. Bertha Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fletcher, of Keene, became the bride of Mr. John Tunstall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Tunstall, of Birkenhead, Cheshire, England, the Rev. Mr. Beckett officiating. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Tunsfall, Sr., looked charming in a gown of beige lace over georgette with black hat and shoes and stockings to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, smilax and fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Renie Ackerman, cousin of the bride, also looked charming in a dress of pink georgette, with hat, shoes and stockings to match, and carrying a bouquet of pink and mauve tulips. The bridegroom was ably supported by Leonard Terporten, of Birkenhead.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents, Birkenhead, Cheshire.

The happy couple received many beautiful presents. After their honeymoon to different parts of Wales, they will make their home at Birkenhead, Cheshire, England.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drug store.

Miss Florence McDonald of Toronto, past president of the Young Young Women's Liberal Club of that city, who spoke to the members of the Mackenzie King Young Ladies' Club last evening at their first "At Home," held in Austin's Dining Rooms, was accompanied on her motor trip from Toronto by four ladies who are members of the Toronto Club: Mrs. A. J. P. Cameron, the president; Miss Floretta Pritchard, the secretary; Mrs. Nelson Parliament and Miss Lillian Rear. Miss Margaret Heenan, the second speaker of the evening and vice president of the Twentieth Century Women's Liberal Club of Ottawa, was accompanied by Miss Helen Doherty, secretary of the National Federation of the Liberal Women of Canada. At the conclusion of the address of the evening, a dance was held, for which excellent music was furnished by Mowrey-Steer and their Collegians. Dainty refreshments were served later. Patronesses for the dance were Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. J. J. Duffus, and Mrs. Joseph Wearing. The committee in charge of arrangements included the officers and executive, Miss Alberta Hunter, president; Miss Minnie Green, Miss Musa Cox, Miss Jean Duffus, Miss Olive Rightmeyer and Miss Mareta Collins. Rigthmeyer, Miss Mareta Collins, Miss Louise Letellier. Assisting were Mrs. J. J. Craig, Mrs. H. J. Hunter, and the Misses G. Cox C. Crough and B. Edgar. About one hundred and fifty people were present for the dance.

A large attendance of Caledonians met last night in the Woodmen of the World Hall for their regular weekly meeting. The entertainment provided was a carpet-bowling contest and a whist drive. Fourteen teams took part in the bowling games of Scotch double, which proved very exciting and were keenly contested. Those taking part in the finals were Mrs. G. Nimmons and Mr. P. Findlay playing against Mrs. D. Anderson and Mr. P. Ross. The winners proved to be Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Ross, who carried home the large silver cup. Seven tables of whist were played and the prize-winners were: Mrs. T. Lister and Mrs. R. Gilman. Mr. Robert Veitch handed over the prizes and congratulated the winners. Tea was then served by the executive, and a few dances to music supplied by Mr. Gilmour on the melodeon ended a most pleasant evening. Several of the members contemplate leaving the city in the near future; their fellow members regret very much that they will be severing their connection with this social club, which gives so much pleasure to these Scots abroad.

An extract from "The Salesmotor," the official organ of the Imperial Oil Company in Canada, is of interest locally, as it refers to the successful career of a former Peterborough citizen, Mr. Harold C. Morrow, son of the late Mr. Bernard Morrow and of Mrs. Morrow, Gilmour street. The item reads: "On graduating from High School in Peterborough, Ontario, his birthplace, Mr. H. C. Morrow entered the employ of the Royal Bank of Canada in his home city, resigning his position two years later to enlist in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, so that he might play his part in the Great War. He landed in France in April, 1915, where he saw four years of active service in France and Belgium, terminating his military service with four months with the Canadian Army of Occupation in Germany. On being discharged, the call of the West was so strongly felt that he acted on the impulse and landed in Regina late in the Fall of 1919, and immediately foresaw such wonderful possibilities in the oil industry that he took steps to associate himself with the leader of that industry. His application for employment was given favorable consideration and he entered the employ of our company as stock clerk on January 15th, 1920 His work was of such high order, together with his pleasing personality, that after a few months' service he was put in charge of the Order Desk, where his contact with the public by telephone, and direct personal contact, smoothed over the occasional complaint that inevtiably arises, and built much good-will for our company with the trade. This marked ability resulted in his being appointed salesman on February 1st, 1923, with headquarters at Assiniboia, where for four years he almost invariably was first or second in all contests. His outstanding success was directly attributable to hard work and his ability properly to organize and supervise his agencies. In the spring of 1928 he was transferred to a new territory, with headquarters at Weyburn, Saskatchewan, where he again demonstrated his sales ability through winning the Divisional Automotive Oil Contest, and securing for himself second position in the Dominion Automotive Oil Contest. He has always been a firm believer in knowing his business, and attributes much of his success to his having given intensive study to all periodicals and publications dealing with lubrication as applied to the internal combustion engine — the operators of which every Imperial salesman is more or less in contact with—appreciating that the more he knew in respect to the lubrication of such mechanism the better fitted he was to sell correct lubrication as prescribed by Imperial charts of recommendations. Mr. Morrow's reward for earnest, conscientious effort is his promotion to Assistant Sales Manager, Brandon Division, which appointment has been made effective as of April 1st, 1929."

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parent is to know just what medicine to give the little one. When the child falls ill with griping pains; is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or vomits what he has taken, when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child, the parent is in a quandary. What is to be done on such occasions? As often as not there is not a suitable medicine in the house. The puzzle is what to give him to set him right quickly.

It is to meet such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets were designed. These pleasant little Tablets quickly reduce fever, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigeston and allay teething pains. They quiet the nerves and promote restful health-restoring sleep. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

More than 3,000 children under five years of age die every year in this country as a result of burns.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

IN THE OFFICE the other day I found an old history of Nicholls Hospital from which someone had been writing articles in connection with the by-law about which we have been reading.

• • • • • • •

As I glanced over the book it just struck me that here is the history, not only of an institution, but of a splendid woman.

• • • • • • •

To Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls Peterborough owes not only Nicholls Hospital, but also the Y.M.C.A., and three or four parks.

• • • • • • •

The history says: "Mrs. Nicholls was known to have long entertained the conviction that those to whom Almighty God has given the means should, to the best of their ability, use opportunities for doing good."

• • • • • • •

That, in itself, is a splendid sentiment, and the expression given it by Mrs. Nicholls was wonderful..

• • • • • • •

Away back in 1885 she acquired Moira Hall (at the south-west corner of Charlotte Street and Monaghan Road)), and set it aside as a hospital.

• • • • • • •

That becoming too small, Mrs. Nicholls provided the means to build a new hospital, opened in 1890, and afterwards added to her munificence by several endowments.

• • • • • • •

What would Peterborough have done had it not been for this big-hearted woman? The building of a hospital would have cost the citizens hundreds of thousands of dollars—and then there would have been the maintenance over long years.

• • • • • • •

Surely this is an outstanding instance of real charity! It is the spirit so well expressed in: "All things come of Thee, O God, and of Thine own have we given Thee."

• • • • • • •

Not only has Nicholls Hospital ministered to the sick of many years, but through its training schools it has sent out to all parts of the country well-trained nurses to continue the good work they started here.

• • • • • • •

It is a wonderful training that the nurses are given, and though the work is arduous, they look back on it in later years with pleasure that is enhanced by the knowledge that they were well trained and faithfully schooled.

• • • • • • •

Mrs. Nicholls certainly builded well.

• • • • • • •

Have you read Dr. Ruth F. Wadsworth's book, "Charm by Choice"? It gives, among other things, the following five attributes of the charming woman:

'She is good to look upon. She may or may not be beautiful, according to artistic canons; but she will always have the good looks that result from good health, good physical care, and careful dressing.

"She is sufficiently sure of herself to be unconscious of herself.

"She is interested in other people and therefore a pleasant companion.

"She is very much alive, is full of energy, and is "game."

"She is, mentally, at least ageless."

• • • • • • •

This, you will say, is a large order, and Dr. Wadsworth admits at the outset that it is.

• • • • • • •

'It is no small matter, realizing the ambition to be a charming woman," says Dr. Wadsworth, "It presupposes intelligence, the ability to analyse oneself impersonally, industry and perseverance.

• • • • • • •

"But when we consider that charm is nowadays not only a social necessity but a business asset, that the charming person may have a full and interesting life where the unattractive person often does not, we must grant that to acquire it is worth the effort it may cost."

• • • • • • •

In these days, Dr. Wadsworth goes on to say, no one need be apologetic about taking an interest in the subject of charm. The conception of a charming woman has changed so radically that the descriptions of fascinating ladies in fiction of the ninsteenth century make us laugh.

• • • • • • •

"Charm is no longer a matter merely of physical beauty and languishing habits. It is not an accident of birth, nor a gift of God, but a quality that is the result of thought and training and constant care."

• • • • • • •

Explaining her own professional interest in the matter, Dr. Wadsworth continues:

"The physician is interested in charm because it is the expression of a well balanced and useful life and because, when charm is lacking there is always some faulty adjustment of the physical or mental life, and perhaps of both.

• • • • • • •

"Many of the visitors to a doctors office are suffering from no specific disease but from symptoms which are the direct result of their own habits and tendencies. One of the first things to impress the doctor when these symptoms disappear is the evident fact that his patient is not only improved in health but in charm as well."

• • • • • • •

Translated into terms of personal characteristics, Dr. Wadsworth is of the opinion that habits, cleanliness, food, exercise and fitness, sleep, cosmetics, and the mind, are basic factors influencing the cultivation of charm. To each of these characteristics she delegates a chapter in the booklet. This makes, of course, a total of seven.

• • • • • • •

"Self assurance," she says commenting on habits, "and the self-unconsciousness that goes with it, make for one of the most important qualities of the person who is pleasant to be with. The fidgety, uneasy person who always has something on her mind, or who is always remembering something she has forgotten, is not an agreeable companion.

• • • • • • •

"The business of living must be run efficiently if one's mind and conversations are not to beswamped by uninteresting details. This is true for all women, whether they are in business, or have home duties, or have no apparent duties whatever."

• • • • • • •

Certain qualities which make for efficiency, Dr. Wadsworth finds, also make for charm. Numbered among these are promptness, accuracy, and faithfulness to engagements. It is a striking fact that those who live most inefficiently are those who have the least to do, she comments, adding:

"The busy woman has time for everything. The idle woman is never quite ready for the few tasks she has to perform. The reason for this is obvious. The busy woman early learns that her life must be carefully planned. For the idle woman no plan seems necessary."

• • • • • • •

Contrary to the advice sometimes associated with moralists she finds "The use of cosmetics has no moral aspect" and comments that:

"The old idea that these artificial aids were a device of the devil to tempt us into sin is nonsense on a par with ideas of witchcraft. Whether or not one uses cosmetics I feel is entirely a matter of taste, provided that the materials used are not injurious."

• • • • • • •

Every doctor, she says, will tell you that people feel better if they think they look well. Of course, "there are still left in the world those who enjoy poor health, but even they do not enjoy looking ill if they think it is not becoming." Wherefore in an earlier chapter, Dr. Wadsworth gives these rules for exercising:

"Begin with the physical exercises, the best known way of starting the day right.

"Take a brisk walk every day.

"Hold yourself erect while walking, and

"Adopt some competitive sport."

• • • • • • •

Sleep, too, is a necessary adjunct in the desire to be charming by choice. Here, however, the generally given advice is supplemented by Dr. Wadsworth's own recommendations:

"The amount of sleep needed by any one person depends upon the amount of energy she uses during the day. Some people use much more energy in the performance of their daily tasks than others do in the performance of the same work.

• • • • • • •

"Each woman is her own best judge of the amount of sleep she needs. She should be willing and ready to get up at her appointed hour in the morning. If early rising is difficult, there is an easy remedy for it: Go to bed earlier!.

• • • • • • •

"Beauty, or rather a good, wholesome appearance, is as much dependent on sleep as it is on good food and proper habits. Tissues which are in need af repair age quickly and lose their beauty. The woman who is not completely rested cannot be charming."

• • • • • • •

With most of this we all will agree, but it is not so easy to understand Dr. Wadsworth's contention that blondes need not be so fastidious as brunettes.

• • • • • • •

There's no doubt her general ideas will help us toward the much sought charm.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:—

I noticed one of your recent correspondents, asked you to give us some pep in your whatnots. You certainly put some into the one about the farmer's wife, and I hasten to assure you, dear lady, that we are not the abject slaves you depict us. I am city born and raised but I have lived among farmers for years, and have yet to meet happier women than those with whom I associate. True, we work hard and do many of the extra things because we want the joy and pride of accomplishment, just as many an ambitious city woman is holding down two jobs six days a week—was there ever a time when there were more married women in employment outside the home than to-day? But like ourselves, they don't really have to, they do it to acquire something the worth of which is variable, according to the one seeking it. I think the crux of the situation is our mental attitude toward our work. It is human nature to dislike the thing we feel that some one is imposing upon us to do, but don't you ever believe, Marion, that every time you see a woman on a horse-rake, that her husband is a modern Simon Le Gree and she is compelled to rake hay to make ends meet, for if you take a spin out the highway this summer, you are very likely to see me with a good team of horses raking hay and if your engine is running smoothly you may even hear me singing, for I generally entertain myself that way. I like the ends to lap, Marion. Your experience on the farm, was such a hard one, that we are wondering in what capacity you were there. Nineteen cows! Some snap to you, Marion. I believe if you had been around here a quarter of a century ago, I might have been uneasy about "the Laird." I have asked several of my friends for their record, one of them milked thirteen cows once. I have milked eleven, but you have us badly beaten.

I spent six weeks in the west a few years ago, and I thought the spirit of the people was wonderful. A promising crop was simply sizzling up, under the burning sun, and the people came in hundreds to a little village for sport's day. There were seven ladies' baseball teams competing during the day, besides many more teams of men and I looked on with amazement and a bit of sheme too. Marion, for I knew we, in Ontario, could never have done it, under the circumstances. That is the spirit of the pioneer, the spirit that our country needed in the early days and the spirit she needs today, if Canada is ever to be what she might be.

Industry, courage and honesty, are worthy of all encouragement, in any class or race and people who have these, neither need nor desire pity nor patronage. If the farmer's wives of the past had not possessed these traits there would not not be the beautiful homesteads surrounding Peterborough, and if the present generation does not foster them there will not be the goodly heritage for the coming generations of farmers to enjoy, for strangers and aliens will occupy the farms, where our forefathers toiled and our farm boys will be gone to the city where their wives will not be called upon to endure the "hardest, toughest, most unbearable job in the world." Pretty strong language, Marion, but I'm glad the girls don't believe it, dear lady, they are discovering the true worth of the farmer and the farm, every day of the week. There are ever so many city girls married farmers lately, one of your own, just the day of your whatnot, and I don't believe her arrangements would have been disturbed one bit if the what not had appeared sooner. Don't be afraid girls, there are more things to consider in marriage than work. I speak from experience. I have lived twenty-five years in the city and twenty-five years on a farm and I say, everybody to their fancy, but give me the farm, cows, hay rake and all.

Yours sincerely

Neighborly Soul.

P.S.—I am speaking for the farmers' wives who milk, but I'll let those who don't (and there are many of them) speak for themselves.—N.S."

Thank you, "Neighborly Soul" for your interesting letter telling what is to be seen on the other side of the shield. I have been very interested in the subjects you discuss and am pleased to learn your viewpoint.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole, M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

THE IMMIGRATION OF 1825.

An attack was made upon the loyalty and patriotism of the immigrants in the Colonial Advocate, of December 8th, 1926, a newspaper then published at York (Toronto) by the late William Lyon Mackenzie, which furnished the occasion not only for a triumphant vindication of their character in this respect, but also for the most ample assurances of their general good character and amiable deportment. The following was the paragraph which appeared in the Advocate:

"Mr. Robinson's Irish Settlers.—We have information which may be depended upon, stating that these people have an ardent desire to go to the United States, and that they frequently desert. No less than thirty of them decamped lately in one night.

"To how much more useful a purpose might £30,000 have been expended than in recruiting in Ireland for the United States soldiers by Canadian Councillors!"

Prompt and satisfactory denials of the truth of this slander were at once published, and are still to be found in the printed documents relating to this emigration. Two of these were immediately forwarded to the Weekly Register, a London Journal, for insertion, the first by Thomas T. Orton, Esq., of the "Land Register Office," Port Hope, and the second by James Fitzgibbon, Esq., of York. In the communication of the latter the following paragraph occurs:

"When it is considered that some of these settlers are mechanics, and all of them utter strangers to the forests of America, that the men and women could find employment and good wages everywhere between the settlement and New York City, it is only to be wondered at, that many of them have not spread themselves over these Provinces and the neighboring States. This, however, they have not done, nor have I learned (during a recent visit to them) that they have done any other act since their arrival amongst us, for which I or any other countryman of their's need blush."

Letter from Hon. Thomas A. Stewart, M.L.C., of Douro:

The following is a copy of a published letter to the Rev. James Crowley, a Roman Catholic clergyman, from the Hon. Thomas Alexander Stewart, who is described as "a very respectable gentleman, and a magistrate, residing in the midst of the Irish immigrants."

Douro, January 20, 1826.

To The Rev. Mr. Crowley.

Dear Sir,—I beg to transmit the following statement. Some days ago I perused a paragraph in the Colonial Advocate relating to Mr. Robinson's Immigrants, stating that thirty had left this in one night and gone to the United States, and that the rest were inclined to go also. This I conceive to be entirely false and without foundation. I am here living in the very midst of them; from twenty to thirty pass my door almost every day. I visit the camp every week, and at all times I take an opportunity of conversing with them on their affairs. I have always found them satisfied and happy. Some of them have told me with tears in their eyes that they never knew what happiness was until now. In general they are making great exertions in clearing land, and the exertions have astonished many of the old settlers. I conceive that this is in general owing to the great care Mr. Robinson has shown in regard to their complaints, and studying their wants. Not one complaint has there been against them by any of the old settlers, and it is general opinion that where so large a body of people are brought together none could conduct themselves better. When we heard of their coming among us we did not like the idea, and immediately began to think it necessary to put bolts and bars on our doors and windows; all these fears have vanished. These fears I must acknowledge were in consequence of stories that were circulated before their arrival in this part, which have all turned out to be equally false with those of the Colonial Advocate. Mr. Robinson has also been particularly fortunate in his choice in the Medical Department, as the care, humanity and great attention shewn by Dr. Reade could not be exceeded. I could say much more but the fact will speak for itself."

(Signed)
THOMAS ALEX. STEWART.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

—Old Photo by R. M. Roy.

Do you remember this parade? There are banners, and men with white shirts and straw hats. The picture shows The Examiner block, between Hunter and Brock streets. The stores are, from Hunter street north: A. Mercer & Co., merchant tailor; unknown, evidently a drygoods store; J. H. Ames, Adam Hall, J. D. Tully, unknown, J. J. Sheehy, J. R. Stratton, The Examiner, Wrighton, Violin School, and A. Clegg, furniture store.

Now, here's a new game for the old-timers. If you remember this parade, write and tell about it—or if you recall facts about any of the pictures published in this section, or the names of those pictured, write and tell us.

Every committee should now be running full speed. Have you gained momentum yet?

* * *

M. J. Clancy, secretary of Peterborough Council Knights of Columbus, advises that the council will have an arch erected on Simcoe street, opposite the club building, as a contribution to the decorative displays made in the city, thus agreeing to the suggestion of the executive committee that local societies and lodges should contribute.

* * *

What's wrong with the idea of having strolling minstrels? The idea is, or should be, to give the visitors as enjoyable a time as possible—and and certainly having strolling minstrels, to start impromptu dancing at occasional street corners, would be successful.

Coming Home

(By F. Wand)

The boys and girls are coming,
And hundreds will be here,
For Peterborough Old Home Week
They'll come from far and near.

From north, south, east and west,
The friends of other days,
By every means of transport,
In forty different ways.

Send all our friends' addresses
Up to the daily press,
And you will be rewarded
With handshake and caress.

For who shall dare to chide us,
Or check the falling tear,
If some dear face is missing,
Some one we loved so dear.

Ah, we shall tell with heartache
Of friends they used to love,
That went to live with Jesus
In mansions up above.

Now let's be up and doing
To make this old town ring;
Plant your lawns and flower beds
Quite early in the spring.

Bring out the bands and banners,
Come on and get in line,
To bid them joyous welcome
For days of Auld Lang Syne.

The coming of J. C. Miller, of Orillia, will give Old Home Week plans a big boost. But in addition, his address, brimful of real humor, will provide a large number of people with an enjoyable evening.

* * *

Every committee should report all its doings to the central executive. Only in that way can activities be co-ordinated.

From Saskatchewan.

"Greatest Pleasure."

"My two daughters, Mrs. Garrett Nagle, Hollywood, and Helen of Toronto, and my son, Alex., of Toronto, and myself will attend with the greatest of pleasure," says Mrs. H. R. Morrison, 346 St. Clair Avenue West, Apartment 3, Toronto.

From Rochester.

Daniel Mahoney, 226 Tremont Street, Rochester, N.Y., is only visiting there, and will be back for the big doings in July. His home is at 995 Lansdowne Street.

Back Some Day.

"The old home town stands a good chance of having us all back some day," says Edward Sullivan, 226 Tremont Street, Rochester, N.Y., who left here two and a half years ago. His wife was formerly Mary Mahoney, and D. Hennessey, 24 Cricket Place, is a relative.

A Good Lead.

The Examiner's lead in bringing back all its old editorial employees might well be followed by other city concerns. The old boys would get a real kick out of the event.

Remembers Beauty.

"I have never seen any place in my travels that equalled old Peterborough for natural and artificial beauty," says D. Wesley Elliott, Hughton, Sask., who left here in 1908. His wife was formerly Mary Amy Stuart. His home here was at 93 Aylmer Street, and relatives still live there.

Left Here in 1904.

W. F. Sedgwick, Box 81, Frobisher, Sask., left Peterborough in 1904, and is now engaged in farming. His wife was formerly Annie M. Downer.

THE ROAD BACK

"The Road Back," presented last evening in Murray Street Sunday School auditorum under the auspices of the B.Y.P.U., was received by a capacity house. About two hundred and fifty persons enjoyed the three-act play, which was well given, all of the characters having a free and easy poise.

The Fowler family, consisting of father, who is out of work, mother who does nothing but eat candy and reads love stories; Jenny, the eldest daughter who works in the bank and who is trying hard to keep the family on the level; Milly, a manicurist, is a distinct contrast to Jenny—very flippant and quite well pleased with herself; and George, the only son of the family, leads an easy-going life, frequently helping himself out of his sisters' pocketbooks. He, too, works in the bank with Jenny.

The entire presentation of the play takes place in the Fowler living room which is, at its best, none too tidy. Jenny is tired of living in the neighborhood and makes the first payment on a home across the river in hopes that she might get the family away from this place, but upon presenting the facts to her mother is told that she has no notion of going across the river; Milly, too, on being asked if she will go, definitely says no, that little old Blainville is good enough for her. The only one who is willing to side with Jenny is father, who would be delighted to get away from this neighborhood. In the meantime George, who listlessly enters, discovers to his delight his sisters' purses on the table and promptly empties them of their contents. As soon as Milly discovers the loss, she knows to whom to turn and promptly demands the money back.

Hanging Around Long Enough.

Milly tells Jenny that she thinks Arthur McLeod has been hanging around long enough without popping the question and tells her to get somebody else on the string and give him something to think about — which Jenny promptly does and the next time Arthur comes she tells him she is going to be married, but will not tell him the man's name. He is, of course, quite overtaken by this outburst.

Matters come to a head, however, when Mr. Harrison from the bank arrives and tells the family that George has stolen $500 from the bank and promptly lands him in jail. Mrs. Blinders, who rents a couple of rooms from the family, always comes in in time to hear something she shouldn't hear and is promptly sent home by Milly; she brings in a letter from Uncle Ben, who says he is coming to visit them. Upon his arrival, the family think they have another member to provide for, but find out quite differently when George arrives home—out on $2,000 bail—but doesn't know who put it up.

Finally the report circulates around the bank that George had given Jenny the money to make the payment on the house, so she quits. Mr. Harrison calls and takes her off to jail where she confesses she took it and the family all believe it with the exception of father and it dawns on him that she is only saying she took it to save George. Arthur takes things in hand and drags the truth from George, whereupon Jenny is dismissed.

Mrs. Chester Blake's mother, is desirous of having him marry in his own set and calls to tell Milly so and is promptly told that she is not running after Blake but that she will marry him. However, when Mrs. Chester discovers that Uncle Ben is rich and has settled $500,000 on Milly she changes her mind on the matter.

In the meantime father has taken things in hand, too, and makes mother get busy and do some work in the way of cleaning the house. Arthur comes back to take Jenny—he didn't care about that other fellow but when he discovers that Uncle Ben is rich he guesses it is all over with him. He is told, quite to his surprise that there never was another fellow, so all ends happily.

The play was under the direction of Walter Fitzgerald, to whom much credit is due for the presentation. During intermission music was supplied.

The cast of characters is as follows: Mrs. Fowler, Dorotny Irons; Pa Fowler, John Pritchard; Jenny, Isabel Scott; Milly, Mildred Irons; George, James Mann; Mrs. Blinders, Marion Armstrong; Mrs. Chester, Genevieve Foster; Mr. Harrison, Harry Lord; Arthur McLeod, Jack Hayward; Blake Chester, Sid Drury; Uncle Ben, Harry Lord.

Two-in-one Egg Is Laid By Keene Hen

KEENE, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Perhaps the hen that laid the joke, double-yolked, egg is having the merry cackle on A. E. Fletcher, her owner. Mr. Fletcher was delighted when he found in the nest a large, seemingly double-yolked egg. However, when the egg was boiled and opened at the breakfast table, it was found to be a fake. Inside the shell was the shell of an egg smaller than an ordinary egg. It is the first two-in-one egg yet found locally.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTER HOLDS MEETING

57th Chapter Appoints Committee to Consider Float in Old Home Week Parade.

The April meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E., was held in the Armouries Thursday afternoon, with a fair attendance considering the rainy weather. The Regent, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, presided and after the opening ode the secretary, Mrs. McLeod, and the treasurer, Miss Alice Price, gave splendid reports, which were received and adopted.

Mrs. McLeod read several letters: One from Mrs. Griffin, Provincial Regent of I.O.D.E., thanking the 57th Chapter for asking her to be their delegate at the national convention in Victoria. A letter was read regarding a float for Old Home Week, and suggesting one similar to that put on when we celebrated the diomond jubilee of Confederation. A committee, composed of Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. R. Cottrell, was appointed to consult with the executive of the Otonabee chapter I.O.D.E.

A resolution was passed, that the May meeting be held on Thursday afternoon, May 30, as the regular meeting day would come on May 23, and that is the day the chapter annually decorates the veterans' graves.

Mrs. B. T. Poole was appointed to look after the work of decoration with power to choose her assistants.

One new member joined the chapter and three were approved of to join up at the next meeting, when it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Mrs. Jamieson gave a splendid report of the Provincial Convention, held in Hamilton recently. Particularly good were the ideas regarding the educational work being done by other chapters.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mrs. Jamieson.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

HEAVY MOVEMENT OF GRAIN EXPECTED

Great Lake Grain Movement is Two Weeks in Advance of Last Year.

Train loads of grain, bound for the Atlantic seaboard and then for export to Great Britain and Europe will go through this city in a steady procession beginning next week. The movement of grain is two weeks in advance of previous years, the Great Lakes grain carrying fleet has commenced already to unload its great hulls full of the golden product of the Canadian West at the Georgian Bay ports. The grain haul this year is expected to be large on both lines.

Grain empties are speeding over both local lines to the ports at Midland and Port McNichol. The order to rush all grain empties to the Upper Lakes has not yet come through to the C.N.R. as yet, but it is expected daily.

The grain that will move through Peterborough will be mostly for export and will come from the elevators at Midland and Port McNichol. However, a boat is expected to dock at Midland within the next 48 hours with a big load of grain for the Quaker Oats plant here. This grain will be carried over the C.P.R.

Both lines report a prosperous winter's business, and the grain is expected to be exceptionally brisk for the next month.

Last year the grain business commenced on May 10. This year it will be well started by May 1.

ALL IS READY FOR CANVASS

Organization Is Completed For Canvass oT Allow Choir To Enter Contest.

CITIZENS ENTHUSIASTIC.

The committee to take charge of the canvas to raise $1,800.00 to supplement the amount already subscribed by the members of the choir so that it may take part in the contest under the auspices of the Associated Glee Clubs of America in Madison Square Gardens on May 24 next, find a very large number of our citizens who are anxious that the choir make the trip. Only four Canadian cities are to be represented and seventy-six American cities.

The committee trusts, that those called on and all others who desire to do so will contribute as liberally as possible as it is the biggest competitive event with which any Peterborough musical organization has been connected.

How I Was Freed of Hemorrhoids

after 25 years of suffering

"I had protruding piles or hemorrhoids for over twenty-five years," writes Dr. H. S. Hussell, Graduate Veterinary Surgeon, of Upper Chaslo, N.B. "I bought medicines from all parts of the world and went under the knife twice—at Portland, Maine, and Sherbrooke, Que. I had spent hundreds of dollars and was about to go to the hospital at Campbellton, N.B., for another operation, but was in such a weakened condition that the doctor advised me to wait a few days.

"My wife happened to pick up Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about someone being freed of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment. I got a box, was so much better next day that I ordered three more boxes. In one week I was able to resume my practice. It is now four years since I have felt any effect of the piles, so I feel justified in believing the relief permanent."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard, time-proven treatment for piles or hemorrhoids. Dr. Hussell's experience is similar to that of many thousands of people who have been positively freed of piles by this soothing, healing, antiseptic ointment. All dealers or The Dr. A. W. FOREST PROTECTION OPENS

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.). — The Ontario Government Flying service undertook its first fire detection flight this year on April 24 with Pilot George Phillips spending three hours and ten minutes in the air, over the timbered territory along the north shore between the Sault Ste Marie flying base and Lauzon Lake.

Captain W. Roy Maxwell, director of the service, was notified yesterday that Ramsey Lake is open, and he ordered two machines to proceed there from Sudbury, Ont.

FIRE DESTROYS PARKHILL BLOCK

Estimated Loss is Over $35,000 in Huron County Town.

GAINED BIG HEADWAY

PARKHILL, Ont., April 27.—(C.P.)—Fire of an unknown origin, which is thought to have broken out in the undertaking establishment of Marshall Box, destroyed the entire McPhee block here Thursday night, with an estimated loss of over $35,000. The flames when first discovered had gained such headway that Mayor Turnbull of Parkhill put in a call for assistance to Ailsa-Craig Department which responded with a pumper and chemical equipment. The flames were not brought under control until a late hour yesterday morning and at noon firemen were still pouring water into the ruins.

ZION CONGREGATION MAKE PRESENTATION

Justin Robinson, of Otonabee, Is Presented With Club Bag On Eve of His Departure.

On Wednesday evening, April 24th, a number of friends gathered at Zion United Church, Otonabee, to bid farewell to Justin Robinson, who for some years has been an active worker and member of the church and Sunday school. Rev. Mr. McNeillie, pastor of the church, acting as chairman, spoke briefly, mentioning his appreciation of Mr. Robinson's work in church and Sunday school, and expressed his regret in losing him; after which Joseph Burns read a very suitable address, and a presentation of a handsome club bag from the church was made by Emos Kent and a beautiful fountain pen to Master Gordon Robinson from Mr. Robinson's class of boys. Although taken by complete surprise, Mr. Robinson in a few very suitable words expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation for the beautiful and useful gifts.

A short program of sols, violin selections, and accordion selections by Clarence Swan and Master Harold Nurse. The singing was very much enjoyed by everyone present, after which refreshments were served.

In ghastly agony with RHEUMATISM

Mrs. T. K. Sheehan of Windsor, Ont., made a marvelously quick recovery after taking T-R-C's. Here are the actual facts.

Inflammatory Rheumatism over night. Helpless. Couldn't even move her eyes. Spent about $1,000. Had her tonsils removed. Had serum treatments . . . and remained in most agonizing pain . . . "Then (she writes) a friend told us of T-R-C's. My husband got a box. Three boxes made me completely well. The neighbors could scarcely believe their eyes."

What better proof could you want? Don't continue suffering with Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, Neuralgia. T-R-C's will help your body get rid of troublesome poisons—quickly. No harmful drugs. 50c and $1 at your druggist's.

All next week tomatoes will lead the procession. Tomatoes are a great Spring tonic. Include them in your order. They should be served once daily.

MAY PREVENT MILITIA CUT

Anti-German Allies Expected To Oppose Reduction of Army and Navy.

DRASTIC CHANGES.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 27.—(C.P.)—It was said here yesterday that the wish of former anti-German allies might work to prevent the new Danish parliament carrying out the drastic military budget reductions which the victorious Socialistic Laborites promised in the campaign preceding Wednesday's elections.

The understanding was that these nations would not favor any attempt to abolish or reduce materially the Danish army and navy owing to Denmarks geographical position in relation to the approaches to the Baltic. Disarmed Denmark, it was contended, would be powerless to prevent any Baytic State from sealing these approaches in the event of war.

It was expected the Laborites with the help of the Radicals would make an effort to bring about the promised reduction in military expenses which was the main issue in the electoral campaign. Unless they gained some aid from the Liberals, who will keep a majority in the Landsting (Upper House of the Riksdag) their efforts seemed doomed to a check.

King Christian at a conference of party leaders on Saturday will invite Theodore Stauning, Labor Prime Minister in 1924-26, and a cigar sorter by trade, to form a cabinet to conform with the results of the parliamentary elections.

MISS A. M. WARNE TO GIVE LECTURE

Illustrated Address Will Be Given in Aid of Grenfell Mission.

On Tuesday evening, April 30, at 8 oclock there will be an illustrated lecture in All Saints' Parish Hall in aid of the Grenfell Mission. Miss A. M. Warne, who for many years has been the corresponding secretary at the headquarters of the Grenfell Labrador Medical Mission, which is at Ottawa, is coming to the city to deliver this lecture. Miss Warne has been at Labrador on many occasions, and is well qualified to speak on the work which is being carried on among the fishermen and natives of that bleak country.

Each denomination will be represented at this lecture by the different ministers who will take some part in the program. Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, will preside. Rev. W. S. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church, will offer prayer, and a minister of the United Church will read from the Bible.

While the offering is being taken there will be music arranged by G. F. Liddle, organist of George Street United Church. There will also be a solo sung by Miss Irene Howarth, this being the first time this solo will have been sung in public. It is to be a religious song sung to the beautiful tune of "Danny Boy." It is hoped that a large number will turn out to enjoy this occasion.

MINISTER POSTPONES REVENUE CHANGE

Tax On Sales of Stock Shares To Not Come Into Effect Until July 1.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27 (C.P.).—One of the most important business items of yesterday in the Commons was the announcement of Hon. James A. Robb, Finance Minister, of the postponement from May 1 to July 1 of the date when it is proposed that the change in part 7 of the special War Revenue Act concerning the sale or transfer of shares of stock shall come into effect. It was apparent, he said, that the necessary amending bill may not be ready to receive royal assent before May 1. The abolition of the special War Revenue Act Tax on cables, telegrams, railway and other tickets becomes effective May 1.

LINDSAY SECTION MINISTERS CONFER

Two-Day Spiritual Conference Held at Woodville, Led by Toronto Man.

DUNSFORD, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — The spiritual conference held in Woodville on Monday and Tuesday for the ministers of the Lindsay Presbytery was considered quite a success by those who were in attendance. The conference was led by Dr. Ernest Thomas, of Toronto. There were four sessions of about two and one-half hours each during which four booklets on the subject of 'Realizing God' were taken up. The delegates were billeted overnight, but took their meals together at the local boarding house.

A vote expressing appreciation of Dr. Thomas' leadership was unanimous, and several of the men spoke in glowing terms of the work Dr. Thomas is attempting to do for the ministers of the church. The following ministers were in attendance: Revs. C. D. McLellan, Beaverton; M. L. Hinton, Bobcaygeon; W. G. Rose, Brechin; H. H. Mutton, Cambray; R. R. Nicholson, Cantington; J. F. Everson, Dunsford; C. C. Washington, Fenelon Falls; C. E. Dyer, Greenbank; R. M. Patterson, Janetville; H. J. Bell, Kinmount; J. J. David, Lindsay; H. A. Mellow, Manilla; R. S. GOITRE NOT A DISEASE.

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. 801, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. White him today.—Adv.

CHALLENGE TOO!

Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening

EASE OF BUYING

FOR INSTANCE, in this city your first payment, with your present car included, may be as low as $000, and your monthly payments $000.

Your present car will probably cover the entire first payment. The H. M. C. Purchase Plan offers the lowest terms available on the balance.

. . . EASE OF OWNING

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 66 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

ESSEX challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their old cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives. Essex challenges:

IN SPEED—challenging anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN FAST GETAWAY—any car regardless of size or price. IN RELIABILITY—60 miles an hour for hour after hour.

Essex offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price.

Check these items when you buy—they represent easily above $100 additional value in Essex.

Wide Choice of Colors at No Extra Cost.
The variety is so great you have almost individual distinction

Standard Equipment Includes: 4 hydraulic shock absorbers—electric gauge for gas and oil—radiator shutters—saddle lamps—windshield wiper—glare proof rear view mirror—electro-lock—controls on steering wheel—all bright parts chromium-plated.

Is Your Community Meeting This Challenge?

More permanent highway mileage . . . wider roads! These twin traffic needs are a challenge to every community.

Concrete affords the answer. It is permanent . . . and readily adapted to all types of paving construction work.

It conserves budgets through eliminating costly upkeep. Where concrete predominates, paving funds may be devoted almost entirely to needed new mileage.

Concrete highways attract profitable tourist traffic. They cut fuel costs; reduce wear and tear on car and tires.

By all means advocate more concrete paving . . . and wider highways.

TORONTO LEAFS ARE BEATEN IN JERSEY CITY

Joe Maley Curves O'Neill's Gang Into Submission.

MONTREAL WINS.

Orioles Even Series At One All With the Buffalo Bisons.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 27. —(Canadian Press).—Joe Maley, carrying the same old grouch that he had when with Toronto a couple of years back, curved the Leafs into submission here yesterday, and evened the series for Jersey City winning the second game 3 to 1.

If the Leafs have a batting punch, it wasn't noticeable yesterday. O'Neill's lumber swingers were held to five scattered hits during the piece as they struck over the ball or topped it on the lanky right hander's fade-away.

Evens Series One All

READING, April 27.— (Canadian Press).—Montreal evened the series with Reading by taking a 4 to 3 decision here yesterday. Chet Falk, Royal lefthander, stopped the hard-hitting Reading team with seven hits.

Because three Reading players were chased from the game, fans rioted at the completion of the contest and attempted to assault Umpire Solodar. Police quelled the riot before anyone was injured.

Orioles Win

BALTIMORE, April 27.—(Canadian Press).—The Orioles evened the series at one-all with the Buffalo Bisons by winning yesterday's game, 5 to 3.

A pair of home runs by Frank Brewer and a four-base wallop by Moores were responsible for all of the Bird counters. Fisher of the Bisons also joked the ball out of the lot for one of his three hits.

Hits Newark Hard

NEWARK, April 27. —(Canadian Press). — Rochester Red Wings pounded three Newark pitchers for 15 hits yesterday to beat the Bears by 9 to 2.

Watkins, Worthington and Morrow led the Rochester attack with and Worthington each contributed and Worthingnton each contributed a home run and a triple during the barrage.

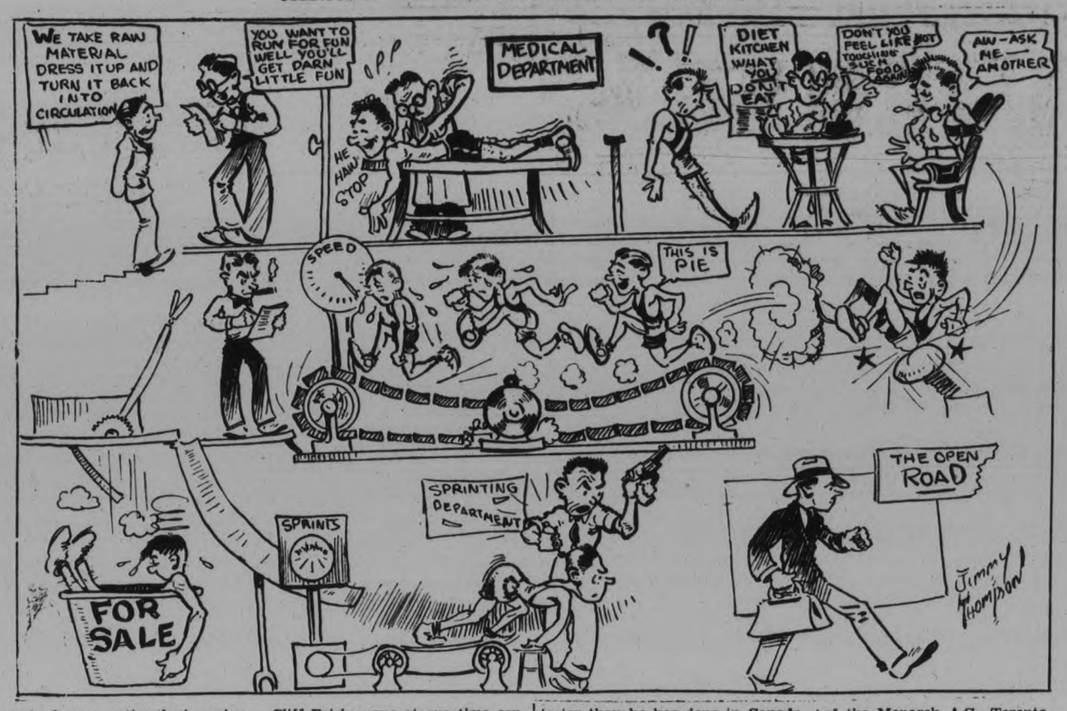
CANADA'S MARATHONERS TO THE FORE!



Canada has a national champion of almost every form of sport, but she still has to name a National Marathon Champion. On May 24th, this omission is to be rectified by a marathon race to be staged in Toronto, by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Cliff Bricker was at one time considered to be Canada's best and Canadians pinned a great deal of faith on his winning laurels at the Olympics, only to be disappointed. It was said that he failed to run up to form but a comparison of times show that he covered the course at Amsterdam far faster than he has done in Canada.

Many marthons are run in Canada, but they all come under the second-class category.

Among those likely to compete in the race are: Johnny Miles of the Hamilton Olympic Club; Webster, also of the H.O.C., and Ernie Wyer of the Monarch A.C., Toronto.

The race will provide an opportunity to pick out possible members for Canada's next Olympic team and should be strongly contested by the many long distance men in the country.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Since my last, Mac, the Central Ontario League moguls has met, and as a result the Kingston Ponies is both in and out of the loop. The Limestone lads can't play in the regular schedule, but they has been given a bye, and will meet the 2nd place team for the right to clash with the 1st placers for the league title. Under this arrangement the Petes oughta play real ball, because they know if they want to dodge a trip to Kingston they gotta hold the top berth in the league, so they's a real incentive for the boys to do their prettiest all season.

James Stevenson Park has come up for air this week, Mac, and next Sat. oughta see the Petes' talent, old and new, disport themselves over the more or less level sward. Meanwhile Mister Swanston has his athaletes working out down south as far as the King Ed. school ground. The Petes' pilot intends to have his gang in good shape for the 24th of May when they pry open the season with a game in Oshawa. From the Motor Town they ain't coming many whispers of added strength, but them babies was tough enough for the Petes last year without any help. Belleville has dug up a new pitcher, a Mister Bryon, of Napanee, a horse of decidedly dark color, of which they ain't nothing to report now, although they may be plenty later on. Mister Utronki, what has reported to have left the Quinte burg, is back there, and he and this here Napanee product is expected to carry the pitching burden and say yes, yes everytime Mister Peeney Mills barks at them, which is often and plenty. Outside the pitchers, the Belleville gang will trot out about the same line-up, so that if the heaving holds up at all the 1928 Ontario champs ain't going to be exactly soft to knock off. Nor from all accounts will this Deloro mob, which is to be managed by none other than Mister Bill Regan this season. The Smelters has lost the talkative shortstop-pitcher, Mister Jack, and Mister L. Collins, of this place, but reinforcements has arrived. This Mister Buck, of Kingston, is a real ball player—he'll admit it, by the way—and they do say that this Mister Don Young, the football star, ain't exactly a slouch behind the bat. Altogether the Central loop looks to be in for 1 of the best seasons on record.

Here at home, Mac, the East Peterborough teams is staging a bitter fight for material, and right now it looks like the Cogs has been the most expert grabbers in the pre-season scramble. Nicking Mister Ross of the Crescents and Messrs. Hillier and Masterson of the Raybestos and holding on to their own material at the same time, the team with the Indian name is about 3 jumps ahead of the field right now, but in the popularity contest they're running far behind. This grabbing of other teams' players ain't exactly the way to get in right, but mebbe the Cogs figger championships ain't won on sentiment. Meanwhile it is worthy of note that the Central Ontario League team has not added an East Peterborough League recruit to its strength this season, its new players coming from the junior series of the City League.

Well, Mac, they ain't much to get excited over this week, not even the big leagues, which seems to find it hard to shake down and play consistent ball. A little hot weather will be needed before the big leaguers hit their stride. Just now they're wobbling and the scores suggest the bush league article rather than top-grade professional stuff. The boys with the pool tickets is getting a refresher course in arithmetic keeping track of the tallies, and if this here scoring keeps up some of the lads that like to invest two-bits in speculation will have to hire a accountant to figger out their pool cards.

Nothing more to get all hot and bothered over this week, old-timer, so pull into the curb and I'll get off here.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

Executive Turns Down Application of C.N.R. Montreal Team.

PASS DEADLOCKED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27 (C.P.).—Windsor Mic-Macs were admitted to the Senior series at a meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive last night, but the application of Canadian National Railways team of Montreal was turned down.

Discussion on the forward pass showed Balmy Beach, Camp Borden and Windsor in favor, and Sarnia, Hamilton Tigers and Kitchener-Waterloo against, with University of Toronto neutral. Representatives of Varsity were not in a position to state their case, as no decision has been reached yet on this question by them.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press). — No action will be taken by the Ontario Provincial Police into the reported flag incident by Finnish residents of Timmins, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General stated to-day, until the Dominion Parliament deals with the question.

Col. Price stated a copy of a petition, sent to Ottawa, had been forwarded here, with the information that Ottawa will deal with the question.

LEAGUE STOPS CORRALING OF STAR PLAYERS

East Peterborough Executive Holds a Pre-Season Meeting.

AID BETHANY.

Teams Can Only Secure One Player From Another Team in League.

Co-operation by the teams in the league for the even distribution of players, was the important decision reached, after a long discussion, at the pre-season executive meeting of the East Peterborough League held last evening.

The motion was put through that a team cannot take more than one player from any other team in the league. This was adopted to prevent the corraling of star players from the other teams in the league by any one team, to the disadvantage of the league and the weakening of a team.

It was moved that the league would co-operate with Bethany in every way in the securing of two pitchers, a shortstop and several outfielders for that team. This too will be done only to keep up the high standard of competition that has featured this league for the past three years.

The date for the organization meeting, when the new executive will be elected, was set for a week from to-day, Saturday afternoon, in the City Council Chamber.

VILMA BANKY, NOW A FULL-PLEDGED STAR IN HER OWN RIGHT IN "THE AWAKENING" WHICH COMES TO THE CAPITOL MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

"The Awakening," coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday marks the first appearance of Vilma Banky, Samuel Goldwyn's "Hungarian Rhapsody" as a star in her own right. In this story of war and romance in Alsace, Miss Banky, previously famous as the co-starring partner of Ronald Colman, reaches the heights of screen recognition.

"Two Lovers," "The Night of Love," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Magic Flame" and "The Dark Angel" with Ronald Colman under Samuel Goldwyn's guiding hand, as well as "The Eagle" and "The Son of the Sheik," with Rudolph Valentino, have previously established Vilma Banky as one of the most popular picture actresses on the American screen.

Victor Fleming, one of the most promising of Hollywood's young directors, has made of "The Awakening" the high spot of his career as a moving picture director. In the joyous abandon of the village festivals, the quiet beauty of peasant life in the Old World and in the horror and tragedy of sudden war, the story of "The Awakening" has given him ample opportunity for displaying his technical ability. "The Awakening" is being released by United Artists which, in addition to Samuel Goldwyn's productions, also distributes the films of such screen celebrities as Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, D. W. Griffith, Norma Talmadge and John Barrymore.

Irving Berlin's newest ballad called "Marie" in honor of Miss Banky's role in "The Awakening," appears prominently in the musical accompaniment.

Frances Marion, one of the most famous photodramatists, wrote the story of "The Awakening" especially for Vilma Banky's first independent starring vehicle. It portrays Miss Banky, whose previous films have shown her in a sucession of romances of the past, in the role of a simple Alsatian peasant girl meeting her first love in the days just preceding and immediately after the outbreak of the World War.

The conflict of emotions between this lovely peasant and the dashing German officer, who, having been attracted to her as a passing fancy, only to discover that he is deeply in love with her, makes "The Awakening" a tremendously moving human document. Hated by all the villagers who have always idolized her as their symbol of beautiful purity and whipped out of the village by her wealthy suitor, she flees from her shame, leaving her lover with the impression that she has committed suicide.

How the pair meet again in the midst of the horrors of war and how the very man who whipped her out of the village is the means of their salvation is skillfully developed in the story. In contrast with the terror and bloodshed of wartime, the early part of the film depicts the rural charm of the Alsatian countryside and the pastoral beauty of the village festivals, where pretty girls coquette with their rustic lovers and the handsome officers of the Uhlan regiment.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

The widely heralded $2,000,000 Universal super-production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has at last been scheduled to show here and will open at the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The gigantic production was close to two years in production and over 5,000 people were used in making it. Every financial, technical, and physical resource of the tremendous Universal organization was employed in making this one of the greatest photodramas ever brought to the screen. Harry Pollard directed the supermotion picture and an all-star cast was selected to play the featured roles. The cast includes Margarita Fischer, Arthur Edmund Carew, John Roche, Gertrude Astor, Lucien Littlefield, George Siegmann, Mona Ray, Virginia Grey, Eulalie Jensen, J. Gordon Russell, Aileen Manning, Jack Mower, Vivien Oakland, and others.

U. S. RIVALS ARE BEATEN IN SINGLES

Visitors Established a Bare Lead in the Foursome On Friday.

REGAINS RYDER CUP.

Members of English Team Were Only Trailing Is One at 18 Holes.

MOORTOWN, Eng., April 27.—(C. P.)—British professional golfers today regained the Ryder Cup by a smashing victory in the singles after their United States' rivals had established a bare lead in the foursome play yesterday.

The British moved within one point of victory when Audrey Boomer defeated Joe Turnesa, four up and three to play. The British had a point score of 5½ to 3½ for the invaders.

The cup changed hands when young Henry Cotton won from Al Watrous 4 to 3, giving the British a point score of 6½, enough even if the United States should win the eighth match which was not finished.

The British pros surprised the Americans by their effective work in the singles after faltering in the foursomes where the home team was considered in better position. In quick succession to-day Johnny Farrell and Walter Hagen fell before Charles Whitcombe and George Duncan, Leo Diegel, the Canadian open champion, scored a clean-cut win over Abe Mitchell but Compson stopped Sarazen and Turnesa lost to Boomer before the next American point was registered by Horton Smith with a victory over Fred Robson.

Worked With a Will.

Needing victories in five single matches to down their rivals from across the Atlantic, members of the British Ryder Cup golf team went about that task with a will to-day.

With eight 36 hole singles matches on the concluding day's program, the end of the first 18 holes found English team members leading in four of them, all square in three and trailing in only one.

To Leo Diegel, Canadian open and Professional Golf Association champion, went the honor of upholding American prestige, playing the veteran Abe Mitchell, Diegel displayed sensational golf to lead 5 up at the end of the first 18 holes.

He alone of the invading squad was able to go to lunch with a lead to help his appetite.

Johnny Farrell, the American open title-holder, ran into difficulties from the start and ended the first 18 down to Charles Whitcombe, of England. Whitcombe took the lead on the second hole and maintained it through the next sixteen, taking the last four holes in succession.

Walter Hagen, British open title-holder and captain of the American forces, trailed the rival team captain, George Duncan, five down at the half way mark.

Aubrey Boomer, who is playing for England despite the fact that he is a pro at a French club, held a lead of 2 up on Joe Turnesa of the American team at lunch time.

Archie Compston, ace of the British team, was one up on Gene Sarazen after a nip and tuck battle from start to finish.

Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Fred Robson of England, were all square at the half way mark, and so were Al Espinosa, of the United States and Ernest Whitcombe of England, and Al Watrous, United States and young Henry Cotton, of England.

Outside of the strong showing of the entire British team, Diegel's sensational scoring spree was the feature of the morning.

LADIES HOLD ANNUAL SALE

Blossom Time Event of All Saints Womens' Guild Is Most Successful.

MANY BOOTHS.

A "Blossom Time" sale was the name given by the members of the Women's Guild of All Saints' church, to the sale conducted by them in their parish hall during Thursday and Friday. The decorations of the booths harmonized admirably with the name, as they were carried out with branches and twigs of apple blossoms, in a very attractive and charming effect. Displayed at the different stalls and counters were quantities of dainty things, in fancy and plain sewing, in home made cooking and candy.

Mrs. P. Fuller, president of the Guild, and Mrs. J. D. Paterson formed the reception committee.

The sale of ice cream and soft drinks at a booth decorated with cones, was conducted by Mrs. G. Worboy, Mrs. R. Runnett, Mrs. W. Fisher and Mrs. J. Meeks.

Mrs. R. Henderson and Mrs. A. H.A. Robinson had the sale of fancy work, Mrs. A. Clysdale and Mrs. H. Strickland the sale of candy in dainty rose baskets, while Mrs. N. H. Sutton, Mrs. F. E. Hawken, Mrs. J. Detcher, Mrs. H. Carvolth, Mrs. J. Crowe and Mrs. R. Cottrell, sold fancy work and linens.

The Bible class of the church had a pretty booth, in charge of Mrs. W. White, Mrs. G. Hillier and Mrs. H. Spargo, and the Brownton Guild's booth was conducted by Mrs. T. Busby, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. H. Allen and Mrs. C. Hotston.

A sale of home made cooking and artificial flowers was carried on by Mrs. L. Dobbin, Mrs. P. D. Fitzgerald and Miss Gwen Dobbin, while another sale of fancy work and linens was in charge of Mrs. J. Price, Mrs. T. Sabin and Mrs. J. Dillon.

The fish pond, which took the form of an old well, with a picket fence, decorated with apple blossoms, was supervised by Mrs. A. Milne and Mrs. F. C. Roberts.

A very pretty tearoom with the same effective decorations and little bowls filled with mayflowers, was used for the service of a salad tea, and was looked after by Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholm, Mrs. W. Rogers, Mrs. G. Benor, Mrs. B. Burns and Mrs. D. J. McLeod. Tea room assistants were Miss M. Benor and Miss Betty Runnett.

Two orchestras provided splendid music during the two days, the supper orchestra having members in the leader, Mrs. E. Goodley, Cecil Gallegher and Wesley Boorman, while the orchestra which played during the evening had members in Donald Reid, Donald Green, Donald Rathbone and Harold Macfarlane.

VIEWS ON SPORT

A fast basketball game is looked for at the Y.M. when the Parkdale ladies' team and the local girls' all-star team play to-night.

R. BRADY, GO-GETTER

Rube Brady is holding a practise of his Maple Leafs Midgets this afternoon in King Edward Park. Whatever else can be said for Rube it must be admitted that he is a great organizer for kid sports and generally manages to round up a big gang. He is holding out special attractions for his ball toesers this year in the form of snappy uniforms.

COACHES FOR CITY LEAGUE

The committee appointed by the City League to awaken interest among those capable of teaching baseball to the minor teams and get them enthused to come out and coach is having real success. The older players are heartily in support of the City League and the means by which they can aid the league only needs to be pointed out to them and they are proving only too willing to do their part. From present indications, it can be expected that there will be enough coaches on hand at the next meeting on May 6 to ensure that every team will be well-looked after.

JUNIOR SITUATION BRIGHTER

The situation for junior ball looked rather glum when the teams were checked up at the meeting last Monday. That too is taking on a rosier hue now and at least three teams will be battling in the junior section. There will be Lou Lebarr's Lakeviews or Knights of Columbus team, a nine sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, and a team from the Loyal Order of Moose. Only one more team is needed to make a strong four-team group.

BUS DRIVERS VS. FIREMEN

The old feud between the Bus Drivers and Chief Gimblett's Fire Fighters is breaking out again. Teams representing these outfits battled tooth and nail, many occasions on the ice, and it looks as though the strife will be shifted to the ball diamond. The Bus Drivers have already had a workout and feeling confident of their superiority they approached the Firemen for a game. "We can beat you at hockey, softball, hardball or marbles" was the positive statement of the Fire Hall gang to their challenge. The first grim struggle will likely take place in the near future. Seats will be free, but everyone is warned to bring his own smelling salts.

CRICKET'S BIG YEAR

The outlook for cricket in the city this year seems better than ever with several fine games already booked with famous teams. The cricketers are preparing for the season and held their first practise this afternoon on the Oval. Peterborough was noted in cricket circles in the past and several matches for the sport program of Old Home Week would be more than appreciated by the old boys.

PARKDALE AT Y.M. TO-NIGHT

The girls basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. to-night in which a local All Star team will play Teddy Oke's famous Parkdale intermediate ladies' team should be a corker. The Y.W. team has had a most successful year in most of their engagements with outside teams. The game to-night will give them a real test, and supply the best basketball of the season. It will be the last game, too.

SOCCER STARTS PARADE

The soccer league made its official bow to the fans and raised the curtain on the summer's sport parade this afternoon at King Edward Park when the C.G.E. and C.P.C. elevens clashed.

This column was speaking only of the last ten years when it said recently that association football has been mostly played by Old Country players. It will be recalled by old timers that soccer used to be The Game here that every youngster in the schools learned. Every village and hamlet in the whole district for miles around had a strong soccer team playing in organized leagues. It was generally as popular if not more so than baseball is now.

It would be a great sight to see two teams of those old players kick-off for a game during Old Home Week.

DAYLIGHT SAVING?—YES

Daylight Saving may be a debatable question for some citizens, but the sporting world is solidly for it. Well, they may. It means that the twilight ball games will be able to be played without having the last couple innings spoiled by the gathering darkness. Tennis, golf, lawn bowling, soccer, swimming and every line of sport will be helped immeasurable if the extra hour of sunlight is brought in at the polls next week.

CASTERS READY FOR MAY 1

Fishermen are getting their gear overhauled for the opening of the pickerel season on May 1. Although, the Department has hedged in their non-desire to give a direct answer on the question of the pickerel season, a letter received by a member of the Fish and Game Association last week left only one conclusion. It was that fishing for pickerel from the bank will commence on May 1 and beginning with the opening of the bass and lunge season, fishing from a boat for pickerel is lawful. April is really the only closed month for the taking of pickerel. All fishermen should show themselves true sportsman and aid in the great effort being put forth to restock the local waters by keeping well-within all the Game laws.

The zip whirl of the reel should be heard more often on the Otonabee this summer after the opportunity local fishermen were given to learn the proper method and joy of casting.

CORN CARNIVAL IS UNCHANGED

Gavuzzi, of England, Has Two-Hour Lead in Pyle's Bunion Derby.

THREE TIED.

ROLLA, Mo., April 27 (Canadian Press).—Charlie Pyle's plodding pilgrims to-day continued their jaunt through Missouri, bound for Waynesvillen, 23 miles distant.

Pete Gavuzzi, the bearded Italian of Southampton, England, was still protecting a two-hour lead when the corn carnival moved out of Rolla. Johnny Salo, the flying cop of Passaic, N.J., striving mightily to overcome the lead, tied with Gavuzzi and Ed. Gardner, Seattle, Wash., negro, for third in yesterday's lap.

The leaders as they left Rolla today:

lem, there would soon be a raising of the level of political intelligence."

Miss McDonald advocated the reading of newspapers to gain knowledge of political problems, also the use of the vote, which should be regarded as a responsibility, and concluded her very well-worded and charmingly delivered address by quoting a Bible text addressed to a queen many hundreds of years ago: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Miss Heenan's Address

The maiden speech of Miss Margaret Heenan of Ottawa, the youthful daughter of the Hon. Peter Heenan, was made to the members of the Mackenzie King Young Ladies' Club last evening, and the speaker acquitted herself admirably, giving her brief address in delightful style. She spoke on the subject of "Citizenship for the Young."

"There have been many criticisms about young people taking interest in public affairs. Therefore it remains with us to prove to them that it is only right, and really a step in the right direction."

Miss Heenan went on to speak of the usefulness of political clubs and of the obstacle to good government made by an uninformed electorate, which can be swayed by demagogues.

"What a grand example the Liberals of Canada can give to the rest of the world by having a Liberal Association of Youth comprising French, English, Scotch, Irish, Germans and the youth of all nationalities within our boundaries.

"Liberalism implies the self-training of the individual and the coming to a conclusion after due deliberation. To be forced to decide by some other power, whether small or great, is not Liberalism. The thought then arises, 'How are we to organize for Liberalism?' The first step is to come together and equip ourselves.

"The appeal is for recruit and the appeal is to the young and to all others who are unafraid. Youth is ever fortified by high hopes and courage. It takes naturally to rivalry, emulation and disputation. Youth cannot be on a more wholesome or useful march than to an understanding of the basic priciples and ideals of government, not mindful and forgetful of which nations perish."

Canada and the Empire

Miss Heenan quoted Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking at Bowmanville in October of 1899 on the position of Canada in the Empire, when he said:

"I claim this for the Liberal Government, that we have endeavored to carry on the policy of this country so as to make Canada a nation—a nation within the British Empire—a nation in the eyes of the world. For my part I want to see her lands occupied, her mines developed, her forests cleared, her fisheries exploited, her cities growing, her population increasing, but above all I want to see her people united."

A vote of thanks to the speakers and to the solist, Miss Geraldine Collins, was moved by Miss Minnie Green and seconded by Miss Musa Cox. Miss Collins sang two pretty numbers, "Wake Up" and its encore, "Bird Songs at Eventide," with accompaniments played by Miss Gwen Donley.

At the opening of the meeting, greetings from the Toronto Young Women's Liberal Club were voiced by the president, Mrs. A. J. P. Cameron, who with other representatives of the Toronto organization, came down with Miss McDonald for the occasion.

Members of the Men's Liberal Club who were present included the president, Dr. J. J. Craig, also J. Wearing, W. Y. Scollard and P. R. J. MacPherson. The appreciation of the men was voiced by J. Wearing in a few appropriate words.

The president, Miss Alberta Hunter, read several letters of regret received from the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, also the Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works; the Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, and the Hon. W. D. Euler.

The letter of the Prime Minister, which was addressed to Mrs. G. N. Gordon, follows:

"Dear Mrs. Gordon:

Would you kindly convey to the officers and members of the Mackenzie King Young Ladies' Club my warm appreciation of their kindness in extending to me an invitation to be present at their At Home to be held in the Downyflake Rooms, Peterborough, on Friday eveping, April 26th.

"I wish it were possible for me to be present on that occasion to have the opportunity of listening to the lectures by Miss Florence McDonald and Miss Margaret Heenan and of seeing something of Ferdie Mowry and his Collegians, and also of participating in the dance which I see is to commence at 9.30.

"Unfortunately, my parliamentary duties will require my presence here. I should, however, like the members of the club to know how much I appreciate their thought of me personally in extending the invitation, and the honor they have done me in giving my name to their club, and also the splendid work which they are doing in making Liberal principles and policies known to those who, more and more, will have to do with the creating of opinion on public questions in our Dominion.

"May I send my best wishes for the success of the club and also for the At Home to be held on Friday next.

"Believe me, With kindest remembrances, Yours sincerely, W. L. MacKenzie King."

"FOUR SONS"

SCHOOL LEAGUE STARTS WEDNESDAY

Four Teams Will Compete For Softball Honors of City.

The two opening games in the Public School girls' softball league, are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, May 1. The league will consist of four teams this season, namely: King Edward: Central, Prince of Wales and Queen Mary

The home team will secure the umpire, who must be acceptable to the visiting teams. Other rules will be the same as in previous years.

The competition among the girls' teams was keen last year and it is likely that all the games will be as closely contested again this season. The women teachers are coaching and sponsoring the teams.

The schedule is as follows:

May 1: Queen Mary at Prince of Wales; Central at King Edward.

May 8: Prince of Wales at Central; King Edward at Queen Mary.

May 15: Queen Mary at Central; Prince of Wales at King Edward.

May 22: Central at Queen Mary; King Edward at Prince of Wales.

June 5: Prince of Wales at Queen Mary; King Edward at Central.

What's the Answer?

When our direct by mail business is steadily growing year after year;
When men send to us for their shoes year after year;
When men write and tell us how pleased they are with their shoes;
There is only one answer:

Satisfaction

Among the many reasons for this satisfaction are:—
Over 100 years experience measuring and fitting men's feet.
Leather and materials that other makers can't afford to use.
The fact that Dack's Shoes don't have to be "broken in."
The fact that we only sell direct-to-wearer.
At no other place can you receive this unique service.

Our new illustrated Spring Style Book is now ready and will gladly be mailed free on request.

LAKEFIELD GIRLS OBSERVE BIRTHDAY

Two Young People Claiming Same Day Have Party Together —Other Activities in Village.

LAKEFIELD, April 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Phyllis Marshall entertained fourteen of her young friends at a birthday party on Wednesday afternoon at her home on King street. Miss June Burrows was also celebrating a birthday on Wednesday, and there were candles on the birthday cake for both little girls, five pink ones for June and six green ones for Phyllis. The afternoon was spent happily in games, followed by a sumptuous tea.

Card Party Held.

Eleven tables of euchre were played at the card party held on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League in the Holy Name Society rooms over Leonard's store. Prizes were won by Mrs. Louis Sabatino and Leo Spencer, while Miss Ray and Bruce Preston won the consolation prizes.

Rev. J. J. Garvey expressed appreciation of the attendance and of the splendid way things had been carried on during his absence.

It was a source of great pleasure to the people to see Father Garvey home again, very much improved in health.

The W. A. of St. John's Church met for the last time this season on Tuesday and packed a large bale, which was sent to Mackay School, Le Pas, Manitoba.

Softball Games Held.

The games on Tuesday evening in the Public School Softball League resulted as follows: Kemp 15, Kingdon 7; Tanner 11, Jewell 9.

Personals.

Mr. W. A. Nixon, of Peterborough, spent Wednesday in the village.

Mrs. Gilbert Palmer, of Toronto, spent a few days this week with her mother, Mrs. J. G. Brown.

Mrs. Robert Bullock and Miss Edith Bullock have returned from Flint, Mich., where they spent the winter with friends.

Mr. Gordon Porter, of Queen's University, Kingston, is spending a couple of weeks at his home in the village before leaving for the mission field at Dauphin, Man.

Marmora

MARMORA, April 27.—(Examiner Correspondence.) —Arthur Edmonds returned to Seaforth on Thursday after spending the week-end with his sister, Mrs. D. L. Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Doupe, who are moving to Detroit shortly, are privately disposing of their household furniture.

W. F. Bowen is home from Longford R.serve.

Of the fur coats worn by the women of England, 90 per cent. are rabbit of some kind or other.

COUNT LATOUR MAKES REPLY

Claims Rules of Olympic Would Not Permit Games To Be Held in Canada.

MUST GO TO STATES.

TORONTO, Ont., April 26.—(C.P.)—Count Baillet Latour, President of the International Olympic committee, has written James G. Merrick, Toronto, explaining fully the reason for the award of the winter games in the next Olympiad, to the United States. Count Latour speaks of the high esteem in which Canada is held in the world sport-governing body and sums up the situation by stating, "Our first duty is to obey our rules, otherwise what authority would we have to enforce them?"

Count Latour explained that the charter of the Olympic games did not allow consideration of Canada's request that the winter sports be awarded the Dominion. He pointed out that the application could only have been considered had the United States given up its right to the games, or been unable to furnish a guarantee of its ability to organize them.

"As it is most important that it should be known by the public that it is the reason and the only reason why we have not been able to consider Canada's application, I feel that it is absolutely necessary for you to take every possible step so that the largest publication should be given this statement," Count Latour concludes, "to prevent any illfeeling or misunderstanding. Canada has always been so faithful to the Olympic games and has done so much to make a success of all the games held in Europe, that no doubt can be allowed to remain in the mind of Canadian athletes.

"If it were not so, the International Olympic committee would be still more sorry—Dura Lex Sed Lex—(law is hard but it is law) our first duty is to obey our rules, otherwise what authority would we have to enforce them?"

BARKING OF DOG SAVES NORWOOD BOY

Five - Year - Old Lad Pinned Down by Logs Released When Dog Summons Aid.

NORWOOD, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Wednesday afternoon the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedore was the victim of a very peculiar accident, from which he is now suffering a great deal. Some time during the afternoon the child, accompanied by a neighbor's dog, had gone over to Finlay's factory, where his father is employed. On his way home home he was walking backward, playing with the dog, and in so doing he fell over a log which was lying very close to a pile of short logs, two of which rolled down across his body. He was unable to release himself, and was nearly exhausted when found between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening. The dog proved to be his faithful friend. He had clawed the bark off the log trying to release the child, but failing in this effort, kept up a continual bark, which finally attracted a boy to the spot. Help was secured, and the little lad was released and taken to his home, where he is now in a rather serious condition.

Be Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby is likely to wake up any night with that sharp cry which means just one thing—colic! Be ready. Keep a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house. A few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation comforts a colicky, fretful or feverish baby in a jiffy. In a few moments your anxiety is over and baby's sleeping soundly again. And you've only done what your doctor would advise. He'll tell you Fletcher's Castoria doesn't contain any harmful drug—that it's safe for the youngest infant and effective for children of all ages in cases of constipation, colic, gas, diarrhoea and those upsets when you don't know just what is the matter. Avoid imitations. Genuine Castoria bears the Fletcher signature.

GRAIN CONGESTION WORST OF SEASON

Seven Vessels Are Waiting At Port Colborne To Discharge 1,971,000 Bushels.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., April 27.—(C. P.)—Grain congestion here yesterday was the worst of the season. On board seven vessels waiting to discharge were 1,971,000 bushels of grain only 537,000 bushels of space in the government elevator.

Seven more boats were due to arrive last night and to-day with an additional 2,585,000 bushels.

Buffalo's condition yesterday was also reported as the worst in her history with the 30,000,000 bushels of elevator space there practically full and 43 vessels with 11,673,000 bushels due to arrive there by Sunday.

HUNTER SHOT.

Body of Port Perry Man Found in Swamp After Fatality.

LINDSAY, April 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—A fatal shooting occurred this week near the village of Port Perry, when James Fishley met his death. The deceased took his dog and gun and went towards the swamp close to his farm. His brother became alarmed on his failure to return home in the evening. The neighbors instituted a search, and the body of the unfortunate man was found on the edge of the swamp. There was a bullet hole in his forehead.

RUSSIAN DUKE PASSES AWAY

Grand Duke Michael Important Figure in London Society, Dead.

ATTACK OF INFLUENZA.

LONDON, April 27. (C. P.) — Grand Duke Michael of Russia, cousin of the late Czar, died here yesterday.

Grand Duke Michael suffered an attack of influenza late in the winter which left him weak, and the family had given up hope he might live some days past.

The Grand Duke was for years an important figure in London society, and on the Riviera, where he spent a part of his time. Although his fortunes were badly depleted by the Russian revolution he still was able to maintain a fine London residence and a beautiful villa at Cannes where he sometimes entertained lavishly.

In 1891 he contracted a morganatic marriage with Countess Torby at San Remo, where they lived together devotedly until her death in London in September, 1927. She was one of the most famous of London hostesses and had many social gifts.

Their two daughters married into the British nobility, one being Lady Zia Wenher, wife of Major Sir Harold Wenher of London, and the other Countess Mifford Have, whose husband is a cousin of King George. They also had a son, Count Michael Torby.

On the Continent Michael was known as "Miche-Miche," a nickname which was in odd contradistinction to his imposing and soldierly appearance.

The Grand Duke was deeply affected by his wife's death two years ago, and his health was never the same afterwards. Although his family disapproved of his marriage with her, their life together was one of romance, both steadfastly clinging to their early affection for each other.

Weak and Run Down Didn't Want to Eat Could Not Sleep

Mrs. D. Leone, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., writes:—"I was weak and run down; did not want to eat, and could not sleep. I felt tired of living and often longed for death to free me from my terrible misery as I felt I would never be strong again. I thought I would try

NOT MR. BLACK'S FAULT.

In P. Black's advertisement last night, lovely new dresses were quoted at from $1.00 to $1.98, in Georgette Canton, Flat Crepe, etc. This was an error on the part of The Examiner, which is regretted, as the prices should have read 100 dresses at $7.98.

The figures are so palpably an error that on publication of this notice it should assure patrons that there is no blame attached to the store.

WEDDING BELLS

MITCHELL—JEWELL.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday at three o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jewell, of 476 Driscoll Terrace, when their elder daughter, Vivian May, became the bride of Stuart Irwin Mitchell, of Highland Grove. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Todd. The wedding music was played by Miss Gladys Langton.

The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion with ferns and tulips.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white georgette trimmed with satin ribbon and pearls. She wore an embroidered tulle veil caught and lily of the valley, and white and lily of the valley, and white shoes and hose. Her shower bouquet was of Columbia roses.

The bridesmaid, a cousin of the bride, Miss Amy Weaver, wore a frock of pink georgette, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Jean Jewell, sister of the bride made a dainty flower girl in a blue georgette dress trimmed with lace, and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Mr. Warren Mitchell of Highland Grove.

After the ceremony a dainty supper was served to fifty guests, and later a reception was held, attended by one hundred people.

After the reception, Mr. Mitchell and his bride left for a trip to Oshawa and Highland Grove, the bride travelling in blue crepe de chine, with hat, shoes and hose to match. Her coat was of blue and she wore a fox fur neckpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, who will reside in Peterborough, were recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts. The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a handsome leather purse, to the bridesmaid a bracelet set with rhinestones, to the flower girl a signet ring, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

PARENTS' DUTY TO CHILDREN IS OUTLINED

Renewal of Mission For Women of St. Peter's Parish Closes Sunday.

BEEN WELL ATTENDED.

Rev. Father Cloran Delivers Instructive Sermon On Christian Family.

The revival of the mission for the women of St. Peter's Parish will close to-morrow afternoon, and the exercises for the men will begin in the evening. During the past week the Cathedral has been filled each evening, while the Masses in the morning at 5 o'clock and 7 o'clock have been well attended.

Last evening Rev. Father Cloran preached a most important and instructive sermon on the Christian family, outlining the duties of parents to their children and of children to their parents.

"There is nothing," said Rev. Father Cloran, "so common as to hear fathers and mothers complain of their children—their vicious habits, their scandalous conduct and their insubordination. What those parents ought to do is complain, not of their children, but of their own weakness and negligence. To how many parents could we justly say: Your children would be far different if you had taken care of them, if you had watched over them, if you had corrected them. You complain and yet they are just what you made them.

"Christian parents, I beg of you in the name of all that is holy, listen most attentively to this sermon. It is certainly one of the most important of the whole mission. God grant that you leave this church to-night more enlightened on your duties towards your children, and more resolved than ever to fulfill them. If in the past you have made serious mistakes, God has forgiven you or will forgive you during this mission. With God's grace and your own goodwill there is still time to repair the past."

"Why is it that you have such serious obligations towards you children?" said the reverend speaker. "What motives are back of these duties?"

Children Are a Trust.

"The first reason is that your children do not belong to you, they are not your property. Your children are a precious trust confided to your care by God. Realize then what important precious trusts your children are. They are souls redeemed by the price of Christ's blood. It is your duty to direct their first steps towards their heavenly home. They became children of God by baptism, and one day God will claim what belongs to Him. You accepted these trusts dear to the heart of God, and if you do not watch over them, what excuse can you offer?"

"Another motive why you should treat your children well is that they will be just what you make them. Even if by nature your children are self-willed, impetuous and unmanageable, God places at your disposal the graces necessary to help you correct these traits. But in order to get these graces, you must ask for them by fervent and constant prayer. You must merit them by leading a good Christian life."

Not Have To Make Excuses.

"If you give them a good training you will not have to make any excuse before the judgment seat of Christ, when He claims back these souls from you. You will be able to answer for every soul confided to your care. What a responsibility to have to watch over souls worth the precious blood of Christ.

"These," said Father Cloran, "are the reasons why you have obligations. Now, what are these duties or obligations? The first one is prayer. Without prayer, we can do nothing for salvation. Pray then," he said, "before the birth of your children. Pray that they may not die without baptism. Pray to God for good children. Pray that He help you to rear them well. If your children do have the misfortune of going wrong, pray, and cease not to pray that God may bring them to their senses. The day will come when He will hear your prayer and change the heart of those whose misconduct you bewail."

"Besides praying for your children, you must watch over them. This is your second duty. There is a watchfulness you are to exercise before their birth. Shall you consider as nothing an act of imprudence, an act of levity whose consequences may possibly mean the loss of a member to the Church. You should continue to watch over your child with the same care all through childhood; for it is then the dangers begin to multiply; fire, water, sharp instruments, etc., the least negligence may mean a deplorable accident."

Vigilance Over the Soul.

"The care of your children's bodies is not by any means the sum total of your responsibility. Soon after birth you will begin to notice a faint glimmer of intelligence and the first movement of the will. You will witness the development of still another life—one more important, more precious than that of the body—namely, that of the soul."

Rev. Father Cloran then warned parents to watch over their children in the home, keeping from them all evil influences—bad papers, books, or pictures. Guard them against hearing any blasphemous or impure talk. Outside the home, keep track of them too, that they may not fall in with evil companions. As they advance in age redouble your solicitude and watchfulness, and follow them until they have become thoroughly acquainted with the requirements of a Christian life.

The reverend speaker referred to the other duties of parents—instruction, good example, and correction. "Have you," he said, "instructed them in their religious duties? Have you given them a good example? Did you correct them in patience and in mildness, but in all, firmness? If you have done all this up to the present, thank God and ask Him to give you the grace to persevere to the end."

"Your children will thank you for having led them in the paths of virtue. They will bless God for the firmness you have showed in correcting them. Such consolations will sweeten the arguish of that last sickness."

Love, Honor and Obey.

Speaking briefly on the duties of children for parents, Rev. Father Cloran asked them to always love, honor and obey their parents — who were God's representatives, and he assured them that if they faithfully fulfilled these duties, God would bless and protect them. They would be a blessing to their parents, and make sure for themselves the reward of heaven for eternity.

PLANTS AND BULBS ON MORNING MARKET

Eggs Selling at 24 and 25 Cents and Few Chickens Brought 35 Cents a Pound.

Plants and bulbs were on view this morning, at the market, where several gardeners had a supply. Gladioli bulbs were 15 cents a dozen, Canterbury Bell plants were the same price, and delphinium plants were twenty-five cents each.

Raspberry canes sold at six for a quarter.

Eggs were 24 and 25 cents a dozen this morning, and butter was 43 and 45 cents a pound.

Potatoes on the open market were 90 cents and $1 a bag. Apples were 60 and 75 cents a peck, for Starks and Spies, and Russets were 35 cents for a small measure.

The usual run of good home-made cooking, also home-made socks of durable appearance, were on sale in the upper hall.

BAIT CASTERS HAVE ARMORIES TO-NIGHT

All Persons Interested in Popular Fishing Method Will Turn Out For Practice.

With bait casting rapidly growing in popularity as the peer of fishing methods, and greatly due to the recent exhibition of casting put on by members of the Toronto Anglers' Club, in the local armouries, many members of the local Fish and Game Protective Association, as well as citizens generally, have been drawn together by the common attraction, and as a result, the armories has been secured for each Saturday night, beginning this evening, for practice. Casters, good, bad and indifferent, will be present, while those more skilled than their fellows will extend the helping hand. Everyone will be welcome to-night, as it is understood that a casters' club will be organized either this spring or in the autumn.

The fact that pickerel fishing from the shore will begin on May 1, should be an added incentive.

HOWDEN.—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Katherine Howden, who passed away April 28, 1927:
The joy of God is in thy soul,
His peace upon thy forehead lies,
And 'round thy feet forever bloom
The fadeless flowers of Paradise;
What can we bring, but love, that grieves
And memories that sadly cling,
'Round the dear spot where thou didst dwell,
And sorrowing hope with broken wings
—Sadly missed by her loving daughters and son

CONFERENCE NOW DECIDES ON 'LIMITATION'

Political Leaders Throw Challenges To Their Opponents

MacDonald Sees Revolution in Industry Due To New Power Sources.

LABOR OPPOSED.

Lloyd George Demands Statement of Intention From Premier.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, April 29. — Three important pronouncements were made by political leaders over the week-end. In London, Right Hon. J. Ramsay Macdonald, Labor leader, outlined his party's election program. At Hotel Priory, Yorkshire, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, dealt with the United States naval disarmament proposals, and at Milford Haven, Wales, Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, challenged Premier Baldwin to say whether he would advise the King to call on Labor to form a government in the event he is defeated in the election and Labor has not an absolute majority.

Committee of Experts.

The feature of Mr. Macdonald's speech was the announcement of his proposal to form a committee of experts along the lines of the committee of imperial defence to deal with economic and industrial problems. All branches of industry would be represented, and the Prime Minister, the president of the Board of Trade, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Minister of Labor would form the nucleus. It would deal with problems affecting railways, affortestation,currency, markets and housing, and every thing relative to the active life of the nation. The Labor leader predicted a new revolution in industry brought about by the use of new sources of power which would require modifications in the structure of government.

Endorse U. S. Proposals.

The United States disarmament proposals made at Geneva received high praise and unqualified endorsation from Sir Austen Chamberlain. They formed, he said, a real contribution towards the cause of disarmament and world peace. He took pains to stress the similarity of American and British views and declared war between the two English-speaking nations was unthinkable.

Sees Government Defeat.

Mr. Lloyd George declared the Liberals would neither encourage nor countenance any move to put a Labor government in power. His statement was apparently inspired by taunts hurled at him by the Conservatives that the Liberals were aiding the Socialists by running candidates with little chance of success. He replied by challenging Premier Baldwin to say whether or not he would advise the King to call on Labor to form a government. Incidentally Mr. Lloyd George declared the defeat of the government was inevitable and it was practically certain Labor would not get an absolute majority.

Triangular Contests.

LONDON, April 29. (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.) — The number of candidates for the 615 seats in Parliament in the general elections on May 30, will number altogether about 1680, it is indicated. The party figures are 560 Conservatives, 560 Laborites, 530 Liberals, and 30 Communists and independents. This -com pares with 1428 in the 1924 elections.

It seems therefore that few ridings will escape a triangular contest.

All parties are gratified at the time set for the election, which was held in the summer time for the first time 34 years ago. Naturally it entails less expenditure on halls and the period assists in popularising outdoor meetings where accommodations are practically unlimited.

TWELVE BANDITS STEAL THREE LOADS GREASE CUPS

CHICAGO, Ills., April 29. — (Canadian Press). — Holding three employees as prisoners and taking full possession of the plant of the Alemite Manufacturing Company early today, a band of 12 burglars hauled away three truck loads of Alemite grease cups for automobiles valued at between $50,000 and $60,000.

NEWS IN BRIEF

TWO BIGAMY CHARGES.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 29.— (C. P.)— Two charges of bigamy came up in police court this morning. Michael Aneilio, formerly of St. Catharines, alleged to have married twice, was freed when the charge was not pressed by the authorities of St. Catharines, and W. H. Foster, similarly charged was told to return on July 1 for sentence. His first wife stated that they had parted seven years ago and she had no desire to prosecute him.

INQUEST INTO CAR CRASH.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 29 (Canadian Press). — An inquest into the death of Leo Keenan, of Detroit, who was killed yesterday in a traffic smash at Riverside, was opened today by Coroner Dr. P. J. G. Morgan and adjourned for one week. Three of the six other men who were injured when two automobiles collided are still in a critical condition in district hospitals, it was reported to-day. Frank Jaster remains unconscious. His brother William, and Pierre Gosselin, also, may not recover. Occupants of both cars were Detroiters.

MISSING SINCE TUESDAY

ST. CATHARINES, April 29. (C.P.) —George Fuller, aged 27, a canal helper, residing at Port Dalhousie, has been missing since April 23rd. Dragging operations Saturday afternoon at Port Dalhousie harbor, near where he was last seen, were without result. He is said to have a wife and three children living in Montreal.

SENTENCED FOR TWO YEARS.

MONTREAL, Que., April 29 (Canadian Press). — Colonel K. K. Clayton Kennedy, found guilty on Friday by Judge Monet of the theft of $25,000, the property of the American Hydrocarbon Company of New York, and the Maritime Education Company, Moncton, N.B., was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. The American Hydrocarbon Company was the parent body of the Canadian concern, and Kennedy was president of them both.

STABS WIFE; KILLS SELF

DETROIT, Mich., April 29 (C.P.). —After stabbing his wife twice, Fred Cishanowic, 38, a motor car plant employe, cut his throat and fled to the attic of their home here to-day, where police found his body after battering down the door.

Police found a cashier's cheque for $1,500 on a table in the house.

SCHACHT MEETS CABINET

BERLIN, April 29. —(Canadian Press)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation to the reparations conference at Paris, conferred with members of the German cabinet this afternoon and informed them of the latest phase of the Paris negotiations. No decisions were taken.

CRACKSMEN GET $360.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 29 (Canadian Press). — Police to-day are seeking the daring cracksmen who rifled the safe of the Perth Dye Works early on Sunday morning. Entering through a roof skylight, the marauders escaped with $360 through the rear door of the establishment.

Peterborough People Meet in Rochester, N.Y. To Organize 'Back Home' Campaign For July

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 29 (Special to The Examiner). — Former residents of Peterborough, Ont., now residing in Rochester, met in Powers Hotel here on Friday evening, and formed a Peterborough Club. The purpose of the club, as announced following the meeting, is to bring together former Peterborough folk and to stimulate an interest in Peterborough Old Home Week, which will take place from June 29 to July 7. Another meeting will take place here in Powers Hotel next Friday evening, and all former Peterborough people are invited to attend. Officers elected at the meeting here on Friday night were: President, Reuben J. Lynch; secretary, F. H. Dumble; treasurer, R. J. Duncan; float committee, Herbert Johnson and Thomas Lannin; emblem committee, Harry J. Mulligan and William H. Miller; press, James F. Kelso; and transportation, Captain William J. McDonald.

EXPERTS BUSY WITH TEXT OF DEBT REPORTS

Reparations Conference Opens Twelfth Week of Negotiations To-day.

PARIS AGOG.

Capital Finds Conflicting Indications in Schacht's Return To Berlin.

PARIS, April 29.— (A.P.) — The twelfth week of the reparations conference opened to-day with an examination at a meeting of the drafting sub-committee of preliminary work on the proposed texts of the report to be submitted by the experts to the various governments interested.

These texts cover principally the question of establishing an international bank to replace the reparations commission and transfer committee as well as the agent-general in the receipt and distribution of reparations payments.

The experts are waiting for any possible development regarding figures before taking up the question of annuities or commercialization of any part of the reparations debt. The question of deliveries in kind may be wound up along with the other uncontested points before Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, returns on Thursday.

Conference In Berlin.

BERLIN, April 29.—(A.P.)—It was understood here to-day Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and German reparations spokesman, would confer at some length with Cabinet officials before he returned to Paris on Wednesday night.

The conference, whrch will be purely informal, probably would include Dr. Rudolph Hikferding, Minister of Finance, Foreign Minister Stresemann, and Julius Curtius, Minister of Economic Affairs. The purpose would be to ascertain the attitude of the government regarding possibility of a raise in the German offer for reparations annuities and terms of payments.

No consultations were planned, it was understood, with industrialists, whose advice was said to have been tendered Dr. Schacht on the occasion of his last visit here.

The Paris correspondent of Der Montag declares that although Dr. Schacht's visit to Berlin ostensibly was only to attend the meeting of the Reichsbank directorate, "conversations unquestionably will be held in all interested quarters regarding the latest Paris developments."

Paris Wonders.

PARIS, April 29.—(A.P.)—The visit of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht to Berlin was the chief topic of discussion in circles close to the reparations conference to-day. Everywhere there was heard speculation as to what new work, if any, he would bring back to Paris with him next Thursday.

There were two opposing views, one of them that he had gone earlier than he had intended originally, for the meetings of the Reichsbank directorate Tuesday and Wednesday, so as to confer with his government as to some other new offer to make the creditor nation delegations in order to keep the reparations negotiations alive.

There was another view, however, based principally it seemed on despatches from Berlin, which held that he had been summoned home because his government had come to the conclusion the committee of ex-

I'M ALONE CREW CHOSE TO FLEE

Captain Randall Says He Put Decision Up To His Men.

ENTERING MOVIES.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 29 (Canadian Press).—Captain John Thomas Randall of the "I'm Alone," arrived in Halifax on Saturday night and will leave on Tuesday for his home in Liverpool, N.S.

The captain has little to say about the sinking of his schooner by the United States coastguard, except to declare that he had no personal knowledge as to whom the 'I'm Alone' was owned by at the time of the sinking, as the ship had changed hands after he sailed, and he received orders from agents in Belize. He said he had given his crew the option of submitting to the coastguard cutter or making a chase of it, and that they had decided to carry on.

Premonition Tells Man His Wife Is Victim Of Foul Play; He Finds Her Shot To Death

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Premonition told Steve Lafe, on Saturday, that his missing wife, Margaret, 24, had met with foul play, and this was verified late Sunday when her body and that of Frank Martino, 30, with bullets through their hearts, were found in a room at the St. Regis Hotel here. Police say it is a case of murder and suicide, the man killing the woman and himself.

Lafe told police Saturday night that his wife had been missing Saturday afternoon, and he feared that she had met with misadventure or foul play at the hands of Martino, according to the official report.

The man stated his wife was a clever dancer, and that Martino had endeavored to get her to join him as a dancing partner for professional engagements. The husband said that his wife had talked the proposition over with him and he had refused to consent. On Saturday afternoon his wife left her home to go shopping and failed to return. The bodies were found in a room of the hotel by a chambermaid.

LABOR WOULD FORSAKE OLD SEA DOCTRINE

Renunciation of Right of Private War and Blockade Is Advocated.

PAMPHLET ISSUED.

Belief of Party is Founded on President Wilson's Declaration.

LONDON, April 29. (C.P.)—Complete renunciation of the right of private war and private blockade, is advocated by the British Labor party, in a pamphlet made public to-day on "Freedom of the Seas,"to which Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the Labor party, had written a foreword, describing the problem as mainly an Anglo-American one.

After giving a lengthy review of the history of maritime laws and rules regarding use of the seas, both in peace and war, the pamphlet formulates the Labor party doctrine on the question, in great measure basing it upon the second of former President Wilson's fourteen points.

"What then is left of the old doctrine called freedom of the seas?" the pamphlet asks, pointing out the numerous changes which have taken place through the centuries. "Labor believes that nothing of substance is left, but that the doctrine has been reborn in a new form perfectly consistent with modern experience and modern needs. The new doctrine has been best expressed by President Wilson in the second of his fourteen points: "Freedom of navigation upon the seas outside of territorial waters, alike in peace and in war, except as the seas may be closed in whole or in part by international action for the enforcement of international covenants."

Declaring that the stand taken by both Conservative and Liberal governments in Great Britain has been directed toward the "power to keep open the paths of the oceans," the Labor party says that this power also means "power to close the paths of the oceans," and that this power must of necessity be challenged by other great countries.

NEW STORE.

Alterations Being Made At Duranceau Premises On Hunter Street.

Workmen were busily engaged tearing out the brick front of the building at 227 and 229 Hunter Street this morning. This building, the property of C. A. J. Duranceau, was used for many years as a residence, but with the alterations it will be turned into an up-to-date store. It is understood that it will be a music store.

CASTLE TELLS CANADIAN CLUB ABOUT CANAL

Says United States Has No Idea of Disputing Canada's Rights.

TO HELP BOTH.

Power Rights Would Belong To Individual Nations or Jointly.

MONTREAL, Que., April 29 (C.P.) —"There is not in the mind of anyone in the United States the slightest thought of challenging in any way the complete and absolute sovereignty of Canada over those long stretches of river which run through Canadian territory," declared William R. Cattle, United States Assistant Secretary of State, in an address before the Canadian Club of Montreal to-day.

Mr. Castle said there was no thought of demanding for the United States any fraction of the power which might be developed in the Canadian reaches of the St. Lawrence river nor more than a fair share of such power developed in the international portions. These two facts seem too obvious to mention," he said, "and I do so only because they so often crop up in press discussion of the matter just as though they were debatable. The truth is simply this. We have long believed that the interests of the producers demand that their products reach world markets over the most advantageous and cheapest routes. You know that during certain seasons American grain can be most cheaply shipped through the Port of Montreal, just as at other times Canadian grain can best pass through American ports.

"Our aim, therefore, in suggesting the development of the St. Lawrence waterway was to provide this cheaper transportation for the farmers, and the fact that it would probably double or triple the business of the ports of Montreal and Quebec made us feel that the gain would be yours as much as ours.

"The United States could, if it so desired, construct an all-American route through New York. That is what many Americans want to do, but it seem to students of the question both uneconomic and unneighborly. The deep water route via the St. Lawrence would be indisputably of great value to both our countries in the outlet it would give to the farmers of the northwest. I am not going to attempt to weigh the relative values, because such comparison is the stuff of which disputes are made. If we suspect each other's motives it is useless to straighten out the other matters—for your provinces and our states to agree for example—because if there is such suspicion we shall in time have two deep-water routes, one Canadian and one American. And to a mere outsider, one who is sure that the motives of both sides are constructive and friendly, that would seem a foolish economic waste," concluded Mr. Castle.

Mr. Castle also devoted some time to the discussion of tariffs and prohibition in the United States

Many Merchants To Close Stores On Wednesday Although By-law Cannot Be Passed Until May 6

By mutual consent, all the merchants who have signed the petition circulated by the Retail Merchants' Association dealing with Wednesday afternoon closing during the four months, May, June, July and August, will close their stores on Wednesday afternoon, May 1. This step was taken since the petition, which has received the plurality of names needed, cannot be submitted to the City Council to make it a by-law until the next regular meeting, Monday evening, May 6.

The Examiner called on the headquarters of the Retail Merchants' Association this morning and was shown the petition signed by the merchants. This petition not only deals with the Wednesday closing, but also with the six-day period of remaining open before Christmas, the closing on New Year's Eve, and the matter of remaining open on evenings before statutory and other public holidays.

A perusal of the signatures on the petition indicates that while the list is yet incomplete, the required plurality necessary has been given the following class: Drygoods, men's clothing and furnishings, departmental stores, jewelry, boots and shoes, novelties, millinery and ladies' wear, groceries, butchers, furniture, piano and music, optometrists and electrical appliances. The only groups that are not favorable to the petition are the hardware merchants and the drug stores. It is understood that the only reason that druggists are not signing the petition is that they cannot agree among themselves, although the majority favor it.

A few stores are still undecided about the Wednesday closing, but it was stated that the coming into force of the Wednesday half-holiday closing will close many well-known stores.

NOVA SCOTIAN MINE VETERAN PASSES AWAY

Charles Archibald Assumed Charge of Gowrie Colliery in 1873.

BANK PRESIDENT.

Retired From Directorate Only This Year at Age of 84.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 29. (C.P.)— Charles Archibald, aged 84, former president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and for many years prominently identified with the Cape Breton coal industry, died at his home here this morning.

Charles Archibald, a former president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, began his business career as a mining engineer and manager, and for more than twenty years was a prominent figure in the Cape Breton coal industry, before the days of coal mergers and labor unions. It was in 1873 that Mr. Archibald assumed charge of the old Gowrie colliery at Port Morien where he remained until the formation of the Dominion Coal Company, and it was his particular pride that over twenty years there was not a single strike of any nature, nor was there any unpleasantness between employees and employer.

On this retirement from the mines Mr. Archibald went to Halifax, and was appointed a director of the People's Bank, becoming a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia shortly afterward. He served successive terms as vice-president and president of this institution, retiring from the directorate in 1929, when he was in his 84th year.

Started Mining Early

Mr. Archibald's mining experience was gained when the Cape Breton mines were in the early stages of their development. They were practically all privately owned, and the management was responsible for the maintenance of the miners during the off season. Many hardships were faced in the mining communities, and these the manager of the Gowrie mine did much to ameliorate. He had married in 1874, Edith Archibald, his second cousin, youngest daughter of Sir Edward Mortimer Archibald, then Consul General in New York, and together they did a great deal to improve living conditions among the workers.

The Gowrie mine, during the Archibald management, developed from very small beginnings into one of the most important in Cape Breton, and in the opinion of inspectors was the best-cared for and best ventilated in the district.

Possessed of the hardly physique traditional in Cape Bretoners, Mr. Archibald was an active sportsman up to the last years of his life. For more than sixty years he never missed a season on the Margaree, one of the Island's finest salmon streams. Many trophies of his prowess as a big game hunter adorn the Archibald residence in Halifax.

Charles Archibald was born at North Sydney, in 1845, the son of Senator Thomas D. Archibald. He went to school there, and later attended Mount Allison University and the Institute of Technology at Boston, where he received his training as a mining engineer. He was a member of the United Church, having been a Presbyterian before the Union.

He was a keen golfer, a member of the Halifax Golf and Country Club, and of the Halifax Curling Club. For some years he served as a governor of Dalhousie University and a director of the Halifax School for the Blind.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Archibald.

WAR DECLARED ON SPEAKEASY

Charge Made in New York That Twenty Million Graft Paid Yearly.

REFORMERS BUSY.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 29 (Canadian Press).—Along with a charge that $20,000,000 graft was being paid annually for the protection of speakeasies in New York, plans were announced to-day for a campaign by a citizens' committee to exterminate the speakeasies, estimated as numbering 32,000.

The graft charge was made by Canon William S. Chase, superintendent of the International Reform Federation, in a letter to Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen. He charged that the Commissioner was granting "what amounts to a license to each of the 32,000 speakeasies in the city." He said that if the State and city authorities did not close them, President Hoover's law enforcement commission and citizens could force the issue.

Reduction of Arms Rejected as Guide For Deliberations

DIAMOND COSTS $13,000 AT RECORD CARAT PRICE

KIMBERLEY, Cape of Good Hope, April 29. — (Canadian Press)—A magnificent diamond weighing 33¼ carats, which was found at Barkly West brought £2,660 to-day, or £80 (approximately $400) per carat. This was believed to constitute a record price reckoned per carat.

Chilean Minister Leads Brilliant Discussion, Opposing Russians.

GERMANY BITER.

Declares France Has Best of Situation Since Land Forces Count.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 29 (Canadian Press). — Limitation and not reduction of armed forces existing, land, sea, and air, will be the guiding principle of the forthcoming disarmament conference under decisions taken to-day by the preparatory commission.

After a brilliant discussion led by the Chilean minister, J. Valdes-Mendeville, the preparatory commission rejected an amendment by Soviet Russia to substitute the word "reduction" for the world "limitation" and likewise threw out another amendment which Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Vice-Foreign Commissar, quickly introduced calling for "limitation and reduction."

The Chilean delegate unequivocally opposed the Soviet amendments. He emphasized that the covenant of the League of Nations subordinated reduction in armed forces to national security and the geographical and other special circumstances of the countries and approved mere limitation for states already too feebly armed.

He declared that the commission was preparing a treaty which would be applicable to all nations under all contingencies. Chile and other Latin-American countries had not preferred this system as they favored instead regional agreements, remarked M. Valdes-Mendeville. Nevertheless, Chile was ready to co-operate under the present plan.

Count Von Bernstorff, the German delegate, dwelt on the fact that the great naval Powers have announced their readiness to reduction in land forces. "It is quite impossible for Germany to accept a conference which will degenerate into mutual protection against disarmament."

M. Litvinoff then quoted the remark on the naval question by Hugh S. Gibson, the American representative, made last week that the time had come to scrap the word "limitation."

Covenant Seeks Reduction.

Lord Cushendun tried to clarify the situation by recalling, as the Chilean delegate had done, that the League covenant calls merely for reduction down to a level compatible with security. He emphasized that some of the Powers may already have reached that level and that hence it would be better not to change the word "limitation."

The British delegate explained that Great Britain had constantly reduced its army from its pre-war strength of August, 1914, by eliminating nine cavalry regiments, twenty-one infantry battalions, and sixty-one artillery batteries, and had reduced its army budget from £36,250,000 in 1925 to £32,333,333 in 1929. Therefore, he stated, it was impossible that at the international conference Great Britain may have to say it is already down to the level required in the covenant.

The commission later approved a Czecho-Slovakian proposal to exclude from limitation those National Guards which are not under control of the central government.

Germany Resentful

BERLIN, April 29 (C.P.).—Great Britain's support of the American attitude on trained reserves undeniably has increased German bitterness on the trend of the Geneva disarmament parley and official circles appeared deeply despondent over the outlook for European pacification.

As far as the European continent is concerned, it is felt in German circles, land forces are the deciding factor and the French "hegemony" will be perpetuated if trained reserved are not counted in coputations for limitation of armed forces.

It was said to-day that France has not only a large standing army but reserves enabling her at any time to mobilize 2,500,000 men. In addition, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia Rumania are cited by the Germans as France's

Two Are Dead, Seven Injured, Near London

"Cut-In" Driver Held Following Car Crash On Lambeth Highway

Head-on Collision Causes Fatalities On Lambeth Highway — Police May Change Charge From 'Driving While Intoxicated to 'Manslaughter,' Says Report.

MAN CHARGED WITH CAUSING CRASH IS IN HOSPITAL SIX OTHERS REPORTED IN CRITICAL CONDITION

LONDON, Ont., April 29 (Canadian Press). — Two persons are dead, seven are in a critical condition, and one of the latter is under arrest as the result of a motor accident on the Lambeth Highway nine miles south of here on Saturday afternoon.

The dead are: Mrs. James Taylor, St. Thomas, Ont., and James Johnstone ,Glanworth, Ont.

The injured are: Mrs. George H. Ethridge, St. Thomas; Mrs. George H. Ethridge, Senior, St. Thomas; Mrs. J. E. Hopkins, St. Thomas; Mrs. Jack Ethridge, Merritton, Ont.; Miss Patsy Ethridge, 5; Alfred Hall, London, Ont.; and John Allen, Glencoe, Ont.

The crash occurred when an automobile, driven by Hall, smashed head-on into a heavier machine driven by Mrs. George Ethridge, Junior. According to the police, Hall was driving north at a fast rate of speed and "cutting in" on the cars ahead. Just as he was abreast of the other machine he swerved sharply into its path.

In the Ethridge machine were five women and a small girl, while all occupants of Hall's car were males. Mrs. Taylor and Johnstone were both killed instantly.

Hall, who is in a serious condition, is being held at the hospital here and will be charged with driving while intoxicated. Police intimate that a charge of manslaughter may be laid later.

Struck By Train

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Barney E. STEAMER BURNS; 17 OF CREW LOST

Cargo of Gasoline Explodes and Ship Is a Total Loss.

MANILLA, April 29. (C.P.) — Seventeen members of the crew of the inter-island steamer Viking were missing to-day and apparently had perished in an explosion of the vessel's cargo of gasoline after it had caught fire in the Visayan sea, midway between the Islands of Masbate and Cebu.

The ship was a total loss. The Swedish steamer Delhi rescued 12 survivors, the British freighter City of Newcastle, and the interisland steamer Magta Alio, also came to the rescue but failed to find other members of the crew.

Charles Osler, veteran interisland skipper, was among those missing. Some of the rescued were badly burned.

POLICE CATCH THREE IN RAID

Twenty Constables Take Part in Assault On Bootleg Headquarters.

LIQUOR SEIZED.

NEWMARKET, Ont., April 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Provincial police yesterday raided the Holland Landing district and arrested three men. The men were charged with offences under the Ontario Liquor Control Act.

Twenty policemen took part in the raid. It was intimated by the police that action against bootleg operations in the district would be continued in an attempt to make a thorough clean-up of the northern sections of York county.

The men arrested were Dick Foster, Pete Hodge and a man named Todd. Foster and Hodge, police claim, have had previous convictions against them. The capture of Todd and Foster was effected after an automobile chase of a mile. A quantity of liquor was discovered by the ofifcers at Hodge's house.

TO WIPE OUT POTATO SCAB

Ontario Agricultural College Finds Bath in Formaldehyde Good.

SOAK TWO HOURS.

Farmers' of Peterborough county are becoming interested in the control of the potato scab disease. The potato scab is one of the most serious potato diseases, lessening the yield and destroying to a great degree the ready sale of the crop.

Recent experiments made at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph have brought out many new facts in the treatment of this disease. It has been found that where the potatoes are grown on land not thoroughly innoculated with the disease, excellent results have been obtained by treating the tubers with a formaldehyde solution.

A report of Professor Howitt, who conducted experiments states, "The following are the directions for treating potatoes to prevent Common Scab, Powdery Scab and Blackleg. Soak the tubers while the eyes are still dormant and before they are out, for two hours in a solution made by adding half a pint of commercial formalin to fifteen gallons of water, then spread them out on clean bags or grass to dry. Wash all crates or bags which are used in handling potatoes in the formalin solution. The same formalin solution may be used to treat successive lots of potatoes. Fifteen gallons is sufficient to treat from twenty to twenty-five bushels if ordinary precautions are taken not to waste too much of the fluid as each lot of tubers is dipped. If the potatoes are not all treated the same day, it is advisable to make up a fresh formalin solution for each day's work."

ARBOR DAY.

Day Will Be Observed On Friday By Rural Schools Throughout Province.

Friday of this week, May 3, will be Arbor Day in the rural schools throughout the province. This is a day of activity that is much enjoyed by the pupils. In the morning the pupils join in a general clean-up of the school grounds. Trees and shrubs are planted and flower gardens made and re-arranged. In the afternoon a picnic is generally held with games and other amusements.

BOGNOR, Sussex, April 29. — (C.P. Cable.)—Lord Dawson, of Penn, and Sir Stanley Hewitt spent four hours with King George at Craigwell House yesterday afternoon. No bulletin was issued, but it is understood this decision was taken in consequence of the satisactory progress His Majesty has been making since Lord Dawson's last visit. This was the first time Lord Dawson has visited the King at Bognor and conferred with his colleague. Sir Henry Hewitt, without a bulletin being issued.

G. C. McLEAN IS PROMOTED

Buyer for Canadian Packing Company is Appointed Plant Manager.

AT HULL, QUEBEC

G. Carl MceLan, 433 Downie street left for Ottawa last night, to assume the management of the Hull, Quebec, plant of Canadian Packing Company. He took over his duties this morning.

Mr. McLean has been on the staff of the local company fourteen years as buyer, and the new position, offered him only last week, is a tribute to the regard in which he is held in the big firm.

His loss will be felt not only in the Peterborough plant, but in several organizations with which he was closely identified. In sports, he was president, a few years ago, of the Softball Association of Peterborough, and in 1927 pitched the Belmonts through to the finals. He was director of Belmont Club for some years, and has been a member of Kiwanis Club since 1922, having been received into the club on November 10 of that year.

Mr. McLean will reside at the Chateau Laurier for the next month or so.

TO URGE FREE CIVIC SERVICE

Toronto Mayor Believes Better Class of Men Will Respond.

M. BREDIN NAMED.

TORONTO, April 29. — A proposal that salaries be attached to positions on all civic utility commissions, or that all be unpaid, instead of the variation in this regard now prevailing, will be laid before the board of control this week by Mayor McBride. His Worship is inclined to feel that unsalaried vacancies on the Hydro, T.T.C., harbor and other commissions will attract a desirable type of business man and citizen who otherwise would be unable to serve.

The Mayor has compiled a list of men who, he understands, would be willing to fill the present vacancies on the Hydro and transportation commissions caused by the death of P. W. Ellis, if no salary were attached., but not otherwise. The list includes C. W. Rowley, former assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Mark Bredin, bakery magnate; George Ramsden, ex-controller; R. H. Cameron, manufacturer and former controller; Joseph Harris, M.P., and E. Holt Gurney of the Gurney Foundry Company. It is understood that elements in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association look favorably upon the possible appointment of Mr Rowley.

Such men, it is thought, would be willing to give their services gladly to the commissions, but would not have it appear that they were after any monetary consideration. It is argued also that salaries would constitute an additional liaison between the commissions and city hall and leave them more open to political interference and distraction.

Those closely in touch with public utility operations believe the unsalaried, free-to-act commission is the best type of controlling body, and point for one instance to the Detroit street railway, which is controlled by three independently wealthy, unsalaried commissioners, one of them the chief engineer of the Ford plant.

Roseneath

ROSENEATH, April 29. — (Examiner Correspondence). — The young people of Centreton are to present their play, "Mary's Castle in the Air," in the Orange Hall, Roseneath, on Wednesday, May 1, in aid of the Mission Band. A large crowd is being looked for to hear this popular play and to encourage the children in their work.

To Present Play.

The ladies of the Women's Missionary Society are giving their play, entitled "The Worries of a Hostess on April Fool Day," at Centenery Church on Monday, April 29. This play was billed twice to be given in Roseneath, but postponed on account of bad roads.

An antelope is said to be able to run 60 miles per hour.

TWENTY TONS OF EXPLOSIVE USED IN BLAST AT HAVELOCK

Ontario Rock Company Secures Rock Pile of 120,000 Tons.

FIRED SATURDAY.

Event Draws Spectators From All District and Toronto.

HAVELOCK, April 29 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Sheltered by a building, a workman of the Ontario Rock Campany closed a switch on a one hundred and ten volt circuit. There was a dull rumbling sound. A dense smoke cloud rose, and when several hundred spectators on a neighboring hill looked again, the solid rock face of a ninety-six foot cliff was nothing more than a crumbled rock pile estimated to contain approximately one hundred and twenty thousand tons, enough to supply the needs of the company for at least one year.

The blast was fired at twenty minutes to twelve on Saturday morning. It was an event in the district and spectators from a wide radius were congregated on the brow of a hill about a quarter mile distant. The explosive used in the big "shoot" weighed twenty tons, and the broken rock was estimated at one hundred and twenty thousand tons. The spectacle which the explosion afforded was well worth seeing. Down by the crushing plant, a dinky engine whistled a staccato warning. In a few minutes it was repeated. Suddenly the entire face of the rock cliff which towered ninety-six feet high, seemed to crumble. There were several flashes from electric wires short circuited by the flying rock, and then a dense cloud of smoke covered the scene. Smaller fragments flew hundreds of feet in the air, and for the most part alighted in a dense, swampy growth to the west of the workings. Slowly the smoke rose and drifted westward, its murkly yellowish tint gradually paling to white as it disappeared and vanished in the distance. The hundreds of spectators swarmed down to where the broken rock still emitted smoke and gas, each eager to see the result at as close range as possible.

The Workings

In preparing for the blast, the workmen had drilled four hundred and five feet of tunnel. This was in the form of a figure H, parallel to the face of the cliff. In order to speed up the work, the tunnel was driven as small as possible and its average size was approximately four feet by five. The rock is very hard and the machine men's average footage per shift was 4.4 feet. There were two shifts daily and the work was in progress practically twenty-two hours out of every twenty-four. Then the work was completed, the explosive was placed at the proper places in piles. These piles ranged in size of from ten cases to a hundred cases each. In other words, the smallest piles contained five- hundred pounds of dynamite, while the largest contained two and one-half tons. There were fifteen piles in all.

In order to make certain that there would be no missfire, all the wiring was tested before it was allowed to be covered up. Inside the tunnel the system was wired in series and was doubly wired. Outside the lines

BODY IS FOUND AFTER 12 DAYS

Kitchener Boy Accidentally Drowned in Pond Near His Home.

HUNDREDS SEARCH.

KITCHENER, Ont., April 29. — (Canadian Press). — Twelve days after he was reported missing from his home here the body of Harold Dietrich, 12, was recovered early yesterday morning from a pond in an abandoned brick yard near his home.

The body was discovered by Oliver Keller, a neighbor. The discovery brought to a close one of the most determined searches in the history of Waterloo County. On Saturday nearly 500 school boys conducted a search of the city and the surrounding district. Drainage of the pond resulted in the discovery of the body.

The condition of the body indicates it had been in the water since the lad's disappearance was announced. According to a coroner, death was due to accidental drowning. No inquest will be held.

$10,000 FIRE DAMAGE.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 29. —(C.P.)—Damage estimated at nearly $10,000 was done by fire late yesterday afternoon at the Canadian National Railways station here. The fire had gained a strong hold when the alarm was given and the upper part of the building was a roaring mass of flames when the firemen arrived. The cause of the fire is unknown.

REBELLION OVER.

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—(C.P.)—Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles in a message to President Portes Gil late last night, said: "It is my honor to report with satisfaction that in my opinion the rebellion in Sonora has terminated as the principal traitors continue their flight northward unaccompanied."

Miniature Tornado Drapes Barn On Man

LONDON, Ont., April 29 (C.P.) —A freak miniature Tornado struck West London during a deluge of rain yesterday afternoon and unroofed a barn belonging to William Trott, showering the debris over Gilbert Harris, 200 yards away, and causing nearly $2,000 loss to the buildings of W. T. Westby nearby. Harris escaped with minor injuries.

BODY FOUND UNDER FLOOR

Search Started For Husband of Negress Brutally Slain.

AT DRESDEN.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press). — Roughly interred under the flooring of her father's house in Dresden, the dead body of Mrs. Robert McCorkle, Detroit negress, was discovered yesterday morning abou 10 o'clock by Chief of Police Babcock, accompanied by Hugh Farnsworth, who was assisting the chief in the hunt for the body of the slain women. The finding of the body establishes the fact that a crime was committed. The hunt for the dead woman's husband, who mysteriously, disappeared shortly after going to Dresden with his wife on a visit, is now being pushed by the police with increased vigor.

The slaying occurred some time between Sunday night, April 21, and the following Wednesday. When taken out of the ground, the body of the woman was dressed in a night-gown stained with blood. An ugly gash one and a half inches long in the right side of her neck gave mute evidence of the brutal manner in which she came to her death. The weapon used by her assailant has not yet been found.

Movie Men Burned To Death In Plane

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 29. (C.P.)—Three men, all connected with moving pictures or the stage, were burned to death in an airplane crash, which occurred when they took an early morning spin from Rogers air port here yesterday. The dead are: William R. Oviatt, Jr., 22, Ray. M. Scott, 25, and Mack Fluker, 25.

CANNED TOMATO JUICE PRESCRIBED FOR BOTH CHILDREN AND ADULTS

Canadian, British and United States specialists and medical organizations unite in tribute to the curative values of canned tomato juice.

Outstanding child specialists in Canada are recommending tomato juice for infants, putting it on a par with fresh orange juice as a preventative against scurvy, due to its richness in Vitamin "C".

The New Health Society of Great Britain recently declared that canned tomatoes are more potent in Vitamin "C" than fresh orange juice.

The noted Chicago physician, Dr. Hugo Friedstein says: "There is no doubt about it the curative value of tomato is extraordinary. Its Vitamin content alone is accomplishing the undreamed of in the feeding of infants and invalids.'

Canned tomato juice is easily and economically obtained by straining canned tomatoes. Infants, children and adults are greatly benefitted by drinking canned tomato juice at any season of the year. In the early Spring particularly is healthful tonic food needed.

It is a fact, of course, that properly canned tomatoes are actually more healthful than the market-bought article. The reason is that it is at the moment of perfect maturity that tomatoes are picked and packed. All their freshness and flavor are thus preserved. Tomatoes, picked before maturity and handled repeatedly before reaching the table, inevitably lose their freshness, and that means the loss also of some of their healthful properties. Doctors are more and more recommending canned tomatoes for both children and adults.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(Canadian Press.) — A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Exhibition held Friday unanimously endorsed the recommendation of the Aquatic Sports committee as follows: "That Allan Ross of the William Wrigley Company be requested to award the fourth Wrigley Marathon to the Canadian National Exhibition Association under similar conditions to those which obtained in the second and third marathons.

In its application to Mr Ross the board recalled the very cordial relationships that have existed between the company and the Exhibition Board, and assured Mr. Ross of the same enthusiasm and close co-operation should he again decide to award the Marathon to Canada and the Canadian National Exhibition.

"— as advertised"

HOW many times you see those two words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale —as advertised."

And those two words are as welcome as they are familiar, for they form a bond of confidence between the merchant and yourself. They are his guarantee to you of worth and value.

Here is an article that has been described in your newspaper. Its merits have been told; possibly, too, its price. You know exactly what you will get when you buy it. You know its quality, its utility; you know how it fits into your needs. And when you buy it, you know you are getting not some unproved substitute but the specified article—as represented.

It is easy to understand why that phrase, 'as advertised,' creates a feeling of confidence. You have learned to depend upon consistently advertised products. You know that the maker has confidence in them, else he would not spend money calling your attention to them day after day, and month after month. You know that they have been approved by the most critical of investigators—the buying public. And above all you know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

It pays to read the advertisements

MALE VOICE CHOIR PREPARES FOR COMPETITION IN NEW YORK

Members Attend Practice Every Tuesday To Work Up Pieces.

ALL VOLUNTEERS.

Strenuous and Anxious Days Await Choir Representing Peterborough.

(By J. A.)

The weekly practices of the Male Voice Choir on Tuesday evenings, in the Legion Hall, are well attended, representatives of the four choir sections numbering fifty voices. The music requiring these rehearsals this year is unusual, inasmuch as the special occasion looming in the near future (New York, May 24) calls for intensive study at this late date of the season.

What does the special preparation mean? Let a few introductory remarks be set forth ere this fact is mentioned.

Organization of Choir.

Peterborough Male Voice Choir is unique in the fact that it is the only purely male musical organization in the history of Peterborough. It was organized on June 2, 1919, and the name Peterborough Male Voice Choir adopted. Its inception began in 1919 and 1920, when augmented choir concerts were held in George Street (Methodist) Church. Some thirty men who assisted in these concerts conceived the idea that a non-denominational male musical organization would promote the musical interests of Peterborough, as well as provide pleasure and development for men of the city who are interested in better vocal production. A committee was appointed and a meeting called, which resulted in the formation of the present organization.

Annual Concerts Given.

This concisely is the history of the organization and formation of the choir which has since, under two conductors, John H. Renwick (now of Oshawa) and Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., presented annual concerts to the public of Peterborough (sometimes, be it said, with rather faint-hearted support from the citizens), and struggled from year to year to give all that was best in music as a choir, and with the assistance of artists from as far away as New York, in an effort to serve as a live community force, and to further the love for music of the highest standard.

The choir has succeeded, musically, along these lines, notwithstanding the slim support, especially in the latter years of its existence. The executive and membership this season, as have been those of the preceding years, are still anxious to have nothing but the best to render the public.

Goes Into Competition.

The choir a few years ago felt it should launch into the competitive highway; the officers and choristers prepared themselves for competition in Toronto at the Ontario Musical Festival, and under the conductorship of Martin B. Chenhall, entered classes for fifty and twenty voices, and acquitted themselves with honor, returning to the city with second prize position, losing out by one point—and it was said at the time, Peterborough Male Voice Choir deserved first honors. Be that as it may, the members were imbued with a new outlook on their choir activities; and that was the means of holding the body together up to the present season, with a few changes in the personnel on account of members moving elsewhere. The morale is still the same, and the competitive spirit is once more catching the minds and thoughts of the old brigade.

Choir Joins Association.

This year a second invitation came from the Federated Glee Clubs of America, asking Peterborough Male Voice Choir to become affiliated with this association. The matter was taken up and discussed, pro and con, and when all details were clearly laid before the local choir, the executive was empowered to tender their application, which was readily accepted. The final instructions being received and the fee paid, the members thought the move was for the better musical development, and that much good would accrue from the enterprise.

With the PeterboroughMale Voice Choir, in the Federated Glee Club, are three other Canadian choirs — Harmony Choir, Toronto (Fred R. Beatty, conductor); Temple Choir, Ottawa (Cyril J. L. Rickwood, conductor); Hamilton Harmonic Male Choir, Hamilton (Herbert J. Holder, conductor); and Martin B. Chenhall, conductor of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir.

Dates of Events.

The syllabus is on hand, giving the date of the massed choir gala concert as May 24, with the contest for choirs on the morning of Saturday, May 25. With the list of choirs and conductors from almost every state in the Union, and four from Canada, are mentioned the names of the conductors appointed by popular vote to wield the baton for the program on Friday evening, which is divided into two parts—Mark Andrews, of New Jersey, and Ralph L. Baldwin, of New York, with an alternate conductor in Channing Le Febvre, of New York.

The Concert Music.

The fourteen selections to be rendered by the massed choir of between 4,000 and 5,000 voices are as follows, and show a versatile and pleasing variety of male voice music, which is both tuneful and refreshing, and of an international character, and of a high calibre of composition, as may be judged by the titles:

"Shenandoah" (Bartholomew), a sea song.

"Sweet Canaan" (Reddick), a little-known spiritual.

"Laudamus" (Bryn Calfaria — "At the Edge of Calvary," by Protheroe), a Welsh chorale, dedicated to Federated Glee Clubs of America.

"Reapers' Song" (Davison), a Bohemian carnival folk tune, rhythmic in type.

"Land of Hope and Glory" (Edward Elgar), a patriotic son of majestic British spirit.

"Lullaby" (Brahms), an Austrian lulleby.

"On the Road to Mandalay" (Oley Speaks), from Kipling's "Barrack Room Ballads."

"Prayer of Thanksgiving" (E. Kremser), folk song of the Netherlands.

"Morning" (Speaks-Baldwin), a song telling of the beauty of the early hours of the day.

"Calm as the Night" (Bohm-Andrews), a love song, with beautiful humming and solo parts interspersed.

"Drums" (Meale-Calter), a part song telling of the inspiration of the drums in victory or in sorrow, with the martial atmosphere rampant.

"On Wings of Song" (Mendelssohn-Le Febvre), an East Indian love melody of floating sweetness and tunefulness.

"Creation's Hymn."

These numbers are for the massed choir concert on Friday.

The Test Pieces.

The chief feature of the festival will be the test pieces on Saturday morning—"A Lullaby of Love" (Fletcher) and "Twilight" (Mair). The first of these will be used by the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, it being the only piece in which the choir will compete. This selection will be remembered as one of the test pieces which brought honor to the choir and city at the Ontario Musical Festival held in Massey Hall, Toronto, a few years ago.

Madison Square Gardens.

The gala concert on Friday evening will be held in Madison Square Gardens, an auditorium seating about 18,000 people (and a report is to hand that almost every seat had been sold several days ago); and the event is termed the Tri-ennial Meet Convention Mass-Chorus Concert.

Opportune, too, is the date selected—May, 24, our own Victoria Day, when the Canadian choirs especially will feel the patriotic touch in the program, and show their colors more pronouncedly on that account. Most of the program numbers will be a capella; in others, four pianists will assist.

Practising for Perfection.

Martin B. Chenhall, with his choir of about forty or fifty voices, are practising assiduously twice a week, and are leaving nothing to chance. A report, which might bear repeating here, reached the city a day or two ago, that the Guido Choir, of Buffalo, one of the finest organizations connected with the Federation, has but one choir to fear—Peterborough Male Voice Choir. Such is the reputation of this body of choristers, with its worthy conductor.

No "Trip" for the Choir.

An impression is abroad that the local choir is going to New York for a "trip!" The membership replies, "Not much!" The party will leave the city on Thursday afternoon (May 23), reach New York at 8.15 on Friday morning (May 24), prepare for a rehearsal at 1.30, and with a few preliminaries will be ready for the evening performance at 8.15. The concert will be followed by a smoker, in the sequence of events. Rest will be needed ere the contests commence on Saturday morning at ten o'clock. There will be short periods for social intercourse, but preparation and participation will be the main points of this "trip!" Present plans are that on Saturday, when the competitions are over, the choir will entrain for the return to Peterborough, arriving, it is expected, at noon on Sunday. There is also a possibility of the choir being invited to sing in one of the churches in New York on Sunday afternoon, but nothing definite has been received. The period will be strenuous and anxious, and the choir will be on tip-toe during the period of absence from the city.

A letter received in the city this week from the relatives, in Scotland, of one of the choir members, mentions the fact that the concert program would be received, it was hoped, over the air, and telling of their intention of "listening in" at a powerful receiving set.

Canada Will Be Heard From.

Mention is made here, too, of the preparation of purely Canadian songs by our Male Voice Choir, including several little-known boat songs, which will be rendered durinb the social period after the concert. These songs will be distinctive in that they will be new to almost everyone persent, and truly Canadian — and Canada will have a big place in the eyes and ears of the assembly through these selections by our own Male Voice Choir, and over the air. Let us wish the choristers God-speed!

FEEL TIRED? RUN-DOWN?

DEBATE ENJOYED.

Farm Conditions of Past and Present Compared at Y.P.L. Meeting in Bailieboro.

BAILIEBORO, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Young Peoples' League of Bailieboro United Church entertained forty Frazerville young people at a social evening on Tuesday night.

Miss May Earl, president of the Bailieboro league, opened the meeting by welcoming the young people from Frazerville. Willard Waterman then took charge of the devotional exercises and program which was put on by the Frazerville people.

The main feature of the program was a debate between the Frazerville and Bailieboro young people, the subject being, "Resolved, That the conditions in farming communities fifty years ago, were more conductive to happiness than they are to-day." Misses Mary Wood and Mona Holden, of Frazerville, upheld the affirmative side of the debate, and Archie Deyell and Joseph Barnard, of Bailieboro, upheld the negative.

The judges, Miss Hamilton, Miss L. Ball and Mrs. W. Waterman, after a lengthy discussion, gave the decision in favor of the negative, saying that the debate was very close.

The remainder of the evening was spent in contests and lunch was served by the Bailieboro young people.

Sunlight With Cream Is New Breakfast Dish

"Sunlight with cream" has become a romantic breakfast reality for Peterborough.

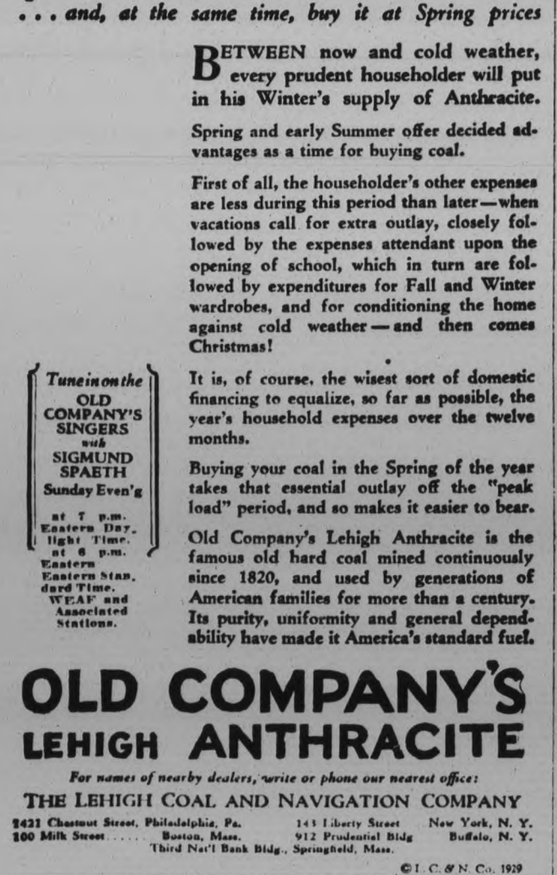
Translated into more scientific terms, it means that cereals which have been irradiated under the Steenbock process, as the method treatment with ultra violet rays is called, have been placed on the local market. The Steenbock discovery that everyday foodstuffs, cereals in particular, can be imbued with the "sunshine vitamin" by exposing them to the rays of sun lamps, is regarded everywhere as one of the most important achievements in the field of nutrition.

By flooding the wheat grains of which "Muffets," one of the best known prepared breakfast foods, are made with ultra violet rays, the elusive vitamin "D" of sunlight is captured and held fast under the Steenbock process. This is the vital property found originally in a few foods, but in minute amounts, and which makes it possible for the body to convert lime and other minerals into bone and tooth material.

The application of the irradiation process to Muffets has been under the direct supervision of Dr. Harry Steenbock, famous research worker in nutrition at the University of Wisconsin, and its discoverer. For more than four years Dr. Steenbock, who established one of the basic principles in the relationship of light to food, has conducted elaborate feeding tests on hundreds of animals in his laboratory, to establish the action of the newly imparted vitamin. He found that the wheat grain contained a substance, which, when exposed to the rays of ultra violet lamps, was changed into vitamin D, and acquired the faculty of aiding the body to retain the lime so necessary for bone and tooth structure and repair.

When the announcement of this discovery was made, more than four years ago, Dr. Steenbock was flooded with requests to apply his newly found principle to all sorts of products. For that reason he patented the discovery, refusing, however, to accept personal profits from the discovery. Instead, he assigned his rights to the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, with the provision that the proceeds he used for further research work in any field for the betterment of human health. He further limited the assignment of patent rights to well established, conservative food manufacturers and the first company to receive Dr. Steenbock's permission to use his irradiation process is The Quaker Oats Company. After two years of further research this company has now applied the Steenbock process to Muffets, the whole wheat cereal. Thus this cereal becomes the first grain foods imbued with vitamin D.

Among the tests which were made preliminary to marketing Muffets was that of storage. It was found that even prolonged cooking does not destroy the vitamin of these cereals. Nor did storage cause any loss in the vitamin. Irradiation leaves the flavor and taste of the cereals unchanged. In fact, nothing is changed, except the vitamin content, that is, their natural nutritive value is enhanced through the addition of the sunshine vitamin regarded as one of the most important factors in nutrition.



Why not buy your Coal when your other expenses are lowest?

. . . and, at the same time, buy it at Spring prices

BETWEEN now and cold weather, every prudent householder will put in his Winter's supply of Anthracite.

Spring and early Summer offer decided advantages as a time for buying coal.

First of all, the householder's other expenses are less during this period than later—when vacations call for extra outlay, closely followed by the expenses attendant upon the opening of school, which in turn are followed by expenditures for Fall and Winter wardrobes, and for conditioning the home against cold weather—and then comes Christmas!

It is, of course, the wisest sort of domestic financing to equalize, so far as possible, the year's household expenses over the twelve months.

Buying your coal in the Spring of the year takes that essential outlay off the "peak load" period, and so makes it easier to bear.

Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite is the famous old hard coal mined continuously since 1820, and used by generations of American families for more than a century. Its purity, uniformity and general dependability have made it America's standard fuel.

RHEUMATISM

Do you realise what causes your rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged crystals of uric acid which get between the joints. The six salts in Kruschen will clear those crystals from your system almost at once and—hey presto!—the pain is forgotten. After that "the little daily dose" will keep your whole system clean and clear of uric acid for the rest of your life.

"For many years I have been suffering with rheumatism, and although I went every year to Vichy and such places, I did not seem to get much better. For the last 5 years I have been taking Kruschen Salts, half-teaspoonful every morning, and for the last year or two I do not know what rheumatic pains are."—F. D.

ANGLERS TRY CASTING SKILL

Fish and Game Association Holds First Practice Meet.

AT ARMORIES.

There were many fine casts, punctuated at unexpected, and all too numerous intervals by much-cussed back-lashes, when nearly fifty casters and would-be casters of the city and district gathered in the Armories on Saturday night for the first of a series of practice meets. Through the instrumentality of the Peterborough County Fish and Game Protective Association, that building has been secured for each Saturday night until the summer sets in, and it is expected that a yet larger attendance of casters will feature the next meeting.

For two hours or more Saturday evening, the casters practised target work, endeavoring to bear in mind that accuracy rather than distance should be the guiding principle, and that correct form at the start would mean more satisfactory and pleasant fishing later on. There were no competitions, though such may develop in succeeding meetings, but each man had a chance to learn from his neighbor or to profit by that neighbor's mistakes.

Throughout the evening, there was much favorable comment on the work of the Fish and Game Association in making the practices possible, and, judging from the enthusiasm displayed, there would seem to be no reason why an anglers' competition for next winter should not succeed. Anglers are reminded of the next practice night, this coming Saturday.

MORE BRITISHERS COMING.

The announcement from W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, and the official in charge of the railway's immigration program, that the C.N.R. will bring out to Canada this year double the number of British immigrants secured by it during any previous year, will bring satisfaction to most Canadians.

So, too, will Mr. Robb's statement that Britishers had proved to be the best immigrants, and that the C.N.R. intended to concentrate upon them during 1929.

The influx of Southern European settlers into Canada's Western Provinces during recent years, in numbers that left British immigration far behind, has been viewed with genuine misgiving by many people in this country, who feared the results of a continuance of such conditions.

The drive by the C.N.R. for new Canadians from the British Isles is therefore decidedly welcome as likely to bring about a marked change in the situation.

Similarly the fact that fewer Canadians are going to the United States, while the migration from that country into Canada increased 25 per cent. in the seven months ending with January, will be hailed as evidence that Canada is building with the right kind of material.

EDUCATING THE PUBLIC.

There is reason to believe that when the Federal income tax is completed the total will establish a new collection record.

The general prosperity throughout the country is partially responsible, of course, for that condition, but it will have to share the credit with the very effective use of advertising made by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Revenue, and the officials of the income tax branch.

The 1928 campaign demonstrated the importance of newspaper advertising, giving the public for the first time in simple form all the information necessary for a prompt compliance with the requirements of the Act.

At best the collection of income tax is an intricate matter, but Mr. Euler's use of newspaper space to educate those liable to taxation has materially simplified the process, and the best proof of its effectiveness will be found in the unprecedented returns.

The old system of printing legislation in the official Gazette and expecting the people to know all about it has given way in many departments of government activities to business methods.

The simple, sure way followed by all successful business concerns of using the advertising columns of representative newspapers to reach the public is being more and more followed by both Federal and Provincial Governments.

RECIPROCITY IN COURTESY.

Many Ontario papers, The Examiner included, in referring to the tourist traffic and its development into one of this Province's leading industries, have stressed the importance of our people being courteous and hospitable in their reception of our summer visitors and the necessity of treating them fairly in the matter of service and charges.

Such advice is helpful, and The Examiner has no apologies to offer for bringing the matter once more to the attention of its readers.

The Border Cities Star, however, is right in pointing out that there is another side to the question.

There should be reciprocity in courtesy, and while the majority of summer guests from below the international line are the acme of friendliness, there are some who fail to show appreciation of the courteous and friendly treatment they receive here.

Particularly is this so of a proportion of the motorists who visit Ontario, and of whom a contemporary says "they drive without regard to others and without even regard to themselves."

Visiting drivers of this type were responsible for many Ontario accidents this year, and while The Examiner believes that everything should be done to make the visit of our American friends pleasant, it would do no harm were the provincial traffic officers instructed that courtesy to visitors does not include allowing them to disregard all safety rules on the highways.

THE PARK BY-LAW.

The improvements at Inverlea Park, which the ratepayers of Peterborough are asked to endorse, are long overdue, but it is particularly fitting that the program should be carried out in this year of the Old Home Week that the improved park may show former residents that their native town has not been standing still.

The passing of this by-law cannot be too strongly urged.

Swimming, once the recreation of the small boy, has become generally popular.

It is no longer confined to the boys, who indeed find themselves matched in skill by their sisters; whole families nowadays have earned the art of taking care of themselves in the water, and adequate swimming facilities are an absolute necessity in this day and generation.

In addition to the actual swimmers who frequent Inverlea Beach during the summer months there are hundreds of beginners and of small youngsters who obtain healthful recreation at this point.

Improvements to the beach itself, better dressing-room accommodation and modern sanitary conveniences are to be provided for, and these undertakings should have general and enthusiastic approval.

The summer playground of the whole community, Inverlea Park's usefulness in this respect can be materially improved by the passing of this by-law.

Vote for it on Friday and you will make possible something that will benefit practically every family in Peterborough.

More than 25,000,000 people in the United States will observe daylight saving, says a statistics expert. But the night clubs get it all in the end.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

THE TURN OF EASTERN CANADA.

One feature of the spring immigration movement from Britain is the number of families taking up farm lands in the Maritime Provinces. A number of these are coming under the schemes in which the Governments of Britain, Canada and the individual Provinces are concerned. This is, of course, directed immigration, and involves certain obligations on the part of the settlers, as well as of the Governments. There are, however, a number of people coming to the Maritimes of their own volition. It is a gratifying development and one which all true Canadians hope will reach a scale far beyond its present proportions. There are many good farms available in the Maritime Provinces and much fine agricultural land waiting to be cultivated. But the lure of the Western wheat fields has been an irresistible attraction for many immigrants and the East has suffered. Now that the Maritime Provinces are coming to their own again, their neglect in this respect will not be so marked.

Simultaneously with the movement noted, reports come from Quebec that the repatriation movement from the New England tates is attaining a gratifying measure of success. It is stated that dull industrial conditions in those States, compared with the progress and expansion in Quebec, have stimulated the movement. There may be danger of sentiment and enthusiasm bringing back too many people who, in other days, were compelled to seek their livelihood in the Republic. The Quebec people who are supporting the enterprise must judge of that. But the fact that the native-born are returning to Quebec, and that a fine class of immigrants is looking to the Maritime Provinces as a place of abode, is a development that the rest of Canada can regard with satisfaction. It is another indication that the whole country is sharing prosperity and the promise of still greater advancement.—Brantford Expositor.

DISARMAMENT ACCORD.

Whatever may be the outcome, peace advocates the world over will welcome the friendly disposition of Great Britain and the United States on the question of armaments. The representatives of these two countries have declared at the Geneva preparatory conference on disarmament that a reduction and limitation of armaments is desired by their Governments.

During the past few months considerable friction has arisen among the peoples, if not the Governments, of these nations in regard to the navy question. It is reassuring, therefore, to know that these Governments now stand together in regard to naval reduction. The attitude of President Hoover to disarmament has been a matter of considerable speculation, and the knowledge that he is not a "big navy" man will remove considerable international worry.

The President, of course, will insist on a parity in lighting power, but it is said he is prepared to go a long way towards a compromise in the matter of types and categories. He takes the stand that not tonnage but the actual needs of defence should be the yardstick by which any country's needs must be measured. This, it is stated, is coming closer to the British attitude than anybody in the United States has dared to approach for years.

The attitude of the President indicates that the United States Government has no desire to enter into a naval race, with its terrific cost and the ill-feeling which it creates among nations. This intimation of the new President that his Government is not seeking the glorification of having the biggest navy in the world will, accordingly, relieve international tension.

Mr. Hoover's contention that a country's navy should be only as large as its needs of defence will no doubt be heartily endorsed by Great Britain. This is also the British contention. Adequate defence, and not naval supremacy, has been, of late years at least, the attitude of Britain. The little island kingdom, the mother of a mighty empire, has more to defend than any other country, and cannot be blamed for insisting on a navy that will give her and her Dominions protection in event of another great war.

But, despite this, she will be ready to meet half-way any feasible scheme for limitation and reduction of armaments. Sir Austen Chamberla British Foreign Secretary, assured the House of Commons yesterday that the British Government shared fully the hopes and wishes of the United States Government on disarmament. The willingness of the Governments of these two great countries to get together in an earnest effort to secure a reduction in armaments will unquestionably give a great impetus to this tremendously important question. But it will take much patience, much negotiation, much conciliation and considerable compromise to reach the desired goal.

The Governments should have the hearty support of their peoples in any effort they may make to lift partly the armament burden. Attempts will undoubtedly be made to throw cold water on endeavors to secure a further reduction in disarmaments. Already Chairman Britten of the Naval Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, has described the latest disarmament gesture of the United States as "another naval victory for British diplomacy," and no doubt critics of the British Government are ready to accuse it of a desire to play into the hands of the American Government. We fancy, however, that the great body of public opinion in both countries, tired of big navy talk, will get behind their Governments and will endorse the steps taken to reduce armaments, provided that the plan decided upon is fair to all.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

American purchases in this country are picking up. Henry Ford is buying antique buggies for his collection of vehicles.

The row between Mayor McBride and the Toronto Telegram has reached the arena of the courts—and now perhaps both parties will maintain silence for a little while anyway.

All the cities in the Province of Quebec are operating on daylight saving time. The system seems to be gaining in popularity in urban centres.

Toronto taxicab drivers are being asked to sign the pledge, and most of them will probably be willing to try anything once.

A vote of $5,000 for new flags has been passed in the House of Commons. That may possibly cover the replacements needed in the case of local public buildings.

There will be no Communist procession in Montreal on May Day. The only "Red" parade that should be authorized in this country is one up the gang plank of a liner bound across the Atlantic.

"Australia is protesting against the big invasion of American prunes." We can not say we had noticed the absence of many important ones.—Detroit News.

A Thought

DAY'S END

"Is there no different way the light may learn
To leave these hills at every evening's close,
Save turning, as a lovely ghost would turn,
To leave a house and hearthstone that she knows—
In such a wise that these same stars appear,
One after one, to gaze across the dark
On rooms abandoned to the windy year,
That keep no single, sweet, familiar mark?
"I have seen all too much of lonely things,
Of lovely, slow departures in this wise,
And the long, listening stillness that it brings—
Where lonely hills are lift to lonely skies,
And stars incredulous that stare and stare
Into the empty hush that gathers there."

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Another reason for the positive need of continued work by the Canadian Legion is given in the official report of G. W. Scott on the investigation of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Mr. Scott, a chartered accountant, finds: The yearly reduction in the number of pensions decreased; the yearly increase in the number of pensions increased.

In other words, fewer men are RECOVERING from war disabilities every succeeding year, and more men are DISCOVERING war disabilities that have lain hidden until age brings them out.

In the last fiscal year reported on, there were 13,429 pension claims approved and 29,367 pensions examinations held.

* * *

To present these claims, the Canadian Legion must make extensive investigations, and do a great amount of work. It will be generally conceded that the people of Canada desire to see injured veterans well cared for, and the Legion, therefore, feels that it is well representing not only the ex-soldier but the people.

* * *

In order to do its work, however, the Legion requires funds. There are many cases where relief is required pending settlement of the case by the D. S. C. R., and there is the expense of the claim presentation itself.

The members of the Peterborough branch are giving their whole-hearted support to the carnival planned for May 15, 16 and 17 to raise funds for Legion work. Every member has tickets to sell, and the support of the people is solicited.

These tickets, at ten cents each, not only admit the holder to the carnival, but are THEN good for ten cents value.

* * *

And good value will be given, under direction of energetic chairmen.

THE CRUSHED STONE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I fully agree with "Motorist" in his letter of last evening, dealing with the cracked stone on the highways. I wonder that no one has written about it before, for it is certainly time that the matter was taken up. It seems to me it would be a good one for the Motor League to deal with. It surely is a dreadful expense to anyone having cars or trucks on the road.

I know something about it, keeping three on.

Yours truly,
Truck Owner.

A SUGGESTION

In reference to the unrolled crushed stone on the main highway between Peterborough and Keene.

If this stone should be placed late in the fall or early in spring when the ground is naturally soft, there would be some chance of vehicles rolling the stone in and then the earth might act as a binder.

As it is the stone is dumped on the road, and as traffic passes, the stone is gradually pushed out of the wheel tracks and stays there out of the way until the grader comes along, heaps it in the centre of the road, and the cycle is continued indefinitely.

I know that the parts of the road on which crushed stone was used stood up very well this spring, but I can name two very bad spots in other years which were in first class shape this spring. One example was on the turn in front of Mr. J. T. O'Connel's just out of this city. This spot was rebuilt and surfaced with a fine grade of stone and last year was the worst place on the highway, but this year one of the best.

Then, the road on the twin hills just this side of Keene was gravelled late last fall, and again early this spring, and while other parts of the highway were impassable this was in excellent shape.

I believe the county should be held liable for tire damage resulting from crushed stone of the size now used on this highway.

Yours sincerely,
Another Motorist.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXVI.

She hardly knew how to get through Sunday. She thought she would go to church as she usually did, to please Miss Sawyer, and then suddenly she was afraid. It seemed all wrong to go to church with Monday so near—Monday which was to be the end of her old life and the joyous beginning of her new.

She tried to read but she could not take in a single word of what she read. There was no story but her own worth thinking about.

She ate nothing all day, she had no appetite; she packed and unpacked her suitcase with feverish hands.

One moment she told herself it would be unlucky to get ready so long before she was to leave the house; the next she told herself that she dared not leave it too late in case she had to go unexpectedly. She wrote half a dozen letters to Miss Sawyer and destroyed them all. What could she say that Aunt Hilda would understand? How could she explain this thing which to Aunt Hilda would be inexplicable? She would not think of Mollie, or of the General, and yet once during the long night she sat up in bed with a start and with the conviction that she heard the General's lame, dragging step on the landing outside her door.

"I'm dreaming," she told herself; but it had been a very vivid dream.

She woke from a fitful sleep early in the morning with a fast-beating heart and a frightened sense of impending calamity. She sat up in bed and lit the candle on the table beside her. It was five o'clock by the watch which had been her mother's, and which she always kept hanging on the bedpost, and outside it was just faintly beginning to get light.

Ana remembered that this was her great day—and for a moment she shut her eyes and life seemed to pause for a moment beside her before racing her on again to the inevitable.

She took Anthony's letter from beneath her pillow and read it through for the hundredth time.

"Unless you hear from me to the contrary—"

There was still that possibility — that dread!

And yet, was it a dread? Ana felt as if some voice had gently whispered the question in her ear.

A dread, or a hope?

Did she want to hear that he was not coming, after all?

No, no; a thousand times no—she wanted him as she had never wanted anything in her life; as she would never want anything again. She longed for the moment of their meeting as a man dying of thirst longs for the stream of water which he knows is only just beyond his reach

She got up before it was quite light and dressed. She did all the little duties about the house and had breakfast; then she went to the sitting-room window to wait for the postman.

When she saw him far away down the end of the road her heart almost stopped beating. Supposing there was a letter to say Anthony was not coming after all? to say that he and Mollie had made things up between them and were going to start again?

"I shal die if that has happened. I shall die," Ana thought desperately. The postman came nearer. He was a cheery-looking man, and he whistled as he sorted his letters. He paused at Miss Sawyer's gate, glanced at the number on the door, glanced at the letters in his hand—Ana held her breath.

Then he went on.

There was no letter from Anthony—she was to hear nothing to the contrary—the gates of Paradise were still open.

The morning passed in a dream. The tradesmen called—and a man to see to a leaky tap. He took so long about his job—Ana was in a fever of impatience to be rid of him. An hour before she need have started she was ready—her suitcase strapped—all the money she possessed in her handbag. And the sun shone—

"Happy is the bride the sun shines on," the words floated unbidden into Ana's mind.

She felt like a bride—and yet Anthony was a married man! The thought brought a momentary chill with it which she hurriedly brushed aside. What did mere form and ceremony matter? He was hers, and she was his.

When she reached London she bought a rose from a flower woman at the street corner and pinned it in her coat. It was a white rose, and its scent was like all the days of summer mingled together.

Anthony was not due at the hotel till three o'clock, so Ana lunched at a bun shop and then walked again in the park.

It was here he had said he loved her—here she had known that nothing could alter fate, and that she would inevitably throw in her lot with him. At three o'clock she was at the hotel. Would he be there? She was sure he would — eagerly waiting for her—looking out for her.

It was a quiet hotel and the lounge was deserted save for a red-faced elderly man reading a newspaper. Ana wondered what he was doing there and for whom he was waiting. She asked at the desk if Mr. Hambledon had yet arrived, and was told no, but that he had wired booking rooms.

"Oh—thank you."

Her heart was racing as she turned away and her cheeks felt burning. She sat down in a leather chair and tried not to watch the door. He must come soon, in a few minutes she would see him—his tall figure and blue eyes; in a few minutes he would be holding her hand. Of course, he would take a taxicab from Waterloo. He would come as quickly as possible.

What was Mollie doing? The thought seemed to project itself into her unwilling mind like a knife thrust. Since that scene with Mollie in the hotel Ana had resolutely shut her out of her thoughts, but now it was as if some brutal hand opened the closed door of her mind and forced Mollie back again.

What had happened? and what had been arranged about the General?

"I shall know everything directly," Ana told herself confidently and tried to steady her throbbing nerves. "He will tell be everything as soon as we meet."

It seemed like a dream—a fevered dream. She felt as if she were looking on at the emotions of a third person. It could not possibly be she herself—the respectably brought up Ana Fabian, who was sitting there so calmly, waiting to run away with another woman's husband. Calmly! No, not calmly; for her heart seemed to be beating up to her throat, choking her, and every nerve in her body most.

"It will be all right when I se him

"It will be all right when I see him Ana told herself, and felt like a child who tries to be brave in dreaded darkness.

A clock chiming somewhere seemed a tremendous noise and roused her with a great start. Half-past three!

Supposing he did not come? Supposing something had happened! Supposing the train had met with an accident, or the taxicab?

Ana remembered she had felt like this the day she waited for Hambledon at Euston, and after all, everything had been all right.

The red-faced man had gone, leaving his newspaper on the seat, and Ana picked it up and tried to read it. But the print danced crazily before her eyes and her hands were so unsteady she could not hold the paper still. She put it down again and walked to the door.

The sun was not shining any longer—the world looked gray.

As she turned to go back to her chair something fell at her feet, and looking down she saw it was the rose which she had fastened into her coat so happily that morning. Its scented head drooped wearily on a limp stem as she picked it up, and she held it in her hand with a sense of foreboding.

Four o'clock!

The girl behind the desk was watching Ana with interested eyes, and taking her courage in both hands Ana went up to her.

"Mr. Hambledon did not say what time he would arrive?"

The girl shook her head.

"No; he just said some time today."

"I see," Ana hesitated. "Have you got a time-table?" she asked timidly. All her courage seemed to be oozing away. The girl gave her one and with nervous fingers she hunted up the time of the trains from Lyme Regis.

There was no other till about five o'clock that evening.

"I think Mr. Hambledon must have missed the morning train," she forced herself to say with stiff lips.

The girl at the desk smiled in kindly fashion.

"People often miss trains," she agreed. "Why don't you have some tea?"

Ana had some, but she felt like choking. Something had happened to him, she told herself wildly, or had Mollie—he and Mollie—she dared not speculate along those lines.

Five o'clock; half-past! Six o'clock; half-past! It was no longer a dream, but a cruel nightmare. Ana was faint and terrified.

He was dead—or injured—she would never see him again—she felt as if her fear would drive her mad.

Something had happened or he would never be so cruel as to leave her like this—something — suddenly she remembered Jessica's half-tolerant, half-sneering words—"Poor lamb, he had what the psychologists call a guilty complex—he tried to explain it."

Ana rose to her feet; she felt that she must get out into the fresh air or she would die.

She was vaguely conscious of someone coming toward her—a boy in uniform—one of the hotel boys. He was speaking to her, offering a telegram on a tray.

"Name of Fabian, miss?? Is this for you?"

"Oh!" Ana was conscious of a blinding relief that was almost agony. She could hardly breathe as she tore open the envelope. For the moment she had forgotten her fear; she only realized that no doubt this would explain.

It was a tragic explanation:

"General met with serious accident. Cannot possibly come. Forgive me. Will write. Anthony."

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, APRIL 30, 1929

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

During the business hours of this day benefic aspects rule, according to astrology, but sinister stars guide those who would speculate.

The early morning should be an auspicious time to start new commercial ventures, if they have a solid foundation.

Much exploitation of worthless stocks may be expected and all who desire to prosper will turn deaf ears to siren songs about quick returns on precarious investments.

Under this sway promoters, even those with legitimate projects may be unfortunate, it is not a time to seek financial or even moral support in any new venture.

Women are subject to a direction of the stars that is read as most unfortunate for them.

Quarrels between husbands and wives are believed to be prevalent under this planetary government. It is wise to turn the other cheek even when sadly provoked.

Cultivation of one's disposition should be a task much recommended while this sway continues. The fashion of poise and serenity should accompany the summer modes that revive old-time fashions.

This is a sway pre-eminently auspicious for banks and bankers. They will have opportunity to serve the nation in more than one way, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

Again the seers forecast unprecedented travel in Europe and in certain quarters a new understanding of Americans and a new friendliness for them.

Artists should profit much within the year for they will be in demand for public work, it is prognosticated.

This planetary government is encouraging to those who prepare for May day, but in many parts of the country the picnics of spring must be delayed.

Summer will come slowly in many states and only after renewed floods any many severe storms, astrologers fortell.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid quarrels and misunderstandings in the coming year, which will be perilous for certain business connections.

Children born on this day probably will be inclined toward artistic pursuits. The subjects of this sign Taurus often are unconventional and fond of Bohemian associations. They enjoy sports and outdoor amusements.

William Crane, clever actor, was born on this date, 1845.

School Children Take Part In Hunt

KITCHENER, Ont., April 29.—(C. P.)—Between 400 and 500 Public and Separate school boys were scouring sections of this city and surrounding district Saturday in an effort to locate 12 year old Harold Dietrich, mute son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dietrich. An airplane watched the progress of the search from overhead with bags of cut paper to throw "overboard" as signals in the event of any discovery being made.

The Dietrich boy has been missing for ten days.

Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.

MORE BRITISHERS COMING.

The announcement from W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways and the official in charge of the railway's immigration program, that the C.N.R. will bring out to Canada this year double the number of British immigrants secured by it during any previous year, will bring satisfaction to most Canadians.

So, too, will Mr. Robb's statement that Britishers had proved to be the best immigrants, and that the C.N.R. intended to concentrate upon them during 1929.

The influx of Southern European settlers into Canada's Western Provinces during recent years, in numbers that left British immigration far behind, has been viewed with genuine misgiving by many people in this country who feared the results of a continuance of such conditions.

The arrival in the C.N.R. boat-train from the British Isles is therefore decidedly welcome as likely to bring about a marked change in the situation.

Similarly the fact that fewer Canadians are going to the United States, while the migration from that country into Canada increased 25 per cent. in the seven months ending with January, will be hailed as evidence that Canada is building with the right kind of material.

At best the collection of income tax is an intricate matter, but Mr. Euler's use of newspaper space to explain [illegible] has materially simplified the process and the new proof of its effectiveness will be [illegible] the unprecedented returns.

RECIPROCITY IN COURTESY

Many Ontario papers, The Examiner included, in referring to the tourist traffic and its development into one of this Province's leading industries, have stressed the importance of our people being courteous and hospitable in their reception of our summer visitors and the value to us of treating them fairly in the matter of prices and charges.

Such attention to tourists from the United States has no advocate to offer for bringing the matter once more to the attention of its readers.

The Buffalo Courier-Express, in an article in boosting the fact that there is much at stress in the question, says:

"There should be reciprocity in courtesy. And while the majority of summer guests from below the International line are the acme of friendliness, there are some who fail to show appreciation of the courteous and friendly treatment they receive here.

"Particularly is this so of a proportion of the motorists who visit Ontario and of whom a contemporary says they drive without regard to others and without even regard to themselves.

"Motor drivers of this type are responsible for many Ontario accidents this year, and while The Examiner believes that everything should be done to make the visit of our American friends pleasant, it would do no harm were the provincial traffic officers instructed that courtesy to visitors does not include allowing them to disregard all safety rules on the highways."

THE PARK BY-LAW

The improvements at Riverine Park, which the ratepayers of Peterborough are asked to endorse, are long overdue, but it is particularly fitting that the program should be carried out in this year of the Old Home Week that the improved park may show former residents that their native town has not been standing still.

The passing of this by-law cannot be too strongly urged.

Improvements to the beach itself, better dressing room accommodation and modern sanitary conveniences are to be provided for, and these undertakings should have general and enthusiastic approval.

THE TURN OF EASTERN CANADA.

One feature of the spring immigration movement from Britain is the number of families taking up farm lands in the Maritime Provinces. A number of these are coming under the schemes in which the Governments of Britain, Canada and the individual Provinces are concerned. This is, of course, directed immigration, and involves certain obligations on the part of the settlers as well as of the Governments. There are, however, a number of people coming to the Maritimes of their own volition. It is a gratifying development and one which all true Canadians hope will reach a scale far beyond its present proportions. There are many good farms available in the Maritime Provinces and much fine agricultural land waiting to be cultivated. But the lure of the Western wheat fields has been an irresistible attraction for many immigrants and the East has suffered. Now that the Maritime Provinces are coming to their own again, their neglect in this respect will not be so marked.

Simultaneously with the movement noted, reports come from Quebec that the repatriation movement from the New England states is attaining a gratifying measure of success. It is stated that dull industrial conditions in those States, compared with the progress and expansion in Quebec, have stimulated the movement. There may be danger of sentiment and enthusiasm bringing back too many people who, in other days, were compelled to seek their livelihood in the Republic. The Quebec people who are supporting the enterprise must judge of that. But the fact that the native-born are returning to Quebec, and that a fine class of immigrants is looking to the Maritime Provinces as a place of abode, is a development that the rest of Canada can regard with satisfaction. It is another indication that the whole country is sharing prosperity and the promise of still greater advancement.—Brantford Expositor.

DISARMAMENT ACCORD

Whatever may be the outcome, peace advocates the world over will welcome the friendly disposition of Great Britain and the United States on the question of armaments. The representatives of these two countries have declared at the Geneva preparatory conference on disarmament that a reduction and limitation of armaments is desired by their Governments.

During the past few months [illegible] has arisen among the peoples [illegible] governments, of these nations in regard to the navy question. It is reasonable, therefore, to know that these Governments have come together in regard to naval reduction. The attitude of President Hoover to disarmament has been a matter of considerable speculation, and the knowledge that he is not a "big navy" man will remove considerable international worry.

The President of course will cause no surprise in wishing power but in actual navy pressure to give a long way towards a compromise in the matter of types and category. He takes the stand that not tonnage but the actual needs of defence should be the yardstick by which any country's needs must be measured. This, it is stated, is coming closer to the British attitude than anybody in the United States has dared to approach for years.

The attitude of the President indicates that the United States Government has no desire to enter into a naval race, with its terrific cost and the ill-feeling which it creates among nations. This intimation of the new President that his Government is not seeking the gratification of having the biggest navy in the world will, accordingly, relieve international tension.

Mr. Hoover's contention that a country's navy should be only as large as its needs of defence will no doubt be heartily endorsed by Great Britain. This is also the British contention. Adequate defence, and not naval supremacy, has been, of late years at least, the attitude of Britain. The little island kingdom, the mother of a mighty empire, has more to defend than any other country and cannot be blamed for insisting on a navy that will give her and her Dominions protection in event of another great war.

But, despite this, she will be ready to meet half-way any feasible scheme for limitation and reduction of armaments. Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, assured the House of Commons yesterday that the British Government shared fully the hopes and wishes of the United States Government on disarmament. The willingness of the Governments of these two great countries to get together in an earnest effort to secure a reduction in armaments will unquestionably give a great impetus to this tremendously important question. But it will take much patience, much negotiation, much conciliation, and considerable compromise to reach the desired goal.

The Governments should have the hearty support of their peoples in any effort they may make to lift partly the armament burden. Attempts will undoubtedly be made to throw cold water on endeavors to secure a further reduction in disarmaments. Already Chairman Britten of the Naval Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, has described the latest disarmament gesture of the United States as "another naval victory for British diplomacy," and no doubt critics of the British Government are ready to accuse it of a desire to play into the hands of the American Government. We fancy, however, that the great body of public opinion in both countries, tired of big navy talk, will get behind their Governments and will endorse the steps taken to reduce armaments, provided that the plan decided upon is fair to all.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

American purchases in this country are picking up. Henry Ford is buying antique buggies for his collection of vehicles.

The row between Mayor McBride and the Toronto Telegram has reached the arena of the courts—and now perhaps both parties will maintain silence for a little while anyway.

All fat cattle in the Province of Quebec are operating on daylight saving time. The system seems to be gaining in popularity in urban centres.

Toronto taxicab drivers are being asked to sign the pledge, and most of them will probably be willing to try anything once.

A vote of $4,000 for new flags has been passed in the House of Commons. That may possibly cover the requirements needed in the case of local public buildings.

There will be no Communistic procession in Montreal on May Day. The only "Red" parade that should be permitted in this country is one up the gang plank of a liner bound across the Atlantic.

Australia is protecting against the big invasion of American prunes. We can not say we had noticed the absence of many important ones.—Detroit News.

A Thought

DAY'S END

"Is there no different way the light may learn
To leave these hills at every evening's close,
Save turning, as a lovely ghost would turn,
To leave a house and hearthstone that she knows—
In such a wise that these same stars appear,
One after one, to gaze across the dark
On rooms abandoned to the windy year,
That keep no single sweet familiar mark?
I have seen all too much of lonely things,
Of lovely, slow departures in this wise,
And the long listening stillness that it brings
Where lonely hills are lift to lonely skies,
And stars incredulous that stare and stare
Into the empty hush that gathers there."

—David Morton.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

Another reason for the positive need of continued work by the Canadian Legion is given in the official report of G. W. Scott on the investigation of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Mr. Scott a chartered accountant, finds: The yearly reduction in the number of pensions decreased; the yearly increase in the number of pensions increased.

In other words, fewer men are RECOVERING from war disabilities every succeeding year, and more men are DISCOVERING war disabilities that have lain hidden until age brings them out.

In the last fiscal year reported on, there were 13,429 pension claims approved and 26,367 pensions examinations held.

* * *

To present these claims, the Canadian Legion must make expensive investigations and do a great amount of work. It will be generally conceded that the people of Canada desire to see injured veterans well cared for, and the Legion, therefore, feels that it is well representing not only the ex-soldier but the people.

* * *

In order to do its work however, the Legion requires funds. There are many cases where relief is required pending settlement of the case by the D. S. C. R. and there is the expense of the claim presentation itself.

The members of the Peterborough branch are giving their whole-hearted support to the carnival planned for May 15, 16 and 17 to raise funds for Legion work. Every member has tickets to sell, and the support of the people is solicited.

These tickets, at ten cents each, not only admit the holder to the carnival, but are THEN good for ten cents value.

* * *

And good value will be given under direction of energetic chairmen.

THAT CRUSHED STONE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I fully agree with "Motorist" in his letter of last evening, dealing with the crushed stone on the highways. I wonder that no one has written about it before, for it is certainly time that the matter was taken up. It seems to me it would be a good one for the Motor League to deal with. It surely is a dreadful expense to anyone having cars or trucks on the road.

I know something about it, keeping three on.

Yours truly,
Truck Owner.

A SUGGESTION

In reference to the unrolled crushed stone on the main highway between Peterborough and Keene.

If this stone should be placed late in the fall or early in spring when the ground is naturally soft, there would be some chance of vehicles rolling the stone in and then the earth might act as a binder.

As it is the stone is dumped on the road, and as traffic passes, the stone is gradually pushed out of the wheel tracks and stays there out of the way until the grader comes along, heaps it in the centre of the road, and the cycle is continued indefinitely.

I know that the parts of the road on which crushed stone was used stood up very well this spring, but I can name two very bad spots in other years which were in first class shape this spring. One example was on the turn in front of Mr. J. T. O'Connell's just out of this city. This spot was rebuilt and surfaced with a fine grade of stone and last year was the worst place on the highway, but this year one of the best.

Then the road on the twin line just this side of Keene was gravelled late last fall, and again early this spring, and while other parts of the highway were impassable this was in excellent shape.

I believe the county should be held liable for tire damage resulting from crushed stone of the size now used on this highway.

Yours sincerely,
Another Motorist.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXVI.

She hardly knew how to get through Sunday. She thought she would go to church as she usually did, to please Miss Sawyer, and then suddenly she was afraid. It seemed all wrong to go to church with Monday so near—Monday which was to be the end of her old life and the joyous beginning of her new.

She tried to read but she could not take in a single word of what she read. There was no story but her own worth thinking about.

She ate nothing all day, she had no appetite; she packed and unpacked her suitcase with feverish hands.

One moment she told herself it would be unlucky to get ready so long before she was to leave the house; the next she told herself that she dared not leave it too late in case she had to go unexpectedly. She wrote half a dozen letters to Miss Sawyer and destroyed them all. What could she say that Aunt Hilda would understand? How could she explain this thing which to Aunt Hilda would be inexplicable? She would not think of Mollie, or of the General, and yet once during the long night she sat up in bed with a start and with the conviction that she heard the General's lame, dragging step on the landing outside her door.

"I'm dreaming," she told herself, but it had been a very vivid dream.

She woke from a fitful sleep early in the morning with a fast-beating heart and a frightened sense of impending calamity. She sat up in bed and lit the candle on the table beside her. It was five o'clock by the watch which had been her mother's, and which she always kept hanging on the bedpost, and outside it was just faintly beginning to get light.

Ana remembered that this was her great day—and for a moment she shut her eyes and life seemed to pause for a moment beside her before racing her on again to the inevitable.

She took Anthony's letter from beneath her pillow and read it through for the hundredth time.

"Unless you hear from me to the contrary—"

There was still that possibility—that dread!

And yet, was it a dread? Ana felt as if some voice had gently whispered the question in her ear.

A dread, or a hope?

Did she want to hear that he was not coming, after all?

No, no! a thousand times no—she wanted him as she had never wanted anything in her life; as she would never want anything again. She longed for the moment of their meeting as a man dying of thirst longs for the stream of water which he knows is only just beyond his reach.

She got up before it was quite light and dressed. She did all the little duties about the house and had breakfast; then she went to the sitting-room window to wait for the postman.

When she saw him far away down the end of the road her heart almost stopped beating. Supposing there was a letter to say Anthony was not coming after all? to say that he and Mollie had made things up between them and were going to start again?

"I shall die if that has happened, I shall die," Ana thought desperately. The postman came nearer. He was a cheery-looking man, and he whistled as he sorted his letters. He paused at Miss Sawyer's gate, glanced at the number on the door, glanced at the letters in his hand—Ana held her breath.

Then he went on.

There was no letter from Anthony—she was to hear from Anthony—she was to hear from Anthony—the gates of Paradise were still open.

The morning passed in a dream. The tradesmen called—and a man to see to a leaky tap. He took so long about his job—Ana was in a fever of impatience to be rid of him. An hour before she need have started she was ready—her suitcase strapped—all the money she possessed in her handbag. And the sun shone—

"Happy is the bride the sun shines on," the words floated unbidden into Ana's mind.

She felt like a bride—and yet Anthony was a married man! The thought brought a momentary chill with it which she hurriedly brushed aside. What did mere form and ceremony matter? He was hers, and she was his.

When she reached London she bought a rose from a flower woman at the street corner and pinned it in her coat. It was a white rose, and its scent was like all the days of summer mingled together.

Anthony was not due at the hotel till three o'clock, so Ana lunched at a bun shop and then walked again in the park.

It was here he had said he loved her—here she had known that nothing could alter fate, and that she would inevitably throw in her lot with him. At three o'clock she was at the hotel. Would he be there? She was sure he would—eagerly waiting for her—looking out for her.

It was a quiet hotel and the lounge was deserted save for a red-faced elderly man reading a newspaper. Ana wondered what he was doing there and for whom he was waiting. She asked at the desk if Mr. Hambledon had yet arrived, and was told no, but that he had wired booking rooms.

"Oh—thank you."

Her heart was racing as she turned away and her cheeks felt burning. She sat down in a leather chair and tried not to watch the door. He must come soon, in a few minutes he would see him—his tall figure and blue eyes; in a few minutes he would be holding her hand. Of course he would take a taxicab from Waterloo. He would come as quickly as possible.

What was Mollie doing? The thought seemed to project itself into her unwilling mind like a knife thrust. Since that scene with Mollie in the hotel Ana had resolutely shut her out of her thoughts, but now it was as if some brutal hand opened the closed door of her mind and forced Mollie back again.

What had happened? and what had been arranged about the General?

"I shall know everything directly," Ana told herself confidently and tried to steady her throbbing nerves. "He will tell be everything as soon as we meet."

It seemed like a dream—a fevered dream. She felt as if she were looking on at the emotions of a third person. It could not possibly be she herself—the respectably brought up Ana Fabian, who was sitting there so calmly, waiting to run away with another woman's husband. Calmly! No, not calmly; for her heart seemed to be beating up to her throat, choking her, and every nerve in her body most.

"It will be all right when—"

"It will be all right when I see him," Ana told herself, and felt like a child who tries to be brave in dreaded darkness.

A clock chiming somewhere seemed a tremendous noise and roused her with a great start. Half-past three! Supposing he did not come? Supposing something had happened! Supposing the train had met with an accident, or the taxicab?

Ana remembered she had felt like this the day she waited for Hambledon at Euston, and after all, everything had been all right.

The red-faced man had gone, leaving his newspaper on the seat, and Ana picked it up and tried to read it. But the print danced crazily before her eyes and her hands were so unsteady she could not hold the paper still. She put it down again and walked to the door.

The sun was not shining any longer—the world looked gray.

As she turned to go back to her chair something fell at her feet, and looking down she saw it was the rose which she had fastened into her coat so happily that morning. Its scented head drooped wearily on a limp stem as she picked it up, and she held it in her hand with a sense of foreboding.

Four o'clock!

The girl behind the desk was watching Ana with interested eyes, and taking her courage in both hands Ana went up to her.

"Mr. Hambledon did not say what time he would arrive?"

The girl shook her head.

"No; he just said some time today."

"I see." Ana hesitated. "Have you got a time-table?" she asked timidly. All her courage seemed to be oozing away. The girl gave her one and with nervous fingers she hunted up the time of the trains from Lyme Regis.

There was no other till about five o'clock that evening.

"I think Mr. Hambledon must have missed the morning train," she forced herself to say with stiff lips.

The girl at the desk smiled in kindly fashion.

"People often miss trains," she agreed. "Why don't you have some tea?"

Ana had some, but she felt like choking. Something had happened to him, she told herself wildly, or had Mollie—he and Mollie—she dared not speculate along those lines.

Five o'clock; half-past! Six o'clock; half-past! It was no longer a dream, but a cruel nightmare. Ana was faint and terrified.

He was dead—or injured—she would never see him again—she felt as if her fear would drive her mad.

Something had happened or he would never be so cruel as to leave her like this—something—suddenly she remembered Jessica's half-tolerant, half-sneering words—"Poor lamb, he had what the psychologists call a guilty complex—he tried to explain it."

Ana rose to her feet; she felt that she must get out into the fresh air or she would die.

She was vaguely conscious of someone coming toward her—a boy in uniform—one of the hotel boys. He was speaking to her, offering a telegram on a tray.

"Name of Fabian, miss?? Is this for you?"

"Oh!" Ana was conscious of a blinding relief that was almost agony. She could hardly breathe as she tore open the envelope. For the moment she had forgotten her fear: she only realized that no doubt this would explain.

It was a tragic explanation.

"General met with serious accident. Cannot possibly come. Forgive me. Will write. Anthony."

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

TUESDAY, APRIL 30, 1929

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

During the business hours of this day benefic aspects rule, according to astrology, but sinister stars guide those who would speculate.

The early morning should be an auspicious time to start new commercial ventures, if they have a solid foundation.

Much exploitation of worthless stocks may be expected and all who desire to prosper will turn deaf ears to siren songs about quick returns on precarious investments.

[illegible] those with legitimate projects may be unfortunate, it is not a time to seek financial or even moral support in any new venture.

Women are subject to a direction of the stars that is read as most unfortunate for them.

Quarrels between husbands and wives are believed to be prevalent under this planetary government. It is wise to turn the other cheek even when sadly provoked.

Cultivation of one's disposition should be a task much recommended while this sway continues. The fashion of poise and serenity should accompany the summer modes that revive old-time fashions.

This is a sway pre-eminently auspicious for banks and bankers. They will have opportunity to serve the nation in more than one way, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

Again the seers forecast unprecedented travel in Europe and in certain quarters a new understanding of Americans and a new friendliness for them.

Artists should profit much within the year for they will be in demand for public work, it is prognosticated.

This planetary government is encouraging to those who prepare for May day, but in many parts of the country the plenty of spring must be delayed.

Summer will come slowly in many states and only after renewed floods and many severe storms, astrologers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid quarrels and misunderstandings in the coming year, which will be perilous for certain business connections.

Children born on this day probably will be inclined toward artistic pursuits. The subjects of this sign Taurus often are unconventional and fond of Bohemian associations. They enjoy sports and outdoor amusements.

William Crane, clever actor, was born on this date, 1845.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

TIP TOP TAILORS

The Financial News Bureau is informed authoritatively that earnings of Tip Top Tailors Limited in the first three months of the current year ran between 27 and 28% over those of the corresponding period a year ago.

The common stock of Tip Top Tailors Limited has moved from a stand of about 32 at the first of 1928, through a slight depreciation during the summer months and up to a high of 47¾ at the beginning of 1929. The past couple of months, in line with general market conditions, has seen the stock selling at a lower level.

It is well known that stocks of chain stores sell at higher prices in relation to earnings than the average run of industrial stocks. There are several instances where chain store common stocks are selling at 20 to 30 times earnings. The reason for this may be explained by the fact that their large buying power provides low cost of raw materials; economies are made through large turnover and low overhead. In Canada, the chain clothing store businesses are few, and with the exception of Tip Top, are small. In 1928 Tip Top Tailors Limited earned $4.40 a share on the common stock. The stock at the present time is selling around 40, and in relation to other important chain enterprises, appears to be selling out of line.

The balance sheet for the year 1828 showed current assets at $1,813,985, as against current liabilities of $113,068. During the year $40,000 of preferred stock was retired. Gross profits for the year were $718,981, as against $541,581 for 1927.

Three years ago the present seven-story plant was doubled, and this is now found inadequate. To meet requirements 3½ acres have been acquired on Fleet street, where an up-to-date plant will be built. The company have 36 stores and 1,600 agencies from coast to coast, and there seems to be no reason why increase in business should not go hand in hand with increased prosperity in the country.

LOBLAW SALES TOTAL $14,865,899

The sales for Loblaw Groceterias Company, Limited, from the 1st of June, 1928, to the 28th of April, 1929, were $14,865,899 as against $12,555,866 for the corresponding period of last year, being an increase of $2,310,000 or over 18 per cent.

While sales for the fiscal year ending 31st May, 1928, totalled $13,975,186 it is evident from the comparative figures mentioned above that total sales for the current year will show a gratifying increase.

As the new certificates of the Class "A" and "B" stocks are now available in exchange for the old stock, notice has been given that the old stock will be withdrawn from trading on May 1st.

NEW YORK LIST RALLIES AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Market Continues Unsettled Due to Nervousness Over Credit Situation.

CALL MONEY AT 15.

Several Industrial Issues Receive Setbacks in Early Trading.

NEW YORK, April 29. ((C.P.)—Extreme nervousness over the credit situation brought about further unsettlement in to-day's stock market. Prices in a long list of standard industrials broke 1 to nearly 10 points in the early trading, but strong buying support appeared in the early afternoon and part of the losses were reduced, and a few wiped out, in the general rally which started at that time.

Call money renewed at 12 per cent, the highest opening figure since April 2, and advanced to 15, when it became apparent that the demand for funds exceeded the supply. Little fresh money was attracted to the market even at the higher figure, and fears of a further advance in the rate led to heavy selling for both accounts.

U. S. Steel Common was in the vanguard of the afternoon rally with buying influenced by expectations of an unusually favorable quarterly earnings after the close of the market to-morrow. Bethlehem Steel, on the other hand, sold down three points in the early trading, and was unable to make up the loss.

OIL SECTION LEADS TRADE

Ajax and Wainwell Oils Register Advances at Noon Quotations.

MINE LIST DULL.

TORONTO, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—A sudden ,heavy demand for Ajax and Wainwell oils placed these stocks in the lime-light on the Standard Mining Exchange today. The mining stocks drew little interest and showed only fractional changes in prices. Ajax, in a turnover of more than 380,000 shares sold up to a high of 140 with the noon price of 132 indicating a net advance of 37 cents. More than 129,000 shares of Wainwell changed hands with the price standing ½ cent higher at top ½. Associated Oil was up 20 at $4.60.

Abana gained 13 cents to $2.13, while Big Missouri reacted 11 cents to $1.64. Towagmac advanced 30 to $2.40 and Waite-Ackerman sold up 25 to $.3.75. Noranda was unchanged at $51.25.

The Lindsley section was irregular, with Sudbury easing 20 to $8.55, and Falconbridge 10 to $11.25, while Sherritt gained 5 to $8.40. Ventures was steady at $.9.75.

TRADING DULL TORONTO CURB

Prominent Stocks Hold Downward Tendency Although No Significant Prices Changes Registered.

LIST AGAIN NARROW.

TORONTO, Ont., April 29 (Canadian Press).—Reaction throughout the general list sent prices on an orderly downward trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Declines, however, were of no significance and were largely centred on the more prominent stocks. The list was again very narrow, with only a little more than 40 issues appearing in the list section of more than 160 stocks. Even Ford "A" which featured the list on Saturday, was subject to liquidation, showing a loss of 7-8 at 57¼. Walkers too dropped 1¼ to 76¾, while International Nickel was fractionally lower at 48 1-8. Canadian Oil slumped four points to 59, Canada Dredging one to 59, and Page Hersey and Massey Harris a point to 131½ and 72 respectively. Standard Paving came out 1½ points lower at 35½.

It rested with one of the newly listed cheaper-priced stocks to furnish the main interest of the session. Working in opposition to the predominating movement, Ajax Oil, after coming out around 1.10, shot up to a peak of 1.40, a net advance of 30 cents.

Wheat Turns Upward After Early Declines

CHICAGO, Ills, April 29. ((C.P.)—Wheat prices turned upward to-day after a wavering start. Complaints of too rank growth of wheat in parts of the southwest were current, leading to fears of crop damage from hot dry weather later on. Opening unchanged to 3-8c off wheat sagged a little more and then scored a general advance. Corn and oats were also firmer, with corn starting 1-4c lower to 5-8c up, and subsequently showing gains all around. Provisions tended downward.

Journeymen Plumbers Face Lock-out May 1

TORONTO, April 29. (C.P.)—Louis M. Singer, K. C., counsel for the Amalgamated Builders' Council, stated yesterday that differences between groups of master plumbers, all of whom belonged to the council, may result in a lockout of journeymen on May 1 by a number of firms employing large numbers of workmen with cards in local 46, United Brotherhood of Plumbers and Steamfitters. The situation was created by the withdrawal of these firms from the council shortly before a wage contract for 1928-29 was signed.

PUBLISHERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Canadian Press and Canadian Daily Newspapers Association Gather in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Publishers, editors and business managers of the hundred daily newspapers published in Canada are gathering in Toronto for their annual meeting. Last night saw the arrival of several well-known newspapermen who will attend the meeting to be held in the King Edward.

To-day and to-morrow the board of directors of the Canadian Press will convene preparatory to the annual general meeting of the organization, which will be held on Wednesday. Beginning Wednesday afternoon with the meeting of the board of directors, the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association will hold its annual meeting.

The Canadian Press represents the editorial and news-gathering departments of the newspapers, while the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association deals with the business side of the organization. J. H. Woods of the Calgary Herald is president of the Canadian Press and Henri Gagnon of Le Soleil, Quebec, head of the C.D.N.A.

Among the members of the Canadian Press directorate, who were already in the city last night were: J. H. Woods, Calgary Herald, E. H. MacKlin, the Manitoba Free Press, J. A. McNeill, Montreal Gazette; E. J. Archibald, Montreal Star; F. J. Burd, Vancouver Province; M. E. Nichols, Winnipeg Tribune, E. Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal, and Henri Gagnon, Le Soleil, Quebec.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE SUPERFICIAL.

Americans are sometimes accused of being superficial. The Europeans love to remind us that we have not the patience to develop great scholars, great artists, and substantial manufactured products. It is true that our ready-made clothes shed their buttons at the slightest provocation. Children's tops do well to survive the first day of use and abuse. The workmanship on our homes is not always a thing to brag of.

One cause for superficiality is the pressure of mass production—in our educational system as well as in our industries. Numbers mean everything in most institutions.

The rapid pace at which we live, moreover, and the frequent change of styles in everything from coffee pots to college educations makes it inadvisable to build to last.

Who wants his automobile to last for ever? The man who drives last year's model car can appreciate the feelings of his wife who is wearing last season's hat.

If Americans are more superficial than other people,and this is very much to be doubted, it is because they are more extravagant, more active, and live under greater pressure of machinery and mass production.

The fact is that we are all superficial to a degree. Why should we kill ourselves making a perfect job of the thousand and one things we are called upon to do each day? Life is short, and there are many things to do and enjoy.

We actually can't afford the time nor the strength to be accurate and painstaking in every thing. If we should take our reading seriously, for example, and read the newspapers and magazines as carefully and thoroughly as we read our scientific text books we would have little time for our specialties Unconsciously we specialize and reserve our thoroughness for the one thing by which we earn our daily bread on the thing which is our hobby. It is not easy, however, to be careless ten hours a day and extremely cautious and thorough even one hour—hence our apparent superficiality.

Of course the real reason why we are superficial is that we are lazy. We scratch the surface because it takes too much energy to go down deep either in plowing a field or in reading a book. The moving pictures are certainly a lot easier to look at than a Shakespearian play.

After all, every person has just about so much time and energy. If he wants to cover a larger area with them he must necessarily spread out rather thin. An dif he spreads out thin and dabbles in a lot of things people are bound to call him superficial.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

WINDSOR MEN INSPECT CITY

Come To Investigate Street Cleaning System in Vogue Here.

CONSIDER SWEEPERS.

Progressive measures toward street cleanliness, as well as other civic features of Peterborough that have attracted the attention of many Ontario cities, were subjects of close observation by a group of six Windsor officials to-day, the party being accompanied by His Worship Mayor Roland Denne on a tour of inspection.

The visiting personnel, which arrived over the week-end, comprised Herbert Wilson and Frank P. Mitchell, commissioners and ex-mayors of the border city; Commissioner Tom Eansor, City Engineer Edward Brian, Fire Chief Clarence DeFields and Leo McLaughlin. Mr. Mitchell is known locally through his identification with the Border Transit Company, which operates the city bus lines.

One of the subjects under observation was Peterborough's dustless sweeper, whose nocturnal operations, however valuable to the cleanliness of the city, have, perhaps, escaped the notice of many Peterborough folk.

It is understood that the visitors contemplate recommending the purchase of two such machines for their city. The Windsor men were guests of the Peterborough Rotary Club at noon to-day.

Orangemen Entertained.

Several Reels of Motion Pictures Are Shown By F. L. Roy.

The Orange Hall was well filled on Thursday evening last, to see a number of reels of motion pictures shown under the personal direction of Fred L Roy. Mr. Roy showed movies of the last Orange parade held in this city on July 12th, 1928, events leading up to the start of Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic and at the close of that wonderful flight, with General Allenby in Palestine, and a tour of the British Isles and Europe during 1928. All of these pictures proved very interesting and entertaining and were thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience present. The Harmonica Band under the direction of Fred Ball rendered several selections of popular numbers and the one and only Max Peters, gave a couple of humorous recitations which brought down the house.

At the close of the program the thanks of those present was extended to Mr. Roy and those taking part in the program, and the hope was expressed that the pictures may be shown again in the near future.

MISSION CIRCLE IS ENTERTAINED

Misses Wright and Wood Are Hostesses To Twenty Girls.

Misses Edith Wright and Zetta Wood were joint hostesses to the members of the X L Mission Circle on Friday evening at the home of the latter on Lansdowne Avenue.

About twenty girls were present, including three new members, and enjoyed the interesting program.

Connie Wagar, the president, occupied the chair. The meeting opened with the doxology, followed by prayer, which was softly sung in the words, "Prayer changes things," all joining in the Lord's Prayer. The scripture lesson was chosen from the fifth chapter of Romans, verses one to eleven, and read by Aileen Rose.

Jean Patterson presented the subject, "Givings, from a girl's viewpoint," in a clever reading from which three viewpoints were evolved.

First—To give thought for the good and the happiness of others. Second—To give one-tenth of all our money to the Lord. Third—To give myself for service. There was no discussion following the reading of the paper, but a hush fell upon the little company. Each one present was considering life from a new viewpoint.

Reports were given, the treasurer showing that the Circle's finances were in good condition at the close of the first quarter. The roll call and minutes were given by the secretary. The study for the month was taken from "Drums in the Darkness," given in a most interesting story told by Mabel Dulmage. Tracing the history of an old African chief from heathenism into the Christian life, and showing the wonderful change this brought, not only to himself but to all with whom he came in contact. Part of the business of the evening was spent in making plans for the future. A delightful social hour was then spent, and a dainty luncheon served by the hostesses.

LUMBER FALLS ON PARKED CAR

Police Issue Warning That Vicinity of Kingan Store is Dangerous.

WORKERS NOT LIABLE.

On Saturday a piece of lumber fell from the top of the old Kingan Hardware Building, now being razed, and crashed through the top of a sedan car that was parked on Simcoe street near the building. Following this the police are issuing the warning to motorists that they park their cars at their own risk near or about the corner where operations on the razing of the Kingan Hardware building are taking place, in preparation for the erection of the Kresge store The contractors, state the police, have placed boarding around the building to protect pedestrians, and they can not be held liable for any damage caused through falling timber or brick to cars that are deliberately parked there in the face of the obvious danger.

Around the City

After the warm, June-like sunshine of Saturday and the gentle, intermittent showers of yesterday, the thermometer took a decided drop last night. A cold north wind blew and the lowest degree registered for the past few days, 28 degrees, showed on the thermometer this morning. It was snowing this morning at 3 o'clock, according to one man whose work keeps him up all night.

Tax Payments Earlier.

Property owners in the city will this year be called upon to make the first of three payments of their taxes nearly two weeks earlier than usual, acording to notices being posted from the city tax collector's office. Last year the first payment was required to be made by July 9, but this year ahs been changed to June 28, while subsequent payments will be required to be made by September 7 and November 7.

Climb On War Memorial.

A shocking offence against the dignity of Peterborough's new war memorial on Confederation Square was reported this morning by a local man who stated that on Saturday night, about ten o'clock he saw two men, apparently in a serious state of intoxication, perched as high as they could climb on the memorial. Yet another man repored to The Examiner on Saturday that despite the fact that fresh grass seed had recently been sown on the square, some thoughtless person had tramped directly across the plot near the memorial, leaving large imprints in the soft turf.

Has Local Manager.

When the new Tip-Top Tailors' store opens in Peterborough at 329 George street, its manager will be one whose identification with the men's clothing business in this city has extended over a period of years, namely, W. K. Sloan.

Having gained a wide connection through the city by his work with the Regent Tailors over a period of five and a half years, Mr. Sloan's choice was a popular one with the executive heads of the Tip Top Tailors and shoud be the means of attracting a large patronage to the new store.

This Friday, May) at nine o'clock in the morning, the polls of the city will be thrown open and the Peterborough voting public will be expected to express its opinion regarding the disposition of three by-laws being submitted for approval by the City Council. Who may and may not vote on any or all of the three by-laws, are as follows:

On the Daylight Savings by-law, all persons may vote whose names appeared oi the voters' list of the last municipal election.

On the Nicholls Hospital Money by-law, all owners who are supporters of Public schools.

On the Inverlea Park Improvement by-law, all owners of property may vote.

St. John's Ambulance.

The local branch of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, which has been recently started thorugh the efforts of a few old members will hold its second meeting on Tuesday evening of this week in the Legion Hall. The first meeting last week was most successful and the organization promises to take an important place in the city's life. Dr. Murray Fraser will lecture on some of the principles of the work and the experienced members will demonstrate.

London Clergyman Is Coming To George Street

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of the Wesley United Church, London, will succeed Rev. J. E. Todd as pastor of the George street United church. Mr. Todd has completed four successful years as pastor of George street, during which time the church has enjoyed prosperity and an outstanding activity in the religious life of the city. Several months ago Mr. Todd accepted the call to the Central church, Calgary.

Mr. Millyard is a graduate of Victoria College, University of Toronto. He has been pastor in some of the largest churches in Western Ontario, was president of the London Conference, and has gained a wide reputation as a preacher. Mr. Millyard will take over the pastorate of George St. early in July.

CATHOLIC WOMENS MISSION IS BROUGHT TO SUCCESSFUL CLOSE

Impressive Service Held in St. Peter's Cathdral On Sunday Afternoon.

RENEW BAPTISMAL VOWS.

Rev. Father Connolly Delivers Lecture At Opening of Men's Renewal.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in spite of a steady downpour of rain, more than nine hundred women flocked to St. Peter's Cathedral for the final exercise of the renewal of their mission. While the ceremonies of the week were all very impressive Sunday's was even more so. At the close of a sermon on Baptism, after the missionary had extolled the munificence of this Divine gift and after he had pointed out that unlike many other gifts of God, it was conditional and entailed the fulfilment of promises on the part of the recipient, the whole congregation rose and solemnly renewed their baptismal vows They were asked by the missionary if they believed in God, in His Son Jesus Christ, and in the Catholic Church, and to each question they answered, "I do believe." They were then asked if they renounced satan and his works and pomps and to these they replied, "I do renounce" The missionary then gave the people the Papal blessing and brought the beautiful week to a close with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The sermon at High Mass was delivered by Rev. Father Keogh. He took for his subject Faith. After quoting highly laudatory words of a non-Catholic clergyman in praise of the Catholic faith, he urged his hearers to a still higher and better appreciation of it. "In order to appreciate it, however," he added, "you must know it and put it into practice."

Rev. Father O'Hara, the third missionary of the present band in charge of St. Peter's renewal, had to leave on Friday last for Sault Ste Marie, where he will be engaged for the next three weeks. Father O'Hara was replaced by Rev. Father Connolly, a veteran missionary of the Redemptorist Order. Father Connolly preached missions in these parts over twenty-five years ago. He was agreeably surprised at the wonderful changes that have taken place in Peterborough and in St. Peter's Church in that length of time. There were many parishioners who recognized Father Connolly as he rose to address the congregation on Saturday evening for the first time. He also opened the men's renewal last night with a powerful sermon on the importance of salvation.

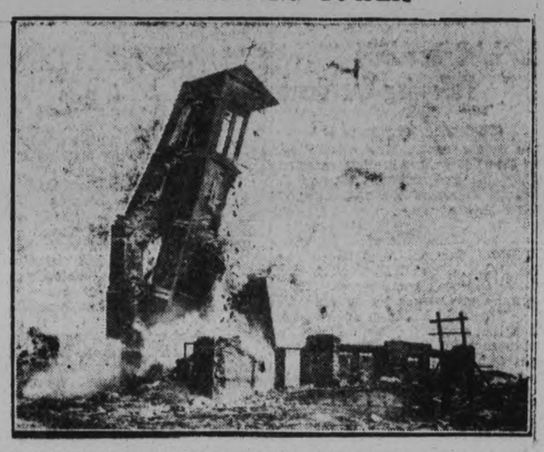
DYNAMITING TOWER



An unusual photograph of a brick tower falling after having been dynamited. The tower is part of a church in Seattle that was razed during operations in connection with the leveling of a 150 foot hill in the business district of the city.

When their "Moth" airplane went into a nosedive and crashed at the Leaside airport, Toronto, on April 23, William K. Mackenzie, 27, and Noel C. Marshall, 24, both of Toronto, pilot and passenger respectively, were instantly killed. The airplane, property of the Toronto Flying Club, burst into flames upon hitting the ground. Both were apt pupils. Cause of the accident is yet unknown. The layout here shows: (1) Mrs. William Mackenzie, wife of the dead pilot, and her baby, (2) William Kirkland Mackenzie, who was piloting the airplane, and was instantly killed (photo by J. Kennedy). (3) Noel C. Marshall, passenger in the "Moth" also killed.

You are invited to listen in, Wrigley Review, Monday evenings, 8 to 9, CKNC, Toronto-CFCF, Montreal.

A feeling of strain takes the pleasure out of driving. Any motorist is apt to feel the effects of nervous tension during a long spell at the wheel.

Nothing relieves this tension so effectively as Wrigley's. The act of chewing, as motorists have discovered, has a gentle soothing effect. The healthful cleansing action of Wrigley's refreshes the mouth—steadies the nerves. Ask your doctor and he will tell you so.

Dentists and medical men recommend the regular use of Wrigley's after every meal—because it aids digestion and cleanses the mouth after eating, drinking or smoking.

Efficiency and refinement call for Wrigley's.

TEACHER HONORED.

Bethel Y. P. U. Presents Club Bag to Miss Eva Gardner.

EAST EMILY, April 29. — The Young People's Union of the Bethel United Church held its regular meeting recently, Harry Jackson acting as president. The devotional part was taken by Miss Marion Storey and the topic was given by Milton Sherin, taking for his talk, "The Prodigal Son", after which the social part of the meeting was ably taken by Rev. J. T. Blanchard.

After the program Miss Eva Gardner, who has been teaching in S.S. No. 13, for the past three years, and who took an active part in Sunday school and league work, was called to the platform and was presented with a beautiful leather club bag. The presentation was made by Miss Dorothy Sherin and Marjorie Ruth. An appropriate address was read by Mrs. Harry Deyell

Miss Gardener, although taken by surprise, in a few well chosen words, thanked her friends for their kind appreciation of her services given while laboring among them in Bethel community. Rev. J. T. Blanchard and others spoke in glowing terms of Miss Gardener's energetic work both in the church and day school. During the evening there were two contests put on, which made it very interesting for the young people. The first was "A Can" contest and "A Love Song" contest. A dainty lunch was served and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent.

TAKE OPTION ON MINE LANDS

Large Silica Vein Running Near Village of Marmora Attracts Prospective Purchasers.

HIGHEST GRADE.

MARMORA, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — T. E. Potts and J. Blakely have taken a registered option on seven acres of the property of Ben Demas adjoining the corporation limits and the C.N.R. track to Cordova. This option has been taken because of a large vein of silica eleven hundred feet in length and seven hundred feet wide with a depth of forty-five feet. Assays have shown the silica to be of highest grade. Mr. Potts is negotiating for the sale of this product, being inclined to sell by the carload or to dispose of it outright to a buyer who will operate.

Personals.

Mr. George Franklin is in a very poor state of health.

Mr. R. M. Fee, of Lindsay, spent Friday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts spent Friday and Saturday in Toronto.

A party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gray on Friday evening.

Mr. Dougald Sanderson has taken the rooms over Lummiss & Bonter's store.

Mr. William Gray is convalescing after his recent illness.

gash in the neck. Miss Alice King and Frank King, her brother, received minor cuts and bruises. Barnard T. Labroqe, driver of the car, escaped with a shaking up.

Child Injured.

TORONTO, Ont., April 29 (Canadian Press).—Francis Brierly, 5, was critically injured here Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile. The child has been unconscious since the accident. He suffered a fractured skull and fractures of the right arm and leg.

According to the police, the child ran from behind a parked car directly in the path of the moving car. The driver of the car was not held by the police.

HOLDS MEETING.

Warsaw Ladies Dispose of Much Business at Regular Gathering.

WARSAW, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—In spite of the rain, a fair representation of the United Church Woman's Association met at Mrs. James Hawthorne's home on Thursday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Herrington made two trips each way to insure some of the village ladies being there. After the opening exercises, there was a discussion on the lunch question. It was finally decided to serve a limited lunch, for the sake of sociability.

Mrs. Robert Matthews and Mrs. Allan Payne were appointed to see that the church is properly draped for funerals. These two ladies are responsible for flowers in the church during the month of May. If any ladies have plants or flowers they would lend or give at any time, they will be gladly received.

A letter was read from Mrs. O. B. McIlvena, Young's Point, resigning her position as assistant organist, as she has moved away, and expressing her appreciation of the meetings.

Mrs. Stewart Clysdale was appointed assistant organist.

During May, June, July and August if the weather is favorable, the meetings will be held out of doors.

It was proposed, but not fully decided upon, to have the June meeting devoted to mother and babies.

After the closing prayer, refreshments were served, and there was an especially merry time, as a guest read the tea cups.

Preparing to Build

Mr. Drain is clearing away the debris, preparatory to building a new place for the bank. This one is to be of cement. The bank building is to be done before the school.

Cattle Taken to Ranches

Already cattle are being taken to their summer ranches. Seventy head are back on the Bryson place.

The rain on Thursday was welcome to all but those who had fields prepared for sowing. The land was getting dry for plowing or cultivating. The grass and wheat look beautifully green.

Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Sargent celebated the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding on Thursday evening, April 25. The celebration was a very quiet one. Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Herrington, who did not know it was a wedding anniversary, were the only guests, besides their only son, Wesley Sargent and his wife, from Lakefield.

Mrs. Sargent had gone to much pains to prepare the supper, which was much enjoyed, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Renovating Home

J. A. Crowe is tearing down the old verandah at the front of his house. Mr. Crowe is of the opinion that thoroughly renovating an old house, is about as much work as building. He is making the old Reid house a much improved dwelling. The interior is about finished.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, April 29 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Mr. Charles Duncalfe, former constable and chief of police here, has accepted the position of chief of police in Deseronto. His duties are to commence there, May 1.

Mrs. Fred Free was the soloist in St. John's United Church yesterday evening. She sang, "O Lord, Be Merciful" (Bartlett). There were also two anthems by the choir, "But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own", from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul"; and "Lord of Heaven," by Rossi.

The Rev. R. C. Tait and Mr. G. A. Ironside were in Peterborough last week visiting Dr. W. F. Loucks and Mr. J. C. Birmingham, who are ill in hospital there.

Work is soon to commence on three Hydro rural extensions, it was learned Saturday. These lines will be at Hoard's, Menie and in Rawdon township to the north of Hoard's. Seventeen new contracts have been let this season for this kind of work.

The Canadian Legion has secured Logan's Merry Makers to supply the music for their dance, May 10.

The Rev. L. H. Currie, Toronto, occupied the pulpit in St. John's United Church at the regular morning service yesterday and in the evening was the preacher at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. William A. Newcourt, A.L.C.M., took his place as organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at the morning service yesterday for the first time. Mr. Newcourt comes as the successor to Prynce Y. Nesbitt of Merriton.

GETTING SKINNIER EVERY DAY

Something Must Be Done and Done Right Now—Quick

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 29. — Rallying from a weak start, wheat recovered Saturday to a close at 1-8c to 3-8c higher for the day. Heavy commission house selling brought a break of 1 3-8c in the first half-hour, but short covering brought support and the comeback was marked by steadiness at the close. Buying was mixed and of fair volume.

With light offerings cash wheat trade was slow. No. 1 Northern traded 1-2c over the May price and No. 4 was 1-4c easier, but the other grades were almost unchanged. Oats futures held steady as the result of good cash business, especially in Nos. 1 and 2 feed. Barley sales were light, interest in rye was negligible and flax trade was small.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 29.—Butter and cheese held steady at the price established during the week. These were 2 cents per pound lower than during the previous week and a further reduction would not be unexpected. Egg prices ruled steady.

Potatoes remained at the prices which were advanced 10 cents during last week following interruption to shipments by bad road conditions and a stiffening in the United States market.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 29. — Every low-price record for the season was outdone in the wheat market Saturday, but rallying power developed and most of the losses were offset. Announcement of a reduction in export rates on wheat shipped to the Gulf of Mexico from country points in the South-West did a good deal to counterbalance prices breaks here, which had resulted largely from unexpected sharp downturns Saturday in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Chances of final passage of the farm bill this week tended also to lift prices in the late dealings.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, 5-8c net lower to ¼c advance. Corn finished 3-8c to 7-8c up, oats at 1-8c decline to ¼c to 3-8c gain, and provisions varying from 20c setback to a rise of 5c.

Before the market began to recover values dropped to more than 13c a bushel under recent top figures. In addition to unlooked for weakness which the Liverpool market showed as a result of heavy offerings from Canada and Argentina, depression was caused by persistent selling out on the part of holders of contracts for May delivery of wheat in Chicago. It is expected that deliveries of wheat on these contracts May 1 and thereafter will assume large proportions, and this outlook was apparently not relished by many traders who had given standing orders to let go at various set limits and thus put a stop to further losses.

Corn Turns Upward.

Corn developed strength sooner than was the case with wheat. Except at the start, buyers of corn were in a majority. Unsettled weather served to increase misgivings about delay to planting. Besides, shipping demand here was good. Receipts of corn were small and were expected to continue so for several weeks. A good-sized reduction of the corn visible supply total today was looked for. Oats were unsettled owing to somewhat adverse conditions hindering progress of the crop in sections just seeded. Scattered liquidating sales of May holdings made the provision market average lower.

TWENTY TONS OF EXPLOSIVES USED

changed to the parallel system. When everything was in readiness, the tunnel was backfired with eight carloads of screenings and two of back fill

Last Blast Larger

The shot fired on Saturday morning, large as it was, is not the largest fired in these same quarries. In 1923, a blast was fired which contained a load of thirty-one tons of dynamite. The break on that occasion was 218,000 tons. The present break will be well over half of that amount.

The quarry is located about three miles east of this village and a little north of the Havelock-Marmora road. The rock is taken from its natural place and crushed to various sizes. It is excellent material for road surfacing and is used extensively in this district and in outlying places as well. In the handling of the rock, such blasts as were fired on Saturday are rare occurrences.

Although it might have been expected by some that considerable damage would be done when such an enormous quantity of explosive was detonated at once; there was, as far as could be readily seen, very little property or equipment interfered with. A steel cable, supporting a derrick was snapped by the rock and some holes were punched in the roof of a boiler house to the southwest of the face. Some of the rails close to the scene were damaged. The broken rock is expected to meet the requirements of the company for more than a year.

The original time set for touching off the blast was eleven o'clock. These arrangements were altered at the last minutes in order that a party from Toronto might be present. It was understood that these men were deeply interested in the proceedings.

MARMORA LIBRARY GETS NEW PICTURES

C.P.R. Agent Instrumental in Obtaining Two Reproductions —New Books Listed.

MARMORA, April 27.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— March has been a very successful month in every way for the Marmora Public Library. The west wall of the interior has been adorned with two beautiful pictures of scenes in the Canadian Rockies. These pictures were given by the Canadian Pacific Railway through the efforts of C. A. Bleecker, local agent. A large number of books and magazines were donated during the month. WEDDING BELLS

CRONIN—BRENNAN

HAVELOCK, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—A pretty spring wedding took place at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Havelock, when Margaret Helen, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Brennan became the bride of Jack Cronin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cronin, Kirkfield.

Rev. Father McCarthy officiated, while Mrs. J. H. Moore played the Wedding March.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a graceful gown of blue georgette, a close-fitting hat of beige mohair and shoes to match and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses, lily of the valley, and fern.

Miss Jerry O'Connell of Peterborough attended the bride, wearing a gown of beige georgette, with a mohair hat to match and black satin shoes, and carrying an old-fashioned nosegay bouquet. William Cronin, brother of the bridegroom acted as best man.

A wedding breakfast was held after the wedding at the home of the bride's parents.

Later the happy couple left on a short motor trip, the bride travelling in a coat of blue broadcloth, light shoes with hat to match.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a fox fur, to the bridesmaid, an aquamarine pendant; to the best man, a Waldemar chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Cronin will reside in Norwood on their return.

CAVAN COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

Communications Received and Dealt With During Meeting in Millbrook.

COMPLAINTS HEARD.

MILLBROOK, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — At the meeting of the Cavan Council, held on Wednesday, communications were received from the Ontario Municipal Association regarding the Old-Age Pensions Bill and from the office of the District Superintendent of Postal Service regarding condition of road on Concession 6 East. The clerk was instructed to reply stating that this section of the road would receive the necessary attention. A letter was also received from the Ontario Department of Agriculture, regarding Weed Control Act, instructing the council to appoint an inspector for the township and forward the name of same to the district agricultural representative.

William Francey waited on the council, complaining because of water running off the road and on to his property, and expressing the conviction that this should be drained into the ditches. Councillor Thorne and the road superintendent were appointed a committee to look into the matter. T. Richardson waited on the council asking a rebate in taxes on account of fire, and Mr. Richardson was granted a rebate of $4.80 on his tax account. Joseph Lancashire presented a bill for brush cutting and asked a grant for a wire fence. The bill was ordered paid.

On motion the clerk was instructed to write the superintendent of the C. N. Railway, asking he or his representative to meet a committee from the council at Carmel Station, said committee to request that a waiting-room be erected at the Concession Line, north of the station, and to have trains stop there for the accommodation of passengers.

J. N. McGill was appointed Weed Inspector for 1929.

The following accounts were ordered paid:

S. B. Beare, Ltd., account stationery, $6.80; J. N. McGill, express on stationery, 40c; Telephone Company, account, $3.32; Treasury Hope Township, boundary account, $215.51; J. Hutchison, P.S. Road No. 6, Q. L., $52.50; G. F. Bothwell, P.S. Road No. 7, West, $7.00; T. Richardson, rebate tax account, fire, $4.80; J. H. McKnight, P.S. Road No. 6, West, $15.25; F. J. Lewers, P.S. GARRISON NOTES

Machine Gun Officers Meet

A huge reunion of Machine Gun officers is to be held in Toronto from May 23 to 25th. The reunion will be one of the most complete and ambitious affairs of its type ever attempted in Canada.

Invitations have been sent out to every Canadian Machine Gun officer of the Canadian Corps overseas, Machine Gun officers of Imperial units now residing in Canada, and every officer now attached to Machine Gun militia units.

Every province in Canada will be amply represented, and acceptances have been received from Great Britain, France, and the United States. The local company, under Major Dodds, will likely be represented.

Housewives endorse this purely vegetable product

DOMESTIC SHORTENING has been tested in a multitude of Canada's homes, and found perfect.

It took years to develop and perfect this purely vegetable product. Made by a special process. It contains no animal fat. As shortening it is superior to lard. Better to use than the best butter because Domestic is as good as butter—costs less—and you use ¼ less.

Use Domestic. You'll have light, flaky piecrusts, delicious pastry, rich, smooth-textured cakes. Splendid for frying—use it over and over again—no taste or odour carried from one food to another—never a disagreeable smoke at high temperatures needed for good frying.

Domestic is homogenized. That means added smoothness and finer texture to cakes and pastry. Everywhere grocers and butchers sell Domestic Shortening in 5-lb. and 3-lb. pails and 1-lb. cartons.

Try this Pie Recipe

Rich Flaky Pastry

1 cup Flour — ½ cup Domestic Shortening
½ teaspoon Salt — ¼ cup Ice Water

Mix and sift together the flour and salt. Reserve 2 tablespoons Domestic Shortening. Work in the remainder, with a fork or knife. Add only enough ice water to hold the ingredients together. Toss on a slightly floured board, dust with flour. Lightly roll out the mixture into rectangular shape. Spread the remaining Domestic Shortening on this to within an inch of the edge, roll up like a jelly roll, and lightly roll out. Again roll up, repeat this twice, in order to obtain flaky pastry when it is baked. To line the plate, roll the paste into a thin sheet, cut into a round that will extend beyond the plate 1 inch all around. Set the paste on the plate and fold the edge over to meet the plate. Flute this double edge of paste with the thumbs and forefingers, pressing each flute down on the edge of the plate. Pour in the custard filling. Bake in a hot oven at first to bake the pastry (375° F.) for 10 minutes, so that the filling will not soak in. Then reduce the heat and bake 30 minutes.

Filling for Custard Pie

e Eggs — 2½ cups Milk
½ teaspoon Salt — 1 teaspoon Vanilla
⅓ cup Sugar — Few gratings of Nutmeg

Beat the eggs slightly, add the salt, sugar and beat until well mixed. Add the milk and vanilla and mix thoroughly. Strain the mixture into the uncooked shell, sprinkle with nutmeg.

He Purchased a Box and Found Relief

Several Other Remedies Tried Without Success

"About five years ago I was troubled with Sore Back, so bad I could scarcely walk about," writes Mr. Angus J. MacDonald, Creignish Rear, N.S. "I tried many remedies, but no good results followed. One day I purchased a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I venture to say that I owe my life to them. To anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills." For almost three generations Dodd's Kidney Pills have been the standard remedy for Backache, Rheumatism and Ailments arising from Faulty Kidneys. They strike at the seat of the trouble, the Kidneys. That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Bartot

HOW WE DIFFER FROM ONE ANOTHER

Those of us who have had an opportunity of examining athletes representing all branches of athletics come across many little peculiarities about the outer part of the body. Differences in the individual as to color of eyes, insides of chest, one side usually well developed, the other side lacking a portion of the huge chest muscle; one leg longer than the other; one foot longer or wide than the other; an extra toe or finger; bony lumps on different parts of the body; and other unusual conditions.

Now these individuals are all athletes in excellent condition able to take part in the most strenuous forms of sport. These outward peculiarities have little or no effect upon their health or strength. Similarly there are differences inside such as an extra rib on one side, an extra loop of intestine, some of the bones of the spinal column that have grown together, peculiarities in the shape of bones or organs. And these little peculiarities, generally speaking give no trouble; do not interfere with the working of the body in any way.

However, there are some peculiarities or differences from normal that do have an effect upon the individual's health and happiness and physicians are now seriously studying this matter.

For instance, the ductless or endocrine glands in the body have a regulating influence on the different processes. The thyroid gland working properly is like the proper draft for a stove or furnace; the fuel burns well and gives its maximum of heat and minimum of ash. If the thyroid gland is too active, it is like a forced draft in a furnace which burns up the fuel in a short space of time. If the thyroid is not secreting sufficiently the draft is poor and the fuel, instead of being burned or used, is stored away as fat in the body.

The adrenal glands, one above each kidney, have a sort of check on the thyroid gland and help to slow up and strengthen processes which would be rapid and weak.

And so with other ductless glands.

You can readily see therefore that when a physician undertakes the treatment of a case he must keep these facts in mind.

Further, you and I inherit some little peculiarities of mind or mannerisms from our parents, and this likewise the physician has to keep in mind. He can quite calmly tell one person that he has an organic heart ailment and also quietly outline a manner of life that must be undertaken.

With another individual, with a condition much less serious, he must use the most careful and cheering language possible, or the individual will sink into the depths of despair.

The annual Pageant of the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association is a yearly most successful event that is looked forward to by the hundreds of young girls and women who take gymnasium instruction in the popular classes conducted by Miss Caroline Littlefield.

The program this year promises to be just as good, if not better than ever, and the same bumper audiences of two nights which have greeted the efforts of the "Y" and its girls for past years will doubtless be accorded them again on May 10th and 11th, in the Grand Opera House.

The dances are always a very entertaining portion of the Pageant program. This year, something quite unique is planned in a Flower Ballet that calls forth beauty and grace and much color in its presentation. The story of this dance is interesting.

"Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," in an old-fashioned frock and poke bonnet and pantalettes (Sophie Yeotes) has an old time garden with a corps of faithful gardeners and plenty of flowers. It has butterflies, too, fluttering about the fragrant blooms, and they come flying in, in soft chiffon draperies that have velvet-like chintz flowers applied to them.

The gardeners (Senior School girls' class), wear overalls of flowered chintz, and they join with the mischievous flowers, in a gay and lazy time, while Mary is absent.

First the dainty forget-me-nots, in true forget-me-not blue of stiff dancing tulle, and little Dresden hats appear. These are baby dancers and they are followed by the stately wall flowflowers and the geraniums in their red gowns, with tulle wristlets on bare arms, and a geranium petal hat placed jauntily over one eye. The sunflowers, in orange and green pointed frocks, and the saucy pansies in pansy shades of purple, green and yellow, and little Johnny-Jump-Up pansy hats, fastened with a ribbon under the chin, join in the fun, which takes place against a flowery, panelled wall.

Dancing girls simulating a summer breeze are in chiffon frocks of pastel tints and they do a dance that interprets a soft breeze.

Mary, with her mauve tulle frock, and her big white dog, appears, and scolds the gardeners and the naughty flowers in pantomine.

The flowers subside and the gardeners resume their duties. The breeze comes back again, this time to wave quietly over the demure flower beds.

The curtain comes down on the Flower Ballet.

OLD SONGS

MARMORA, April 29.—(Examiner correspondence.)—The following song, "Begone Dull Care," was taught me at school as being one of the oldest of English songs:

Begone, Dull Care.

Begone dull care, I prithee be gone from me,
Begone dull care, you and I shall never agree.
Long time hast thou been tarrying here,
And fain thou wouldest me kill,
But begone dull care, thou never shalt have thy will.

Too much care will make a young man turn grey,
And too much care will turn an old man to clay.
My wife shall dance and I shall sing,
So merrily pas sthe day:
Or I hold it one of the wisest things
To drive dull care away.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

I have been enjoying your daily contributions to The Examiner, as well as the neighbors letters.

Your "Whatnot" on Wednesday had two very seasonable topics. The first part, which described ways and means of resting and relaxing after hard work or when tired, is particularly appropriate just now.

Housecleaning is always a busy time, because the hundred and one other daily tasks about the home have to be attended to as well.

So that we need to be reminded that we can at least take short rests and should plan to do so, if only for a few minutes at a time.

The latter part of your Whatnot containing the splendid poem on gossip is timely in all seasons, because gossip is not confined to any time or place.

The view that the author takes, "That the person who listens to gossip and encourages it, is just as guilty as the one who tells it," is quite the right idea.

There are so many evil tales circulated, that are often utterly untrue, that it would be well if a real campaign were launched against it.

And even if some of the tales ARE true, why repeat them?

Somebody is carrying a sad heart over it. Why add to their burden?

Concerning women helping with outside work on the farm. I think there should be no hard and fast rule; discretion should be used.

There is no other business in life, which, to be a success, must be so truly a partnership as that of farming.

Half of the pleasure of home life would be taken away were there "no changing work."

Each should be ready to help out if possible in times of special need.

In the spring when rainy days are frequent, and before the men-folk are started at their regular spring work, is a splendid time to have the men help at house-cleaning.

This year I had paper and paint bought ahead, in anticipation of just such a time. Consequently I had three rooms papered and painted very early, my husband doing the paper-hanging and assisting at the painting. It was a wonderful help to me and the work seemed easy. It is very much more pleasant when there are two working, than when there is only one.

Then when the outside Spring work began to cause a rush, I did not mind at all, assisting with the milking, night and morning, and also intend to help put in the garden.

This will not be drudgery at all, because I know that I do not HAVE to do it, but just in the interests of our home, think it only reasonable to help.

After the crop is in, things will go back to their regular order, and I will have more leisure.

Where help is scare, as it is on almost every farm, the work needs to be planned and shared, with due regard to health and strength.

It is very pleasant at this season to have the opportunity of being out in the fresh air while working at the garden and lawn.

At other times when possible, I, too, think a great deal of our work can be done on a porch.

A dining room on a screened-in porch is very pleasant and saves work in the house.

Farming, if not made into drudgery, is a very pleasant healthy life, with many privileges not to be had elsewhere.

After all, it is our own attitude towards our work, which decides whether it is a pleasure or a burden.

"God's in His Heaven, all's well with the world."

I have gotten some splendid ideas and help in my spring house-cleaning from the neighbors' letters, and have enjoyed the various topics discussed.

It is a very sociable helpful circle and your "Whatnots" add the finishing touch.

Yours sincerely,
Ruralite."

I'm delighted to hear from you again, 'Ruralite," especially with this nice, long, friendly letter. It's nice to know that the neighbor's hints helped in house-cleaning.

My Dear Marion:

Have been going to write you for some time, but due to being very busy and a bit careless about my correspondence, I'm here at last. Like all the rest of the neighbors I look forward to and enjoy your Whatnots and the various letters of the neighbors as well as appreciating the hints. Here is one which I have found an excellent labor saver. I place my flat silver (knives, forks and spoons, etc.) in a basin of fresh or nearly fresh buttermilk and let stand for several hours, then wash with soap and water in the usual way and invariably find that no matter how badly it may have been tarnished the buttermilk will remove it.

I am enclosing coupon for pattern also fashion book. We all appreciate your kindness in securing these patterns, so reasonably, for us. I had clipped a number of dress patterns, and really, I found it just a little hard to decide which one I liked best. They were all so pretty and decidedly smart.

Yours, with all good wishes.
Meadow-lark.

Thank you for your kinds words about our pages, "Meadow-lark," and for your hint, which I'm sure will be appreciated.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

The ability to make good sandwiches is decidedly worthwhile. And no young woman nowadays should consider herself even a fair amateur cook until he knows the A.B.C., if not the X. Y. Z., of sandwich making. There are good-sized, satisfying sandwiches for picnics, dainty, delicately flavored sandwiche for tea time, miniature appetizing sandwiches to be passed with cool drinks, luscious sandwiches for luncheon or supper at home, open sandwiches, toasted sandwiches, rolled sandwiches—all sorts of sandwiches for all sorts of occasions.

Certain rules apply to the making of all sandwiches and these are worth taking down in your mental note book.

Use only the best butter. If the filling is to be sweet or very delicately flavored the butter should be unsalted or very slightly salted.

The butter should always be worked to a cream with a broad silver knife before it is spread. It should be soft enough to be spread smoothly but never actually melted.

Only the tenderest meat should ever be used in slices. Usually it is best to mince the meat.

For all save the hearty picnic sandwich crusts should be removed from the bread.

Sandwiches containing mustard, mayonnaise or other soft dressing should be put together as shortly before they are to be eaten as possible. The flavor and daintiness of a sandwich are impaired if the filling has been soaked up by the bread.

The filling should never extend outside the edges of the sandwich save for large luncheon sandwiches which are to be eaten with a fork. If lettuce is used it should be trimmed to convenient size by means of a pair of kitchen scissors.

IS YOUR CHILD THIN AND WEAK?

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kingsbury, of 359 Aylmer Street, celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of their marriage by entertaining a number of their friends at a very happy party on Saturday night. A special feature of the evening was the presentation to the hosts of a fruit set in colored crystal. Mr. W. Walker read an address, and Mrs. J. Reid presented the gifts. Mrs. Kingsbury suitably replied. The first part of the evening was spent in card playing, and the prize-winners were Miss Isabel Reid and Mr. J. Mackin as highest scorers. The consolation awards went to Mrs. J. Wyllie and Mr. Robert Wyllie. At a lucky number contest Mrs. A. Goldie was the winner, whilst the children's prize was won by Miss Evelyn Ranger. A delightful supper was served by the hostess immediately after the card party. After this a various musical program was greatly enjoyed by everyone, and the party was brought to a close at midnight by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Mrs. W. Blackwell was hostess at a delightful tea and housekeeping shower given at her home at 40 Benson avenue, on Saturday afternoon, in honor of Miss Forester Parsons, whose marriage to Mr. Walter Blackwell takes place tomorrow. Guests present included friends of Mrs. Blackwell and Miss Parsons, officers of the Women's Art Association, members of the Causerie Francaise and of the cast of "Shakespeare's Famous Women" presented last week by members of the Dramatic Study Club. There was a very large attendance of ladies and the affair was made very pleasant by the presentation of "housekeeping" gifts to the bride-elect, who was assisted in opening the parcels by Mrs. Gerald McClelland. Miss Margaret Widdess played a gay Gavotte while the baskets were brought in, decorated in spring colors of dark and light green, pink, mauve and yellow, with three small girls in pretty frocks as attendants; Elsie and Wilda Saunders and Marilyn Munro. The tea-table in the dining room was charmingly arranged with a cloth of Florentine lace and central black satin bowl filled with mauve tulips, yellow daffodils and pink snapdragon, and wreathed with mauve tulle and springeri fern. Tea was poured in the dining-room by Mrs. N. D. Buchanan and Miss F. Hatton and an auxiliary table in the living room, done with flowers, was presided over by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. V. Eastwood, Sr. Tea assistants were Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Miss Linden Hall, Miss Mayme Montgomery, Miss Clara Morris, Miss Lahring Parsons, Miss Ruth Barns and Miss Ruth Sutton. You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of The Examiner.

I GUESS most of the readers have become tired of reading what I have written about housecleaning, but nevertheless I am going to say a little about it in this Whatnot I hope you will forgive me for it.

• • • • • • •

I was wondering how many housewives in Peterborough have extra large rooms in their homes which they would like to have the appearance of rooms much smaller. And there may be some would like to make their rooms look larger.

• • • • • • •

Now that housecleaning is the order of the day, it would be a good time to fix up your rooms just the way you would like them to look.

• • • • • • •

All housewives know, of course, that those things which make a small room look large can be reversed in order to make a large room look small.

• • • • • • •

For instance, to lessen the apparent size of a room you should use a smaller pattern on the wallpaper, curtains etc.

• • • • • • •

There are many things to be considered, and the background, perhaps, should be thought of first. I wonder how many of our housewives have failed in this regard.

• • • • • • •

You must consider just what color you are going to have the walls and this will depend, to some extent, on whether the room is a dark or very light one. Here is one place you can increase the apparent size of the room or diminish it, just as you wish.

• • • • • • •

Most of us have noticed, I am sure, that dresses of white and pale colors always make the wearer look just as large as he really is, and in many cases much larger.

• • • • • • •

This is the reason why large people should never wear light-colored frocks. A large room with white or pale colored walls would look enormous.

• • • • • • •

Have you ever visited homes in Peterborough where the large living rooms seemed small and cosy, when really they were very large in size. Perhaps you did not take particular notice then, but the next opportunity you have, examine it a little more closely.

• • • • • • •

I am sure you will notice that the walls were papered or painted in dark soft tones and the furnishings matched the paper.

• • • • • • •

Then, too, you may be confronted with the task of furnishing a very light room. If this is the case, choose "cool" colors— or make blue the predominating color. Should the room be dull, brighten it up with bright colors such as red and yellow.

• • • • • • •

So you see that after you decide the exposure of the room, you are then able to choose what colors will increase or diminish the apparent size of the room in question.

• • • • • • •

Should you be deciding upon a floral paper with a definite design and wish to get the full effect before papering the whole room, it would be a good idea to place two full lengths of the paper side by side in the room. This will help you a good deal.

• • • • • • •

Many old Peterborough houses have very high ceilings. Some housewives do not like these and try to make them seem less lofty.

• • • • • • •

Do you know that by tinting the ceilings a close tone of the side walls, you will be amazed at the effect which it has in making the ceiling seem much less high.

• • • • • • •

Those women who are handy with the needle will be delighted to receive the diagram pattern for a very attractive sleeveless frock suitable for any little girl who wears straight-from-the-shoulder wash frocks.

• • • • • • •

This is the help I am offering this week. Summer is now approaching very quickly and mothers will be making their little girls new frocks, so you ought to send for your help right away.

• • • • • • •

I am sure most of the readers have read, during the last few days the accounts which have been printed of "Mother and Daughter" banquets and "Father and Son" banquets.

• • • • • • •

When you read them, did you realize just what meaning they had? If you were a guest at one of the banquets, you will know just what it meant to you.

• • • • • • •

The spirit of comradeship is very apparent at these functions and it is with pride that the girls propose the toast to "Our Mothers" and they in turn to "Our Daughters" and the boys to "Our Fathers" and they to "Our Boys."

• • • • • • •

These banquets go a long way toward promoting comradeship between parents and their boys and girls, and this helps to make a happy home for everyone.

• • • • • • •

You have noticed how happy the boy or girl is who is able to say, "My father and mother are my best friends." Are your children able to say it?

• • • • • • •

Fortunate indeed, are those who can, for there are many children in Peterborough who cannot. Confidences must be built upon a base of real affection. Mother must be frank and honest with her children and not cold and critical.

• • • • • • •

And mother must be very careful to keep secret, those things that are entrusted to her. If she betrays the children just once, she will not be given a chance to do it a second time.

• • • • • • •

Most children would like nothing more than to come to Mother and Father and pour out their confidences, but they are afraid to do it. If mothers and fathers would win their children's confidences, they must remember that "Perfect love casteth out fear."

• • • • • • •

Does your home make the children turn away from you or is it a place where love abides and the children are happy with Mother and Father as their best pals?

Here is a poem by Henry VanDyke, describing a happy home:

"I read within the poet's book,
A word that starred the page;
'Stone walls do not a prison make
Nor iron bars a cage!'

Yes, that is true, and something more:
You'll find where'er you roam,
That marble floors and gilded walls
Can never make a home.

But every house where love abides,
And friendship is a guest,
Is surely home, and home, sweet home;
For there the heart can rest."

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

This slightly flaring skirt—worn with matching jacket and white blouse has a front closing with wide under lap and is held in position by means of two button-holes and buttons attached to the blouse.

If any skirt has a right to remain short in the face of present tendencies it is the sport skirt and the most telling argument of the women who stoutly hold out against the final acceptance of long skirts as anything more than a fad is that women have definitely and permanently adopted sports.

Obviously the skirt that does anything more than cover the knees is out of the question for active sports and the woman who goes unhampered during the hours she devotes to golf and tennis does not wear a long skirt when she dances with any degree of ease.

The two or three inches that sports skirts have gained this season in length does not bring them much below the bend of the knee, and they are invariably made with sufficient fullness round the hem to make them entirely wearable and practical. Pleated skirts are still worn for sports, but fullness introduced by way of circular cut is newer than pleated fullness.

By no means has the question of skirt lengths been settled even for the present. There are fashionable women of real influence here and abroad who are holding out stoutly against there ally long skirt and more than one of the well-known French dressmakers is lending his or her influence to this reactionary group.

Meantime the waistline has been gradually raised and with very little opposition. There are, of course, some women of large proportions who find the long waist more favorable so long as it can be worn at all, but there are just as many women who find that the new raised waistline has distinct advantages that the lower waistline has not.

Two Questions

By LEETE STONE

Young Mr. Clive Williams, prominent legal light, sat with his eighty-dollar coat sleeve resting on his three-hundred-dollar mahogany desk, and anathematized the extravagance of women.

He had no wife; but he had a very modern mother and two very modern sisters. The problem of how to stretch thirty-five thousand dollars a year so it would encompass their domestic budget was extremely agitating.

His mother and the girls must have between them twenty or thirty gowns a year from Paris, a touring car and a town car, to say nothing of periodical reinforcements against boredom such as extended jaunts to the Riviera, Palm Beach, Bar Harbor and Lakewood.

No wonder Clive Williams pondered, with his fourteen-dollar shoes tightly pressing the four-hundred-dollar Turkish rug in front of his desk.

A neat blonde head appeared at the softly opened door.

"Hello, Miss Fane! Want to see me?"

"There's a man from the garage to see you, Mr. Williams," said the attractive secretary.

How bright and comfortable, how cheery she looked, thought Williams, as he bid her send the man in. So neatly and tastefully dressed in clothes of distinguished cut and material. How in the world could his secretary appear so charming and desirable, and above all so serene, on thirty-five dollars a week when he could not even approach equanimity on thirty-five thousand a year?

The garage man had a refreshing bit of news. Williams's chauffeur "had been pinched for slicing a pie truck," and "if you don't mind running up to th police station and giving a hundred dollars security you can get him out tonight. They won't take a check—must have cash, you know."

"All right, Stevens, I'll go right up. Thank you!"

Williams pressed a buzzer for the office boy.

"Tell Mr. Jones to come in," he ordered.

"Cashier's gone, sir. It's quarter-past five."

"Then the safe's locked, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. Mr. Jones always locks it before he leaves."

"Well, somebody must open the safe I need a hundred dollars at once."

"Sorry, sir; but nobody can open it but Mr. Jones and the managing clerk."

Dismissing the boy, Williams dug in his pockets distractedly. They yielded thirty dollars and three nickels. The banks were closed. No one in the office force who would not aint at being asked for a hundred dollars. He telephoned some acquaintances in nearby offices. All had left for the day.

Clive Williams whistled softly and racked his brain. He couldn't let Johnson, the chauffeur, remain in jail overnight. Some witty reporter would get hold of it and make a silly story which would let him in for no end of chaffing at his clubs.

"The boss is in a fine stew," announced Henry, the office boy, to Miss Fane, the serene secretary, with juvenile glee. "He can't get in the safe, and he's gotta have a bunch of jack in half an hour. I ain't got more'n a hundred in me clothes or I'd oblige him—what? How much does he need? Aw, what's the use of tellin' you? Had your envelope padded this week? It's a hundred he wants, if you must know."

Miss Fane hurried toward her employer's private office and met him rushing out with hat, stick and gloves, his face a study in weariness and vexation.

"Just one moment, Mr. Williams. It—it's about the money. I've just heard you need some for something important. If you don't mind I'd be glad to let you have a hundred dollars."

Clive Williams could not help it. He laughed in sheer appreciation of the situation. Miss Fane smiled. Here he had been stampeding about the office, telephoning friends, digging in pockets and desk drawers for a stray, forgotten century note, and now came his enchanting secretary offering it on the spot.

"I just happened to have it with me today," Miss Fane still smiled, "because I've been saving a long time for a player piano, and I was going to pay this amount down this evening. I can pay it just as well tomorrow, you know."

Somehow, Williams did not realize that he should be expressing appreciation instead of standing in front of this girl, silently admiring her, and wodering over all manner of amazing economic puzzles. Thirty-five dollars a week and able to have lovely clothes and buy pianos! Thirty-five thousand a year and never out of debt!

What he realized most emphatically, however, was that he, Clive Williams, needed education and a change of viewpoint; also, that standing before him holding out a crisp note was the most perfect teacher of things serene that he had ever seen.

Fearing to give immediate vent to his emotion, Williams took the money and thanked the donor.

"Tomorrow, Miss Fane, when I return this, I have an important question to ask you. It deals with high finance. And tomorrow evening while you're motoring with me in the Park, I have another, much more important question to propound. Meantime don't forget me!"

INDULGE YOUR IMAGINATION

There is a great deal more latent energy and ambition in us than we realize. What most of us need is imagination to picture goals that are worth striving for in this life. Many a man and many a woman has been made happier in more senses than one because imagination kindled a fire and set the unsuspected talent to work.

Do you never ease the monotony of your days by reading through the fascinating columns of travel "ads" in your newspaper? More of us than realize it can go away for a certain time each year. When the Orient or the South Seas or the wilder and less frequented spots call loudly enough, others can speed up their brains and eventually slip out on the steamship or train towards the land of their desire.

Give your suppressed ambitions a chance to sprout and develop. It may not be travel you seek, but whatever it be that is destined to stir you to activity, advertising in your newspaper is the great prime intelligencer that informs, advises and inspires the people of to-day and prepares them for the adventures and achievements of to-morrow.

BAKER'S COCOA

A NEW RECIPE

Here it is a special new recipe for Baker's Cocoa. Developed by domestic science experts—tested by cooking schools and universities.

Here it is:-

For each cup allow 1 heaping teaspoonful Baker's Cocoa, 1 level dessertspoonful sugar, ¼ cup water, ¾ cup milk, few grains salt. Measure cocoa and water into saucepan. Stir over direct heat until mixture is smooth. Boil about two minutes and add the salt, sugar and milk. Heat until foamy, beat well and serve. Vanilla may be added just before serving—or whipped cream or a marshmallow.

SOCCER TEAMS BATTLE TO A 2-ALL DRAW

PACKERS AND ELECTRICS SCORE TWO GOALS EACH IN LEAGUE TILT

Beggs Equalized Count For Meat Men in Final Moments of Play.

PRIZES GIVEN AWAY.

C. P. C. Opens Scoring—Both Goal Custodians Kept Busy.

The Canadian General and the Canadian Packing soccer teams inaugurated the local season on Saturday afternoon in a league schedule which terminated in a drawn match of two goals each. Every player was at fever heat because they wanted to get a good start so that they may get the club bags for winning the championship.

Mr. Seymour kicked off. Mr. E. A. Peck, who was to officiate, had to go to Ottawa. McMaster, at inside right, gave a brilliant display on the forward rank of the C.G.E.; while A. Beggs, at centre, for the C.P.C., was the star for them, and accomplished the impossible in the closing minutes of a hard fought game, in fact the players deserve credit for the sportsmanship shown. They accepted every ruling as given. No illegal methods were employed, and everyone was a gentleman at all times. The display of the code was excellent and will do the game a lot of good.

The Canadian Packing Eleven trotted out in a new equipment of blue sweaters and white pants, the gift of Gordon Matthews of the local plant. Red sweaters and dark pants constituted the Canadian General attire.

Prizes Given Away.

At the interval, the draw for the prizes given away by the association were won by No. 22, George Siddell, 220 Perry street, a razor; No. 240, R. Bugg, Braidwood avenue, a fishing rod; No. 106, Mr. Cook, C.G.E., Rose Brand ham, presented by Mr. Seymour of the Canadian Packing Company.

Opening Fast.

The first brush saw the Canadian General men raiding the Packing team ground, where the ball was often in touch before it was shot behind. Downer relieved the situation. Begg trapped the ball from the air then beat it for the C.G.E. goal. After evading the defence with close tactics, O'Halloran was in the act of scoring when he was illegally brought down in front of goal, but the infringement went unnoticed. Quick as a flash the play went to the other end. Burgess worked close in, then let Mitchell have a chance at goal, but his effort went skyward. A few minutes later Robb sent a rising drive over the crossbar from the touch line.

O'Halloran's Great Effort.

A foul throw against the C. G. E. transferred the attack to Bolton's charge, who had to save a peculiar drive from the foot of O'Halloran, when only a few yards from goal. This was followed up by the left-winger making progress toward goal again to finish with a shot that had the C.G.E. custodian guessing. So far the Canadian Packing were the superior side and this continued until they gained the ascendancy. Two corner kicks went in favor of the Packers with Newt. Downer placing the shots right in below the bar, where Bolton demonstrated his worth by punching them clean. From one of his clearances O'Halloran headed back into the dreaded area.

Foster Opened the Scoring.

The defence replied with most startling effect on the attacking force but had to admit defeat when the Canadian Packing left winger rattled a fast drive into the far corner of the goal. Owing to the nets being on the goals the referee had difficulty in judging the play but after consultation with the official linesman, he immediately awarded a goal. Encouraged by their success they went back again into the C. G. E. territory, and amidst excitement Bolton was kept busy for a long period saving his charge, while the Electric players paid occasional visits to the other end, although Bolton was the busier goalkeeper of the two.

Buchan Tried a Drop Shot.

On mid-field play, Buchan gained the verdict for a close tackle, and ended his performance by landing in a drop shot that the Canadian General custodian touched over the bar for a flag kick that Downer centred into the desired spot. Bolton cleared the attack by punching the ball away from the heads of his opponents. Play was confined to middle of the field thereafter until the interval. Canadian Packing 1, Canadian General 0.

Half Time.

Upon resuming, the Canadian Packing took up the attack right away to pepper the goal from all angles. Offsides spoiled their chances when everything was in their favor. The Canadian General were playing against the wind in this half and were more in the picture through the tactics of McMaster and Robb on the the C.G.E. wing. The right wing came into the limelight at this period.

McMaster a Strategist.

It was pleasant to watch Bromley intervene the movements of this pair, and likwise the same may be said of of the inside man, McMaster, who made all the openings and generalship in all attacks came from his movements. He is tricky, has a nice swerve to his parting plays and never failed to give his men the best of support.

Burgess Opened the Count.

It was from one of his movements that brought the goal to the C.G.E. McMaster dribbled past three men in succession and Westwood ran over to stop his progress. This left Burgess open to receive the ball at the other wing, and the latter had no difficulty in equalising from his accurate pass across the goalmouth.

C. C. P. Shooting Erratic

Both teams, now on an even basis, sets the fans on edge. From the centre kick A. Beggs outwitted the defence on the run to test Bolton from short range. In fact the C.P.C. were outclassed at this point and never realized the position they were in until Burgess rattled on another goal within the next five minutes. These staggering reverses serves to wake up the Packing boys who attacked in no mean fashion and bombarded the opponents' goal without any success.

Equalised Three Minutes to go.

After having turned over with a lead of one goal at half time, the Canadian Packing had to fight to the limit to redeem themselves at the close of the ninety minute tussle. Time and again they would tear down upon the C.G.E. defence to find them unbeatable. Eventually success came their way when Beggs dribbled his way right through the full backs to give Bolton no chance to save. With only two minutes to go the game ended in a draw—two goals each.

Goal scorers: For Canadian General, Burgess (2). For Canadian Packing: Foster and Beggs.

Canadian General: Bolton, goal; Figg and Wade; full backs, Rankin, Mann and Blowers, halves; Robb, McMaster, Mitchell, Wilson and Burgess, forwards.

Canadian Packing: Griffine, goal; Westwood and A. Downer, full backs; Carmichael, Buchan and Bromley, halves; Newt, Downer, O'Halloran, Beggs, Laidler and Foster, forwards.

Referee: Alex. McKinley. Linesmen, C. Fenner and Thomas Stewart.

Cincinnati Reds Beat Chicago By 17-12 Score

Broke His Leg a Year Ago; Played Soccer Saturday

It is only a little over a year ago that Robb of the Canadian General team broke his leg in a soccer game at King Edward Park, and to the surprise of the soccer fans, he played a great part in the drawn game against the Canadian Packing. McMaster at inside wing, along with him, at outside right, brought back recollections of the famous C.G.E. right wing in Manders and Hotston. Robb's fracture has become perfect and he does not seem to have lost his form through the unfortunate accident.

DELORO BEATS BRINTONS 5-0 IN SOCCER TILT

Game Marks Opening Fixture of Schedule At Smelter Town.

INJURIES MAR PLAY.

New Players Making Debut On Line-ups—Good Combination Shown.

MARMORA, April 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Though Peterborough Brintons were defeated by the score of 5-0 in the League football game at Deloro on Saturday afternoon, the game was not so one-sided as the score would suggest, and the Blue and Gold jerseyed aggregation gave the impression that their share of points will not be lowest when the season ends. It is to be hoped that Saturday's chapter of woes will not be repeated in their season's experiences and that their two young mascots will mean the luck to Captain James' nine as they were intended to be. The team landed in Deloro apparently in three relays, the second of which brought along the team's jerseys, and the third, the all important member of the team, the goalkeeper. The latter arrived to find the game in progress, with Jones, the left back, occupying his place between the posts, and the homesters holding a one goal lead. For the last quarter of an hour of the second half, the visitors were again a depleted team, Robertson, the outside right, in running for possession, colliding with a fence, to suffer the painful extraction of three teeth and the loosening of two more. But Brintons were not in the downhearted class, for they shaped well in the face of adversity. For Deloro, three players were making their debut. In goal, they played Green, and his exhibition left nothing to be desired. J. Hart, Jr., son of J. Hart, the Smelters manager, shaped well at centre half, but Gresham at centre requires practice to give the expected results. That he has promise was revealed in the goal which he obtained.

Elliott Kicks Off.

R. A. Elliott kindly consented to kick off, the wind favoring the homesters. Play had been in progress but a few minutes when Brooks scored on a shot which appeared to be easy to clear. That same player, given another good chance, placed the ball over the cross-bar. Brintons got going and attacked the Deloro goal, but Green proved unbeatable. Curtis arrived a moment later and took his accustomed place, Jones going to his regular position. Green was called upon to ease the pressure again, and with two of the Brinton forwards in hot attack, made a good clearance. Play was then taken to the Brinton's goal, and Curtis colliding with Brooks, sustained a slight injury. After a short halt, the game resumed. Curtis remaining in goal. A second goal soon came to Deloro. After Curtis had cleared from a Deloro player, Gresham rushed up and made no mistake with the shot. W. Brown added a third as the finale to a rush. Both teams were now playing good combination, and a score might have resulted for Brinton's, when Sharman shot wide and James gave the pigskin too much ascent. Half-time came with Deloro ahead by three goals to none.

With the wind in their favor, Brintons staged a good attack in the opening of the second moiety. Green was called upon to show his stuff, and again was not found wanting. Good combination by the Blue and Whites took play to the other end, and two corners came in quick succession without result. Cousins shot over the cross-bar when given a good chance, and Curtis kept the invaders out by good clearances, until E. Brown sent in a stinging shot on a pass from W. Brown. Brintons again became aggressive, and, playing beautiful combination, looked like scoring, but Hawthorne headed wide of the upright. The best of Green's performance was now to come. Fisting the ball out, it was immediately returned to him. In as quick time, it was headed out, to be again fired in, and the third time, amid much applause from the crowd, Green got in one of his strong kicks and saved the situation. It was when the Brintons were again attacking that the regrettable accident occurred to Robertson. Play after this was principally in the visitors' end of the field, and after E. Brown had unsuccessfully tested Curtis, the former was able to baffle the boy with the canary colored jersey and this ended the scoring. In the last moments, Hart hit the cross-bar with a nice shot.

The game, refereed most satisfactorily by Frank McKinley, was watched by a crowd numbering perhaps one hundred. Prior to its start, the home team was photographed. President Stewart was an interested spectator at the game. The teams:

Brintons — W. Curtis, goal; A. Bishop and W. Jones, backs; H. Cherrill, E. Bayliss and J. Creighton, halfbacks; A. Robertson, E. Jones, W. James, J. Hawthorne and J. Sharman, forwards.

Deloro—D. Green, goal; R. Murray and C. T. Nicholson, backs; N. Hipson, J. Hart and W. Savage, halfbacks; T. Cousins, E. Brown, C. T. Gresham, G. Brooks and W. Brown, forwards.

Referee—Frank McKinley, Peterborough.

International League Tilt At Jersey City Is Fight To Finish.

CATS BEAT ROYALS 3-0.

JERSEY CITY, April 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Leafs won their first series of the season when they defeated Jersey City 7 to 5 in the third and rubber game here Saturday before 3,500 curious fans.

It was a game that had the shivers running up and down a fellows' spine from start to finish. It was a game in which nobody knew what was going to happen next, and the Leafs showed wonderful resourcefulness in putting over a victory.

BATTLE TO TIE

READING, April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Reading and Buffalo played a 3 to 3 tie in six innings here yesterday, the game being stopped by rain. Home runs played a major part in the game, Fisher hitting a circuit clout in the first inning with two on base to give Buffalo its three runs, while Murphy hit one in the sixth with the bases unoccupied to tie the score. Welch gave Buffalo only three hits.

SENIORS START CAMPAIGN WITH FINE TURNOUT

Central Ontario League Team Has Record Initial Practice.

GYM WORK, TOO.

Manager Swanston's Team To Use Y.M.C.A. For Training Purposes.

The Peterborough Central Ontario League club had its initial workout of the season at King Edward School grounds on Saturday, and if numbers and enthusiasm count for anything, Manager Swanston's team should be right up in the running in Prexy Elliott's loop this summer.

It was the largest turnout that the local Central Leaguers have ever registered at an initial practice, and contrary to the usual conditions, the majority of those out have already signed senior certificates.

In fact, the outlook is so good that Manager Swanston might be pardoned for bursting into the chorus of that popular fox-trot, "My Troubles Are Over."

The senior squad put in a very useful hour, too, getting a chance for both fielding and batting practice. Out in the outfield Red Legon, Fred Ash, Bert Hall, Joe Jones of last year's Crescents, and Beavis and Len Hollingsworth of the 1928 Royals chased flies, while Al Heckman and Jeff Hardill of the Petes' pitching staff also shagged some long drives as a conditioner. Two infields had a workout, the first with Fred Ash at first base, Johnny Marchen, erstwhile of the Lakeviews and more recently of Smith Falls, at second, "Red" Hollingsworth of last year's Royals at short, and "Shockey" Mein at third, while the second quartette saw Fred Hickey, formerly of Renfrew, at first, Ray Rose at second, Tommy Holyman at Short and Shiner Johnston covering third base. Manager Swanston and Doug Hatton of the Royals worked behind the bat. "Lank" Smith warmed up with the pitchers, and also took a turn in the batting practice.

The Petes are determined to get into shape and will depend upon gym. work as well as the outdoor stuff to bring them into condition for the opening game. The first gym. workout will be at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night, and every player is expected out.

With a bunch of young players added and both veterans and youngsters full of enthusiasm over the outlook, the Petes promise to have a splendid season. Both Heckman and Hardill are determined to be in shape when the season opens, and with the pair going right, "Lank" Smythe, another righthander, added to the squad and "Angie" Macdonald coming back early in June, the pitching problem should take care of itself. As for the rest of the team, it already looks stronger all round than last year, both in the infield and outfield, and with plenty of material and plenty of competition for places, the Petes promise to have a peppery, fighting squad this year.

LACROSSE EMISSARY IN THIS DISTRICT

Port Hope, Millbrook and Campbellford To Organize Juvenile Teams.

With a view to preparing the way for the organization of juvenile lacrosse teams in these localities, Fred C. Waghorne, special emissary of the O.A.L.A., visited Port Hope, Campbellford and Millbrook last week. These places have all been prominent in lacrosse in the past, but in Port Hope and Millbrook the game has been allowed to lie dormant for some time. Campbellford has an intermediate team and a meeting will be held in the Public Library there this evening for the purpose of organizing the juveniles.

In Millbrook and Port Hope efforts are being made to get the youngsters interested and meetings will be held in both places in the near future. Some thirty boys in Millbrook expressed the wish to play and some former lacrosse men in that village are attending to the organization details. Mr. Waghorne will pay a further visit there in a week or ten days.

The O.A.L.A. representative plans to visit Stirling, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and Hastings this week. All are former lacrosse centres and it is hoped to reorganize a league similar to the one that flourished in this district some years ago.

Petty Holds Cards; Pirates Win 6-2

ST. LOUIS, April 29. (C.P.) —Jess Petty held the St. Louis Cardinals to four scattered hits and Pittsburg took the opening game of the series yesterday, 6 to 2; Grover Cleveland Alexander was effective for seven innings, allowing only five hits, but he gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh, and the Pirates fell upon Johnson his successor, for a series of blows that netted three runs in the ninth to clinch the game. Score:

BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE AT STAKE

Will Fight Fifteen Rounds If Commission Gives Its Approval.

AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, April 29.—One of the three vacant chairs in the pugilistic king row will be restored to duty at the New York Coliseum next month if the State Athletitc Commission approves an agreement made Saturday by Fidel LaBarba, the socking sopohomore of Stanford, and Kid Chocolate, the colorful Cuban.

La Barba, who retired undefeated from the flyweight championship last year, is now regarded as the leading claimant of the bantamweight title. Chocolate is rated second among the contenders and Al Brown, who has been formally recognized by the National Boxing Association as the titleholder, is third.

In a meeting held at the offices of Promoter Jess McMahon Saturday, La Barba and Chocolate signed two sets of articles for a match to be staged at the Coliseum on either May 20 or May 22.

One set provides that they are to weigh 118 pounds, the bantamweight limit, and fight fifteen rounds.

The other calls for 122 pounds and a match of ten rounds duration.

McMahon, accompanied by La Barba and his manager, George Blake, and Chocolate and his manager, Louis Guiterrez, will appear at a meeting of the commission on Tuesday to seek approval of the championship weight and championship distance. In the event it is refused the boys will meet in a ten-round bout at 122 pounds.

Both La Barba and Chocolate are willing to meet Brown within sixty days after their match if the commission will stamp their affair with titular significance.

Both La Barba and Chocolate hold decisions over Bushy Graham, of Utica, who has been more or less of an unofficial champion in this State for the past two years. The 118-pound division has been without a leader since the New York Commission deposed Charlie Phil Rosenberg in Februaty 1927. Rosenberg failed to make weight for a match with Graham that had been advertised as a championship bout. The match went on as scheduled, Rosenberg winning a 15-round decision, but both boxers and their managers were suspended the following day, and Rosenberg's title was declared to have been forfeited.

Bud Taylor was afterward accepted as Rosenberg's successor, but Taylor voluntarily relinquished the title last year, declaring he could no longer make the weight. Taylor never received recognition in this State. The local commission was inclined to regard Graham as champion, but refused to go on record.

James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, openly avowed his willingness to recognize McMahon's match as a championship bout, but Commissioner William Muldoon is on the fence. Uncle Will is mad at the champions right now because some of them are doing too much talking and too little fighting. He may relent at Tuesday's meeting.

FEMININE WORLD'S CHAMPION

Ethel Catherwood of the Toronto Parkdale Ladies' A. C. has broken another world's record. During rer recent appearance at a Montreal meet she established a new world woman's indoor record with a high jump of four feet 11⅞ inches.

Record-breaking is getting to be a habit with this young lady, and track fans feel that they have been slighted when she enters in a meet, and fails to do something spectacular.

Since joining the Parkdale Club Miss Catherwood has improved her performance under the management of Teddy Oke, and quite likely will go right on breaking records at every opportunity.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

The most successful bowling tournment ever held in this city was brought to a close on Saturday night at the Duffus Recreation Academy. This tourney, which has become an annual affair at the Duffus Alleys has been in progress since April 18, and attracted entries from Toronto, Cobourg, Oshawa and Belleville.

Although it is not yet known who the prize winners are, nevertheless the Lawn Bowlers and a team from the Examiner have piled up totals that should carry off a big slice of the prize money for one of them in the class A team contest.

Walter Firth chalked up a high single score in the singles, class A, that has kept him in good spirits all week, and judging from his long smile it is quite evident that he expects a pile of prize money.

Bud Weese and Geraldine Foley made a good showing in the mixed doubles, but as yet it is not known whether they occupy the top rung of the ladder or not. Chief Gimblett and Gertrude Gimblett entered in the mixed doubles, were well up among the leaders, due to the consistent work of Miss Gimblett.

After several extra play-off games, Bert Duffus and his team of Monday nighters copped the championship of the Monday night league down at the K. of C. Alleys from Tommy Ryan. Total pinnage in three games decided the winner and Bert's team took every game.

TORONTO GIRLS WINNERS 27-12

Local "Y" Seniors Defeated By Teddy Oke's Parkdale Intermediates.

SMART BASKETBALL.

Their regular season long since closed, Peterborough Y.W.C.A. Senior Girls, champions of the City Basketball League, hastily re-organized, and with slightly more than a week of practice, met Teddy Oke's Parkdale Intermediate Ladies' team of Toronto on the local Y.M.C.A. court Saturday night. The decision, while going by a 27-12 count to the visiting aggregation, was reached only after one of the smartest exhibitions seen here all season—the "Y" outfit put up such unexpectedly stubborn opposition that the invaders were forced to resort to the fullest extent of their offensive and defensive skill. The attendance, considering the lateness of the basketball season, was encouragingly large. Scotty McLeish handled the game satisfactorily.

The teams lined up as follows:

Parkdale—Forwards, Rheta Fox (7), B. Barr (7); centre, Peggy Sharp (4); guards, M. Hopkins (6) and M. McCuigan; spares, E. Galt and N. Barnam (3).

Peterborough Y — Forwards, G. Gimblett (8), E. Killaly, L. Kingdon; centre, I. Davidson (4); guards, H. Jackson, D. Mortimer, S. Sharp, G. Hewett.

PENNSYLVANIA CARNIVAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 29. — C.P.)—Canada last night had as an addition to its long list of track and field championships the one-mile High school championship of America. The Dominion had to thank R. Lewis, F. McBeth, Peterson and J. Grazer of Hamilton Collegiate Institute, who Saturday, before 40,000 pepole, defeated the best the United States had to offer, turning in a neat mile in the time of 3.29 2-5 at the Pennsylvania relay carnival. The Canadians were third in the two-mile championship, defeated by Lakewood of Ohio and Mercerburg Academy.

By carrying off the mile title in a carnival in which 3,300 athletes took part Hamilton had revenge over the crack Lakewood team for the two-mile event. Lakewood was third and Kearney of New Jersey second in the mile.

The Maple Leaf was represented here not only by the victorious Hamiltonians, but also by the pole-vaulting ace of the Dominion, Victor Packard of last year's Olympic team, and now a student at Pittsburgh University. Packard vaulted 13 feet 1 inch yesterday, but was halted there, while Sturdy, his opponent, went up another four inches to win the event and establish a new carnival mark. Packard himself beat the old one made by Sabin Carr, also of Yale. Carrs was 13 feet.

IN POLICE COURT

A local man, whose acquaintance with the police in the past has chiefly comprised charges of intoxication, appeared again this morning, and was fined $10 and $4.50 costs on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place.

Another man, facing a similar charge, received a like penalty, while a Belmont township man was charged with consuming liquor in a place other than his private residence His fine plus costs amounted to $15.

A woman resident from the southwest part of the city, was fined $1 and costs when she pleaded guilty to keeping a dog deemed by the police to be dangerous to the public. She promised to have the dog taken out of the city immediately.

GAVUZZI HOLDS TWO HOUR LEAD

Granville Regains Seventh Place in Pyle's Transcontinental Derby.

ENTERING SPRINGFIELD.

CONWAY, Mo., April 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Patiently plodding over the red roads of Missouri, Charles Pyle's pavement pounders turned today toward Springfield where they expected the warmest reception along the route.

Pete Gavuzzi was still protecting a two hour lead. He hung close to Johnny Salo's heels yesterday and tied the New Jersey policeman.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

Since the first stage presentation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" nearly seventy years ago, it is estimated that over 220 "Tom Shows" have taken to the road. It seems that there is no lessening of the popularity of this play. Many stock companies, finding themselves in need of funds, are still putting on the play to recoup losses and invariably reap success The gigantic picturization of the Harriet Beecher Stowe novel, a Universal Super-Jewel production, will open at the Capitol Theatre Thursday. An all-star cast has been assembled for the picture, including such players as Margarita Fischer, Arthur Edmund Carew, John Roche, Gertrude Astor, Lucien Littlefield, George Siegmann, Mona Ray, Virginia Grey, Eulalie Jense, J. Gordon Russell, Aileen Manning, Jack Mower, Vivien Oakland and others.

NOTABLES FORESAW MISS BANKY'S RISE

Leaders in All Walks of Life Quick to See Star's Possibilities.

Vilma Banky's recent rise to individual stardom in "The Awakening," the Samuel Goldwyn United Artists picture now at the Capitol recalls the sensation achieved by Mr. Goldwyn's blonde Hungarian star on her first appearance in this country four years ago to be leading woman for Ronald Colman. Not only did New York journalists hail her as the "Hungarian Rhapsody," but on her appearance in Hollywood, she created a furore of enthusiastic comment.

"There is no girl before the public who so epitomizes charm and beauty," was the remark with which Samuel Goldwyn presented her to the American picture capital. Sally James Farnham, the famous sculptress, was the first to prove that Mr. Goldwyn's enthusiasm was not mere favoritism "She has the greatest asset in the world—fascination," she said, after having studied Miss Banky from the point of view of the trained artist.

Elinor Glyn, authority on all that goes to make the females of the species more deadly than the male, agreed.

"Her eyes have magnetism," she said simply, a statement which carried immense weight with Madame Glyn's readers.

And Charlie Chaplin, perhaps the greatest actor the screen has produced and a picture executive of discrimiantion in its own right, pronounced judicially that Vilma Banky is "an actress of rare beauty and unusual finesse."

Oscar Depew, professor of aesthetics at Valleau University has declared Miss Banky the most beautiful woman in the world.

Now that Samuel Goldwyn has put Miss Banky to starring in her own right, as the culmination of a short and brilliant career, these people have not been slow to say, "I told you so," in no uncertain terms.

Assail, one of the King's Plate contenders, was a real juvenile last year, having started on no less than seventeen occasions. She gave a pretty good account of herself, her record showing four firsts, three seconds and landing in the third hole twice.

She ran second to Cuddle Doon at Thorncliffe in the spring and whipped Humberside, Storm Queen and William D at Dufferin Park. She tailed off form a bit then and did not come to herself again until the fall meeting at Dufferin, when she scored an easy victory over Black Bloom, Crystal Vapor and Non-Stop. She came right back with another winning effort at Thorncliffe, beating a fair field, which included Sea Kale, Daisy Fair and Fair Oil. That was not a bad race. Assail's last outing saw her winning over Shorelint, Oil Rock and Rose Lady in a hard drive at Woodbine Park.

CROCKER OPPOSES MARCEL RAINVILLE

First Battle For Right To Play On Canadian Davis Cup Team.

TORONTO, April 29.—(By R. L. Condy).—Willard Crocker and Marcel Rainville both of Montreal opposed each other in the first battle of the six day contest in which five of the first ten ranking Canadian lawn tennis players are striving for positions on the four man team which will represent Canada against the United States in the first round of the American zone of the 1929 Davis Cup series.

Jack Wright, Montreal, ranked No. 1: Gilbert Nunn No. 3; and Art. Ham No. 4, both of Toronto are the other contestants. Walter Martin of Regina and the University of Toronto, and Charlie Leslie of McGill University were both prevented from playing in the test games owing to their studies and forthcoming examinations.

Crocker Loses Out

TORONTO, April 29.—(Special to The Examiner).—Marcel Rainville lived up to press notices of the past few weeks when he defeated Willard Crocker in the first of the Davis Cup test games on the courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club in three straight games, 6.3, 6.2, 6.2.

Rainville cleanly described his victory. He showed great improvement over his last year's form. He drove as hard as his opponent while placing was more accurate. In physical condition he appeared perfect while Crocker seemed not quite up to pitch. Much of the match was in the nature of hard driving duels from back court. Neither player dared take too many liberties. Marcel Rainville used a lot of fine length whenever Crocker tried too soon to reach the net while Willard showed some of his top form when Rainville came in out of turn scoring ten with a beautiful cross court volley.

military satellites. In contrast to this, the Germans say, the German police are always cited by the other powers as possible trained reserves.

France, according to the German viewpoint, does not think of disarmament and the announced American position giving up insistence on the inclusion of trained reserves in army limitation, gives France a loophole to go the limit on land armaments.

Resentment in Britain

LONDON, April 29 (C.P.).—British peace advocates have viewed with some regret Great Britain's joining with the United States in granting non-limitation of trained reserves to countries employing conscription to raise their armies. Their regret has been tempered, however, with a feeling that if a general disarmament convention is the result, the price will have been warranted.

The Times (Independent) said today trained reserves obviously ought to have been included in the estimates of military effectives, but "since the United States and Great Britain maintain armies which are scarcely more than police forces it would perhaps hardly become them to dictate conditions of military disarmament to the great nations of the continent steeped in different traditions. It would be idle to challenge their outlook."

The Daily News (Liberal, and anti-government), said: "The ill-advised American concession to European militarism in agreeing to rule out reserves is due directly to the fact that Great Britain sold the pass in the bargain with France which sullied British statesmanship a few months ago." It added the evils which it thought would attach to the concession as regards reserves might be mitigated by limitation of weapons and war materials

Denounced in Germany

BERLIN, April 29 (C.P.).—The Nationalist press to-day denounced the stand taken by England in affirming American's concession on trained reserves at the Geneva preparatory disarmament conference. It was charged the English action gave France control of the disarmament conference.

Canadian Attitude

GENEVA, April 29 (C.P. Cable, via Reuters).—The Canadian people are against the system of compulsory military service, Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian advisory officer at Geneva, declared in outlining the Canadian attitude on this question before the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission to-day. (Disarmament commission to-day. Disnese delegate to abolish universal military service. On suggestion of the chairman, the Chinese delegate agreed to leave the proposal for consideration by the commission's "steering committee."

Mr. Riddell expressed sympathy with the Chinese proposal, and said Canada associated itself with the view expressed by Great Britain, the United States, Sweden and Holland. He expressed doubt whether the committee at this stage would adopt any resolution on the subject. That was a matter for the later international conference to deal with.

Count Von Bernstorf of Germany favored abolition of compulsory military service, while Maxim Litvinoff, Russian Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, said he was not opposed to the principle of the Chinese proposal.

ACCEPTS CALL.

BELLEVILLE, April 29 "Rev. F. E. Malott, B.A., D.D., has accepted a call from Young United Church, Winnipeg, to become minister of that congregation. He will open his ministry in that church in July. Dr. Malott has been in Belleville for the past seven years as pastor of Bridge Street United Church, coming from Trinity Church, Peterborough. He was educated at the University of Toronto. Dr. Malott has taken a very active interest in public affairs and community enterprises, being a prominent member of the Kiwanis Club. He has also taken a prominent part in Masonic circles in the Quinte district. Rev. R. H. Bell, B.B., D.D., Young Church, Winnipeg, will succeed Dr. Malott as minister of Bridge Street United Church in this city.

PAINTED STAKES ARE LATEST TIP

Hide Usually Unsightly Feature of Lawn Protection—Campaign Grows.

Those who seeded their lawns on Saturday were fortunate in yesterday's rain—and the lawns for which they cared will soon show signs of the beauty that will make Peterborough admired by thousands this summer.

Now is the time to do this important work. The lawn is the setting for the house, the base of all decoration. It should be just as pretty and healthy as it is possible to make it.

Two or three have adopted the idea of painting the stakes with which they protect the lawn, and this certainly adds to the appearance.

Many more have joined The Examiner and Horticultural Society "Beautify Peterborough" campaign. Since publication of the last list, the following have signed the pledge and have received cards:

Mrs. R. J. Spicer, 219 King street; J. W. A. Patoine, 599 Harvey street; Mrs. Guthrie, 181 Edinburg street; H. H. Graham, 8 Aberdeen avenue; Thomas Moore, Reid street.

Mrs. George Hill, 546 Downie street; William H. Blewett, 548 Downie Ernest Benson, 57 George street; J. G. Hardill, 343 McDonnel street; Mrs. Stanley Harris, 478 Donegal street.

To assist in the movement it is necessary only to sign the coupon and bring it to The Examiner officer, receiving in exchange two printed "Please Keep Off the Lawn" signs that link you up with a city-wide movement and help to keep your lawn free from wandering feet. Or, if you desire, mail the coupon to The Examiner office with a two-cent stamp enclosed to cover return postage on the cards.

FILM darkens teeth

Remove it daily

Film discolors teeth and then destroys them. Dentists urge a special way to remove it.

FOR years thousands thought their teeth naturally discolored and dull. Then they made a simple test that brought a glorious surprise.

A film was found to absorb stains from food and smoking and turn white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It is the chief cause of the commoner tooth and gum disorders.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Film must be removed each day. Ordinary brushing fails to do it successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Can., or ask your druggist for full-size tube.

King Honors Booth

LONDON, April 29. —(Canadian Press).—King George to-day ordered conferred on General Bramwell Booth, deposed Commander-in-Chief of the Salvation Army, the order of "Companion of Honor." The order carried no title or precedence but ranks after the first class of the "order of the British Empire."

Only a limited number of awards have been made, going to members of both sexes.

"The General naturally is pleased that the honor has been conferred" his secretary said this afternoon, not so much for his own sake as for the sake of the army. He feels that a great many people in the Army will regard it as a mark of esteem for the work of the Salvation Army."

The General passed a fair weekend, his secretary stated, and has been on the upgrade from his long illness for several days past.

REGISTER Of Social and Business Meetings

The Register is published to enable organizations planning major meetings to know in advance, and reserve, evenings on which there are no rival attractions. It will pay Peterborough organizations to consult the Register prior to settling dates. Responsible officers should mail notices well in advance.

Before deciding a date for any event, consult the Register to ascertain that there is no conflict with other events—and then send in YOUR date quickly so that other organizations will not use it.

Chamber Of Commerce In Favor Of By-law

At a special meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce held Thursday, April 25th, at which two representatives were present from the Nicholls Hospital Board, it was fully explained to the Executive by the representatives of the Board just why the city is being asked to vote $300,000.00 for improvements and extensions to Nicholls Hospital.

Following thorough discussion —in which facts were brought out to the effect that certain of the equipment in the hospital is not modern; that the accommodation facilities are quite inadequate to the needs of the day; that Nicholls Hospital is actually the property of the City of Peterborough, having been accepted by the city from the donor, Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, and her executor; and that the proposed improvements and additions to the Hospital, when completed at a cost of approximately $300,000.00, will increase the accommodation capacity of the Hospital and place it in the 150 bed class—it was resolved that the Executive of the Chamber of Commerce would unanimously endorse the Nicholls Hospital By-law going before the Protestant ratepayers on May 3rd, and recommend the matter for the favorable consideraiton of the membership of the Chamber and of the citizens generally.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESSED BY R. R. HALL, K.C.

Better Understanding Among Peoples of Canada Discussed.

BY-LAWS ENDORSED.

Rotary Behind Hospital and Beach Measures, Says President.

An eloquent plea by R. R. Hall, K.C. that Canadians should develop what the speaker described as Canada's fifth great natural resource, i.e., the fact that here two great peoples speaking different languages are living side by side—featured to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

Mr. Hall, taking as his subject the fostering of better relations between the different peoples of this country, urged that more Canadians should learn to speak the two languages.

Rotarian John Crane, speaking on behalf of the Nicholls Hospital by-law, urged Rotarians to work for and vote for that measure. The suggested improvements were urgently needed and had only been decided upon after earnest consideration on the part of the Board.

President W. R. Morris heartily endorsed the hospital by-law and the Inverlea Park measure, remarking that Rotary as a club should stand behind both measures. "Personally, I also hope that daylight saving carries," remarked President Morris, "although I don't think that as a club we can take a stand in that matter."

President Morris congratulated Rotarian Walter Blackwell on his approaching marriage and later the bridegroom-to-be was the recipient of a silk hat—which Rotarian Chris Graham, who made the presentation declared had already been donated on half a dozen similar occasions.

Visitors to-day included—Windsor municipal delegation, including Commissioner and ex-Mayor Herb Wilson, Commissioner and ex-Mayor Rotarian Frank Mitchell, City Engineer Rotarian Ed Brian, Commissioner Tom Eansor, Rotarian Leo McLaughlin and Fire Chief Clarence De Fields.

Mr. Hall, introduced by the chairman, who declared that no introduction was necessary in his case, erected the setting for his treatment of better understanding between the peoples of Canada by a rapid review of the early history, showing that when the thirteen English-speaking colonies revolted against Great Britain and developed into the United States, the one French-speaking British colony in this country remained loyal to Britain and extended a hearty welcome to the English-speaking people who were driven out of the United States by the revolution. Later, in the war of 1812-1815, although Great Britain was at war with France, and also with the United States, the French Canadian people were again firm in their loyalty to Britain.

Remembrance of this steadfast adherence to the British flag should make Canadians grateful to the French people of this country, the speaker declared.

Summarizing Canada's resources of fisheries, lumber, minerals, etc., Mr. Hall remarked that there was a fifth great national resource, that is the fact that in this country two people speaking different languages lived side by side. He urged that greater use be made of this condition, pointing out how important would be the effect upon interprovincial and upon international trade as well as upon the relations between the two peoples. In order to trade successfully, he maintained, it was necessary to trade in the language of the buyer and it was remarkable that 83 per cent. of Canada's trade was done with people speaking the English language.

Mr. Hall urged that if more of our people, stenographers, clerks, office executives, etc., were taught to speak French, the results would be a wonderful growth in our trade and at the same time the foundation would be laid for a complete and lasting understanding between English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

Rotarian R. F. Downey expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Hall assuring him that this was no mere formality in his case.

Gymnasium Pageant.

This week sees the big Junior Rehearsal at the Grand Opera House in preparation for the coming Pageant May 10 and 11. Every member is asked to attend classes and all extra practices this week.

Pageant Tickets.

Tickets will be in great demand this week and all who wish to see this year's Pageant, which promises to be quite the best yet, are advised to secure tickets from the children this week and thus be sure of admission and also help those selling in the competition. Those who have 50c tickets out and not sold are asked to return same as others are waiting for them.

Costume Money.

Costumes are now almost all ready, and each gym. member is asked to see that her costume is paid for this week.

Camp.

Camp folders are now ready for distribution at the Y, and give all information about our wonderful new summer camp. Come in and get folders and camp pictures to send to your friends. It's not too early to register for camp now, as we expect more girls this summer than camp will be able to accommodate. C.G.I.T. groups and clubs should make reservation early. Camp recreation includes boating, safe bathing, hikes, bonfires, games, stunt nights, fun and friends for all.

Swimming.

Y Pool will be open for swimmers May 7. Get your tickets and doctors certificates and be ready for the first swim of the season. Lessons commence May 15th.

Bible Study.

The last section of the World Study Court on the Life of Christ will be next week. Come to-night and next Monday and enjoy the two remaining studies. Rev. Harton will be leader for this week.

NEW SAVINGS PLAN IN BANK OF COMMERCE

Slot Machine Vends Pocket Bank Shaped Like Pass Book—Idea Is New in Canada.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce is introducing for the first time in Canada vest-pocket Savings Banks. This new method of having the public save has been tried out in Toronto and has "taken on" tremendously and the local branch of the Bank has installed one of the vending machines in front of its premises on the corner of Hunter and Water streets, Peterborough, and, speaking to Mr. A. J. Reynolds, the local Manager, we are informed that the Peterborough people are as enthusiastic about this new plan of saving as they have been in other places where the scheme has been introduced.

In front of the Bank a vending machine of the "quarter-in-the-slot" type has been installed. On inserting a twenty-five cent piece and turning the handle the would-be depositor receives a metal pocket-savings bank, shaped like a pass book and which can only be opened by means of a key in possession of the issuing Bank.

The idea is that many of the people who will buy the book do not have accounts and when they come into the Bank to get their new purchases opened, after they have been filled with coins, the bank official opening the pass-book bank can then start a savings account. The pass-book banks cost the Bank of Commerce more than the sale price and will hold up to ten dollars, depending on the size and value of the coins inserted.

The Bank cordially invites everyone to make use of this novel and handy method of saving. It should be an ideal plan for the thrifty housewife or the worker who wishes to save conveniently.

WEDDING BELLS

McDONALD—BURTON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Thursday, April 25, at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Burton, 480 Driscoll Terrace, when their only daughter, Dora Ethel, became the bride of Leonard A. McDonald, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. McDonald, 262 Dublin street.

The ceremony was performed by Ensign Green of the Salvation Army

The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion with sweet peas and roses, while the ceremony was performed beneath an arch of pink and white, offset with evergreens and white bells.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely dress of pale blue flat crepe trimmed with fawn georgette and lace and hose and shoes to match. Her bouquet was of lovely Columbia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Gibson, wore a frock of chin-chin blue flat crepe and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and ferns.

Little Miss Helen Burton, a niece of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl, in a shell pink crepe-de-chine dress trimmed with lace, and carried a basket of sweet peas and ferns.

The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Maxwell Wilson.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served to about forty guests after which Mr. and Mrs. McDonald left on the afternoon train for Toronto and points west.

The bride travelled in a two-piece ensemble of fawn and blue with blue hat.

Mr and Mrs. McDonald, who will reside in Alparka Apartments, Park street, were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a beautiful stole of fox fur; to the bridesmaid a very pretty compact and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

HALL—FIELD.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. George's church at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon when Harriet Irene Field, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Field, of West Gordon, Manchester, England, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Arthur Wellesley Hall of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hall of Apsley. Rev. J. L. Hughes, Rector, was the officiating clergyman. The congregation was very large and the service was choral.

Mrs. R. King presided at the organ.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Choras the bride entered the church on the arm of Mr. Hosker, who gave her away. She looked charming in a gown of white georgette cut on straight lines with deep collar. The front of the skirt had a drape of heavy silk fringe, which reached the hem line. Her long embroidered veil was arranged in cap shape caught with orange blossoms. She wore white gloves, hose and shoes, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and fern. She was attended by Miss Adkinson as maid of honor and the Misses Wagstaffe and Ferguson as bridesmaids. Miss Adkinson wore a dress of powder blue georgette with silk embroidery, sand colored hat and gray shoes and hose. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Wagstaffe's gown was of rose georgette, worn with a gray hat, and matching shoes and hose. Miss Ferguson wore a dress of flowered georgette with brown hat and shoes and hose to match. Both bridesmaids carried sheaves of doffodils. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. A. Wilson of Apsley, who carried out the duties of best man. The hymn "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden," was sung at the beginning of the service. The bridal party left the church amid showers of confetti and to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Paragon tea rooms, about forty-five people being in attendance. After the bride's cake had been handed around the Rev. J. L. Hughes propose da toast to the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall are spending their honeymoon in Apsley, and on their return will reside on McGill street.

A large number of pretty and useful gifts have been received by the happy couple. On Thursday last the bride was honored at a shower held by the members of St. George's choir, to which she has been attached since her arrival in this country in June last.

LAKEFIELD BOY KILLED in DOURO

Royden Gray Falls From Load of Wood; Wagon Crushes Body

Frightened Horses Bolt Short Distance Near Turn Off From Warsaw Road—Victim Reaches Nearby House Before Collapsing and Lives Half An Hour.

WAS DRAWING WOOD TO ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH WHEN UNKNOWN CAUSE STARTLED HIS TEAM

Lad Passes Away Before Dr. Munro Could Have Him Removed To Hospital—Funeral From Parents' Home in Lakefield On Wednesday.

LAKEFIELD, April 30.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Royden Charles Gray, 16 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, Lakefield, died yesterday evening of injuries he received when in some mysterious manner he fell from the load of wood he was driving and was run over by the wheels. The boy was drawing wood to St. Joseph's Church, Douro, from Henry Batten's farm. The accident that resulted in his death thirty minutes later occurred about four o'clock.

No eye witnesses saw the accident, and the lad, with fatal internal injuries, dragged himself about a hundred yards up the road to George Whibbs' farm. He collapsed before reaching the door, but some of the family had seen his approach and they carried him inside. Dr. Munro of Warsaw was phoned for and he arrived soon after.

The doctor, after a brief inspection of the boy's condition, hurriedly arranged that he be conveyed to Nicholl's Hospital, Peterborough. Before he could be moved, the boy was dead.

No one knows in just what manner the boy fell from load of wood beneath the wheels to suffer his fatal injuries. It is supposed by those living near the scene that in turning the corner from the Warsaw road, the horses became frightened, jerked suddenly out of their slow trot, and the boy was thrown off. The wheels of the heavy wagon with its load of wood passed over his chest. The frightened horses only continued a short distance down the road and were easily secured later.

The funeral of the lad will be held on Wednesday, May 1, from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gray, Nassau street Lakefield, at 2.30 p.m. Interment will be in the Lakefield cemetery and the Rev. S. A. Kemp will be the officiating clergyman.

LABOR WOULD BUILD UTOPIA

Party Stands Foursquare For a New Social Order Such As Never Has Been

Ramsay MacDonald Would Administer Wealth To Advantage of All Who Contribute Useful Service—Fairy Tales Are Not Party's Stock-in-Trade.

'OPPONENTS ARE WELCOME TO TAINTED PROFITS MENDACITY BRINGS THEIR BANKRUPT EXCHEQUER'

In Aim For Nationalization, Labor Will Proceed Without Haste, But Without Rest, With Careful Consideration . . . and Due Compensation To Persons Affected.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, April 30.—The Labor Party stands in the British elections for a new social order. "Unlike other parties," says Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, "the Labor Party is not concerned with patching the rents in a bad system, but with transforming capitalism into socialism. The party is essentially one of action. It asks for power to lay the foundations of a new social order and to relieve immediate distress."

And a pamphlet issued by Labor headquarters in definition of the party's aims—a pamphlet in which the foregoing citation from Mr. MacDonald appears as a foreward, adds: "The Labor Party, since it holds that creed, is a socialist party. It's aim is the re-organization of industry and the administration of the wealth which that industry produces, in the interest not of the small minority (less than 10 per cent. of the population) who own the greater part of the land, the plant and the equipment without access to which the fellow countrymen can neither work nor live, but of all who bring their contribution of useful service to the common stock."

But the pamphlet decides the "red bogey" of "skull and crossbones, clanking chains and bloody dagger." It adds, "the Labor Party is concerned with grave realities, not with picturesque fairy tales. If its opponents care to rehearse once more a time-honored fiction in which even the most ignorant of them no longer believe, they are welcome to such tainted profits as mendacity can bring to their bankrupt exchequer... it will carry its program to completion by peaceful means, without disorder or confusion, with the consent of the majority of the electors and by the use of the ordinary machinery of democratic government."

The Labor Party proposes to advance to the establishment of the socialist commonwealth along five roads. It will, in its own words, use its power:

(1) To secure to every member of the community the standards of life and employment necessary to a healthy, independent and self-respecting existence,

(2) To convert industry, step by step, and with due regard to the special needs and varying circumstances of different occupations, from a sordid struggle for private gain into a co-operative undertaking, carried on for the service of the community and under its control.

(3) To extend widely and rapidly those forms of social provision—education, public health, housing, pensions, the care

ELEVATOR BURNED

EDMONTON, Alta., April 29. — (Canadian Press).—With loss estimated at $120,000 the Edmonton Terminal Grain Elevator Company's elevator here was totally destroyed early to-day in a spectacular fire of unknown origin. Handicapped by lack of water, the fire department was powerless to combat the flames which swept the metal-clad wooden structure from end to end. The Building had been empty since last autumn.

Only Few Optimists Have Faith Schacht Will Make New Offer

Conviction Grows in Paris That Eleven Weeks of Conference Have Been Useful Only As Preliminary To Future Discussions On World-Vexing Question.

BERLIN REPORT FAILS TO HOLD OUT PROMISE OF ANYTHING EXCEPT TWO VALUABLE REPORTS

German Delegates Surprise Leader By Their Spirit of Unanimity—Cabinet and Schacht Refuse to Make Statement Following Their Conference Yesterday.

PARIS, April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Little hope was felt here to-day that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German reparations spokesman, would bring back with him from Berlin an amended German offer which would permit the experts to resume negotiations for a final settlement. The conviction was growing that the eleven weeks old reparations conference had entered the last week of its existence.

The few optimists seemed to pin their faith on hope of a proposal by Dr. Schacht, improving his former terms for the first fifteen annuities, but such information as reached Paris from Berlin, where Dr. Schacht was attending a meeting of the Reichsbank directorate indicated no such change of attitude on his part.

The text of the first sixteen chapters of the committee's report to the governments was in the hands of sub-committee members, who studied it separately, to-day.

None anticipated a demand for important changes of any of the fundamental principles outlined in the report, but it was regarded quite likely some delegations would ask for some minor alterations in wordage. The difficulty thus far seems to have been drawing up a report in any one language which would convey upon translation into another language exactly the same idea as the original.

The original has been written in English.

Nothing New At Berlin

BERLIN, April 30. — (Canadian Press).—With Dr. Schacht's day occupied by sessions of the Reichsbank directorate and with members of the cabinet in the midst of discussions at the Reichstag budget committee, the reparations situation brought forth no new development to-day so far as Germany is concerned.

The Associated Press however, learned from an excellent source that Dr. Schacht personally expects the present conference of experts at Paris to be merely preparatory to a later and more fruitful parley, although Dr. Schacht and members

New Anesthesia Used in St. Joseph's Hospital Leaves Patient Conscious But Without Pain

SOMETHING absolutely new in the realm of medicine had probably its first use in the city yesterday, when spinal anesthesia was used in connection with an operation performed in St. Joseph's Hospital. Charles Evans, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Evans, of 505 Sherbrooke Street, had an intestinal obstruction removed by this method, which does away with the administration of chloroform. The Examiner was informed by his relatives that he was conscious of the operation throughout, and suffered no pain whatever. He was able to see members of the family immediately afterwards, and appeared to be quite cheerful, suffering none of the usual disagreeable after-effects of other anesthetics. The substance takes the form of a fluid which is injected in the spinal cord.

Dr. E. H. Wood performed the operation. On being interrogated, he remarked that it was a perfected method of one which he had seen used and demonstrated at the convention of the American College of Surgeons, in Boston, last fall.

CAPTAIN WALSH LOSES LEG AT LAUNCHING OF BIG SCOW

Other So Badly Injured It May Have To Be Amputated.

CAUGHT IN ROPE.

As the result of an accident at the launching of a scow this morning, Captain J. J. Walsh, 232 Wescott street, has lost one leg, and may suffer the loss of the other.

Captain Walsh, a member of the Trent Canal staff, was assisting in the launching of the seventy-five ton scow at the shipbuilding yard near lock 20. As the heavy hull was released, his feet became entangled in a snubbing rope. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, and is being attended by Dr. J. M. O'Brien. One leg has been amputated just below the knee, and the other is so lacerated and torn that it is feared it may be necessary to remove it also. The victim is suffering also from shock and contusions.

DIDN'T ASK; BUT COULD USE IT

TORONTO, Ont., April 30.—Hon. William Finlayson, back from his tour of inspection of the Western section of Northern Ontario, denied he had announced at Port Arthur that he would ask for $10,000,000 at the next session of the Legislature for the development of Northern Ontario.

"What I said was that I could use $10,000,000 if I could get it," the Minister of Lands and Forest explained.

This year, as for several years previously, the Legislature voted $5,000,000 for Northern Ontario development.

Boy 7, Pedals 20 Miles On Tricycle; Observes All Traffic Signs On Highway

TORONTO, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press).—George Reed, 7, Richmond Hill, Ontario, set out to see the world yesterday. He pedalled 20 miles on his tricycle from Richmond Hill to Toronto before his travels were stopped. The young lad was found downtown at 10 o'clock last night by a policeman and taken to a local police station. The sturdy youngster seemed none the worse for his long drive. He complained of being just a trifle hungry however. He proudly informed the police that he had carefully observed all traffic signals in the course of his trip.

He was cared for by the police until his father arrived early this morning to take him home.

MAN AND WOMAN CAST SHOWER OF ABUSE ON BRITISH HOUSE

Dignity of Commons Menaced By Communists From Gallery.

BUSINESS HALTED.

Startled Members Are Centre of Teeming Insulting Leaflets.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 30.— "Down with the government of murderers! Down with the persecutors! Down with the Simon commission.."

Shouting these words at the top of their voices a man and woman yesterday interrupted the proceedings of the House of Commons from the public galleries. They flung a huge bundle of leaflets over the heads of the startled members.

The man was rapidly hustled out, but the woman clung to the railing as she kept shouting and flinging more leaflets. The attendants forced her away eventually, but as they ran her down the corridors the place still rang with her cry of "Down with the persecutors!"

The seats and the floor of the House were litterly covered with green type-written sheets bearing the words: "Down with British Imperialism. To hell with the Simon commission.." They also bore the name of the London district committee for International class war." The interrupters are known as avowed communists. The man is a guage-maker by trade and the woman is a clerk. She is 22 years old and the man is elderly. In accordance with the usual custom, both were detained until the House rose, but no charge will be laid.

The House was in the act of pushing through legislation in a hurry in anticipation of an early prorogation when it was so rudely disturbed. Until then it had been sweeping through business at a rapid pace with the shadow of dissolution hanging over it. At question time instead of the usual crowded benches there was only a scant attendance.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Supposed to be mentally deranged, Andrew Cajdo, 30, a recent Slovak arrival from Europe, hanged himself in a police cell here yesterday. He had been brought to confinement yesterday because he showed signs of insanity.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press).—A coroner's jury here last night returned a verdict of accidental death at the inquest into the death on April 23 of William K. Mackenzie and Noel C. Marshall, both of Toronto. The men were killed when their airplane crashed from about 150 feet just after they had taken off from the Leaside flying field here. The men were going up on a pleasure flight.

Skeleton Is Found Of Man Lost In 1917

SAULT STE. MARIE, April 30. (C.P.)—The provincial police are of the opinion that the skeleton of a man found in the bush near mile 109 Algoma Central Railway, is that of a man named Walker, of Chatham, Ont, who disappeared from Sinclair's Cove, 4 miles above Agawa Bay, in November, 1927. Walker was trapping with Joseph Laford at the Cove and he left to walk to the track in bitterly cold and stormy weather. He was insufficiently clad, and was never heard of again.

Bush rubbers, which were not mates, were found on the skeleton. Walker, it is stated, wore rubbers of this description.

ASK REASONS FOR INCREASE

Automobile Insurance Companies Must Tell Grounds For Higher Rates.

OBJECTION MADE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Automobile insurance companies will have to furnish complete statistics and records showing the exact grounds on which they based the recent increase in rates.

This ruling was given by Justice Hodgins at the royal commission investigating the automobile insurance rates yesterday afternoon. Some companies were able to furnish the information required by the commissioner and others were not. All objected to its production.

The commissioner said he must have evidence to show the reasonableness of the increase or otherwise. Further, if he had to make changes in the rates, it was imperative all facts should be placed before him. He could not understand why the companies were unable to ascertain from their books the ratio of loss to income for the years 1925-26-27.

His Lordship's remarks came at the conclusion of evidence given by W. M. Cox, president and general manager of the British-American Company. The witness said the information asked for could not be supplied, it would take a long time, the expense would be too great and its compilation would disrupt business.

TO OPEN AIRPORT.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press).—Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, will open Hamilton's new civic airport on Thursday afternoon, June 6, it was announced here yesterday. In connection with the opening, the greatest demonstration of flying in Canada's history is promised by those in charge of the program.

Possible arbitrators of the I'm Alone sinking problem: (1) Eugene Lafleur; (2) Hon. Newton W. Rowell; (3) Chief Justice William H. Taft of the United States; (4) Mr Justice Duff of the supreme court of Canada; (5) C. H. Cahan, who has been mentioned as counsel for the owners of the I'm Alone.

SMALLPOX IS WELL IN HAND

Capreol Outbreak Is Of Mild Type, Says Minister of Health.

TWENTY VICTIMS.

TORONTO, April 30. (C.P.) — Small-pox, with origin so far unknown, has broken out in and around Capreol, Ont., and at the present time there are at least 20 persons down with the diesase, it was announced here yesterday.

The Department of Health, however, has the situation well in hand, and everything is being done, Hon Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, stated yesterday, to minimize the spread of the disease.

Dr. W. J. Bell, deputy minister of the department, has just returned to Toronto, from an investigation of the situation, and reports all the cases to be of a mild type.

TWO MEN DIE IN CLAY FALL

Workmen Buried When Support Gives Way At Toronto.

BODIES RECOVERED.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30.—(C.P.)—Rocco Lupini, 50, Toronto, and Alex. McVey, Scarboro, Ont., lost their lives here yesterday afternoon when a support gave way and they were buried under a pile of clay ten feet underground.

The two men were engaged in the construction of a sewer when the fatality occurred. They were underground, seeing to the election of the "seatings," as the framework erected overhead for the protection of workmen is known. Suddenly one of the timbers gave way and the heavy clay poured down on them crushing them and suffocating them.

The other workers on the job immediately rushed to their assistance. Their efforts, however, were in vain. The heavy clay which constitutes the soil in that district handicapped the work of rescue. It was twenty minutes before the bodies could be reached. When found both men were dead.

KING TAKES UP STATE DUTIES

Will Preside At Privy Council Meeting Regarding Election.

PERSONAL INTEREST.

LONDON, April 30 (Canadian Press).—The King has so far recovered from his illness at Bognor that he is gradually resuming his regular State functions and desires to deal personally with matters pertaining to the General Election on May 30.

It was officially announced last night that His Majesty would personally preside at a meeting of the Privy Council at Craigwell House, May 10, to this end. The meeting will be attended by Premier Baldwin and Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary.

PUBLIC WORKS MONEY VOTED

Progress Unchecked When the House of Commons Votes Supply.

WILL SPEED UP.

OTTAWA, Ont., Opril 30 (C.P.).—Business was brisk in the House of Commons yesterday. After some time spent in going through a very lengthy list of divorce bills, the House again buckled down to the business of voting supply. Estimates of the Department of Public Works were taken up where the members left off last week, and progress was fairly rapid.

Appropriations for harbors anr rivers in Prince Edward Island, amounting to $169,800, passed the supply committe with very little discussion. Then the votes for similar public works in the province of Nova Scotia, occupied the attention of the members. Items passed quickly, and discussion on separate votes was comparatively brief. The Nova Scotia list was lengthy and appropriations tototalled $750,200. It was not quite completed when the House rose.

From Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition, came an intimation earlier in the day, that efforts are being made to shorten discussion bearing on dismissal of postmasters. These dismissals have already occupied a considerable part of the time which the House has devoted to estimates of the Post Office Department. Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster General, he said, had agreed to produce original files for perusal of those members who desired to see them. This would tend to expedite the conduct of public business.

ALFALFA SEED USELESS HERE

Warning Issued To Beware of All Alfalfa Seed Stained Red.

FAILED IN TESTS.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30. (C.P.)—Planting of seed from a region known to produce a type of alfalfa unsuitable for Canadian conditions, is to invite disaster.

"We are informed," says G. R. McCrostie, Dominion Agrostologist, "that there has been lately imported into Ontario two substantial shipments of Argentine alfalfa seed. Numerous tests in many parts of Canada have proven this seed unsuitable for our use. This Argentine seed is required by law to be stained red to an extent of ten per cent. For your own protection beware of all alfalfa seed carrying a red stain," he said.

ANOTHER CASE DREAD DISEASE

Young Girl Is Victim At Glencoe, in Quarantined House.

DEATHS RECALLED.

GLENCOE, April 30 (Canadian Press).—Another case of the dreaded streptococcus haemolyticus, that caused four deaths in Ekfrid Township two weeks ago, is engaging medical science at the home of William Brown, near Glencoe.

The patient is Mary Grover, a young girl, who has been under quarantine with the members of the Brown family since the Brown brothers, Daniel, 21, and William, 9, died within 24 hours of each other a few days after attending the funeral of Barbara Sinclair. The Brown home is still under quarantine, and a trained nurse from London has been brought to attend Miss Grover.

ELECTED MODERATOR.

PARIS, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press).—Rev. J. A. Brown, of Ingersoll, Ont., was last night elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of London and Hamilton. He succeeds Rev. J. H. Barnett, Ridgetown, Ont.

WAGE SCALE NOT DECIDED

Plasterers Fail To Agree With Association—May Be Out To-morrow.

SERIOUS SITUATION.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30 (CP).—Negotiations between union plasterers and the Contracting Plasterers' Association of the Builders' Exchange came to an end last night, when the union at a meeting here rejected an offer of employers of an increase in wages of 7½ cents an hour until January 1, 1930, and 5 cents an hour until May 1, 1931, for a 44-hour week to fight for a wage increase and the 40 hour week.

The wage contract of the union expires this afternoon at 5 o'clock and unless the unexpected happens plasterers will be on the street on Wednesday morning along with lathers, whose officials have failed also to secure a wage agreement from employers.

Union officials stated last night that the failure of plasterers, lathers and sheet metal workers to obtain agreements had created a situation which was more serious than any dispute affecting the building industry since the war. John Nelson, president of the General Pasterers' Association admitted that while building operations were comparatively quiet a strike of pasterers would tie work up.

The Weather

Although this is the last day of April, the temperature was down two degrees below the freezing point last night. Yesterday afternoon, and also during the previous night snowflurries were to be seen. While some of the trees are showing signs of life, growth generally has been backward. The rainfall has been excessive. During the month 4.17 has fallen, and some more is not far away.—W.P.

PRIESTS' BODIES FOUND.

HANKOW, China, April 30 (Canadian Press).—The Catholic Passionist Procurator here has received word from Chenki, in the Province of Hunan, that the bodies of three priests, who recently were slain by bandits there, had been recovered. Details of the killing of the priests were not available.

NOTHING SAID ABOUT FIGHT.

WINDSOR, April 29. (C.P.) — American witnesses to the drowning in Detroit River near Bob-Lo Island last Friday, of "Captain Jack" Hart and Frank Jackson, were quizzed this morning by Chief of Police Isaac Peabody of Grosse Isle, who announced subsequently he had not been responsible for the report that the missing men had been fighting in their boat before it upset, near the Canadian island. The chief said "I was talking to the witnesses who saw the men when they were pitched into the water by the lurching of the boat. They certainly said nothing to me or any of our officers about a fight."

WANTS DIVORCE REFORM.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press).—Divorce reform continues to be strenuously stressed by J. S. Woodsworth, who cannot see why the Government should agree to this next session and not give effect to it now. Little progress was made in the passage of the divorce bills through the Commons yesterday.

John Evans, Progressive, Rosetown, joined Mr. Woodsworth in pressing for a decision on the question of granting alimony. It was contended by the Minister of Justice and others that the question of alimony could be dealt with in the civil courts, and some doubt was expressed on the authority of Parliament to deal with this phase.

STOMACH TROUBLES, HEADACHES AND DIZZINESS

When your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food, you lose strength and "pep"; get thin and nervous; and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

This was the condition of Mme. P. Joyal, 2170 Letourneux street, Montreal. She says: "I was so nervous that the rustling of a newspaper upset me. My appetite had left me; indigestion was giving me a great deal of trouble; I could not sleep; and steadily lost weight. Tanlac soon had me eating again, corrected my stomach trouble, steadied my nerves, ran my weight up ten pounds, and made me feel just right in every way. Let Tanlac do for you what it did for this sufferer and thousands of others. It is marvelous to see how it corrects the most obstinate digestion troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels—how it restores the appetite, vigor, sound sleep and strong nerves.

BETTER BREAD FOR BETTER HEALTH

Riding abreast of the times

You expect more from your motor car today than you did ten years ago. And you get it. Greater speed, smoother power and more responsive performance are common to modern cars as a result of the development of higher speed, higher compression motors.

These improved engines demand a better oil—fuller-bodied, with greater resistance to heat and wear.

To ensure a better motor oil, Imperial Oil Limited goes all the way to Peru for the crude from which to make Marvelube. Marvelube is made from a base that is rich in all the qualities necessary for better lubrication of the modern motor. It is today the oil standard for high-speed motors from coast to coast.

Marvelube is preferred by over half a million motorists in Canada and is the choice of aircraft operators because of its superior lubricating qualities.

There is a grade of Marvelube refined to meet exactly the specifications of your car, truck or tractor. Consult the Marvelube Chart at Imperial Oil stations and dealers.

Aged Warsaw Resident Celebrates Birthday

MRS. CLEMENTS IS NINETY-ONE YEARS OF AGE

Aged Pioneer Believed To Be One of Oldest Residents in Warsaw District.

SEES MANY CHANGES.

Young People of St. James' Church Present Play in Town Hall.

WARSAW, April 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. Clements celebrated her ninety-first birthday on Friday quietly as she has been confined to her home for more than a year. Most of her family called upon her, as well as several friends, and she chatted brightly with all. For several years she has lived alone in her own house. She might visit some of her family for a short time, but remain away she would not. Her daughter, Mrs. Donald MacIntosh, whose home is in Zealandia, came to her shortly after her illness.

Mrs. Clements delights in telling incidents of former days in connection with the people whom she knew, and can tell of many changes in Warsaw. She herself was once lost in the woods near where her present home now stands.

Mrs. Clements is one of those who thinks times are improving. She lies and watches the world go by. Her window does not face the street, but she has an excellent view of the grade on the Dummer Road as it turns to the village, and of a nearer road to the village, and what passes her house must necessarily come into view. She likes the better roads and the better and quicker modes of travel, and tells people it is far better than it used to be, and is glad people are having better modes of life.

Mrs. Clements is a very interesting old lady, and so far as is known, is the oldest woman in the district.

Taken Seriously Ill.

Orval Watts, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Watts, is in a very critical condition in Nicholls Hospital as a result of appendicitis. The lad had not felt very well for a few days, but on Friday afternoon was taken with a violent pain. Dr. Munro was called, and immediately took him to Nicholls Hospital, where an operation was performed, but he was found to be in a very serious condition. Mr. and Mrs. Watts are staying with him. He is such a bright and happy boy and so true, his sudden severe illness has had an effect on all who knew him.

Present Play.

The young people of St. James' Church, Peterborough, presented the play, "The Path Across the Hill" in Warsaw Town Hall on Friday evening. The play was one of the best ever put on here, and there have been some good ones. It would be difficult to say which part was best, for all were good and thoroughly enjoyed.

One of the cast was Hector Thompson, a local boy, now working in Peterborough. The United Church Ladies' Aid served a supper to the entertainers in the church basement.

It had been told to the ladies that sandwiches and cake were usually served, so they decided to give them something else.

Seeding Started.

Seeding has begun. Until Thursday none was reported, although several fields were ready for sowing before Thursday's rain. A great many think their grain is as well in the bags until the cold rains are over.

Personals.

Miss Eliza McIlvena is visiting friends in the village.

Miss Jean Munro spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Choate left San Juan on Tuesday, and are spending the week-end in Toronto. They plan to be in Warsaw early this week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 30. — Heavy volume of offerings lowered prices on yesterday's wheat market. Buying by houses with seaboard connections was unable to hold the market firm, and final quotations were 1¼c to 1⅝c lower for the day. Export business over the week-end was small.

Cash trading was dull and featureless, and values were generally unchanged to ½c easier.

Oats was the only active grain on the coarse-grain section. Barley, rye, and flax were quiet.

Cattle Receipts, 2,700

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 30.—Prices of the best butcher cattle in the sales of the opening yesterday morning were firm to a shade stronger than last week.

After the first two hours the trade was draggy, and salesmen asked an advance on all shades of killers. Buyers did not seem inclined to pay more than steady prices for anything but the best.

The light run in view of the strong market last week was taken as an indication of shortage in the country. Early sales showed butcher steers selling from 9 to 11 cents a pound and butcher heifers 9 to 10¾ cents a pound.

TORONTO, April 30.—Trading was slightly more active on the wholesale butter market yesterday, and dealers took advantage of every opportunity to reduce their stocks. A large shipment is due to arrive on track locally about the end of the week and prices appear barely steady at 39c per lb. for No. 1 finest creamery, and 38c for No. 2.

Domestic production is ahead of last year and dealers report that supplies from this source are suffcient to take care of the consumptive demand.

A stronger feeling developed in the wholesale egg market during the past few days, and prices were advanced one cent per dozen. Receipts have been fairly heavy and dealers are getting ample supplies for storage purposes. Reports from outside indicate that production is increasing daily and large shipments may be expected to reach the market this week.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, are as follows: Extras, 27c to 28c per dozen; firsts, 25c to 26c, and seconds, 22c to 23c per dozen.

Trading was quiet on the local cheese market and prices were unchanged at from 20c to 21c per lb for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 30.—Butter was a cent cheaper to the retail trade here yesterday, jobbing houses announcing a reduction in their prices to retailers to 40c per lb. for solids and 41c per lb. for prints. The wholesale trade in butter was quiet, but deferring perchases in view of the downward trend to the present market. Asked prices in the wholesale trade were 37c per lb for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized, fresh made, and 38½c for New Zealand finest. Some Western No. 1 pasteurized was sold at 36c per lb. Receipts were 474 boxes.

The cheese market was quiet, with little business passing. There was an easy undertone to the market. Receipts were 126 boxes. Egg prices were unchanged. Receipts were 3,197 cases.

Potato prices were higher yesterday. There was a better feeling to the market, with more activity. Supplies are light, rainy weather at loading points keeping roads in bad hauling condition, making supplies scanty. Prices advanced on track here to 65c for New Brunswick Green Mountains per 90 lbs., in bulk; Prince Edward Island potatoes were selling at 75c for whites and 90c for Green Mountains, per 90 lbs., in bags.

Quotations:

Butter—No. 1 pasteurized, 37c.

Eggs—Fresh extras, 33c to 34c.

Eggs—Fresh firsts, 31c to 32c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 30.—Struggles to hoist or to overturn grain values yesterday met with but a single result—an all-around decision that the fights were a draw. Nervous action of prices was an outstanding feature, but changes kept within relatively narrow limits, and trading consisted largely of month-end adjustments to prepare for deliveries on May contracts beginning Wednesday.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at ¼c net decline to ⅝c advance. Corn finished ⅝c off to ½c up; oats varying from ¼c setback to ½c to ⅝c gain, and provisions unaltered to a drop of 20c.

Opening lower, the wheat market soon rallied, and for a time ruled firm, but it dropped back later, and was hardening again at the windup. The start was influenced by unexpected weakness of quotations at Liverpool, and by indications of decided reluctance of many holders of May contracts to accept proffers of warehouse receipts Wednesday next or after as a method of settlement. Besides, domestic crop advices were favorable as a rule. However, complaints of too rank growth in parts of the Southwest, especially the Texas Panhandle, leading to fear of crop damage there from hot, dry weather later on, gave some advantage temporarily to the buying side of the market, and so likewise did reports of need of rain in east sections of Oklahoma.

Export Demand is Light

Disappointly scant export call yesterday for wheat from North America counted as a late bearish factor, but was more or less offset by 3,459,000 bushels falling off in the United States visible stock and by an authoritative estimate that the wheat crop of Rumania would be 25,000,000 bushels less than last year owing to decrease of acreage. An official report was also at hand that farm stocks of wheat in Great Britain were 2,000,000 bushels under the total a year ago, and that the amount of wheat on ocean passage is less than either last week or last year.

Corn displayed firmness except that contrary to recent experience the quotations on December delivery inclined downward. Rural offerings were small, and shipping demand fair. The forecast was for widespread showers. Oats values were sustained by reports of wet weather delays to completion of seeding.

Provisions reflected price declines in the hog market.

ROTARY HEARS ABOUT FLORIDA

Campbellford Club Told By Purdy Petty That Ontario Is Better.

GOOD ROADS ASKED.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).— Owing to illness there were two members of the local Rotary Club unable to be present at the luncheon yesterday noon at the St. Lawrence Hotel. Purdy Petty, who has just returned from a motor trip to Florida, was the speaker, and gave a brief account of his journey both down and back. He was not greatly impressed with Florida, and described its attractions as artificial. He thought that the natural beauty of Ontario was a much greater attraction to the tourist.

On his way down, Purdy Petty sketched his course as through the Niagara Peninsula to Buffalo, Erie, Columbus, Cleveland, down through Lexington, Kentucky, and from there east and south till he arrived in the State of Florida. The rolling lands of Tennessee were very attractive to him, as was also the cotton belt. In Florida, he claimed, ninety per cent. of the land was rock or coral sand. In spite of this circumstance, it was the only state in the Union that was not in debt to the United States. Orange growing and truck farming were the principal industries, and there were several cities depending almost entirely on the tourist trade for their existence. But all the scenery was artificial, he claimed, and although it was very beautiful he was of the opinion that Ontario's natural scenic beauty was a much greater attraction to the tourist. "Florida is a nice place for an invalid," Mr. Petty said in conclusion, "but as far as making a living goes, I would say to stay up north."

Dr. Longmore expressed the gratitude of the club to the speaker. Then he proceeded to point out that last year Canada had been visited by more than eleven million tourists. The tourist trade was placed third in order of magnitude, with agriculture and manufacturing, he thought, but was not certain heading the list. He believed that good roads would help to increase this trade. He recalled the fact that two years ago he had visited Alaska. On the vessel sailing up the west coast, there had been a large passenger list, and only five of them Canadians. Three of these were in his party. An interesting incident had occurred when one of the other two had lost his money and could not pay his railway fare in the Northland. After carefully checking up his movements he decided it was left under his pillow in his berth on board ship. Asked how much he had lost, the man replied that it was two thousand dollars. This made it difficult for him to obtain a loan from fellow-passengers till his own funds could be recovered. They believed that a man who was so absent-minded as to leave such a sum under his pillow would probably forget about repaying a loan. Another case was when a woman purchased a silver fox neck piece for twelve hundred dollars. Dr. Longmore explained that the foxes were reared in that country and the pelts were treated and made up there, and not shipped out to the south country for preparations. When the woman bought the neck piece she remarked that it would have cost her twelve hundred and fifty in New York. "She was making money all the way," said the doctor with a smile that showed clearly he did not approve of the woman's ideas of bargains.

General Business.

Old Home Week was the cause of most of the business discussion yesterday. For some time the Rotarians discussed the pros and cons of floats for both the parades and the water carnival. Finally the matter was left for general discussion among the members and some definite move will be made at the next luncheon. James Loucks, D. W. Douglas, and Ross MacLaren were appointed a committee to look after the interests of the club during Old Home Week. The president pointed out that the Rotary year was about at an end, and that it was a good time to bring in new members. Elie Brunelle, who is responsible for bringing in the applications, was requested to get busy and round up a few for the beginning of the Rotary year.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Mr. Antonio Brunelle was rushed to St Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, late on Sunday night. He is suffering from an infected arm.

BEER EXPORTED COURT DECIDES

Crown May Appeal Decision of Exchequer Court of Canada.

$421,400 CLAIMED.

TORONTO, April 30. (C.P.) — Holding that most of the beer which left the Carling Export Brewing and Malting Company, at London, Ont., for the United States, had actually been exported, Mr. Justice Audette, in the Exchequer Court of Canada, yesterday afternoon, ordered the company to pay tax on 17 per cent. only of their sales.

The decision resulted from the attempt of the Dominion Government to collect $421,400 alleged unpaid sales and gallonage tax

It is understood an appeal will be lodged by the Crown. Costs were given against the company.

Through the judgment the company must pay the Department of National Revenue nearly $72,000.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

ST. THOMAS, April 30. (C.P.) — Sherif Rakip, 52, St. Thomas, charged with the murder of Alfred N. Westaway, who was fatally stabbed in a fracas in a local cafe on March 31, was committed for trial at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing here yesterday afternoon.

THE EYES OF THE WORLD ON CANADA

Again this summer the Dean Laird Special Train will make its de luxe tour Across Canada and Back starting from North Toronto Station, July 22nd, and ending at Toronto Union Station, August 12th, a twenty-one days' visit to all the important cities and provincial centres with stops at all the beauty spots in Canada's Rocky Mountains. Everything is planned to eliminate travel worries. The train is your home for three weeks to the coast and back, with refreshing changes occasionally of trips on lake and ocean steamships, motor car and busses. It's a great Country, a vast Dominion of surprise for you who have not yet taken the trip and for those who have already crossed, the surprises are in the extensive development and amazing growth of its cities and enterprises.

A hearty welcome awaits you in the West, and you will thoroughly enjoy the advantages of all expense tour for the exceptional sum of $340.00 with Canadian Pacific service throughout. An illustrated booklelt of the tour procured from Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College, P.O., Quebec, or J. Skinner, C.P.A., 343 George street, Peterborough, Ont. will give complete details.

IRRADIATED FOODS FOR ANIMALS AND POULTRY

Inventors Have Special Scientific Process of Treating Foods Providing Organism and Vitamins.

Something new has recently been brought to this country which is in the nature of irradiated foods for animals and poultry. From tests made by the government it would appear that these foods have very great merit. These food stuffs are apparently the result of years of scientific research in Brussels, Belgium and emanate from the well known house of Sanders. Professors Du Bois and Huynen have given much time and study to the effect of irradiated foods for animals and have found a method of providing the organism with vitamins in as concentrated form as possible and in full activity. They provide the animal or fowl with a substitute for sunlight in the nature of a vitaminic compound. The inventors have a special scientific process of their own and they state the light they use approximates very closely to the solar spectrum and is of greater intensity. Practical results have now been arrived at and have been corroborated by the Government and numerous veterinary surgeons in different countries.

The value of ergosterin is fully appreciated and made use of in their process. The inventors have found that by their ultra violet ray process they can transform the ergosterin into anti-rachitic vitamins, thus providing a preventative for rickets and other diseases in animals and poultry as well as for the rapid development and growth in live stock and the increase production of milk in dairy cows. This should be of very great value to all breeders of live stock, especially in this country where live stock are under cover six or seven months in the year. The laboratory work accomplished by these scientists in Belgium has been very extensive and the results arrived at are the completion of years of scientific research.

The Nicholls Hospital An Asset to Peterboro

The operating expenses of the hospital amounted in 1928 to upwards of $80,000, of which fully ninety per cent. was expended in Peterborough. All purchases of furnishings, drugs, fuel, meats, groceries, fruits and vegetables are distributed among the merchants of this city.

The Nicholls Hospital is a public hospital owned by the citizens of Peterborough. It is operated for the citizens and its adequacy and success will be a tribute to the city. The cost of the proposed extension and improvements means a cost of but $1.25 per thousand dollars of assessment, per year. Is this extra tax not worth while to give the city the necessary hospital facilities?

A LITTLE ABOUT OURSELVES.

The extent to which the material it publishes is used by other journals is generally accepted as a good yardstick by which the quality of a newspaper's editorial and news matter may be judged and as a barometer of reader interest.

Readers of The Examiner will therefore be interested to know that, according to a report of the Dominion Clipping Bureau, this paper's views on various subjects were quoted in other Canadian newspapers—in all parts of Canada incidentally,—no fewer than 115 times during the months of February and March of this year.

Accepting those figures as a fair average—they mean that in a year The Examiner is quoted some 700 times by other Canadian newspapers—a record that will compare most favorably with journals in The Examiner's field.

Attention is called to this showing, not in a boastful spirit, but as an indication that we are making some progress in our ambition to produce a newspaper that will interest and inform our readers, and the views of which will be considered by contemporary journals throughout the Dominion as worthy of being repeated for the benefit of their clientele.

LEARN TO SWIM.

Once more the Young Men's Christian Association is making it easy for local boys who have not learned the art of swimming to do so in safety.

The annual learn-to-swim campaign just announced comes at the right time, affording an opportunity before the outdoor bathing season for youngsters to gain a working knowledge of swimming.

Every boy in Peterborough a swimmer, is an aim that is not impossible to reach with the facilities of the Y.M.C.A. available, and parents of small boys who are as yet unable to take care of themselves in the water should not let this chance go by.

Situated as this community is with river and lake resorts at our door and the majority of citizens spending much of their time in the neighborhood of some body of water during the summer months, it is of the greatest importance that a knowledge of the rudiments of swimming should be as general as possible.

The ability to swim even a little may mean the difference between life and death, for while an unexpected dip in the water is usually only a joke to the individual who can swim, it is more likely than not to prove a tragedy in the case of a non-swimmer.

The Y.M.C.A. offer should be taken advantage of by all youngsters who have not yet learned the art.

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE HIGHWAYS.

The toll of lives taken in motor traffic accidents over the week-end, with five people killed in Ontario alone and eighteen victims in three spectacular accidents across the border, suggests that despite all the efforts of motor clubs, safety leagues, newspapers and other agencies to develop a safety consciousness, recklessness and carelessness still have to be reckoned with.

The tragedy of it is that all these week-end accidents could have been avoided with ordinary care.

Two of them were the result of failure to "stop, look and listen" at railway crossings, another by a reckless "cutter-in," still another by a collision between a motor bus and an automobile.

No need for any of these tragedies, and yet because some one was careless over a score of lives have been taken, in several cases whole families being wiped out.

There is nothing new in this, and The Examiner has dwelt upon the subject with almost monotonous regularity.

Yet it does seem imperative that, regardless of whether results are secured or not, newspapers should continue to sound the warning, hopeful that its effect will not be lost completely.

To sit back and watch this slaughter on the highways without trying to do something to cut down the accident death rate would be to neglect one of the important duties of a newspaper that feels a sense of responsibility toward its reader family.

THE HOSPITAL SITUATION.

The difficulty of getting the discussion on the Nicholls Hospital by-law down to essentialities and of keeping the real issue before the ratepayers is illustrated by the fact that while some people are demanding to know what the Hospital Board does with its profits every year, others are worrying about how much the hospital has and will cost the city for maintenance.

Here are two viewpoints that are diametrically opposed to each other, and that are each based on a misunderstanding of the actual conditions.

The simple truth lies half-way between these two conflicting ideas.

Nicholls Hospital has, as a matter of fact, been self-sustaining during its long period of service.

At the same time it has not piled up any huge surpluses.

It has been operated without cost to the ratepayers, and so far as maintenance costs go can be counted upon to be so operated.

Profits and maintenance costs are therefore in no way factors in the present discussion.

The whole thing boils down to the fact that the present hospital has been left behind by the growing need for hospital service, and that in the community interest it must be enlarged and modernized—an obligation that should be assumed the more cheerfully because for nearly half a century we have had hospital accommodation through no civic outlay, but through the generosity of a public-spirited citizen.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

(From The St. Thomas Times-Journal)

According to an announcement this week, "Daylight Saving" is making steady progress in the United States, and 25,000,000 people will enjoy its benefits this summer.

There never has been any difficulty in persuading cities to adopt this plan, but the farming section of the country has always been hostile. It was the farm bloc that defeated daylight saving in 1919 in the Dominion House, and it was the power of the farm vote that caused the United States to repeal the Act that same year. Great Britain adopted daylight saving in 1916, and within the next three years France, Germany and Italy followed suit and have stuck to it ever since.

These countries practice daylight saving in the only way in which William Willett, the founder of the movement, ever intended to apply it—by making it universal throughout the land. That is the only way by which it can be successful. Piece-meal application only causes confusion and irritation, although the here-and-there enforcement in Canada and the United States meets with the approval of large majorities of people. But modern methods of transportation bring cities so rapidly together that the varying times cause the same sort of inconvenience that would happen if next door neighbors each went by their own time instead of by a co-ordinated system.

Daylight saving is one of the greatest boons ever conferred on man. And it costs nothing whatever. In fact, it is a great saving in many ways. It saves lighting costs, it saves lives because there is an hour's less motoring in darkness at night, and it prolongs life by increasing the time spent in the open air for rest and recreation.

If the doleful objections raised against it were true—its alleged injury to child life and its impediment to farming—it would have been abolished in Europe long ago. There are nearly 200,000,000 people in the four European countries which, by national legislation, adopt daylight saving automatically year by year. And 200,000,000 people can't be wrong.

When daylight saving was first proposed in Great Britain, the farmers said they couldn't conform to such legislation because the dew wasn't off the land in the early morning. They also said it would disturb the habits of the cows and "put them off their milk." British agriculture to-day is not in a good way, but nobody ever heard the depression attributed to daylight saving.

Who ever heard of a farmer who regulated his work on the farm strictly by the clock? He works by the weather more than anything else. If there is dew on the land, or if it rains in the early morning, he doesn't sit down and twiddle his thumbs till the dew passes off or until the rain stops. There is always something to do on a farm, so he goes and does that something else until conditions become suitable for the other job.

And is it not a fact that even the farmer takes advantage, like the rest of the human race, of having an extra hour's rest on Sunday morning? But does the cow balk at the milk pail because the milker is an hour late? Not she. The cow is an accommodating beast. The Canadian cow and the Yankee cow will adjust herself to the hour's change, as millions of her sisters have done in Europe.

After all, it only means two days of change in the year—the day that daylight saving is begun, and the day the clock goes back again. It is the equivalent of two more Sundays in the cow's life. Surely that would not bring about the ruination of a herd.

If a farmer's watch went wrong and he got up one hour earlier on a summer morning without knowing it, he just goes about his business in blissful unconsciousness of his mistake. And the cow doesn't show her resentment by refusing to make her contribution to the milk pail. And if he finds out his mistake during the day he rectifies it at night. And again the cow obliges.

Many a man—many a man who objects to daylight saving—has mistaken the time in the morning and got up an hour too soon. He would have gone about his duties as usual but for the fact that he discovered he was out of step with his fellowmen. Change the time for everybody at the same time, including the railways, to come into effect during the hours of sleep, and nobody would know anything about the change except that at night everybody would say: "What a delightfully light evening. Let's stay out a while longer and enjoy ourselves."

And once more about the cow. If a change of one hour is such a vital matter in her lacteal habits, why do big dairymen on this side of the Atlantic run such allegedly terrible risks in paying huge prices for pure-bred dairy cows in the Old Country and bring them over here to improve their production, when the difference in time is five to six hours?

Medical men the world over are agreed that the sun is one of the greatest factors in health. People who have been ill—the King, for example—are prescribed sunshine as part of their cure. People who can afford it go to California or Italy to get the benefits of the sun. Hospitals, factories and homes are being fitted with special windows to let in the beneficent rays.

Is it not somewhat tragic that the cow should stand in the way of millions of people reaping the incalculable benefits of an extra hour of sunshine in the morning and an extra hour at night? For that is what daylight saving means.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Toronto Globe sums up the argument in favor of daylight saving in a sentence when it says: "An extra daily hour of sunshine is more precious than gold and more than compensating for minor inconveniences."

The week-end slaughter on the highways is increasing as the season opens out. With more cars more caution is necessary, but unfortunately the actual conditions seem to be the reverse.

Great Britain at any rate has no reason to complain of lack of candidates for parliamentary honors. Three-cornered contests promise to be the general rule.

The Hepburn-Gott debate at St. Thomas indicates one effective way of creating greater interest in political problems.

After all the "talkies" are not new. There have always been people who read the screen titles aloud.

Wallie Hagen's "I'll win; I always do," makes a striking contrast with what actually happened in the Ryder Cup matches.

The Old Home Week public meeting to be addressed by John C. Miller, of Orillia, on Thursday night should attract a capacity attendance.

A Thought

THE BEAUTIFUL LAND

There's a beautiful land that lies to the west
Of the far famed valley of tears,
Where the griefs that are born are jealously pressed
To the hearts of sorrowful years,
Down the valley across the strand,
Straight on to the sea, where the barks of the dead
Float by to the beautiful land.

The dip of the water is heard in the night,
And the griefs that lie on the sands
In their naked woe, through the shimmering light
Reach out their wierd shadowy hands,
And beckon the vessels to come to them there.
And call to the mystical band
That drifts o'er the sea, to a welcoming aid
Blown soft from the Beautiful Land.

They glide in the wonderful silence of death,
With faces snow white, to the west,
And lily hands kissed by the spice-laden breath
That strays from the sweet land of rest;
They heed not the moan from the gray misty vale,
They see not a beckoning hand,
But sweetly they sleep in the barges asail
For the beautiful, rest-filled land.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The Legion wishes to thank Harris and Boddy for the donation of the sign now placed over the street entrance to the Legion Hall.

Other donations made in connection with the approaching carnival will be acknowledged from day to day.

Offers of help are coming, not only from members of the Peterborough branch, but from civilians and girls. About twenty girls have already volunteered to help at the carnival, and details will be sent them soon.

From two men, not members of the Legion, have come offers to loan and man games. From another, not a member, comes the offer of a wonderful collection of medals for the war trophies exhibit. A member offers the loan of a game. The Ladies' Auxiliary will look after the tea room and a fortune telling booth.

This carnival has so many angles that everyone may help in some way. Letters will go out very soon to the wives of the Legionnaires requesting their practical assistance. Members are already busy selling the unique tickets that not only admit the holder to the carnival, but may then be used just like a dime inside.

All the work of building booths and preparation will be done by members without charge. By this means the public will be assured that every possible cent contributed by them through the show will go to the purpose for which they give—care of needy war veterans.

As proof of its good faith with the public, the Legion will publish in the press a certified statement immediately after the carnival closes.

The campaign is launched—and the Legion expects everyone to do his share.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXVII.

Ana dined with Jessica that night after all.

Like someone in a dream she found herself back at Wimbledon, her suitcase clasped in her hand.

The house seemed cold and unfriendly, and she felt as if she were stepping back into the past—a long-forgotten past, as she closed the front door behind her.

The rest of the evening stretched before her interminably; she knew she could not stay there alone.

She had not dare reply to Anthony's wire—she could not imagine what had really happened. Somehow she had no real belief in the General's accident; a jealous though, gnawed her heart that perhaps Anthony and Mollie had made up their differences after all, and that she was to be pushed out of his life for ever.

"Well, it serves me right," she thought fiercely, and tried to keep back the tears that would come to her eyes.

It was the end of romance—the end of a dream that had been too beautiful ever to be more than a dream.

Jessica's sarcastic words kept returning to her:

"Poor lamb! He had what the psychologists call the guilty complex! His conscience woke up and gave him a nasty prick or something." The thought of Jessica recalled her invitation for that evening. It was not yet too late to go, and anything would be better than her own company.

Ana changed her frock and bathed her face.

"I will not think; I won't let myself think," she told herself all the time. "He's going to write and then I shall know all about it. I won't think a thing till then."

She took a taxi to Jessica's flat. Drake was there already, and Mrs. Inglis and Roy Summers and another man.

Drake seemed delighted to see Ana. He could walk with crutches if they gave him plenty of time, he explained; he hoped soon to be able to take her out in the car once more.

"I wouldn't trust myself to him, Miss Fabian," Roy Summers said. "He'll only smash you up again.

"I don't care if he does," Ana answered recklessly, then flushed as she heard the betrayal in her own voice.

"Well, have a cocktail before you die, anyway," Jessica said. She looked at Ana with a kindly sympathy in her eyes. "How do you like my Abode of Love?" she asked, by way of changing the conversation.

Ana looked round the room. It was very different to Mrs. Inglis'.

"I call it the scrap book," Jessica explained.

It was quite a good name for it. No thing in the room seemed to belong to any other. The chairs were all of different periods—the carpet was Futuristic, and a beautiful bust of Tennyson rubbed shoulders with a hideous plaster caricature from Paris

"I pick things up all over the world," the First Prayer explained. "Things I like at the moment and haven't got the heart to chuck out when I get them home and find they don't fit in with my original scheme of decoration."

"Did you ever have an original scheme?" Drake asked unkindly.

"I did, I assure you," Jessica answered. "There was a time when I was quite a nice sort of person and believed in love in a cottage, and happiness for ever after, and doing my own housework, and making jam and cakes and all the silly early Victorian domestic things which are now such a washout. Come along, let's eat," she added brusquely, as if afraid she was showing too much genuine emotion

Ana sat next to Drake. She supposed that she talked to him, and she knew that there was a lot of laughter and noise, but nothing was very clear. Her heart and brain seemed beating time to a mocking voice that never ceased. "He had what the psychologists call a guilty complex."

Why couldn't she get those stupid words out of her head? What was the sense of them anyway?

Suddenly she felt as if the whole room were receding from her; as if she could not breathe; as if she were falling into a bottomless pit. Her last memory was of putting out her hands helplessly for someone to save her before she fell.

When she woke up again she was lying on a bed in a strange room and Jessica was bending over her gently rubbing her hands.

Strange how gentle the First Prayer's hands could be. Ana thought in a dreamy way; she didn't look gentle—she looked hard—she looked as if life had hit her so many blows that now she was forced to hit back just as heavily and all the time.

"Better?" she asked "No, don't try and get up. You fainted. It was the hot room and too much wine. Drake ought to be ashamed of himself for letting you drink as much as you did. He knew you weren't used to it."

"Too much wine!" Ana struggled into a sitting position. Her head was splitting and her face burned. "Oh—how dreadful!" she said.

Jessica shrugged her shoulders.

"It's nothing. We've all done it in our time," she said carelessly. "But you gave us rather a scare. Sure you're feeling all right?"

"Yes, except for my head."

"Well, lie down; they've all gone long ago."

"Oh!" Ana let her head fall back on the pillow.

"I must be going home," she said, weakly.

"Home!" Jessica laughed. "My dear, it's five o'clock in the morning. You've been asleep here for two hours. You must wait till the buses and things start running again.

"Five o'clock!" Ana tried hard to think; to sort herself out, but she gave it up. "What time was it when I was ill then?" she asked.

"About two, I should think."

"Two! But I'd only just come. We were having dinner."

"We'd finished dinner ages before you fainted; never mind, don't worry. Here, I'll make you a cup of tea."

"Haven't you been to bed?"

"No; but that's nothing unusual for me."

Jessica had changed her frock for a loose oriental-looking gown, and her feet were thrust into big, floppy shoes with no heels which flapped as she crossed the room.

"I wonder what Aunt Hilda would say?" Ana said drowsily.

It didn't seem to matter much anyway; nothing seemed to matter now that memory was returning, and she realized what had happened earlier in the evening.

It was like a stab of exquisite pain—like a knife in her heart to remember that long wait at the hotel and then Anthony's telegram.

Jessica brought the tea and curled herself up on the end of the bed.

"Want to talk?" she asked; "or will you go to sleep again?"

"I can't sleep.'

"We'll talk then. It'll be light soon."

There was already a curious gray light in the room which made Jessica look old and weary. She leaned her chin on her hunched-up knees and stared at Ana.

"What are you going to do with yourself?" she asked bluntly.

"What do you mean?" The question startled Ana. "Do with myself? Why, go home, of course. I'm sorry to have been such a nuisance."

"I didn't mean that. I meant, what are you going to do with your life?"

"My life—why—I don't understand."

"He didn't come, I suppose," the First Prayer interrupted bluntly. "Look here, you can trust me. I went through merry hell myself three years ago, and I know the symptoms. He didn't come! did he?"

"No."

"Why not?"

Ana shook her head, then suddenly she laughed bitterly.

"Perhaps he had what you call a 'guilty complex,'" she said almost hysterically.

"Don't drop the cup," Jessica interrupted. She took it from Ana and put it down on a table. "Come and live with me," she said. "I'm lonely and so are you. You'd be quite free. Have you got any money?"

"Nothing worth calling money."

"Well, I daresay we could manage. I like you."

"You're kind, but I've got an aunt."

"We've all got aunts," the First Prayer said grimly. "I've got stacks of 'em myself, but I don't let them worry me. Do you like her?"

"No, not particularly. She disapproves of me."

"Well, come and live with me," Jessica said again. "I shan't disapprove of you or ask you any questions. You can go your own way and I'll go mine."

"I can't — I mean—I must think it over." Ana stammered. She felt that all she wanted was to be alone to stave off the moment when that letter would come from Anthony—the moment when she would learn the truth, whatever it was.

Till then she knew that she would hardly be able to exist or get through the hours.

The First Prayer was very discerning; she saw it was no time to pursue the subject further; she slipped down off the bed and took away the tea things.

"Go to sleep," she said. "I'll come and wake you when it's breakfast time. Don't worry—no man's worth it."

Ana turned over and shut her eyes.

Not worth it! What was the good of telling her that! Would it have been any good telling Jessica the same thing three years ago?

"But I haven't lost him yet," Ana tried to comfort herself. "It's just that I'm tired and afraid. Of course I haven't lost him; he really loves me."

But she could not sleep; she lay awake till Jessica returned with breakfast on a tray.

"Eat something and then you can have a bath and I'll drive you home," she said. "A bath is one of the seven wonders of the world, do you know that? Its saved me from suicide dozens of times."

Ana had to laugh.

"It's a fact," Jessica said solemnly. "I can remember coming back one night—I didn't live here then. I was cold and wet through and sick with crying, and I thought to myself 'I won't go on, I'll end it. What's the matter with the gas oven' — I went to wash my hands, and the water was beautifully hot, and so I had a bath instead, and the hot water was so comforting and— Well, here I am!"

"You're very kind and cheering," Ana said gratefully. "Not that I was thinking of the gas oven," she added with a little grimace.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1929

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

Astrologers read this as a fairly fortunate day in planetary direction. It is a time especially favorable to intellectual endeavor.

While there is a sign supposed to encourage discontent and quarrels not only with fate but with associates the day can be made far from unsatisfactory by all who keep their mental balance.

Under this rule of the stars a tendency to criticise rulers of every sort whether in government or business affairs may be evident.

It is well to speak after due reflection and to avoid hasty comment while this configuration continues.

Lovers should beware of jealousy today, for the inclination may be toward suspicion and misunderstanding.

All the signs continue to be most promising for aviation in all its branches. Travel by air will increase greatly this month, the seers prophesy.

There is an aspect more or less encouraging to those who make changes or who step from beaten paths under this direction of the stars.

It is an auspicious time for removals from homes o roffices to better locations.

Educational institutions of every sort are subject to the best possible planetary influences. The stars promise much for this year's graduates.

Again the seers foretell the recogniton of new leaders in the worlds of business, finance and politics.

Young men are to begin to climb the heights at this time when those who read the stars prognosticate tremendous achievements.

Far-reaching trade agreements between the United States and foreign countries are prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augurry of a year lucky in business, but perhaps unlucky in love.

Children born on this day probably will meet success in circles where there is great activity and excitement. The subjects of this sign of Taurus are fearless and sanguine in temperament. They often have wondcrful foresight. Many are extremely artistic.

The Duke of Wellington was born on this date 1769. Junius Brutus Booth, father of Edwin Booth, also claimed this as his birthday. He was born in 1796. George Inness, celebrated landscape painter, was born May 1, 1825.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY LIFE IS A DISAPPOINTMENT

The statement, "No one is really happy," was recently attributed to Thomas Edison. The newspapers reported that the great wizard gave it as his opinion that happiness is pretty much of a delusion. Like his close friend, Henry Ford, Mr. Edison is a disciple of hard work and plenty of tit. Both men believe that whatever happiness one may expect from life he will get primarily from the amount and quality of his work and his contribution to the welfare of men.

It is a matter of common observation that the very people we think the happiest are anything but happy "All is vanity," is the common verdict of those who have lived most intensely and should therefore be well satisfied with life.

If life is somewhat of a disappointment to the greatest and best, what must it be to the rest of us?

Disappointment implies failure to come up to expectations. Perhaps the more successful mortals expect more and hence are not better off relatively than the average man.

Heaven is the best proof of the fact that life is a disappointment. As Browning once said, "A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for." We are all inclined to reach beyond our grasp, to bite off more than we can chew. No matter how much we have, we want more. When Alexander the Great conquered the then known world, he is said to have wept because there were no more worlds to conquer. It looks as though we shall be disappointed with heaven if we carry our human spirit along.

Life is a disappointment because it is made up of disappointing experiences. The successful man in one realm is bound to taste bitter defeat in another. If nothing more, he grows old, and feeble and can't help feeling that he is losing out. We spend a liftime getting the means by which to satisfy our want only to discover that the wants have fled. It is like going to an enormous amount of trouble to prepare a feast for a celebrity who at the last minute doesn't come, and we are left in the lurch.

Despite the fact that life is a disappointment and ends in the defeat of death, the imperial spirit of man remains unconquered so long as a man maintains his integrity and knows he is putting up a fight. Such a man has at least the satisfaction of having lived.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

HEAR J. C. MILLER ON THURSDAY EVENING

Will Address Citizens on "Old Home Week" at Collegiate Auditorium.

To show your interest in Old Home Week the committee hopes that the Collegiate will be crowded to capacity to hear the address by Mr. J. C. Miller, of Orillia, on Thursday Evening. Those who are on committees know that Old Home Week will be the greatest event Peterborough has ever attempted.

There is, however, the "old time" touch that should permeate the whole week and every citizen can do something to make this part of the entertainment a success.

Mr. Miller is a most entertaining and witty speaker and you will have spent a most profitable evening if you attend.

Voice of the People

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

It is a pity that some effort was not made to organize the vote. In view of this everyone in favour should positively exercise their franchise, and all sporting organizations impress its members of the importance of voting.

I believe that if the measure carries many of those opposed will change their opinions, because it is amazing the number of people who do not understand the value of an extra hour's daylight, nor do they realize how smoothly it operates.

Some farmers believe the city people are trying to make them work an extra hour per day. One lady from the country told me the hours of banking on Saturdays are short enough without cutting off another hour. These two illustrations are sufficient to give an idea of some people's conceptions of daylight saving.

Our summers are all too short, also our time for recreation. Some suggest getting up an hour earlier in the morning, but that simply "isn't done". Afternoon and evening are the recognized times for sport.

Here's hoping it will be successful. Get out and vote.

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW

Editor Examiner:—

The ratepayers are noting with interest the daily bulletins of the Nicholls Hospital Board in your journal. These appear to make out a very good case for the proposed extension of the Hospital.

There appears to be very little doubt that the institution is often overcrowded and is in need of up to date facilities generally. There is also little doubt that the Administration Board is an excellent one. It is doubtful if a better one could be selected in the city. However, the significant question is, who appoints the Board? I am told they are appointed by certain churches of the city. That is, we are asked to vote public money to be expended by a Board not appointed by, elected by, or representative of the people. This is surely wrong in principle and a practise that might easily lead to abuse. The City Council may have a legal right to hand over a sum of money, en bloc, to the Hospital Board if approved by a vote of the people, but to exercise such a right would seem most injudicious.

I would ask the Board to give in one of their Bulletins the following information:—

(1)—How many members does the Hospital Board consist of?
(2)—Who appoints them?
(3)—If certain City churches appoint them, what churches, and how many and whom by each church?
(4)—Who is eligible to vote on the by-law?
(5)—If the answer is "Protestant Ratepayers" or "Protestant Property owners" then what is the definiteion of "Protestant."
(6)—Will a full and accurate statement of the disbursements of an amount voted be submitted to the Council for auditing. If not why should we vote it.

I am,
Yours truly,
An Interested Ratepayer."

FORTY-TWO LISTED COMPANIES DECLARING DIVIDENDS FOR YEAR

Compilation Indicates Total Payments of $4,375,077 To Be Made Early in May.

FEW BONUS PAYMENTS.

List Is Representative of All Classes of Canadian Industry.

(By A. D. O'Halloran, Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, April 30. — May will see well over four million dollars distributed by way of dividends on securities listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the Toronto Curb Market, according to the list of ex-dividends at the end of April.

Although the month is an off-one for dividend disbusements there are forty-two industrial and utility corporations, mining companies and financial institutions rewarding their stockholders at this period of the year.

A compilation of the list of exdividends, or those to go ex-dividend shortly, indicates total payments of $4,375,677, to be made in the early days of May, with a very few toward the end of the period.

The list is well representative of all classes of Canadian industry, and while the total is below the figure for the regular quarterly periods of the calendar year, the corporations are strong in number and it is only the fact that concerns with a comparatively small total make their disbursements at this time of the year, that keeps the total down. As an example there is only one of the entire chartered banks of the Dominion which pays a dividend in the month of May. This condition is equally true of the other large financial institutions and utilities and industrial corporations.

Few Bonus Payments.

May disbursements contain very few bonus payments and extras and the number is probably the smallest of any one month for the current year to date. In the list, however, are included a number of initial dividends on some of the recent securities offered to the public and others made possible by the general business prosperity of the Dominion.

One payment not included this year is that of Zimmerknit preferred. Officials of this company have already advised the shareholders of the passing of this payment and in explanation stated that owing to the recent re-oragnization of the company's products and plants, it was deemed advisable to conserve the cash assets.

For the last time the dividend on the 7 per cent. preferred issue of Massey-Harris appears. This issue has been called for redemption on May 15 next, an dis being replaced by a new convertible 5 per cent. issue.

$600,000,000 at New York.

NEW YORK, April 30. — Disbursements of dividends and interest by corporations in May, principally around the first of the month, are expected to exceed $600,000,000, a record breaking total for this time of the year. A large number of initial and extra dividends and distributions on stock dividends and split-ups, supplementing the regular distributions of corporations throughout the country, are chiefly responsible for the expansion in payments.

Preparations for this drain on banking accommodations were the principal cause of the tightening of Wall street credit conditions, characterized by an advance in the call loan rate on Friday to 16 per cent, the highest it had been in a month. Banks throughout the country withdrew large amounts of funds from New York; the local banks, though they eased the situation after the maximum rate had been established, held aloof from the market in the main. Bankers declare no material easing of credit is likely until the funds distributed to investors begin to flow back in the form of deposits.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 30.—(C. P.)— Foreign exchange steady; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 7-8; Canadian Dollars at 25-32 of one per cent. discount.

Grain Congestion Becoming Serious

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 30 (C.P.).—Congestion of grain in the port of Buffalo is becoming serious, statistical reports of the Corn Exchange and elevator companies show.

Although 2,903 railroad cars, the largest number so far this season, were loaded last week for shipment to the Eastern seaboard, local elevators yesterday held 21,591,318 bushels of grain, increase of 3,886,000 for the week.

About 22 vessels with 5,659,555 bushels were engaged in unloading or waiting to discharge their cargoes. Altogether there were 27,250,818 bushels in storage in Buffalo.

Fourteen vessels were reported on their way to join the fleet at the elevators.

MONEY RATE DROPS LOWER

General List Registers Advance On Revival of Pool Activities.

NEW HIGH RECORDS SET.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil (Associated Press Financial Editor).

NEW YORK, N.Y. April 30.—The apparent passing of the month-end credit stringency, reflected in the lowering of the call money rate from 14 to 10 per cent., stimulated a general recovery in prices in to-day's stock market. Scores of issues were marked up 3 to nearly 20 points, many of them to new highs, on a revival of pool activities, and a broadening demand on the part of small speculators.

While 10 per cent. call money is by no means cheap, Wall Street obviously was relieved that the threat of another flurry to 20 per cent. had been avoided, and easier rates are looked for as the May 1 dividend and interest cheques are cleared.

U.S. Steel Common was taken in large blocks in the early afternoon, crossing $190 a share. Bethlehem Steel advanced more than 4 points. Ludlum Steel ran up 6 points to a new high record and Midland Steel Products Preferred and A. M. Byers each sold at least 4 points above yesterday's final quotations.

MINE LIST IRREGULAR

Prices Become Firmer After Decline in Morning Session.

CHEAPER ISSUES GAIN.

TORONTO, April 30. (C.P.) — Though such stocks as Noranda, Mayland Oil and a couple of the cheaper-priced oils made headway, the general list on the Standard Mining Market to-day was irregular. Prices however showed some improvement over the earlier movement. Noranda after getting down as low as 50.75, shot up to 52.50 for a net advance of 1.50, while Mayland, in active trading, gained 1.20 to 15.00. Adjax Oil made a further advance of 6c to 1.41, while Wainwell, in a turnover of more than 280,000 shares, strengthened 2 1-4 points to 55.

Teck-Hughes and Hollinger were both up 10c at 9.50 and 7.35 respectively, while Sherritt-Gordon and Sudbury Basin were both unchanged. Pend Oreille lost 20 to 6.75, and Ventures 15 to 9.60.

FORD MOTOR REACHES NEW HIGH RECORD

Registers Gain of 6½ Points At Noon Quotations On Toronto Exchange.

INDUSTRIALS FIRM.

Beverages Show Slight Advance — Oil Section Is Quiet.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30 (C.P.).—With the exception of the market favorites, which developed a smart, upward swing, there was a little activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. There was still a good deal of irregularity, but advances were well in excess of declines. Ford Motor again monopolized the main interest with a further run up to a peak of 67¾, with the noon quotation at that price showing a net advance of 6½ points. The industrial leaders were all stronger, with Page Hersey gaining 2¾ to 133¾. F. N. Burt came out three points higher at 70, while Tip Top showed an appreciation of 1¾ points at 43.

Walkers (old) got as high as 78½ and showed a fractional increase at 77½, while Carlings strengthened 2 to 23. International Nickel was lightly traded in and moved up ½ to 49.

Imperial and British American were the only two oils to be dealt in to any extent, the former climbing up 1¾ points to 115, while B. A. eased off ¼ to 50¾. Standard Chemical lost two to 43, while Canada Dredging lost 1 to 73.

SLAYS CHILDREN; TAKES OWN LIFE

Man Says In Letter He Is Victim of Family Trouble.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press).—Mike Walchin, 30-year-old papermaker, today strangled his three sons and later committed suicide by throwing himself in front of a freight train. The murder victims are Charles Walchin 7, Francis 5, and Norman 2.

The mother, it is stated, left Walchin some time ago to go and live in Regina. She was formerly Miss Beatrice Clarke, an English girl. Her marriage to Walchin, a Galacian by birth, occurred in January, 1922.

Discovery of the triple killing came only after the discovery of the father's mangled body on the railway tracks. Police officials proceeded to the deceased man's home to announce his demise, and found the three youngsters side by side in bed. Under the police flashlight they first appeared to be asleep.

Choked to death by a silken scarf which had belonged to their mother, the three boys had been killed deliberately, one after another, according to a letter left by the suicided father. A six-page letter, police state, tells the gruesome details of the killing, mentioning that the two-year-old baby awoke while Charles, 7, was being choked to death, and whimpered "Mamma, Mamma."

CONIAGAS MINES LIMITED ACQUIRES NEW INTERESTS

Company Has Purchased Interests in Two Prospecting Firms.

DEVELOPING NEW AREAS.

Annual Report Read at General Meeting Held At St. Catharines.

TORONTO, April 30.—(Special to The Examiner).—News of the acquisition of an interest in Northern Areal Minerals Exploration Company Limited, and in the Cyril Knight Prospecting Company Limited is contained in the report of President R. W. Leonard of Coniagas Mines Limited, accompanying the financial statement for 1928 presented to the shareholders at the annual general meeting to-day at St. Catharines.

Speaking of the closing down of Coniagas Mr. Leonard told the shareholders Coniagas owns 61.59 percent of the capital stock and 65.5 percent of commons.

The balance sheet of Coniagas Mines shows total assets of $3,895,622.

Speaking of the financial interest Coniagas has acquired, Mr. Leonard states both these companies are making a comprehensive and exhaustive search for geogical areas favorable to the occurrence of ores and minerals in the remote portion of the pre-Cambrian Shiel region hither inaccesible. As yet it is premature to express an opinion on the discoveries made owing insufficient work having been done thereon, the shortness of the season in the northern latitudes and the difficulties and delays consequent upon such undertakings. In the areas involved it is not much to say however that a real endeavor is being made which has great possibilities during the ten year period ending in 1938 which will represent the currency of these companies operations.

ANTI-TURN SIGNS TAKEN OFF CORNER

Rescinding of By-law Implemented—Pedestrians Must Now Be Careful.

The "No Left Hand Turn" signs that have been prominent on the corner of Charlotte and George streets and which raised such a storm of discussion from merchants and motorists were removed this week. This is following through the decision on the part of the City Council to rescind this by-law after pressure was brought to bear by the merchants on George street. The Ontario Department of Public Highways approved the change on April 15, and with no voice raised in protest the signs were taken down without any fuss this week. It has been noticed, however, that some drivers with a view to preventing accidents and confusion at the corner are still following through the principle of the no left hand turn rule and prefer to drive straight through.

Pedestrians will have to be on their guard at this corner more than in the past when this rule was in force. The Examiner noticed one lady this morning and stepped out from the curb and narrowly escaped being knocked down when a motor turned north off Charlotte street.

Jail Breaker Endeavors To Saw Handcuffs On Way To Toronto.

NOW IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., April 30 (Canadian Press). — John Parkes alias Williams, 28, Woodstock, Ont., jail breaker and alleged auto thief, who escaped from Peterborough Jail last January, and was arrested in Moose Jaw, Sask., on April 19, while with his sweetheart, Pearl Powerman, of St. Thomas, tried to escape from custody by sawing his handcuffs while en route to Toronto.

Parkes was in charge of Detective Campbell, of Windsor, Ont., who is taking him back to that city to face a charge of stealing motor cars. The detective arrived in Toronto to-day with his quarry, and will now proceed to Windsor.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Kirkland Lake despatches are to the effect that on the 1500-foot level of the Lake Shore a length of 2,300 feet of ore has been developed in the north vein. The new shaft is now completed to 1,800 feet and the No. 2 vein is said to have been cut at this level. Where encountered, the vein is eight feet wide, carrying high values in gold.

Kirkland Lake Gold is said to have developed 75 feet of ore running $30 to the ton on the 3,225-foot level. Ore developed on the 2,975-foot level is said to run $25 per ton over a width of 25 feet.

In the annual report of the above company Mr. Tyrrell, managing director, states: "On the 2725 level a dike of fine grained diabase was also encountered 80 feet west of our eastern boundary. This is doubtless the downward extension of the diabase dike which outcrops on the surface 800 ft. from our eastern boundary, and which is therefore dipping westward." While the press has not commented upon this brief statement to a mining man, it is the most important in the entire report. Kirkland Lake Gold hopes to secure its best values on the east side of the diabase dike mentioned and their theory is based on the fact that Teck Hughes secured the bulk of its very rich ore immediately east of this dike. As mentioned, on the 2725-foot level Kirkland Lake Gold has 80 feet of ground east of the dike and if it maintains its dip they should heave over 100 feet of ground to the east at the 3,225-foot level. The dike is calculated to be dipping into Krikland Lake Gold at the rate of about 25 feet for every 100 feet in depth. Interesting results are expected when the company starts crosscutting, driving and drifting in the ground east of the dike.

Activity in Big Missouri shares is doubtless due to the rumors on the rumors on the street that several important announcements are forthcoming in connection with the company. Meanwhile, under the guidance of Consolidated Smelters, the company is aggressively exploring its holdings by a system of tunnels, shafts, crosscuts and winzes.

The policy of a company attaining a substantial interest in some other venture, such as Harker buying heavily of Greene Stabell is a sound one. If one company fails to come through but the other does, it will be seen that they will both share in the resultant prosperity. The companies operating in the Chibougamau field are to carry out this policy, and the Lindsley Brothers have always advocated it. It will be seen that all Lindsley companies are closely inter-locked. Sudbury Basin has substantial holdings of Sherritt, Malartic, Falconbridge, etc. Ventures has holdings of Sudbury Basin, etc. This policy has always been carried out and it will be seen that all companies will be in a good way if but one property "comes through."

A despatch from Sudbury is to the effect that Ventures' holdings in the Sudbury nickel-copper area now amounts to about 24,000 acres in addition to their interest in Falconbridge, Sudbury Basin and the Sudbury Nickel and Copper (a subsidiary of Sudbury Basin).

BRITISH EMPIRE WILL RATIFY PACT

visory Officer at Geneva, announced the Canadian government intended to submit to Parliament a proposal to ratify the protocol subject to reciprocity, similarly with Great Britain.

The commission discussed tables annexed to the draft disarmament convention dealing with the maximum sea, land and air forces and decided to adjourn consideration of the proposals in regard to maximum naval armaments. The British Empire and United States accepted limitations of naval effectives only if it is generally accepted and a satisfactory agreement is reached in regard to the limitation of warships. The matter will be discussed when the United States delegates produce their scheme of naval disarmament, broached before the commission a week ago.

The text of Lord Cushendun's statement in regard to the protocol prohibiting use of poison gas was as follows: "I have been authorized to state that His Majesty's Government in Great Britain has decided to ratify immediately the Geneva protocol subject to the following reservations: First, His Majesty's Government is bound by the protocol only against those other states which have signed and ratified the protocol or adhere to it; Secondly, His Majesty's Government ceases to be bound by the protocol vis-a-vis any enemy states whose armed forces or whose allies do not accept the protocol.

"I have also been asked to announce on behalf of the governments of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Irish Free State that they desire a similar declaration to be made on their behalf."

The United States Government, author of the protocol, has not yet ratified it, it is understood here.

COUNCIL WILL SPEND $150,000

Two representatives of the Municipal Road Spraying and Oiling Company were present during the evening, when the communication re oiling dirt roads in the city was introduced. After they had presented their case and departed, the Board decided to accept their offer, which represented a considerable saving over last year.

To Do Paving..

The Board of Works last night reached another decision— to enter into a contract with the Warren Paving Company regarding the paving of streets in the western part of the city as outlined in a previous issue of The Examiner. In addition there was a communication received from that company, offering to do such extra work as the laying of tile drains and doing special filling along certain of those streets The decision was reached in view of the fact that it would be necessary to spend approximately $4,500 for gravelling and grading, if the paving were not done, and similar expenditure would be necessary within a year or so again. Accordingly, on motion of Alderman Phelan, the clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law whereby the city should enter into the contract.

In answer to a query from Alderman McIntyre, Chairman Hamilton stated that this year's paving program would involve the expenditure of approximately $150,000 as compared with $127,000 in 1928. The councillors felt, nevertheless, that it would be good business to carry out the program, rather than continue spending money on temporary repair work.

Still in connection with paving, came a communication from the Canadian Pacific Railway, regarding the paving of its local yards, and after it had been read, Mayor Denne moved, seconded by Alderman McIntyre, that notice be given of the city's intention to pave Wolfe street from Aylmer street to George street and Charlotte street from Water street to the C.P.R. property line. The motion carried, as did a second one, that the Railway Company be notified of the city's intention regarding Wolfe street, and asking that the company enlarge the bridge over the creek in that block.

Russell Henry had written to the Board asking that a sidewalk be laid along the east side of Gilchrist street between London and Dublin streets. The mention of sidewalks brought to Mayor Denne's mind the thought that something should be done regarding a walk along the River Road toward the Auburn and north of the oval. It was decided to proceed with the paving on Gilchrist street and to look into the matter suggested by the Mayor.

Alderman J. A. McNabb, prior to the close of the meeting, brought up the matter of the dust nuisance on George and other streets in the business section, suggesting that if necessary, the city should purchase a sprinkling machine. In view of fact that such apparatus would cost in the neighborhood of $10,000, it was decided to have Chairman Cotton, of the Fire, Water and Light committee, take up the matter with the fire department, to have the streets sprinkled, if possible by firemen during certain nights.

Parks Committee.

Meeting immediately after the Board of Works, the Parks committee convened for a few minutes, under the chairmanship of Alderman Stocker. Perhaps the most important decision reached was that with regards to the regular distribution of a $1,000 grant to the main musical organizations of the city, namely the band of the Peterborough Rangers, the Salvation Army Temple Band and the Male Voice Choir. The sum of $600 was allotted to the regiment band, and sums of $200 to the Salvation Army and the Choir.

Chairman Stocker also brought up the matter up beautifying the ground about the War Memorial, suggesting the laying out of two long flower beds leading up to the memorial. Action was deferred until a careful inspection has been made.

One communication, from the City Baseball League, asking use of the James Stevenson Park a couple of nights each week during the summer, was favorably commented upon and referred to the chairman and C. Curtis.

MUSKRAT TRAPPING ENDED FOR SEASON

growing necessity for more fur farms to balance the decline in natural stock during the past decade, and to meet the demands of the future, were the main points of emphasis in a conversation with Thomas Barrie of Barrie's, Ltd., this morning.

This year, the rats taken have been a little larger and of slightly better quality than last, due possibly to the comparatively early season, good food supply last year and water conditions this spring. Prices, according to sections, have ranged from $2.00 to $2.60, the better quality rats coming from Rice Lake, and Mr. Barrie believed that the supply had been sufficient to the demands of all dealers. His firm had been well satisfied with its quota. However, there was apparent to a certain extent, a tendency on the part of some dealers throughout the district to import furs of inferior quality and attempt to sell them as local district rats—all of which made necessary more careful examination by the prospective purchasers. This evil, if such it may be termed, did not prevail to such an extent before the advent of motor travel, for obvious reasons.

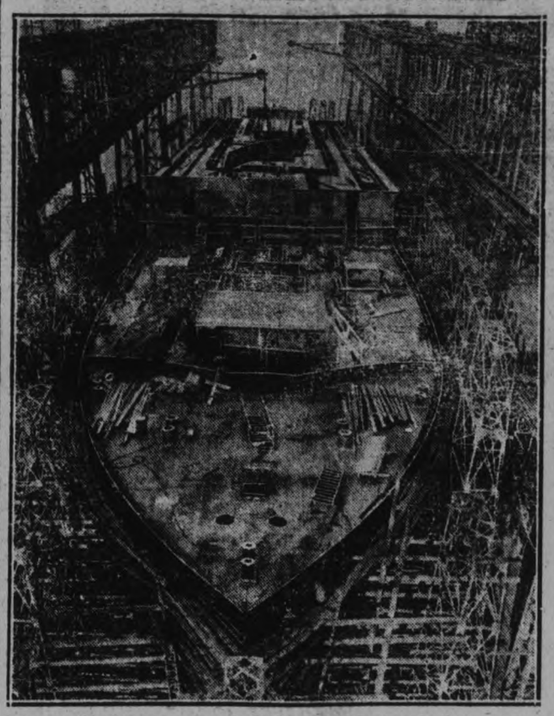
Fur Farms Needed.

Interviewed regarding the general fur market, several dealers in Peterborough, including Mr. Barrie, stated that furs had taken a strong upward trend during the past season, with the result that prices had been raised on nearly all Canadian furs. "The problem of fur supply is therefore one that is causing some concern in the trade owing to the depreciation of wild stock and the therefore greater need for fur farming on a larger scale," said one. "This need, so far as the silver fox fur supply is concerned, has been met by the large number of farms started now, but in many other lines there is a growing deficiency with incidental tendencies toward prohibitive prices, which has not yet been met by the fur farms."

This district is particularly well adapted to fur farming, according to another dealer. Furs native to Ontario, such as muskrat, mink, fisher, martin, red and cross fox, beaver and otter, could be produced on a large scale, and in recognition of this fact the Ontario Government maintains an experimental fur farm near Kirkfield, from which information may be had and where conditions may be studied regarding the proper and best methods of farming the several kinds.

Carrying on in the same line of thought, he declared that there are sections of this province, and adjacent to Peterborough, where lands now either useless or only fairly valuable for agriculture, may be made highly profitable producers of fur-bearing animals, and as an example, instanced where a man had made a catch this year, which sold for approximately $1,400.00—all from a piece of marsh land of between 200 and 300 acres, which had formerly been half-heartedly trapped without thought of conservation or increasing of the stock. Thus a piece of practically valueless land had been made to yield nearly $50.00 an acre.

NEW WHITE STAR MOTOR SHIP



The new SS. Britannic, of which the first announcement containing details of this new White Star motor ship, were received by the White Star Canadian Service this week.

The steamer will be launched in about two months' time and will enter the Atlantic trade in the fall. Her length, between perpendiculars, will be about 680 feet, 80 feet longer than liners of the type of the Doric and Regina which are in the company's service on the St. Lawrence route during the summer season.

The Britannic will have a gross tonnage of 27,000 tons. The motive power to drive this latest motor ship will be supplied by two 10-cylinder Harland-B and W double acting motors, while throughout the ship the fullest use will be made of electricity, for navigating and controlling the ship, for cooking, ventilating, and for operating the enormous amount of service machinery necessary in a ship of the size of the Britannic.

Designed to carry cabin, tourist third cabin and third class, the Britannic will have a passenger capacity of 1,500. One of the outstanding features of the passenger accommodation is the provision of a large number of single rooms.

The steamer will be used on the Liverpool-New York route, but during the winter of 1930 she will make two cruises to the Mediterranean.

FEW OPTIMISTS HAVE FAITH IN GERMAN ENVOY

of the cabinet who conferred with him yesterday followed their custom of declining to divulge details of the conversations.

Dr. Schacht, it is said, foresees two reports from the second reparations committee to the governments of the various delegates, one by the allied experts and one by the Germans.

The study of these will be most valuable for delegates to any later conference.

One of the most pleasing aspects of the negotiations at Paris from Dr. Schacht's point of view, is the unanimity that has characterized the opinions of members of the German delegation. He told a friend that he never dreamed the delegation of four men, with strong views personally, could see so perfectly eye to eye.

industry into Massachusetts.

Meanwhile reports from Newmarket indicate that tenants of mill houses will be forced to vacate shortly. Although the strikers evicted plan to build a "city of tents" the situation offers many serious aspects.

A mass meeting of striking employes was held yesterday in the town hall with upwards of four hundred present. Secretary-Treasurer S. W. Green, of the New Hampshire State Federation of Labor, referred to the eviction proceedings in which the company has served notice on 145 families residing in tenements owned by the management. He expressed the belief that the officials of the State would not allow the French-Canadian families to be evicted.

WEDDING BELLS

CULLICK—BOUCHER.

The wedding took place quietly this morning at ten o'clock at St. John's Church, of Mamie Ruttan only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Boucher, and Professor E. Geoffrey Cullwick, of Vancouver, B.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cullwick, of "Belvedere," Wolverhampton, England. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D. F. C. Mann, A.Mus., played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her travelling gown, an ensemble of navy georgette and lace, with three-quarter length coat and box-pleated skirt. Her little hat was of matching shade and she wore brown shoes and hose. Her bouquet was of Butterfly roses and maidenhair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Halliday Clementi, was in an ensemble of beige silk crepe, with accordion-pleated skirt. She wore matching hat, shoes and hose and carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and maidenhair fern.

Mr. Beauchamp Boucher, of Belleville, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, at the home of the bride's parents. The table was done in pink and white and the bride's cake was wreathed with smilax.

Mrs. Boucher was in black and white, with white fox fur, and Mrs. G. B. Boucher, grandmother of the bride, wore an ensemble of mauve silk crepe and mohair hat. Both wore corsage bouquets of violets.

Professor Cullwick and his bride left on the noon train for Montreal, where they will embark to-morrow evening for England, to stay for the next four months with the parents of the bridegroom, at Wolverhampton. On their return to Canada, they will live in Vancouver.

BLACKWELL—PARSONS

Decorated with palms and spring flowers and pussy willow branches, St. Luke's Anglican Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding at high noon to-day, when the marriage was solemnized there of Jessie Forrester Morrison, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henry Parsons, Douro street, and Mr. Walter Rolleston Lightfoot Blackwell, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blackwell, Benson avenue. The occasion, besides being the wedding day of the bride, was also her birthday.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, assisted by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., of St. John's Church. The wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. W. C. Thompson. During the signing of the register, Mr. M. H. Park, in fine voice, sang, "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a lovely ensemble of white silk crepe and cream lace. Her dress of oyster white French silk crepe was plainly fashioned with long tight sleeves and pointed, collarless neckline. The skirt had pointed side-drapes. An air of distinction was lent by the full-length coat of cream linen lace, with floral design on a net foundation. She wore a small hat of white Baku straw with brim and band of grosgrain ribbon. Her white kid slippers and gloves and pale, flesh-colored hose, completed a lovely costume. She carried an arm bouquet of Butterfly roses and lily of the valley. Attached to her coat was a tiny sprig of waxed orange blossom that had been sent from California.

The maid of honor and bridesmaid were sisters of the bride, Miss Lahring and Miss Nan Parsons. The former was in an ensemble of aqua green, with a long-sleeved frock of green printed silk crepe and a long coat of the same soft green French costume cloth. Her small green hat in matching tones, had a straw brim and a crown of embroidered georgette. She wore beige shoes and hose and beige gloves.

Miss Nan Parsons wore an ensemble in light and dark honey tones. Her gown had harmonizing printing and her long coat was of honey-colored French costume cloth. Her hat of lacy light yellow straw had a grosgrain matching ribbon band and she also wore beige shoes and hose.

Both attendants carried sheaves of spring flowers, in daffodils, narcissus, tulips, hyacinths and iris.

Mr. Holden Blackwell of Cleveland, Tennessee, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

Ushers were Messrs. Heber Rogers, Jack Amys and Jim Parsons.

After the ceremony, a reception to the immediate relatives and friends was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Parsons receiving in a gown of blue and amber printed silk, with amber fox fur, hat of beige straw with felt ornaments and beige shoes and hose. Mrs. Blackwell was in sand crepe with matching hat. Both wore corsage bouquets of Sunset roses.

The room were decorated with a profusion of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and narcissus, the bride's table being centered with the cake and done with the same lovely spring flowers.

Mr. Blackwell and his bride left during the afternoon by motor for an extended honeymoon trip, after which they will live in Peterborough.

The bride travelled in an extremely chic outfit of harmonizing shades of brown, in the new cigar tones. Her dress was a smart model of Panatela brown Canton crepe, with pleated front to the skirt, which had an inset of crepe in batik pattern of red, sand and brown. The same pretty handkerchief type of trimming was in the one-sided scarf which finished the neckline. With this was worn a caravan coat of brown novelty tweed, a little hat of brown straw with eye-brown brim, and matching shoes, hose and bag.

TELEPHONE BILLS OF A NEW DESIGN

Accounts Are Now Being Sent Out to Local Patrons.

Local telephone subscribers are receiving the special accounts which introduce the Bell Telephone Company's new billing system. These special accounts cover the transition period between the old and new systems.

The new plan, as Mr. Beamer, local telephone manager has pointed out, means that the Company has split its thousands of monthly accounts into six equal groups, instead of sending them all out at once as formerly, at the beginning of the month. The advantages of the new system are obvious.

In addition, a new type of billing machine has been introduced. All figures on the account are clearly typewritten by the machine, which totals mechanically. The subscriber is assured a neat, clear and accurate account.

Announcement of the change was made a short time ago when regular April accounts were mailed. Each subscriber received a notice with his account which explained the new "Rotation Billing" plan and stated the day of the month on which his future accounts would be dated. Other notices are included with the presents accounts explaining the charges shown.

Members of Mr. Beamer's staff in the telephone business office are very decidedly in favour of the new plan. Its advantages to the subscriber, they point out, are reflected in the better service they are able to render.

REALIZATION.

When you begin to be tired
Of the things that inspired
You to start out on life with a smile,
Just remember, Carry on!
For there's no one that's born
Who should not make life
Worth its while.

We know there is waiting
And seeking and striving,
To do everything in a hurry;
But, remember, keep moving,
And that will be proving
That you're out to do things,
Without worry.

The harder things are for you,
Even if they are so few,
Should not let your courage be daunted,
Just, remember, get to it,
For you'll never rue it,
When you know those things
You have flaunted.

What are those things that make us feel afraid,
To face this old world and make us dismayed?
Why! Despair, lack of will,
Can't face the mill,
That's the game, that should
Not be played

Just think of courage, and the will to fight game,
For no fight has been won without some things being lost,
But, remember, stand fast,
If it's fight to the last,
Whatever the loss, or whatever the cost.

You'll win in the end, if you mean to go on,
For life is just hard, and has to be won,
It's just a bit sweet, and just a bit bitter,
But don't let it ever call you, A Quitter!

CANADIAN LEGION HAS SPLENDID COMMUNITY HALL

One of the finest halls for use as a community centre to be found in Ontario is the Canadian Legion hall in Peterborough. It has all the features that make a building suitable for meeting, dance and frolic, and it has been made available by the Legion for use of the public at very low cost.

Formerly Murray Street Baptist Church, the building was acquired by the Great War Veterans' Association in 1919 and refitted for its present duty. It is well-built, airy and comfortable, providing facilities not only for the public affairs which take place on the upper floors, but for a large club room for Legionnaires on the street floor.

The auditorium, a room 66 feet by 40 feet, well lighted by ten large windows and ten indirect-lighting electric fixtures, is available for meetings, concerts, and lectures. It is regularly used by the Male Voice Choir for practices, and by other organizations for lodge meetings and rehearsals. Storage space is provided for the folding chairs, and their removal from the hall leaves clear a splendid white floor, than which there is no better for dancing in the city. A movable stage, with footlights, and a set of curtains, make the hall adaptable for plays.

Adjoining the auditorium is the smaller room, usually called the "Ladies Auxiliary room", where there is accommodation for a small meeting of up to fifty persons. Comfortable chairs are provided, and the room is very cosy. This room is now used regularly by the Liberal Association and others for their meetings. It is given to the Well Babies' Clinic for regular meetings

Big Card Room.

On the upper floor is a spacious card room, with comfortable space for sixty tables. More than this number can be accommodated. Tables, table covers, and chairs are provided, and there is a locked cupboard for the display of prizes. Adjoining the card room are cloak and dressing rooms with hooks and hangers for the wraps of 700 persons. All the hooks are numbered, making checking easy.

Well-Equipped Kitchen.

The white-painted, bright, and well-equipped kitchen is an asset of great account. Here is found all equipment needed for the cooking, dishing and serving of a full meal to three hundred persons. There is a large sink, with hot and cold water, a gas stove with nine burners, and ample shelf and bench accommodation for laying out plates.

The completeness of the equipment may be judged from the knowledge that there are three hundred each of cups, saucers, cereal dishes, tea plates, breakfast plates, dinner plates, and water glasses, with the necessary knives, forks, dessert and tea spoons, all of good quality. With these go sufficient cream pitchers, sugar bowls, salt and pepper shakers, and other articles.

In the kitchen cupboards are serving trays, ice cream servers, vegetable spoons, soup ladles, potato mashers and ricers, carving knives, lemon squeezers, kettles, large tea and coffee boilers, kneading pans, roasting pans, beating spoons, can openers, and all the other kitchen appliances that go into the cooking and serving of a large number of meals. Tablecloths, tea towels and hand towels are also provided.

It is possible, in the part of the hall rented for public use, to have a lecture or concert in the auditorium, then clear away the chairs and dance, while those who do not desire that form of amusement play cards upstairs; then, in a few minutes, erect the "knock-down" tables and serve a banquet to the whole party. The rental is arranged, of course, to include either room, or both, with or without the kitchen equipment.

In the Club Room.

In connection with the club room proper there is much of interest. Just inside the door is the office, where are kept records of claims adjusted, notes on cases now proceeding, and all the intricate notes necessary for the prosecuting of cases before various government bodies.

In the large room are pool, billiard and snooker table for use of members, with all equipment. Members pay ten cents a game, and this sum keeps the tables and cues in perfect condition.

The reading room is twenty feet square, a comfortable room at the back of the building. There are magazines, a few books, and a newspaper rack on which a dozen of the latest newspapers are placed every day. One never-failing source of interest to veterans is the big file of London weeklies of war days.

At the rear of the hall are the wash rooms and shower bath, while at a front corner is a canteen, managed by the caretaker, where soft drinks, candy, cigarettes, tobacco, medal ribbons, and so on may be purchased.

The Management.

The house committee, under chairmanship of James Abraham, is directly charged with administration of the hall, and this committee reports to the Board of Directors, consisting for this year of President John R. Heron, 1st Vice President Dr. N. H. Sutton, 2nd Vice President A. E. Everitt, Hon. Secretary, James Turnbull; Hon. Treasurer, R. T. E. Hicks Lyne, M.C.; Directors, John A. Dewart, M.C., Sidney Whatley Rev. P. Costello, Charle W. Wiggins, and Dr. G. Raymore Scott. The rates are set by this committee, and reports on rentals and costs are made monthly by the Honorary Treasurer to the general meeting.

SEVERE ITCHING BURNING ECZEMA
Covered Chest and Throat. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out in a rash and covered my chest and throat. It was of a wet nature and the itching and burning were so severe that I scratched and caused eruptions. My clothing aggravated the breaking out on my chest, and the irritation prevented me from sleeping. The trouble lasted about three weeks.

"I tried several remedies without helping me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after applying them once I felt greatly relieved, and in about two weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Harry McCormack, New Edinburgh, N. S., June 22, 1928.

Labor Party Stands For New Social Order of the sick, and maintenance during employment—in the absence of which the individual is the sport of economic chance and the slave of his environment.

(4) To re-adjust taxation in such a way as to secure that due provision is made for the maintenance and improvement of the material apparatus of industry; and that surpluses created by social effort shall be applied by society for the good of all.

(5) To establish peace, freedom and justice by removing from among the nations the root causes of international disputes, by conciliation and all-in arbitration, by renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, by disarmament, by political and economic co-operation through the League of Nations, and by mutual agreements with the States which are not members of the League.

More concretely the Labor Party stands for transfer to public ownership of coal, transport, power, life insurance and land. It stands for control of the Bank of England by a public corporation, including representatives of the treasury, the Board of Trade, industry, labor and the co-operative movement, and the encouragement of co-operative and municipal banking.

If given power it will establish a national economic committee to advise the government on economic policy, a national development and employment board to prepare schemes for the development of national resources; a commission to prepare a scheme for the reconstruction of the custom industry... With a view to stabilizing prices, it proposes to transfer the import of meat into a public service administered by an import board appointed by the Ministry of Agriculture or the Board of Trade.

In its financial policy it stands for:

(1) Progressive reduction of expenditure on armaments.

(2) Abolition of taxes on the necessaries of life and of protective duties.

(3) Increase of the death duties on large estates.

(4) Further graduation of income tax so as to relieve the smaller and increase the contributions from the larger incomes.

(5) Establishment of an additional graduated surtax on incomes from property of over $2,500 per annum.

(6) The taxation of land values.

A Labor government would urge the various states concernod to co-operate in a survey of the land resources of the British Commonwealth, "with a view to subordinating the private use of the land to the general interests of a scientific redistribution of the population within it." Migration and training schemes are part of the Labor Party's program. "In the scheme for the bulk purchase of food supplies and raw materials," says the Labor Party program, "the Dominions and other portions of the British Commonwealth would play an important part. A Labor Government would provide facilities for overseas producers in the marketing of their produce in this country with a view to stabilizing prices and eliminating unnecessary intermediaries, while it would co-operate in the control and cheapening of the transport of food supplies to Great Britain."

And with its plans for nationalization the Labor Party proposes to proceed "without haste, but without rest, with careful preparation, with the use of the best technical knowledge and managerial skill, and with due compensation to the persons affected."

PACKARD GROUP LEADS.

BURNBRAE, April 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—At last the age of power farming has reached Burnbrae and the peaceful spring stillness is broke by the roar of a four-cylinder tractor engine piloted by Don Watson, 16-year-old son of L. J. Watson, owner of a 200 acre farm at Burnbrae Corners. Faced with the problem of replacing old, worn-out and aged horses for the spring work, Mr. Watson resolved to try the power method of cultivation. To this end a 10-20 McCormick-Deering tractor was purchased from J. C. Anderson of Campbellford, local dealer for the company, and on Friday last Mr. Milne of Hamilton started the outfit at work on Mr. Watson's farm. A 7½ foot cultivator and 2 furrow plough are the only implements used as yet. On the second day in use, the youthful driver of the machine succeeded in cultivating 18 acres of stiff clay and clay loan. Both Mr. Watson and his son are well pleased with the initial success of their venture and figure that the speed with which the work can be accomplished more than counterbalances the increased cost of gas and oil consumption.

It is quite probable that this, the first tractor on a Burnbrae farm, will pave the way for more sales of power machinery. For many years local farmers have reasoned that the Burnbrae country is too hilly and too stony for the successful operation of a tractor, but the manufacturers have endeavored to perfect a machine that will work under all conditions and this should meet with a ready sale.

Power farming is bound to come as this is the only means of cutting down on man power. With the light tractor one man or boy can do the work of two men with four horse-outfits. In these days of high-priced farm help which is difficult to secure at any price, any agency that can enable one man to do the work of two is bound to become popular.

Cattle Sold to Americans

Will the dairy herds of Seymour East survive the inroads of the American buyers? This is the general question among the farmers at the present time. From early winter United States dealers have been buying cattle in this district and in one week of March six carloads left Campbellford. Practically every week since some buyers has been shipping across the border. One local live-stock dealer states that over one hundred dairy cows will leave Campbellford district this week for United States points. While prices have been good all winter, the last two weeks has seen a rise in values. Three American buyers during the last week have secured many cows thought to be too high priced earlier in the year, and the figures paid are quite attractive. Good grade cows and few pure breds from untested herds are being sold at $120 to $150 each, while two-year-old heifers of good size are in strong demand, a rather unusual condition and one which denotes a scarcity of older stuff.

With a high mortality among calves this year and a scarcity of heifer calves from some quarters, three or four years will be needed to regain the volume at the local milk plants.

CHEQUE ARTIST WORKS IN CITY

"Robert S. Lee" Reported To Have Ditched Car "Bought" Here.

While William J. Montgomery, an internationally known cheque artist, was languishing in the county jail awaiting sentence for forgery on five counts, another man, Robert S. Lee, was successfully operating at the same game in the city.

Similarly to Montgomery, young Lee bought a car with a cheque on a bank outside of Peterborough and similarly, too, there were no funds in the bank, when the cheque was presented.

On the tenth of April, Lee, who was boarding with Mrs. H. R. Redmond, 3 McGill street, went into C. Brewers Motor Sales' rooms and bought a used Star coupe. He told a most plausible story, as he handed out a cheque in payment for it. He said that he was in the city closing an estate and had with him a lawyer from England. He said that he had a large account in a bank in Toronto and was thinking of transferring it here. Later, he said that he did not think it necessary to transfer any of his account here, but that, if satisfactory, he would make out the cheque on his Toronto bank and it could be sent there.

He was a frequent visitor around the Brewer Garage until it came near the time when word concerning the cheque would be due from Toronto. Last Tuesday he left his boarding house on McGill street, where he had been staying for the past three weeks, for parts unknown in the car.

A few days later word came through from Toronto to Mr. Brewer that there were no funds in the bank under any such name as Robert S. Lee, and the police were immediately notified. The search commenced.

Word was received in the city yesterday that a car, answering the description of the one that had been obtained by Lee here, was at the Breckey Used Car Sales, on Yonge street, Toronto. Lee, it is said, brought in the car to the dealer and attempted to sell it. The dealer's suspicions were aroused, however, and he delayed the deal until he got in touch with the police. The car will be returned to Peterborough.

According to the description gathered by The Examiner, Lee is a likeable fellow of about 27 years, with a ready flow of talk. He is tall and dark, with one tooth missing in front, which is quite noticeable because of his otherwise well-kept appearance. He is reported to have said that he was previously employed on the fox farm of Patte and Wolff.

The police throughout the province are on the outlook for Lee.

C.G.I.T. GROUP HOLDS MEETING

Much Business Discussed By Members of Millbrook Society.

MILLBROOK, April 30.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — The weekly meeting of the Wide-Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training was held at the leader's home on Thursday evening, with fourteen members in attendance On account of practices for a play which the Young People's Society has now under way some of the girls are prevented from attending the group meetings as regularly as has been their custom.

The business period was in charge of the president, Miss Wilma Fallis, who read a letter from Miss Brownscombe, of Peterborough, giving some information regarding the Y.W.C.A. camp to be held at Stoney Lake, with C.G.I.T. week probably the second week in July. The president was instructed to write for further particulars, and when details are known it is probable the group will arrange to have a delegation at this camp during the week mentioned.

Reports on sick and shut-in members were received, and the group will remember them in as helpful a way as they can. Several of those present reported using the Code, and on suggestion of Rev. Joseph Wilks, who has always been a warm friend of the group, the gospel of John will be used in keeping the Morning Watch. Rev. Mr. Wilks' illness is deeply regretted by the entire community, and the members of the Wide-Awakes' group have been warmly welcomed as they have called at his home to make inquiries regarding the patient's condition.

"Butterflies" was read from the new Girls' Own Book, the group having adopted the suggestion that a chapter be covered at each meeting, sentence about being the plan of reading followed.

The usual ritual opened the devotional period, the scripture lessons being read from Isaiah 6:1-8; Matthew 25:14-30, and Luke 5:1-11; the subject for the leader's talk was, "Have You Seen Christ?" the varying steps in connection with the vision, and the changes which would follow in the life, being given attention, with some detail.

The usual social hour was enjoyed at the close, with a contest, singing from the C.G.I.T. Song Book, and light refreshments.

BIRTHADY PARTY.

Miss Margaret Richardson Honored By Friends At Surprise Party.

LAKEFIELD, April 30.—(Examiner Correspondence).— On Monday evening, sixteen young girls gave Miss Margaret Richardson a surprise party at her home on Prospect street in honor of his birthday. So carefully arranged were the plans that it was a really truly surprise and a very pleasant one. There was a veritable shower of birthday gifts for which Miss Richardson gave a graceful acknowledgment. The evening was spent in games and contests, the prize winners being Misses Merle Crawford and Mildred Purdy. Refreshments were served at small tables arranged in a circle and lighted with wax candles which cast a soft light on the jolly supper party when the electric lights were turned off. A beautiful birthday cake with a candle for each year was a feature and was made by Mrs. Richardson, who had been given warning of the party.

Hostesses and guests alike spent a happy evening which will long remain a happy memory.

Visit House of Refuge.

On Wednesday afternoon the members of the Junior Institute visited the House of Refuge and paid a visit of good cheer to the old people, who welcomed the bright faces and sweet voices of the winsome girls who don't forget in their happy young lives, those, who are spending the evening of their days in this Institution. The girls, who never go empty handed, on this occasion brought fruit which was very much appreciated. The afternoon was spent in music and conversation, with several of the men contributing step dances and songs.

The women who said "come back real soon" voiced the feeling of the inmates of the House of Refuge for the girls of the Junior Institute.

While driving back to the village it was decided to hold the next regular meeting on Wednesday, May 15, instead of the regular date of May 8. The change is made to allow for the reports of Misses Edna Franish and Mabel Mullen who are delegates to the girls' conference in Guelph to be held during the week of May 8.

To Hold Card Party.

The Catholic Women's League is giving an old time dance and card party in the Lakefield Inn on Tuesday, April 30, at 8 o'clock. A good orchestra will provide music for the dancing and there will be prizes for cards. This is the first affair of this kind given by the league for some time and there is no doubt but it will prove very popular.

Argentina now has 19,065 miles of highways.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Does Your Mortgage read like this?

"——and if the giver of this mortgage dies before the payment is completed no further payments need be made and the home will become the property of his widow so that his family will be sheltered as securely as if he had lived——"

Of course it doesn't. But wouldn't you be willing to pay say 2% more interest per annum to ensure such a result?

An Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy will provide funds to take care of your mortgage if you should die. But, should you live—as you expect to—it will give you a substantial sum of cash for your own use, and if you become permanently disabled, it will provide you with a monthly pension. Why not have this worth-while protection now?

Particulars of the Imperial Mortgage Protection Policy sent gladly on request.

SUMMER IS HERE.

An infallible indication of summer's approach was heard in the swamps of the low-lying outskirts of the city the other evening when frogs began to croak in happy chorus. The denizens of the swamps and other marshy places had remained in sleepy silence during the cold winter months and the variable March weather. Saturday, however, they seemed decided that the warm weather had come to stay, and they swelled up with the happy fact. The young, slim frogs trilled in a high treble, while the stout old-timers, veterans of many winters, joined in with a dignified and throaty bass.

Few persons have not at one time or another watched a group of frogs in the midst of a singing performance. The reptiles, like a great many two-legged musicians, insist upon absolute silence during the choruses, and in case of spectators being too noisy they are liable to take stage fright and quickly dive into the water. If one is patient, however, they conduct themselves very reasonably, and it is soon seen that the singing is produced by a little pouch beneath the chin, which is inflated and then deflated like a bag-pipe. A long sustained note is the result, after which the frog pauses gravely, notes the effect, and then repeats the operation.

ROYAL GRAIN INVESTIGATION WILL REQUIRE YEAR'S TIME

Saskatchewan Commission Conducting Elaborate Probe Into Grain Production.

EASTERN SESSIONS.

Western Wheat Growers Are Dissatisfied With Present System.

REGINA, Sask., April 30 (Canadian Press).—What promises to be one of the most elaborate and painstaking studies of grain production, shipment and merchandizing ever undertaken was commenced three months ago by the Saskatchewan Royal Grain Commission. Before the investigation is concluded in the United Kingdom it is expected that more than a year will have elapsed.

Chief Justice James T. Brown of the Saskatchewan Court of King's Bench, is the chairman, and the two other commissioners are Dean W. J. Rutherford of the University of Saskatchewan and John A. Stoneman, past president of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan Section. All three were reared on farms and are familiar from long experience with the problems of western producers.

The commission was appointed on a recommendation of Hon. C. M. Hamilton, Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, because of what he described as "widespread dissatisfaction throughout the province among wheat growers with the present method and system of handling, mixing and grading." The commissioners were asked to inquire into and report upon the whole subject and to endeavor to ascertain whether or not advantage would result to growers if the present system of grading wheat was altered or replaced by some other method which would more accurately indicate its value for milling purposes. They were to determine the effect which the present system of mixing and grading had upon condition, quality and price of such grain on domestic and other markets; the spreads of price between wheat of the different grades and whether such spreads indicated correctly the comparative value for milling purposes of the different grades of wheat; the moisture content of wheat and the effect thereof on its storage, milling and marketing.

The interim report, which has already been published, has covered certain phases of the inquiry. A number of important matters, however, including the interesting and intricate problem of mixing, remain to be dealt with in the final report.

To probe mixing within grades, the commission resumed hearings in British Columbia on April 27, following an adjournment of three weeks during which the interim report was prepared. After the Pacific coast hearings, Alberta will be visited. Then the commissioners will return to Manitoba, and end their western tour at the Head of the Lakes, where a preliminary session was held in November.

Sittings in the East.

No definite itinerary has been drawn up for eastern sessions. Tentative plans call for visits to Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec, Halifax, New York, Buffalo, Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Duluth. The commissioners will then take passage on a grain vessel bound from Vancouver to Liverpool through the Panama Canal.

Remarkable interest in the hearings of the commission has been displayed by the farming communities. Despite bad weather conditions at some points, producers have travelled many miles to attend. Most of the 538 witnesses examined thus far have been Saskatchewan farmers, but one member of the Board of Grain Commissioners, Mathew Snow, and millers, railwaymen, agricultural experts, employees of government inspection, grading and sampling departments and members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange have recorded their testimony.

Interesting evidence was given by numerous producers concerning the theory of a one hundred per cent. marketing organization. Compulsion along wheat pool lines has not been generally advocated even by the most ardent pool supporters. Many of the co-operative leaders, however, have urged some measure of government coercion to have grain outside the pool marketed through the consolidated organization, though not necessarily forcing those opposed to the pool to become members thereof. Just how this could be brought about has not been clearly explained, but pool officials declared something should be done in this direction because enough wheat was being marketed by sources outside their organization to lower the effectiveness of the co-operative project.

On the other hand, many grain producers testified that they would not like to see the pool become more of a monopoly than at present; that a measure of competition was good for the farmers.'

Mixing Problem.

Considerable time up to date has been given to evidence on the old problem of mixing, and the commission will give more attention to this question from now on. For the most part, the producers in a general way have opposed all mixing, except for the benefit of the producer; or, at least, for the owner of the grain. Some farmer witnesses advocated the confining of mixing to government agencies; others urged that it should be strictly limited to certain grades. Evidence on behalf of overseas millers expressed hostility to mixing except in the mills. Benefits from mixing in wheat pool terminals, it was disclosed, go to the actual producers of the grain.

All producers appearing were a unit in rejecting the idea that an agency which has no interest in the grain industry other than mixing should perform such service with legal protection. Their testimony was to the effect that the private elevator, or mixing house, had nearly crowded out the public terminals at the lakehead and on the west coast.

Witnesses declared that the farmer would rather pay a fee of five cents a bushel instead of the prevailing and eliminate "mixing and kinling and eliminate "miing and kindred evils of concealed profits."

In the matter of grades evidence has accumulated in favor of Nos 1, 2 and 3 being "split." Wheat not quite good enough for No. 1 classification and too good for No. 2 should be named, for instance, "No. 1 B" and so on, it was suggested. It was stated that the sperad between Nos. 1 and 2 might be ten or fifteen cents, which was too high a penalty to impose upon a grower just because his grain barely missed a grade. It was claimed by some that this "splitting" system would very nearly eliminate mixing.

Much evidence has been listed in favor of federal inspectors of country elevators with functions similar to those of bank examiners and a recommendation has been given in the commission's interim report on this point. It was argued that elevator operators should be licensed by the Board of Grain Commissioners and trat there should be a staff of inspectors travelling over the prairies and elevators unexpectedly. The belief was expressed that this would prevent any over grading and "switching" of special binned grains.

Complaints against the Board of Grain Commissioners made by witnesses were based chiefly on the failure of the baord to hold meetings at different western points to hear the farmers' grievances. Many expressed the opinion that the board got only the viewpoint of the trade.

While the commission was initiated by the Saskatchewan government, full authority to conduct their investigation has been given by Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia. Quebec authorities have signified their intention to grant similar powers when the enquiry commences in that province.

In a preface to their interim report the commissioners referred to the vastness and importance of the whole problem which confronted them. To indicate to some extent the national importance involved in the producing and marketing of the wheat of the prairie provinces, they submitted figures showing that for the year 1917 the total world production of wehat was 4,293,225,000 bushels, of which Canada's share was 479,665,000 bushels. The total exportable surplus of wheat from all countries in the world during the period from Aug. 1, 1927 to July 31, 1928, was 682,812,000 bushels; and of flour 36,983,000 barrels. Canada's share of this exportable surplus was 288,567,000 bushels of wheat and 9,799,000 barrels of flour, the equivalent of 44,396,000 bushels of wheat, making a total of 332,963,000 bushels of wheat. Thus Canada was responsible for two-fifths of the total world exportable surplus of wheat and for over one-quarter of the exportable flour. Of the total production of wheat in Canada during 1927 the prairie provinces produced 454,559,000 bushels and the province of Saskatchewan alone produced 252,500,000 bushels.

NEW BABY DISTURBS TIRED OFFICE WORKER

"When my oldest boy was just a few weeks old he was badly constipated from my milk," says a Nebraska mother. "He kept us awake so much, my husband almost slept over his desk at the office. Then my doctor got us to give Baby some Castoria and the next day he was much better. His stomach and bowels began acting perfectly and he gave us no more trouble." Avoid imitations of Castoria. The Fletcher signature marks the genuine, purely-vegetable, harmless Castoria, doctors everywhere advise for those ills of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, biliousness, etc.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion: —

Much has been said and written re child training, and I would like to say a word or two, about boys and girls of "teen age." When you are telling your girls, neighbours, about the facts of life, tell your boys also. If you say, or think, "oh boys have to sow their wild oats" just consider for a minute, if you would like your neighbors' boys to sow their oats in your family. Boys need to know the facts of life as well, (if not more so) than girls. We girls were told "if you get into trouble we will turn you out of the house" but—we did not know what the "trouble" referred to was. We went out into the world totally unprepared. As the facts of life became known to us they seemed nauseating, shocking and disgusting. Life isn't like that neighbors. God made us as we are, and HE made nothing bad. All our natural impulses can be controlled, if we know how.

The first fundamental thing is to give our children young or old, a firm faith in God. No other thing is so important. In my humble opinion God wants the young people to have a good time. So many teach God as a hard unrelenting Person who would take all the joy out of life, and want the young people to go around with a long face. But if we teach them, that their body is the temple of God and how it would hurt and trouble Him, if they let it be defiled, then they will have something to cling to, something inside of themselves, to withstand evil. At the same time you have to start early with that. Don't leave it to the church or Sunday School to explain God's goodness to them.

It has always been said, ever since I can remember, that the young people were going to the dogs, therefore I think this generation is no worse than ours was. This rouge and lipstick is just a fashion, and in the main they are clean nice girls. I always think if a girl or boy goes wrong, there has been some wrong training in their home-life. Either the parents have been too strick or too lax.

Give your boys and girls a good working knowledge of God. Help them to go to Him in all things.

One girl said to me, "its all right talking, but can I ask God for a good time, for a girl friend, for a new dress?"

I said, "surely you can. I have asked for all these things, AND GOT THEM."

So neighbors, before you send your children out into the world, give them something to depend on.

A loving Father, whose Blessed Son said: "Ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full." Teach them to ask for help, in all all ways in all places, in all things. Then, knowing you have done your part, leave the rest to God.

Yours,

Quo Vadis."

Thank you for your letter, "Quo Vadis."

"Dear Marion:

This time I came in to have a little chat with the mothers who have daughters. Let me tell you about a perfectly nice girl of my acquaintance who went out with a perfectly nice young man to the movies. After the picture was over they decided that it was a fine moonlight night for a ride, and the ride made them hungry and they stopped at a restaurant for lunch and to dance, with the result that it was about 3 o'clock in the morning when they returned home.

Upon their arrival at the girl's house they found a mother waiting up for them, who had been nursing her wrath to keep it warm and who told them in no uncertain terms her opinion of young people who stayed out that late, and who flatly informed the young man that if he couldn't bring her daughter home at a decent hour he couldn't take her out at all.

When the crestfallen young man had retired the girl threw herself weeping in a chair and sobbed out: "You have driven him a-w-a-y! H-h-h-e will never come back any m-o-r-e! You-you-you ta-a-lked just like an old-fashioned mother, and if you act-act-act that way I won't have any more d-a-t-e-s.

"I talked like a mother who is going to take care of her girls so long as she has the strength and intelligence to do so", replied the mother, "and if that keeps the boys away you are well rid of them, and I am glad of it. But you needn't fear about this young man. He is a gentleman and he will think more of you, because you have a mother who is on her job."

"He'll n-e-v-e-r come a-gain," wailed the girl, "if I can't do like other girls do." But her fears were unfounded. The next morning the young man sent mother a bunch of flowers with a polite note of apology, and he has been virtually camping on the doorstep ever since.

His casual interest in the girl deepened into a very real one by the knowledge that she has the sort of home and mother, that a man would like his wife to have.

There is nothing that enhances a worth-while man's respect for a girl so much, as for her to have a wide-awake, strong, vigorous mother, who is keeping a firm hold on her. It gives a girl a back-ground to come out of a home that is dominated by a woman who has ruled her household and brought up her daughters to fear God, obey their mother and respect Mrs. Grundy.

No man who visits a girl in her own drawing room, whose mother has pleasant little talks with him, whose mother invites him to dinner, whose mother knows just where they are going when he takes her daughtter out and who knows that he must bring her home at a proper hour, ever treats her as he does the girl he picks up on the street, whose mother he never meets, whose home he never enters and who has her own latch key, and can come and go as she pleases. For the mother writes the girl's price tag. (Mothers, be careful, don't hold your daughters cheaply).

If a mother shows that she regards her daughter as something so infinitely precious that she must watch her with ceaseless vigilance, men inlutively recognize this and pay homage to the protected girl as being a little finer, a little better, a little more desirable than the girl whose mother has not thought her worth the looking after.

Furthermore, mothers may be very sure of this, that they are not scaring oft the marrying men when they keep a wary eye on their daughters and control them. A strict mother is a guarantee of character to her daughters, and when a man marries he wants a wife who has been brought up by a mother who had clean-cut ideals of conduct and held her daughters to them; who was particular about their associates and knew where they went and who guided them, and who kept them sweet and pure and fit to be the wife of a fine man and the mother of fine children.

I am sending some of my Old Favorite songs, hope the neighbors enjoy them.

We were asked to tell why we used the pen names we do. I was christened Lucinda. Is not that a very good readson. And another thing I may tell, is, when I want to mend a tear in a garment, instead of sewing it with thread, I use a hair from my head, then the seam is invisible. You see I belong to the old book.

Wishing you continued success.

Lucinda."

Thank you for a very interesting and helpful letter, "Lucinda" and for the enclosures. Your ideas are splendidly told and, to my mind, correct and workable.

"Dear Marion:—

I am a new-comer to your page but I have been interested in its steady improvement since its inception. I have intended for several weeks to send a few suggestions for Old Home Week. (1) Are we to have on sale, some stickers for sealing our letters, with a picture of the lift-locks or a Peterborough canoe, and the dates of Old Home Week, or will the post office stamp all our letters with Old Home stamp —say for the month of June at least? (2) Is there any institution in our memory so Old Home like to Peterborough, as the old-time band concert in Victoria Park? It was a great delight to us years ago and I'm sure it would be still, especially if some of our old-time band players, as Mr. Beach, Mr. Finch Miller and many others were a reception committee at the band stand. (3) When the music committee plans a song sheet for community singing, may we not have two stanzas of a song. So many people hardly get started to sing till one stanza is done. By the way, on the splendid song sheets used at Confederation the first four lines, of "When you and I were young" is omitted altogether. (4) I would like to visit my old school (Ashburnham) and meet some of my old school-mates. I think it would be fine to have an informal reception at every school the old Collegiate included, on at least one forenoon. If we might have a social host or hostess or two, possibly a former teacher, many, many old boys and girls would be present to enjoy old associations.

I will sign myself by the name I have used on the Homemaker's Page of the Globe:

Neighborly Soul."

These ideas should be valuable to the Old Home Week committee, "Neighborly Soul" and I am passing them on. Thank you for your letter.

"Dear Marion:—

I am again sending in a coupon for helps. It's a very convenient way of getting them, too.

I am still cutting out all the "Old Songs" and I think they're all worthwhile. I'd sure hate to be without The Examiner now.

I enjoyed reading Betsy Jane Ann's letter. There is certainly lots of hard work to do on a farm. But then someone's got to do it.

Where would people get bread to eat if farmers didn't grow grain to produce it. The same with so many other products. But do they get pay enough? No. I don't think so, because those farmers put year in and year out tilling the soil, getting it ready for cultivation, harvesting, etc.

Betsy Jane Ann also asks, 'Would you want your daughter to marry a farmer?'.

Well, farmer's wives of to-day are not doing what their grandmother's did before them. You very seldom see them helping to harvest. They seem to pay more attention to the house-work, garden, etc. Men were made stronger than women, anyway, so it's up to them to do the heavy work. And they do not know very much about housekeeping. I guess everyone to his trade, eh? But a mother needs every care and thought in those days if suffering is not to come in later years. And if we women do not have any consideration for our health, why should the men worry over us? What is the end of hard, heavy work? The end is: women, young in years, but old and broken at thirty-two.

About milking the cows. I know how to milk, but my husband never asks me to milk, and I don't do much of it. But let brides start in milking all the cows, and you'll see the man expects them to keep it up. At least I know of some like this, but truly all men are not alike. However I do like to go to the barn and feed the cattle and horses and watch how they relish it.

Well, Marion I guess this is enough of farming for this letter.

I wonder if some kind neighbour could give me a recipe for preserving rhubarb. I like pineapple with it. I'm glad "Doreen" liked the poems I sent her.

I will close for now. Use the scissors if you want to.

With best regards,

Diana."

P.S.—Thanks a lot to "Lonely Lady" for "The Black Sheep."

Your ideas are appreciated a lot, "Diana." Come again.

FOOD AND HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

I have spoken before of the elderly gentleman, well past his seventieth year, who was asked why he had lived to such an age when his brothers had all died about the age of fifty from kidney ailments and high blood pressure.

His reply was "Well you see, I always had a poor appetite."

And our research men now tell us that a large percentage of the cases of high blood pressure are due to the fact that the cells of the body cannot handle the amount of food that is eaten.

In order that food be available it must be burned up completely. If it be not burned up, leaving some of the food products only partly burned, then these cause trouble in the system.

Now there may be something wrong with the body itself, that is the intestine doesn't absorb the food properly, the large intestine retains waste poisonous products too long, some infection from teeth, tonsils and so forth, or perhaps the kidneys do not get rid of poisons properly. Any of the above mean that the blood is carrying about these poisons, the cells of the body rebel against such food, and the small blood vessels contract to prevent the inflow of this blood which the cells are refusing to accept. This resistance results in high blood pressure. As Dr. E. C. Thrash puts it "the cell asks for food and is handed a stone."

Excessive food intake is probably the most general cause of this type of high blood pressure, because excess of food overtaxes the digestive system from the intestine to the cell, and the food reaches the cell imperfectly prepared."

So now that you know the cause of high blood pressure, that is due either to infection or to overeating, you can govern yourself accordingly. First, let the family doctor overhaul you from head to foot, and your dentist X-ray your teeth. Any infection should be removed. Don't be satisfied unless your doctor spends an hour on you, and make sure that an X-ray of teeth is made that will show up the roots properly. Second, that you cut down your food intake, unless you are working very hard physically.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Here are some good rules for economical food buying.

Always make out menus for the day's meals, and if possible for tomorrow's meals, before doing any ordering or buying. Never buy any perishable food unless you have a place for it in your meal plans. Don't buy it just because it is reasonably priced or appeals to your fancy.

Never buy foods out of season when they are high priced unless you are sure that they are in excellent condition and of good flavor—and if you must be very thrifty never buy foods out of season at all.

Don't buy imported food products unless you have a liberal food allowance.

In buying any food product with which you are unfamiliar always buy a small amount to begin with to make sure that you will like it. When new breakfast foods and other such products are put on the market it is usually possible to get a sample package. Use such packages for what they are intended—as samples by which you may see whether you care to buy the product in larger quantity.

Never change from a known good quality food product to one with which you are unfamiliar simply for the sake of change and variety.

In warm weather buy cereals and other starchy products in small amounts.

OLD SONGS

MY MOTHER'S OLD RED SHAWL.

(Contributed by "Adastia")

It now lies on the shelf, it is faded and torn,
That dear old shawl my mother wore;
'Tis all that is left for this heart to adore,
To bring to mind those happy days of yore.
How oft in her hands, too, these folds have been pressed,
That now beneath the daisies are at rest.
The tears come unbidden and silently fall,
Togleam like gems on mother's old red shawl.

It is useful no more, yet I fondly adore
That dear old shawl my mother wore,
And through life it shall be a loved treasure to me,
That little old red shawl my mother wore.

Oh, my heart often aches, with a dull throbbing pain,
When childhood visions come again,
And sadly I think of the days that are past
Too joyous and too beautiful to last.

For life glides away like a tale that is told,
But joys of childhood never can grow old,
And visions of mother, so dear to us all
Come back whene'er I see her old red shawl.

Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.

The following interesting little item from the Toronto press refers to former residents of the city: "Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. O'Connor entertained at their farm, 'Maryvale,' Wexford, on Saturday afternoon for the Catholic Women's League, Sub-division No. 2, about 200 members of which were present. The guests were received by Mrs. O'Connor, Mrs. J. P. Hynes, president of C.W.L. No. 2, and Mrs. George Griffin, vice-president. Saturday's welcome sunshine enhanced the delights of the farm, as pointed out to the visitors by Mr. O'Connor, who introduced Limerick, five prize stallions and several of his fine horses and cattle. The rustic setting of the tea room was most unusual, with its walls literally lined with prize ribbons and trophies won at various horse shows throughout the country and its tables and settees draped with coverlets of leather, while a huge log fire blazed in the open grate. The tea table was laid with filet lace, spring flowers and yellow candles in silver stands. Mrs. James E. Day, Mrs. W. H. McGuire, Mrs. J. G. McDiarmid, Mrs. A. J. McDonagh and Mrs. M. Moher presided at the tea urns, the assistants being Mrs. Harold Murphy, Mrs. Albert Heck, Mrs. D'Arcy Prendergast and the Misses Helen McDonnell and Lilian Gough. In extending the appreciation of the C.W.L., Mrs. J. P. Hynes, the president, presented Mrs. O'Connor with a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty roses."

ALL THE MAIL which arrives just now contains letters regarding the training of children—possibly not really children—but let me speak of younger children for a little while.

• • • • • • •

The efficient mother is very likely to rob her children of some of the most important lessons of life—tidiness, self help, and little ins and outs of doing a thousand and one common things nicely and easily.

• • • • • • •

It is not a wise thing to pick up Johnnie's cap—make him do it. It will teach him order and he will soon put it where it belongs rather than come back and do it.

• • • • • • •

I was in a home not long ago where there were four children and I noticed above four hooks in the kitchen, 1, 2, 3, 4, thus each child had his own hook and number and kept his clothes on it accordingly.

• • • • • • •

When they start to walk is usually the time when they are desirous of helping—let them—give them a dust cloth and let them help. Even if the dusting has to be done over again when they are out of sight, it is good training for them.

• • • • • • •

Teach them to mend rips in their clothing, and they will not be so anxious to go where they will tear them—let them help with the washing and ironing and they will not be so anxious to dirty their clothes.

• • • • • • •

Teach them the science of balanced diet and the need for vitamins when they are preparing the vegetables.

• • • • • • •

If you talk interestingly and instructively to the children as you work you can teach them the principles of home keeping and right living as you go along, and they will learn these so naturally—they will become second nature.

• • • • • • •

And besides all this actual instruction and assistance, the reward of taking your children into your life will be increasing sympathy and understanding all around and more beautiful intimacy.

• • • • • • •

Children love to do what their elders are doing and you are depriving your children of something worthwhile, if you do not let them share with you the business of home keeping.

• • • • • • •

But while we are doing all this we must remember that they are children and that they will not spend all their time indoors listening to their parents.

• • • • • • •

I remember one little girl, not two, saying on being asked to please hurry with the dustpan, "Can't ya wait a minute?"

• • • • • • •

"Don't be always nagging at them to do this or that or the other.

• • • • • • •

I heard a woman speaking not so very long ago on this very subject, and she said many homes had been broken up because of that everlasting nagging. The children when they grow up will simply not stand for it.

• • • • • • •

I know one family where there are five children—the eldest not much more than five, and you can see them almost any afternoon 'minding' little sister while mother is out.

• • • • • • •

And does get good care? Well I guess so—no one dare go near that porch where baby is!

• • • • • • •

Then on the other hand there is another family not many doors from the first where there is an even larger family—but do those children do much work? Well some of the girls might, but there is a body about twelve who does nothing but play from four o'clock until bed time, and you can almost see the scowl on his face half a block away if his poor round-shouldered father even asks him to carry in a few armfuls of wood for mother!

• • • • • • •

It must be wonderful for the husband of "Neighborly Soul" to have a partner so strong and vigorous to be able to help him in the harvest field—I gather from her letter that she is more fond of working out of doors than inside. She is very much like a woman I know personally!

• • • • • • •

I don't mind seeing women on hay rakes, etc., but I would like to draw a line when I see poor little boys not old enough to get on the rake themselves, being drawn over bumpy fields on an old rake. They should be enjoying the two months' vacation in an entirely different way.

• • • • • • •

And yet they will wonder why he can't do better at school!

• • • • • • •

Nothing could be simpler to make than the sleeveless, one-piece frock described in this week's help. It may be adapted to any size girl and is appropriate for summer cotton materials, crepe de chine or other wash silks.

• • • • • • •

I have succeeded in getting a few more of the Mob Cap, so the neighbors who missed it before will have to hurry now before it is all gone again!

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

Two matching scarfs are used here with smart effect One is tied at one end around the neck and the other is used to drape a small straw turban, the corner of the handkerchief forming an ear tab at one side.

Just one spring day of summer's heat shows us how inadequate is the wardrobe that does not include a plentiful supply of scarfs, for as soon as a woman is persuaded to lay aside her coat she feels the need of some sort of neck accessory that will make the coatless dress seem suitable for the street.

Fox fur scarfs have appeared in profusion, worn hardly for warmth but on warmer days. They are worn resting on the arm at the other one shoulder and hanging down side, they are pushed back off the shoulders and sometimes merely carried hung over one arm. There are a dozen ways at least of wearing a silk scarf as an accessory of the street frock without a coat. The important thing is to have a scarf that really is part of the ensemble.

Practically all the French milliners have made hats with scarfs to match and the idea is one that has been taken up with considerable enthusiasm here. Sometimes the material used for the hat will actually appear on the scarf. Perhaps a second scarf will be used to form the crown drapery of the hat. Sometimes the connection is more subtle. Reboux shows a hat of gray felt with a band of ribbon of rose and pink and accompanies it with a scarf made of joined narrow bands of light pink, gray and lavender crepe de chine.

A clever hat and scarf set consist of a navy-blue felt hat of the close bonnet sort, with an appliqueed plume-shaped ornament of navy-blue georgette applied with gold thread. There is a scarf of navy-blue georgette finished round the edge with gold thread.

For warm weather wear there are fairly wide brimmed hats of straw or hair—with brim lined sometimes with delicately figured georgette or chiffon and sometimes some of the figured lining material is also used to make a sloating scarf for neck and shoulders.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

OUR ROAD

A workman on a country road
Removed the stone, the clover sowed
Along the side, and with his spade
A little smoother highway made,
And yet, with all his looking down,
And always thinking of the town,
And always cursing rock and soil,
Found little pleasure in his toil.

The speeding motor hurried by,
"And what," the workman asked, "am I?"
The little children trod his path,
And yet his heart was hot with wrath.
He murmured much about the rich,
And him a digger in the ditch,
And how the great things men may do
Are given only to the few.

And then one day he chanced to look
Along his road. He saw it took
Its way along a ridge until
It climbed the ramparts of a hill,
And there another road it met
And kept on climbing higher yet,
And then he lifted up his eyes
And found his highway touched the skies!

And we, who wonder and complain,
Who shape but steel, who sow but grain,
If we would look along the road
On which we toil with spade or load,
Might find it leading farther than
The footsteps of one maid or man,
Might find it part of that great way
That climbs the very peaks of day.

MUSICAL RECITAL

(By Jeanette).

There was a large attendance in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening for a very pleasing recital of music by violin and 'cello pupils of Donald Heins of Toronto, and piano pupils of Miss Gladys Renouf, both teachers being members of the staff of the local Conservatory.

The recital was artistic and extremely enjoyable from start to finish and demonstrated to perfection a high quality of training in both sections. The smaller pupils, several of whom, little Alex. Carlisle, Allan Park, Kathleen Thackeray, Jean Meyers and Jack McKone, were of very youthful years, made a hit with the audience, in their careful, thoughtful playing of enjoyable music. With only one or two exceptions, the entire program was played from memory, the smallest of the children exhibiting the same high quality in memorizing their work.

The solo numbers by the senior pupils were outstanding in excellence. Several who have attained great proficiency in their work were heard with much pleasure. Walter Townsend, whose skill as a pianist is increasing by leaps and bounds, gave a superb rendition of Liszt's lovely Cantique d'Amour. This young man plays with a masterful brilliancy and a sureness that makes his music a matter of absolute satisfaction to his hearers.

Miss Elizabeth Webber had a double piano number, in a Liszt "Dream of Love" and a Delibes "Passepied," played with charming skill, and Cecil Lapp gave a fine rendition of a "Romance," by Sibelius.

The senior violin selections included two numbers played by Arnold Spencer with his usual thoroughly interesting skill and ease. A broad, smooth tone and fine technical range combine to make Mr. Spencer's music always interesting. His solos were Ries' "Adagio" and Kreisler's "Tambourin Chinois."

Other violin solos that were very well played were the "Legende" of Wieniawski, by Donald Green, and Alard's "Brindisi," by Ross Gillespie.

Jack Thackeray's 'cello numbers were smoothly played, with a firm, rich tone. They were Thome's "Andante Religioso" and Squire's "Tarantelle."

Two appearances of the String Quartette of the Conservatory of Music were greeted with much enthusiasm, their splendid rendition of lovely music bringing them renewed applause. The personnel of this talented group includes Arnold Spencer, Donald Green, Ross Gillespie and Jack Thackeray. They played Haydn's Minuet from the G major quartette, Mozart's "Ave Verum," and Schubert's "Moment Musicale."

Accompaniments for the violin solo numbers were played by Mr. Heins, whose pupils throughout exhibited a very likeable quality of assurance and composure that added immensely to the worth of their music. They play with finish, carefully, smoothly, easily and with a sweet, rounded tone.

In the work of Miss Gladys Renouf's pupils, a great deal of technical proficiency was demonstrated, also a free, flexible wrist movement that makes for a ringing, clear, bell-like tone.

Others taking part in the violin program were junior and intermediate pupils, Alex. Carlisle playing Mozart's Minuet from "Don Juan," Stewart Dawson, Rubenstein's "Romance," Max Glover, Boccherini's "Minuet," Kathleen Thackeray, the "Bell Boy Suite," a composition by Mr. Heins, Gerald Dawson, Borowski's "Adoration," Jack McKone, a "Gavotte," Ralph Clark, Rubenstein's "Melody in F," Frank Dinner, Ten Have's "Allegro Brillant," Miss Teddy Conner, the "Meditation" from "Thais," Miss Mary Westbye, "Purim," composed by Donald Heins, Max Warne, Svendsen's "Romance," and Dorothy Fine, Toselli's "Serenade," and Mr. Heins' "Country Dance."

Other junior piano numbers were those of Allan Park, playing Emmerson's "Polka" and Jean Meyers playing a Greig Waltz and Heller's "Curious Story."

CANNED TOMATOES ARE A "SPRING TONIC" THAT ANY PERSON CAN ENJOY

Spring and early summer bring a craving for the healthful acidity of tomatoes. The delicious and refreshing flavor of tomatoes comes from the health acids which abound in this palatable vegetable. The tomato is, therefore, a natural and proper "spring tonic."

Nor is it necessary to wait for new-grown ripe tomatoes to enjoy this tonic. As a matter of fact, canned tomatoes are to be preferred because they are more truly "fresh" and possess in full measure all the food and health virtues of the naturally matured vegetables.

The fact is that nearly all people need the tonic effects of canned tomatoes in the Spring. During the Winter months, it is a common tendency to eat more acid-forming foods like meat than are good for the system. Long hours in poorly-ventilated rooms and lack of sufficient exercise in the open air increase the run down condition of the system. The blood needs an effective alkalinizer.

Tomato juice (easily and economically obtained by straining canned tomatoes) is one of the strongest alkalinizers that we have, and it isn't a drug or a foreign substance to the body, either. It is a good wholesome food, containing the necessary vitamins, all of the mineral salts and is a great aid to elimination, helping the eliminating organs in getting rid of poisons in the body. Hence the advice of medical science to "eat more canned tomatoes for health."

Veteran Lacrosse Players May Don War Togs Again

CITY IS THE BIRTHPLACE OF MANY LACROSSE STARS; WINNERS OF SEVERAL CROWNS

Suggested Former Players of Canada's National Pastime Should Take Part in Game On Sport Program of Old Home Week — Teams To Be Composed of Local Sportsmen and Visitors.

MANY OF FAMOUS GUT STICK WIELDERS STILL IN THE CITY

Between the years 1885 and 1905 Peterborough had many famous lacrosse teams and won many stirring contests and championships. In fact this city was the hot bed of lacrosse. Some of those famous teams were: the Peterborough Club, North Eastern Champions in 1888, and winners of many great conflicts with the best teams in Canada, Port Hope, Orillia, Toronto, Ottawa, Brockville and Ottawa; also such great teams as the Shamrocks, the Athletics and a host of others that wore the Peterborough colors.

Many of those former players of Canada's National game, which is extinct in the city now, recalling the glory of other days when Peterborough was a name to conjure with in lacrosse circles, have agreed that it would be a fine thing if a game could be arranged for the sport program of Old Home Week. With this in mind and with the assistance of some of these former stars, this column is suggesting two teams for the hoped-for game. One team to be composed of players that are still in the city and the other of players who have made their home elsewhere but who are expected home for the big week.

Many Players Still Left.

The home team could be easily formed of such famous stick wielders as Paddy Carroll, Jack and Jim McCabe, Rollie Glover, Lou LeBarr, Walter Phelan, Billy Rogers, Dick Davidson, Lou McCoy, Shorty Mein, King Dillon, George Lynche, Geordie Lipsett, and Deacon O'Brien. While the team made up of the home-coming Old Boys would include among others: Percy Rubidge, Dr. Lionel King, Brigadier-General Don Hogarth, Ernie Wasson, Fred Lynche, Dinny Dobbin, Jack Brown, Billy Borland, Miles McDonough, and J. P. Mooney. Of course, the list for either of the teams is not nearly complete, but this is sufficient to show how plausible is the idea. It wouldn't be necessary for the boys to get out and play very long if they threw the ball and dashed around for only ten or fifteen minutes, the novelty and purpose of getting these old-timers back at their favorite sport at which they gloried some few years ago, would have been realized.

The only difficulty mentioned up to date is that of securing sticks. But it is a safe bet that a dozen or more sticks could be rounded up from attics, garages, and wood sheds in the city — sticks that have been in many a heated foray and now are dusty and smeared in cobwebs. If this number did not prove sufficient the extra ones required could likely be borrowed from Marmora, Havelock, and Campbellford, where the game is still not quite dead.

This, if carried out, in the opinion of all those to whom it has been mentioned, would be one of the outstanding events on the sports program of Old Home Week.

JOHNSTON WINNER OF EXCITING BOUT

Eber Loses Strenuous Contest —Doddy Oldfield Pleases Fans.

TORONTO, April 30. — (Canadian Press).—Jackie Johnston, of Toronto, won a ten round decision over Bobby Ebber, Toronto, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., in the main bout of a boxing card at the Coliseum here last night. It was a gruelling fight and a slugging match all the way, with Johnston's cleverness and slugging ability earning him the decision. He landed more frequently than Ebber, using a stinging left to the face and a hard right cross to the head and body. Ebber fought a game battle, opening up a deep cut over oJhnston's eye in the seventh round, but the younger man had plenty in reserve and won by a comfortable margin. Johnston weighed 123½ and Ebber 122¼.

The semi-final on the card was a whirlwind of speed and cleverness, Doddy Oldfield, flyweight from England, taking the decision from Harry Goldstein, Toronto, formerly of Boston, in a six round bout that was all action. Going forward all the time, Oldfield flayed his way to victory, willing to take punishment, and was seldom slowed up by Goldstein's solid blows. The young Englishman outhit his opponent and kept the upper hand on a driving offensive practically throughout. Oldfield weighed 111¼ and Goldstein 111½.

Tommy Mitchell, Toronto, 137½, took a six round decision from Chris Newton, Toronto, 139. Mitchell's last round drive giving him the margin.

Willie Ferguson, St. Catharines, Ont., 112¾, won from Ernie Taylor, Toronto, 114, over the six round route.

CHICAGO CUTS BOSTON LEAD

McCarthy's Murderers' Row Bunch Hits To Defeat Reds 4-3.

CARDS EVEN SERIES.

CINCINNATI, April 30 (Canadian Press). — The Cubs moved to within one-half game of the league-leading Braves yesterday, Manager McCarthy's Murderers' Row bunching five hits in the sixth inning for four runs and defeating the Reds 4 to 3. Root bested Donohue in a pitching battle.

CARDS EVEN SERIES.

ST. LOUIS, April 30 (Canadian Press). — A wild eighth inning, in which the Cardinals were issued five passes and aided by a wild pitch, enabled St. Louis to even the series with Pittsburg yesterday 7 to 3. Clarence Mitchell Cardinal spitballer was effective after the first inning blanking the Pirates in eight frames.

SOX DOWN INDIANS.

CHICAGO, April 30 (Canadian Press). — Four Cleveland pitchers all looked alike to the rejuvenated White Sox, who walloped out their third straight win between showers yesterday. The score was 13 to 4.

BROWNS WIN SECOND.

DETROIT, April 30 (Canadian Press). — The St. Louis Browns made it two in a row over Detroit here yesterday, winning a tight 10-inning struggle, 3 to 2, after the Tigers had tied up the score in the eighth at two-all.

COME ON, PLAY BALL!

May 1st will see the opening in Canada of the professional ball season, at the Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto. Office boys will be killing their grandmothers again and big business men will be having important appointments out of the office that afternoon. Some of them too will have a hard time explaining next morning where they got that hoarse voice."

President "Lol" Solman, realizing the great importance of juvenile patronage, has reduced the entrance fee to 25 cents for all boys wearing shorts and under the age of 15. This announcement may stimulate the fad for plus fours.

Although the Leafs are not at the top of the Interational League they are playing fairly good ball, and as the season advances and the hitting strength of the team is improved they should, as in previous years, be dangerous contenders for the pennant.

Lighter Rowing Crews Taking Honors; Varsity Pinning Hopes On New Oarsmen

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 30.—(C.P.)— Sheer beef appears to have lost its potency when it comes to winning crew races. All three that have been rowed in the east thus far have been won by the lighter eight, and Coach Ed Leader at Yale is pinning his hopes on a Varsity that averages but 173 pounds a man.

Nowhere can the vogue for lighter and faster oarsmen be illustrated more strikingly than at Syracuse, where a mere welterweight is pulling the bow sweep. Although weighing but 145 and standing only 5 feet 7 inches, William Wetherell of Brockville, Ont., rowed regularly in the Freshman and Varsity crews in 1927 and 1928 respectively and no one capable of producing more power per pound has shown up to displace him this season.

NEWARK WINS BY 4-3 SCORE

Comes From Behind Twice To Defeat Leafs in Ninth Inning.

KEYS POUND BISONS.

NEWARK, April 30. (C.P.)—Pitching with all his old time skill and craftiness failed to win a ball game for Jess Doyle yesterday, the Bears twice coming from behind to squeeze out a victory in the ninth, 4 to 3. It was Doyle's third defeat in as many starts, but not since 1926 has the veteran given a more impressive hurling display than he did yesterday as he stood out on the windswept hilltop and held the Bears to six hits, and only one to the fifth.

KEYS FOUND BISONS

READING, April 30, (C.P.)—Reading pounded four Buffalo pitchers for 15 hits to score an 11 to 4 victory here yesterday. Two Reading pitchers allowed only nine hits, but were wild, issuing 11 passes, keeping the Bisons in the game. George Fisher of Buffalo, hit a home run, his second in two days.

ORIOLES WIN 10-9.

BALTIMORE, April 30. (C.P.)— A home run rap in the ninth by Danny Clark, pinch hitting for Keen, enabled the Orioles to take a hectic 10 to 9 decision from the Rochester team yesterday, and enabled the Birds to oust the visitors from first place.

ROYALS EVEN SERIES

JERSEY CITY, April 30. (C.P.) — Montreal Royals evened the series with Jersey City here yesterday, shutting them out by a score of 18 to 0. The Canadians went on a batting rampage, hammering the Black Cats' three college pitchers, George Manfredi, of N.Y.U., Arthur Smith of Columbia, and George Miner of Syracuse, for 17 hits.

CHOCOLATE K.O.'S RYAN.

FIRE DAMAGE $4000.

TORONTO, April 30. (C.P.)—Fire here yesterday caused damage estimated at nearly $4000, to a three-storey brick building occupied by the Casselman Company, manufacturers of wiping products. The occupants of the building made their escape by means of the fire escape. The blaze is believe dto have started in some waste material on the top floor. The fire was under control shortly after the alarm was given.

FIELD SPORTS ARE BECOMING POPULAR

Promising Young Runners and Sprinters Join Two Local Track Clubs.

Track and field sports, and especially middle distance running, are booming in the city this spring. Besides the Harrier Club of the Y.M.C.A., the C.G.E. Track and Field Club is holding practice jaunts twice a week, Monday and Thursday evenings.

The C.G.E. club has a membership of nearly twenty-five coming runners with the prospect of more joining in the near future. The club has an agreement with the "Y" and this building is the base of their running operations, the runners returning after a brisk scamper for a shower and rub down.

The club membership includes some experienced runners who have been prominent in the road races in the city and district during the past five years. Also on the roll are some youthful runners who are getting their first training this year. Some of these are showing real ability and promise. Several members have shown such form that they are planning to enter in the big track and field meet to be held in the University of Toronto stadium on May 24, and in which many of the best runners in the province and the United States will compete.

Some of the runners who are taking an active part in the C.G.E. club are: Herb Tranter, Gibson, Bill Snowden, Dick Bates, McBrien, Stewart, Whalling, Sam Freeman, H. Morton, Kirkclady, Aikenhead, Palmear, Alex Mitchell, Frank Woods, Lewington, Dick Williams, Danny Simms, John Benson, J. Trottier and Heffernan.

The prospect of a busy season of athletic meets in the city and district is attracting these runners to take up the running game.

PETER GAVUZZI GAINS ON SALO

New Unofficial Amateur Forty-mile Mark Set By Italian Waiter.

BY NINE MINUTES.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 30. — (Canadian Press).—An unofficial record for forty-one miles was claimed by Pete Gavuzzi, Italian waiter of Southampton, England, in yesterday's lap. C. C. Pyle's Bunioners to-day were headed for Miller, Mo., the thirty-first control point of the cross-country Derby. The distance is forty miles.

Gavuzzi, who covered the forty-one miles between Conway and Springfield yesterday in 4 hours 51 minutes and 10 seconds, said his time for the distance was 9 minutes better than the amateur record held by Lloyd of England. The victory increased Gavuzzi's advantage over Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., policeman, to three hours and 15 minutes.

VIEWS ON SPORT

With baseball practices being held on every corner lot, and the seniors out for a warm-up, the ball season may be said to have commenced.

TWO MILE RACE ON SATURDAY.

Two running clubs, the "Y" Harriers and the C. G. E. Track Club, are training faithfully to get into shape for the numerous athletic meets that are already booked throughout the district. Almost nightly a squad of white clad runners may be seen jogging along the roads in the north end of the city. The Y.M.C.A. is the rendezvous of these runners.

The C. G. E. is planning to hold a two mile race this Saturday afternoon for the runners in their club. Some of their runners are young,but are showing real promise, and the club executive are of the opinion, and properly so, that frequent club races will increase their ability, and give them more confidence, when they meet outside competition.

The runners are looking forward with eagerness to the sport program of Old Home Week, and they are hopeful that the committee will include several middle distance running events on the program.

SOFTBALL LOOP FOR OLDER PLAYERS.

It has been suggested that the Softball League endeavor to form a group for teams that would be composed of players over thirty years of age. Although this is on the right track of trying to bring those players into the game, who otherwise would not be participating in any form of sport, it is declared to be impracticable by the league executive They state that the same plan was tried some years ago and proved a failure, since it takes the young blood to fire the old heads with enthusiasm, and sustain the interest for the game. They look with favor, however, on the suggestion that, perhaps, a lodge or club group would answer the purpose and be workable. Something should be done at the next meeting of the league along this line.

WILL LACROSSE BE REVIVED?

Fred C. Waghorne, special emissary of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, is in the district preaching the gospel of lacrosse to the youth. It is to be hoped that he will have success in awakening new interest in Canada's National Game among the boys of this district. Some twenty years ago there was no need of such a campaign in Peterborough or district. This city was winning lacrosse championships then and was turning out players whose names were ranked among the stars of the game. Some of those old players who are in the city are still wondering what has happened to the game here. They cannot understand why their favorite sport, that supplied fast, clean sport and competition to so many athletes, has died out. Many reasons may be suggested, but it is doubtful if anyone can place his finger on the true explanation.

SOCCER FANS LOOK FOR GOOD SEASON.

Soccer got off to a flying start on Saturday, and judging by the competition exhibited in the game here, and the report of the one in Deloro, the game is due for a great season. The C.P.C. and the C.G.E. elevens played to a 2-all tie, and while Deloro banked the newly-entered Brintons, 5 to 0, it appears that the local outfit gave them a sturdy argument, and were handicapped injuries and other mishaps.

The one thing that has hindered the progress of soccer in the past was the constant bickering and arguing among the teams, both on and off the field of combat. Soccer is an exciting game for both players and spectators alike, and it can only be expected that at times, when nerves are taut that personalities may be dragged in. Such incidents are unfortunate and work to the disadvantage of any game. It is to be hoped that this year hasty tempers will be controlled by cool heads, and nothing will occur to mar the great game and the keen competition that is promised

REACH AGREEMENT ON SCHEDULE

Oshawa has had some difficulty in arranging playing dates with Deloro, so that neither team will be forced to make the long trip four times. Two suggestions were made, one that one game should count as two; this was immediately thrown out; the second to play double-headers. This will be adopted. The trouble is arranging the dates satisfactorily, Deloro having a preference for Wednesday games. The reason was not given, but it is likely that they will draw as large a Wednesday crowd, as they would on Saturday. Oshawa's only objection to this is that the players are forced to lose two whole days' pay, instead of half a day on the second trip to Deloro. A committee was appointed to study the schedule and arrange the most suitable dates.

Singles Test Match Issue Remains Open

TORONTO, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Marcel Rainville, Montreal, and Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, battled so keenly in their singles match in the Davis Cup try-outs that after nearly two hours' play the issue was still open.

An automobile highway traversing South America has been proposed.

CENTRAL SCHOOL DROPS 9-5 TILT

King Edward Winners in Opening Game of Public School Baseball League.

After a tidy argument, King Edward defeated Central 9 to 5 at Central school yesterday in the opening game of the Public School Baseball League. It was snappy ball that the youngsters put up and there was excitement throughout. The scoring was evenly distributed throughout the game. Central in the last frame had three men on bases with two out and the batsman whacked out a hit but the side was retired by some snappy playing on the part of King Edward.

The teams were:

King Edward — Pitcher, Price; catcher, Ball; Moiry, Boller, Richardson, Grosse, Jamieson, Smart and Horton.

Central— Pitcher, Wiley; catcher, Stabler; Fowler, Armstrong, Pratt, Lesurf, Herman, Budd and Watson.

LOCAL FANS ARE ASKED TO ENCOURAGE SOCCER DEBUTANT

Newcomers Anxious To Make Good—Don't Howl Him Down.

GAMES FOR SATURDAY.

Fans and Players Should Study Full Interpretations of Laws Carefully.

Does the average football follower ever think of the feelings of a young player making his debut in a senior team? Sometimes execrations are showered upon his head by the club supporters (?) if he should fail to realize their expectations all at once, while on the other hand, a good display often endears him right away. Rarely does he get encouragement when it is most required, when things may not be running as smoothly as they might be. But that is the football follower all over the world. If they would give a little more thought to the position of the player, they would be more charitable in their criticism and less prone to condemn.

Anxious to Please

Just take the case of the young player who steps out of the pavilion for the first time or the stranger to the locality. His feelings will naturally be a trifle mixed. Pride will be allied to anxiety. He will be full of fear less he should not rise to the occasion to fit in with the rest of the more seasoned players. Spectators may be looking on with a critical eye and a generous vocabularly and it is wonderful how much din a few not over-refined voices can produce when aimed at a few square yards. Seasoned players do not heed the row a bit, but to a youth setting out on a new career, it must be a bewildering and embarrassing experience. And the debutant who can perform brilliantly right away must be in the nature of a prodigy. There was only one unfortunate incident on Saturday at King Edward Park when a few boisterous fans who did not know the ruling in regard to a player being hurt. The referee abided by the rules and informed the ignorant fans on the laws of the game when a C.P.C. player was injured, otherwise he would have been penalizing his (the player's) own team.

Don't Howl Him Down

Rather does the debutant find it much easier to commit a simple mistake which may be unpardonable in the eyes of the rabid supporters. Little allowance are made for the vagaries of the elements, the greasy ball, the state of the ground, ignorance of his new team-mates' moves or intentions, and the other details that a new player must get accustomed. Another matter is the ejaculations made by spectators which are usually audible to the players in the vicinity, so that the new player is likely to hear quite plainly any remark made, whether complimentary or otherwise. And if it is "otherwise" what an unfortunate effect that are likely to have on the new man's play. Let the "new man" score a goal, whether by good play or by sheer accident. He is acclaimed a hero. "A goal covereth a multitude of sins."

Encouragement Helps

It was pleasant on Saturday afternoon to hear the more experienced player give the youthful player credit for his display on the field; also, was it gratifying to note how the more experienced club executive would encourage the stranger to his team. That's the stuff we want—not the knock. Perhaps he knows how the player feels because he has come through the mill himself. Therefore he has a kindred feeling, and he generally knows best how to assist in allaying these nervous spasms which are inevitable. A quietly spoken word makes the newcomer feel at home, this will prevent his mind from dwelling on the task ahead of him. On the field, if things do not run as they should, a quiet word of sympathy and encouragement may be the means of helping the newcomer to settle down to the game. Speaking on the player's behalf, might we counsel just "A little more cheer and a little less jeer." Try it, and watch the results.

Saturday Incident Explained

Law 9.—A player shall not be charged from behind unless HE IS INTENTIONALLY obstructing an opponent. Under official decisions reads thus—The offence of charging an opponent from behind is not committed where a player in playing the ball touches a player behind unless there is AN INTENTION to charge such a player. The referee is the sole judge of such intention . . . If a player turns so as to face HIS OWN GOAL WHEN HE IS TACKLED, or is obviously aware that he is ABOUT to be tackled by an opponent, he is INTENTIONALLY OBSTRUCTING and may be charged from behind.—(International Board, June 8th, 1927). Let all fans get the proper interpretation of this rule, because it will save a lot of argument.

Games next Saturday.

Dominion Woollens meet the Quakers at King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock. Referee Jack Clark.

Canadan General plays the Brinton A. A. at King Edward Park on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock promptly. Referee J. C. Russell.

Belleville Accepted.

A communication was received from C. H. Robson, secretary of the Belleville Football Club desiring to enter the cup competition under the jurisdiction of the local association, and after a lengthy discussion from the clubs' representatives it was found that the teams were agreeable, but it was requested that the local club representatives bring the subject before their executives. The secretary was instructed to give Belleville the necessary information.

AT THE CAPITOL

VILMA BANKY IN "THE AWAKENING."

A gay lieutenant of Prussia started in to make love to the innocent peasant girl of Alsace. She was a village beauty and the idol of all who knew her, worshipped alike for her charm and her goodness. But the reckless officer fascinated her and she went to him at the village hostel, to bid him farewell on the eve of his departure for Africa. The villagers, fired by suspicion and wrath, visited her home and applied pitch to the doors and gate posts, a symbol among them of dishonored purity. Her old, bedridden grandfather, shocked by the indignity, collapsed and died, and the girl, returning, found him in his chair before the fire.

But "the awakening" had come, in the meantime, to the officer, instead of the girl. Alive, at last, to the virtue of her soul, he had allowed her to go unharmed and had also fallen madly in love with her. Lebolt, the ferocious and ugly lover of Marie, comes to the inn and whips her home through the rain, made with jealousy and sorrow over what is consdered her downfall from a lofty pedestal.

The girl seeks refuge in a convent, and here both men find her again. The ending is quite satisfactory for the lovers and painful for the abandoned suitor, whose ugliness contrasts badly with the smooth looks of the handsome rival.

It is an extremely dramatically acted picture. Expression of strong passion, particularly that of revenge and anger, is paramount, and Louis Wolheim has probably the major role as the savage and revengeful Lebolt. Vilma Banky is Marie Ducrot, the heroine, and Walter Byran is the dashing Lieutenant Karl von Hagen.

The comedy is "Loud Soup," with Charlie Chase in a characteristic cut-up role.—Jeanette.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

The Bible is regarded as the most widely read book in the whole world and "Pilgrim's Progress," John Bunyan's classic, as the runner-up, according to librarians. Following them are a group of other famous books, prominent among which is "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the great novel of Harriet Beecher Stowe. This book has been translated into every foreign language and is growing in popularity daily in spite of its seventy-five years. This American classic has now been made into a Universal motion picture of epic proportions to open at the Capitol Thursday. An all star cast will take part, including Margarita Fischer Arthur Edmund Carew, John Roche, Gertrude Astor, Lucien Littlefield, George Siegmann, Mona Ray, Virginia Grey, Eulalie Jense, J. Gordon Russell, Aileen Manning, Jack Mower, Vivien Oakland and others. Harry Pollard directed.

MUSICAL TREAT.

Artist Pupils of Broadus Farmer to Present Musical Program.

A splendid opportunity is offered music lovers on Friday evening in the Collegiate Auditorium by artist pupils of Broadus Farmer.

Albert Steinberg is a great artist of unquestionable talent and so proclaimed by Lawrence Mason and Hector Charlesworth. He leaves for a lengthy concert engagement in New York, on Saturday morning. This youthful musician plays "Caprice Basque", and the "Devil's Trill (Tutini) two ogres in violin playing with complete mastery of his instrument. Beautiful tone and a magnificent technique are part of his equipment.

Another gifted player is Helen McDonald of Hamilton, winner of several gold medals at the C.N.E., a young player of exceptional talent. Edgar Goodaire is the pianiste, a boy of unusual ability.

A quartette of violinists playing "The Rosary" (Nevin), "Frasquita (Leher Kreisler) is indescribable a thing of beauty and sounds to the listener like a great organ. It is perfection in itself.

PILE SUFFERERS

You can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Nothing but an internal remedy can do this—that's why cutting and salves fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, is guaranteed to quickly and safely banish any form of Pile misery or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

START CHILD CHEWING EARLY SAY SPECIALISTS

Far-Reaching Benefits are Obtained from Eating Crisp Foods

Teeth lead a lazy life these days. That is why poor teeth have become the rule rather than the exception, say dental authorities. Practically every dish on the mealtime menu is soft, mushy—ready to be swallowed almost with one gulp. Consequently the teeth miss the valuable exercise which chewing gives them—the digestive juices of the stomach fail to receive the stimulation which thorough mastication gives.

Moreover, these specialists say that the tendency to badly-spaced, crowded teeth, so prevalent among children to-day, is caused by soft food. They urge mothers to give their children, as soon as possible, food which must be thoroughly masticated. The exercise which chewing gives develops jaw bones and muscles.

There is one delightfully crisp food which everyone likes to chew—that they may enjoy to the full its delicious, nut-like flavour. This food is Grape-Nuts.

Grape-Nuts plays an important part in tooth-building also. The health-giving, golden grains from which it is made—whole wheat and malted barley—are prepared by a special process. Because of this, Grape-Nuts retains valuable elements often lacking in modern foods—and it is very easy to digest. It supplies phosphorus for teeth and bones; dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for energy; iron for the blood; protein for muscle and body-building; and the essential vitamin-B.

Youngsters love it!

CRISP, crunchy, delicious Grape-Nuts is a great favourite with the children. And it's so good for them—in so many ways. Helps build teeth, good digestion, strong healthy bodies.

Serve it often. Order the wax-wrapped package from your grocer. No cooking needed—just serve from the package, with milk or cream. Very economical, too—less than one cent's worth is a helping—four teaspoonfuls.

OLD DOBBIN AGAIN OUSTED

L. J. Watson, Burnbrae Farmer, Has Purchased New Tractor For Farm Work.

FIRST IN DISTRICT.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—With over fifty in attendance the league service on Thursday evening, in charge of Gladys Simpson, socal convenor, was a real success. Evelyn Totten acted as leader and announced the following program: Devotional talk, "Kindness," Rev. F. G. MacTavish; hymn by the Packard group; current events, Mrs. Fred Barnum; duet, Misses R. Lawrence and L. Milne; reading, Gladys Petherick; topic, Gladys Simpson; Bible question contest, won by the Chrysler group. The Packard group again led in attendance for the evening. Next week's meeting is withdrawn for the annual pie social and play, and on the following week the meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, owing to the new order of late closing on Thursday in Campbellford.

A large group of local play lovers journeyed to the Tabernacle Church, English Line, on Tuesday evening last, when the young people of that congregation staged the play "Mother Mine." The story is one of touching pathos with bits of humor judiciously placed to relieve the dramatic tension, and it is to the credit of the Line players that they gave every episode the proper appreciation. Violet Dunk, in the title role, played a most difficult part in a wonderful manner, while Sam Peake was also splendid in the role of the wanderer whom she adopts. The rest of the cast included Misses V. Patrick, B. Grills, M. Peaks, T. Stollery, R. Tinney and Messrs. C. Grills, W. Bibby, E. Craighead, L. Fry, J. Dillon. Misses R. Taylor and N. Forde sang between acts.

Lunch was served at the close of the play. Proceeds were nearly $60.

THE IMMIGRATION OF 1825.

We cannot conclude this cursory sketch of the chief incidents connected with the location of the immigrants of 1825, without at the same time placing on record the zeal and ability with which the Hon. Peter Robinson conducted the immigration with which he was entrusted, and the uniform kindness and attention to the wants and necessities of the families under his charge. That he was respected and beloved by those towards whom he had a difficult and trying duty to perform, is prominently shown not only by their public expressions at the time but also by the grateful recollections they still cherish, and the reminiscences they still repeat, embodying similar sentiments. So impressed were the Emigration Committee of the British Parliament with Mr. Robinson's success that they "expressed their sense of the zeal, ability and discretion" with which he effected the location of the two bodies of emigrants in 1823 and 1825, the former having been directed towards the Bathurst, and the latter to the Newcastle district. But we are not without other witnesses to the truth of this statement. About the year 1830, Mr. John Richards was sent out by the British Government as a commissioner "to enquire into the circumstances of the emigrants who went out in 1823 and 1825," and in a letter to Sir Robert Wilmot Horton, Bart., dated London, March 1st, 1831, among other things he states: "I was two or three days at Peterborough, during which time, perhaps, thirty or forty settlers, and some with their families, came in to see Mr. Robinson, and the manner in which they met him was quite affecting; it was more to bless him than to receive him as a visitor."

The statement thus made was confirmed by Captain Rubidge, R.N., in evidence offered in 1838, in reply to questions propounded by Sir R. W. Horton. Such testimony, from such a source, must have been highly gratifying to Mr. Robinson, to his brother, Sir John B. Robinson, late Chief Justice of Upper Canada, as well as to his numerous friends both in England and Canada.

The difficulties of the immigrants when once located on their lands were common to those of other settlers in the bush, and these will be referred to hereafter in the proper place. But there are doubtless many other incidents and reminiscences specially relating to the immigration, which, at this remote period of writing, and in the absence of personal knowledge on the part of the writer, or of documentary evidence set down by others at the time, cannot now be recalled.

It was remarked by Capt. Rubidge in 1847, in his evidence already referred to, and the statement is fully borne out by subsequent observation, that the immigrants improved most rapidly, and were more prosperous in townships in which they were intermingled with English and Scotch settlers, (as in Otonabee, for instance) than in others almost exclusively occupied by themselves.

Whatever opinions may now be entertained as to the relative advantages, ultimately, to a section of country settled by immigrants to whom free grants of land are necessarily accorded, compared with other portions where a certain amount of capital is possessed, and the lands are purchased by the intending settler, there can be no doubt but that the immigration of 1825 to the Newcastle district gave a great impetus to the settlement of this county, and laid the foundation of that material progress and prosperity of which we are now so justly proud. In confirmation of this statement, if such be necessary, we refer again to the evidence of Capt. Rubidge before the committee of the British Parliament. In reply to the question, "In what way did the emigration of 1825, under the superintendence of the Hon. Peter Robinson, affect your township (Otonabee) as well as others on the north side of Rice Lake?" Capt. Rubidge replied:

"We all felt highly indebted to the British Government, who, by planting these emigrants amongst us, encouraged us to cast aside our despondency, and ensured to us brighter prospects. Upwards of 2,000 souls were added to our population; an excellent mill was built at the expense of the Government, since bought by private individuals; leading roads were cut out in all directions and a steamboat in operation. Where at that time one old house stood, the town of Peterborough grew up as if by magic, and it now (1838) contains two churches, two meeting houses, probably 150 houses, and 900 inhabitants. Speculators flocked to the neighboring townships in all directions, mills were built — stores opened—and life, bustle and civilization went on with spirit. Had it not been for this fortuitous accession of population we must have dragged on a lethargic existence with doubtful prospects of improvement."

A Popular Appointment

THE appointment of "Andy" Purman to co-ordinate the program for Old Home Week will meet with universal approval.

Mr. Purman demonstrated his ability in the Kiwanis Frolics—admittedly the best amateur revue ever presented in Peterborough—which he whipped into shape in two weeks.

His ability as an organizer is ably supported by his personal charm, which gains from those with whom he works so unquestioning support and co-operation.

He has a big task. It can only be successfully consummated through the willing help of everyone in any way concerned with Old Home Week work.

Chairmen should get to know "Andy"—they'll like him.

Window Boxes For Old Home Week

Sample Display in Grafton's Window.

(Contributed by Horticultural Committee of Old Home Week)

The Old Home Week committee considers such a re-union as we are looking forward to as one of the best means of advertising the city. Every citizen can have a part in helping get value for our money The time and money we spend in making our home surroundings beautiful is our boost for our city, and gives us a lot of pleasure as well.

No better welcome could be given our friends than that they should see our front lawn all in bloom. We all take pride in having our own lawn and garden looking its best. Other people often get as much joy out of it as we do.

Let no one say that Old Home Week means nothing to him. Get a start at making your place look well this year and each year will bring you new joy. You will always think of 1929, the year of the first Old Home Week, as the time when you got your first enthusiasm in gardening. The Grafton Co. have been kind enough to let us have space in their window to display a window box. Be sure and have a look at it, and picture your own verandah with a similar box full of flowers. The cost is only small, and it may be refilled each year.

You may have some plants that you do not need and your neighbor would be glad to have them. The perennial beds are making good headway, so do not delay transplanting until it is too late. If you are a member of the Peterborough Horticultural Society you may get a lot of useful hints in gardening and their literature is free.

Old Home Week meeting of Water Sports Committee, City Building, on Wednesday, May 1, at 8 o'clock.

Always Peterborough.

Miss Marjorie Gadd, 118 West 3rd Street, Oswego, N.Y., who left here in 1928, and is now engaged in nursing, remarks: "Oswego is a very nice little place, but always Peterborough for me." Her parents reside at 467 King Street.

Can't Beat Peterborough.

"You can't beat Peterborough anywhere, any time," declares R. B. Brooks, Port Hope, field manager for the Fuller Brush Company. He lived at 416 London Street, and his wife was formerly Pearl Clark. Mrs. H. Turner, 247 Princess street, is a sister.

The stores marked "unknown" in the photograph of George street printed on Saturday were speedily identified. The first was the store of Miss Delaney, milliner, and the second that of Wm. Lech & Sons, Ltd.

STOLEN; FOUND; SOLD.

The car that was obtained by Russel S. Lee from the Brewer Motor Sales on a bogus check made out on a bank in Toronto has been returned to the local garage and was resold this morning. One of the garage men went to Toronto on Sunday and brought back the car which the check artist had tried to sell there. The car had just been replaced in the show rooms here when it caught the eye of a prospect and he bought on the spot.

U.S. OFFICER SHOOTS ONTARIO MAN

Says Victim Held Him Up Near London

May Face Murder Charge

Detroit Policeman Is Detained By Police Pending Inquiry.

ANOTHER WOUNDED.

American Consul Interested in Investigation—Crown is Reticent.

LONDON, Ont., May 1 (Canadian Press).—One man is dead, another is in hospital with a bullet wound in his leg, and a Detroit policeman is being held by local police with the possibility that a charge of murder will be laid against him as a result of a hold-up by three bandits on the Provincial highway near here early this morning. A search is being made for the third bandit who managed to make his escape after the shooting.

The dead man has been identified as Robert Schacht, 20, of either Ford or Riverside. From a letter in his pocket, it is believed his parents reside in Yorkton, Sask. His fellow-bandit who is in hospital is Leo Desroche, 19, of Riverside.

The hold-up occurred about 1.30 o'clock this morning, when Dilward McClennan, 36, Detroit, a policeman, who intended taking a two weeks' vacation in Canada, was driving east about five miles from the city. A car drove up behind him and angled him to the side of the road. Believing that there was trouble of some sort, he slowed down, practically to a stop.

A man jumped to the roadway from the car in front, and McClennan started to open the door of his small coupe. His wife, who was in the car, shouted "Look out, he has a gun," and the Detroiter raised his eyes to look down the muzzle of a revolver.

"Hand it all over," demanded the bandit, flourishing a gun in his victim's face. McClennan alighted from the car and put his right hand into his pocket, ostensibly to pull out his money. He outwitted the bandit, however, for instead of a roll of money he brought out a .32 calibre revolver with which he shot Schacht in the stomach.

Turning to the car which was parked just a few feet ahead with the engine running, he blazed away at the driver. A bullet entered the back of the car, caromed off the front seat and entered the driver's leg above the knee, breaking the bone and rendering him hors de combat.

The third member of the bandit trio escaped after taking Schacht's gun.

McClennan communicated immediately with local police.

Pending a coroner's inquest, the Detroiter is being held as a material witness. Crown Attorney A. M. Judd investigated the whole case early this morning, together with Howard S. Withey, American Consul. The Crown refused to say definitely whether a murder charge would be laid against McClennan or not.

Wanted by Police

WINDSOR, Ont., May 1.—Schacht and Desroches are residents of Ford City and both men were sought by the Provincial police as suspects in armed robberies at Cottam and Leamington. A warrant had been sworn out for Schacht.

The automobile driven by the men had been reported stolen last night from the garage of A. S. Phillips of this city.

Gavuzzi Increases Lead Over Passaic Policeman

MILLER, Mo., May 1.—(C.P.)—C. C. Pyle's bunion boys shuffled along to-day over the last Missouri clods on their transcontinental tramp. To-night they rest on the banks of the Missouri river at Jopin before starting to-morrows jaunt into Oklahoma.

Pete Gavuzzi, the bearded Italian waiter of Southampton, England, checked up his second consecutive win and increased his lead over Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., policeman, to nearly four hours yesterday when he led the carnival into Miller from Springfield.

BUILDING RECORD IS LIKELY WITH 1928 TOTAL DOUBLED

Permits To Date Total $171,540 Against $67,447 in 1928.

PLUMBING ACTIVITY.

Inspector Issues Thirty Permits and 55 Certificates of Completion.

If records of building permits issued from the City Engineer's office, be taken as an authority, and if the first four months of the year may be taken as a criterion, then the City of Peterborough will enjoy one of the most extensive building seasons in 1929 that it has ever experienced. To date, totals of building permits have reached $174,540.00, as compared with $67,447.00, less than half, in the corresponding period of 1928, while the month of April, just closed, alone, has shown a total of $131,040.00, as compared with only $38,827.00 in March. This increase maintained even for a few more months of the year, will mean a very high mark, while a further source of satisfaction is found in the fact that the total for this year so far has not been tied up in one or two main activities, but has been spread over many operations.

While April's total number of permits has been less by nine than in March, the past month's total in dollars and cents has been much higher, as stated above. Seventeen permits were issued for the erection of a like number of garages, costing approximately $1,740.00; four new dwelling houses were provided for in the permits at an estimated cost of $10,200, while miscellaneous permits, including that of the new Kresge store, the Shell Gasoline and Oil Depot, and alterations to the C. P. R. station and the Richard Hall Ltd., store, totalled $119,000. In March 53 permits were issued for the erection of 18 garages at a cost of $1,485.00; five dwellings, costing $17,,80000; four service stations costing $14,500, and 266 miscellaneous building activities, costing $5,492.00.

50,900 UNITS OF INSULIN ISSUED IN PAST MONTH

Insulin distribution from the Peterborough Provincial laboratory during the month of April was unusually high, totalling 50,900 units to 36 patients as compared with 32,500 units to 28 patients in the preceding month of March. April of this year was also far ahead of the corresponding period in 1928, when but 20,400 units were subscribed for by 19 patients.

Who May Vote On Three By-Laws?

Friday, May 3, will see the Peterborough voting public filing into the municipal polls from nine o'clock in the morning, to five o'clock in the afternoon, for on that day the citizenry will decide the fate of three main issues around which local interest has centred, namely, the by-laws which would provide for the granting of $300,000 toward the Nicholls Hospital extension fund, $10,000 toward the proposed improvements at Inverlea Park, and finally, the Daylight Saving by-law which would move the clocks of Peterborough forward one hour during the summer months.

Those who may vote on the by-laws are as follows:

Hospital by-law—all property owners who are supporters of Public Schools in the city.

Inverlea Park by-law—All property owners in the city.

Daylight Saving by-law—All persons whose names appeared on the last municipal voters' list.

TRAPPER FINDS THE SHAWL MISS WRIGHT HAD WHEN LOST

James Farewell Sees Garment in Water Near Lake.

MILE FROM BRIDGE.

Attention Turns To Marsh and Lake As Search Is Renewed.

OSHAWA, Ont., May 1.—(Special to The Examiner.)—The wool shawl used by Miss Helen Wright on the night when the auto in which she was riding plunged into Harmony Creek, when the bridge on the Kingston Highway collapsed, was found early to-day by James Farewell, a trapper residing at Harmony. The shawl is a massive garment about seven feet long and five feet wide, knitted with fancy yarns, and with arm holes and used much as a shawl for driving in open air touring cars. It is believed the party used it as a knee rug on the fateful trip.
